Decline in Catholic faculty challenges ND

Jenkins emphasizes role of religion in mission; new office to tackle recruitment problem

By KAITLYNN RIELY
New Writer

Editor's Note: This is the first story in a three-part series examining the role of Catholic faculty at Notre Dame.

To University President Father John Jenkins, Notre Dame's distinctive Catholic mission has three crucial dimensions — grounding education in strong moral character, promoting areas of research like ethics and religious history and fueling a desire to serve the Catholic Church. None of these commitments, he said in his Sept. 26 address to the faculty, can be realized without a sufficiently Catholic faculty.

"We can succeed in advancing these aspects of the University's mission only if we have, among our faculty, a critical number of devoted followers of the Catholic faith," he said.

Forty years ago, schools like Notre Dame and Saint Mary's "bursting with the College of Arts and Sciences," Jenkins said in his Sept. 26 address to the faculty. "It was then that my predecessors, inspired by the spirit of the late President John Courtney Murray, set in motion a series of decisions by which the University's Catholic identity was confirmed, preserved and extended.

"Those decisions, now translated into a mission statement that has been revised only once since 1969, have been both wise and successful. They remain in force and will continue to guide the University.

"We have, among our faculty, a critical number of devoted followers of the Catholic faith," Jenkins said. "We are a Catholic school, grounded in Catholic teaching, and we are striving to be a model of Catholic education that is a force for the good in the world.

Police issue 24 tickets, make 3 arrests

By KATE ANTONACCI
New Editor

Police issued 24 arrest tickets to adults and made three custodial arrests for public intoxication, minor consuming alcohol and false informing before and during Saturday's Notre Dame home football game against Stanford University.

Four additional arrest tickets were issued to juveniles for alcohol-related offenses, for minor consuming or minor in possession of alcohol, Associate Director of Notre Dame Security/Police (NDSP) Phil Johnson said in an e-mail Monday.

Officers were transported to St. Joseph County jail. Johnson said.

During the game, police made one arrest for public intoxication and 16 adults were ejected from the stadium for "alcohol-related offenses." One juvenile was found intoxicated and unconscious outside the stadium and was taken by ambulance to a local hospital.

In addition, one person was issued a "no-trespass notice for violating other University rules," Johnson said.

Several people were also issued notices to "stop selling merchandise or tickets on campus property," he said.

Police are investigating two separate incidents of alleged assault — one on campus, one off campus — reported by Notre Dame students this weekend, officials said Monday.

South Bend police are searching for three or four black high-school age males who allegedly assaulted and robbed two Notre Dame male students early Sunday morning, officials said.

The students told police they were walking on the 1100 block of South Bend Avenue "from the area of Notre Dame Avenue to a tavern on Edison Road" when they were approached by the suspects "who struck the men in the face, kicked them and demanded money," according to a Notre Dame Security/Police (NDSP) crime alert obtained by The Observer Monday.

Though the students were not seriously injured, the suspects made off with money and a cell phone.

"The off-campus case is being investigated by [South Bend Police] and any questions about that case should be directed to SBDPD," said Associate Director of NDSP Phil Johnson.

The men were safely transported back to their off-

Maduro emphasizes continuity in Honduras

Former Honduran president discusses problems and economy, encourages participation

By EVA BINDA
New Writer

For Ricardo Maduro Joest, implementing institutional reform, addressing social problems and fighting crime were at the top of his priority list during his four years as president of Honduras, he said in a lecture Monday.

From 2002 to January 2006, Maduro tried to establish democratic institutions in a poor country without going to extremes and causing more problems, he said in a talk entitled "New Democracies, Poverty, and Governance."
Inside Column

America's time bomb

At a time when the United States should be working at a fever-pitch rate to help Lebanon rebuild in the wake of Israel's war against Hezbollah, Washington is losing its best chance to convince thousands of young Arabs that America does not blindly support Israel at the expense of all other nations. The United States gives more foreign aid to Israel than to any other country. That much is not lost on terrorists as they try to recruit young men and women to join their movement. But the United States now has the opportunity to put another foot forward and visibly demonstrate its commitment to decent living conditions in the entire Middle East, not just Israel.

Three months after the start of Israel's incursion into Lebanon, 295 Lebanese cities have “substantial damage,” some with as many as 500 homes destroyed. The United States has pledged $20 million for one bridge reconstruction project and $230 million overall. Neither figure is nearly enough. Only a firm commitment from Washington to avert oncoming desperate poverty will keep young Lebanese boys off the track to terrorism. But the only social services in southern Lebanon come from Hezbollah, so an organization the United States calls “terrorist” is offering the most significant assistant to poor and war-torn villages.

America's problem may be an argument that is finding supporters inside the White House. In the recently updated “National Strategy for Combating Terrorism,” the White House says that terrorism is not the inevitable byproduct of poverty because “many terrorist leaders... are from privileged back­grounds.” But that salvo misses the point. Whether or not all terrorists are poor is a much separate question from whether poverty increases the rates of terrorism. A closer, more rational examination shows a much different scenario — and the White House need not look any further than the Oval Office for a better understanding.

In 2002, President Bush addressed an international development summit in Mexico focusing on the correlation between poverty and terrorism. “Poverty... is a time bomb lodged against the heart of liberty,” former World Trade Organization President Michael Moore told the delegation. Now the wick on that bomb has run short.

Allowing Hezbollah the political fortunes of an externally supported political party will enable it to rebuild the southern cities decimated by Israel’s war. If the United States only synonymizes Washington’s chances at a successful, Lebanese-led protection of the border. When the people there are hungry, they will see who feeds them. When their kids need to go to school, they will see who funds the teachers and the buildings. And when they need shelter, they will see whose money supports the beams that support the walls that support the roof that support the family. They will see all that. And right now, they see Hezbollah. Unless the United States acts soon in Lebanon, it may be allowing a new breeding ground of extremists to come to fruition just as it claims to be on the offensive against the terrorists.

Contact Ken Fowler at kfowler@lind.edu. The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Corrections

The Observer regards itself as a professional publication and strives for the highest standards of journalism at all times. We do, however, recognize that we will make mistakes. If you have made a mistake, please contact us at 831-4541 so we can correct our error.

Question of the Day: Do you edit your Facebook profile to appeal to employers?

Christina Harmon, Walsh freshman

“Not really. "Because my employer is freaking sweet."

David Shikada, Knott junior

"Yes, because it's silly. You want to look professional."

Jennifer Malherek, Walsh freshman

"Yes, because employers simply don’t want to see evidence of your personal life."

Tim Falvey, Dillon senior

"I don’t have Facebook, but if I did, I would.

Jack Langhenry, Sorin freshman

"No, because they try to recruit young men and women to join their movement."

Lauren Corona, Walsh freshman

"No, because they try to recruit young men and women to join their movement."

In Brief

Director of the National Center for Photovoltaics, Dr. Lawrence Kazmerski will present a lecture entitled “Energy: Can Technology Help Save Our World?” today at noon in the Hodges Center Auditorium.

Author, professor and recipient of the Freedom and Human Rights Prize Naomi Chazan will present a lecture entitled "Can the World Afford to Abandon Africa?" today at 7:30 in the Hesburgh Center Auditorium. The lecture will be followed by a reception.

The Bayanihan Philippine National Dance Company will perform diverse music and dance traditions of the Philippines tonight at 7:30 in the Leighton Concert Hall of the DeBartolo Performing Arts Center. Tickets are $15 for students, $30 for faculty, staff and seniors and $36 for the general public.

Joe Donnelly, the democratic candidate for Congress in Indiana’s second Congressional District, will be speaking at 8 tonight in Carroll Auditorium at Saint Mary’s.

Musicians Patrick Noble and Juan Pablo will perform Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Dalloway’s Coffee House at Saint Mary’s.

Israel Consul General to the Midwest Barukh Binah will give the lecture “In the Wake of a Summer of Conflict: An Israeli Perspective” at 7 p.m. Wednesday in 102 DeBartolo.

To submit information to be included in this section of The Observer, e-mail detailed information about an event to observer@nd.edu.

Offbeat

Skier wins wife-carrying contest

NEWRY, Maine — John Farr, a former Winter Olympian from Carlburg who trained by running up a ski slope with 80 pounds of mortar mix, won the seventh annual North American Wife Carrying Championship Saturday at Sunday River.

Farr’s first-place finish earned him and his 110-pound wife Tessa her weight in beer and five times her weight in cash, or $550. They also are eligible for a $1,000 reimbursement toward a trip to the world championships in Finland next July.

The Farras completed the 279-yard course, which includes a water trough and log hurdles, in 1 minute, 6 seconds in the critical heat and 1 minute, 4 seconds in the final. Daniel Brown and Janet Worcester of Brewer were second, about eight minutes to win the Jalapeno Eating World Championship.

Man eats 247 jalapenos to win contest

DALLAS — A 62-year-old retired accountant from Nevada swallowed 247 peppers in eight minutes to win the Jalapeno Eating World Championship at the State Fair of Texas.

Richard Leefvre won $2,000 for prevailing in Sunday’s contest, which was sponsored by the International Federation of Competitive Eating.

“I love to eat, and I love to compete, so the two go pretty well together,” said Leefvre, the world’s eighth-ranked eater according to the federation.

Leefvre, who has also won the Fair’s World Cup Dog Eating Contest three times, said his winning strategy was to mix three or four peppers in his mouth with a swig of milk before swallowing.

Information compiled from the Associated Press.

The Observer • PAGE 2

Tuesday, October 10, 2006

Atlanta 82 / 58 Boston 61 / 48 Chicago 58 / 44 Denver 49 / 26 Houston 83 / 72 Los Angeles 70 / 55 Minneapolis 58 / 30 New York 68 / 53 Philadelphia 76 / 50 Phoenix 65 / 64 Seattle 67 / 45 St. Louis 69 / 41 Tampa 84 / 64 Washington 78 / 55
Members of the Campus Life Council (CLC) listened to progress reports from task force chairs Monday instead of meeting with Robert Guthrie, the Office of Informational Technologies representative who oversaw the dorm-wide installation of wireless Internet and cable television and the campus-wide improvement to cellular reception.

Due to scheduling conflicts, Guthrie was unable to speak to the council at Monday’s meeting, thus postponing the group’s voting on a resolution that would point out problems with and recommend improvements to new technology in residence halls.

The meeting’s agenda instead focused on reports from task force chairs about what their committees had discussed in individual groups.

Chief executive assistant Liz Brown, Student Voice and Input task force chair, said members of her committee are looking into planning global health awareness events to continue the work of the academic forum held in September. Brown said she is also exploring ways to develop a database for student representation in University committees.

Student body president Lizzi Shappell began this initiative last year when she led the task force.

Alumni Hall senator Danny Smith said the Student Concerns task force wanted to examine how to make information about programming more readily available to dorms.

“We are going to look at program issues, like if you want to get a speaker, who do you go to?” Danny Smith, Alumni Hall senator

In other CLC news:

Shappell announced freshman Matt Bartholow would serve as the new parliamentarian for the student government.

Former student body president Dave Baron made an appearance in the LaFortune Notre Dame room to greet members of the council, delaying the start of the meeting by five minutes.

Contact Kaitlynn Riely at kriely@nd.edu

Announcing a new deadline date for study abroad applications:

All programs for both semesters for the 2007-2008 Academic Year will have a deadline of November 15, 2006. Students must submit applications for Fall 2007, Spring 2008, and Academic Year 2007-08 by midnight of Nov. 15th for the following programs:

Angers, France
Athens, Greece
Bahia/Sao Paulo Brazil
Beijing, China
Berlin, Germany
Bologna, Italy
Cairo, Egypt
Dublin, Ireland

Fremantle, Australia
Innsbruck, Austria
Kampala, Uganda (semester/summer)
London, England
Monterrey, Mexico
Nagoya, Japan
Paris, France
Puebla, Mexico
Rio de Janeiro, Brazil
Rome, Italy
Rome (ICCS), Italy
Russia Programs
Santiago, Chile
Shanghai, China
Tokyo, Japan
Toledo, Spain
Washington, D.C.

Summer Programs will have a deadline date of Mar. 1, 2007 for all except the London Summer Program and Kampala, Uganda.

By KAITLYNN RIELY
News Writer

Executive address fire alarm precautions

By LIZ HARTER
News Writer

Saint Mary’s Board of Governance members discussed concerns raised by the fire alarm in LeMans Hall early Friday morning at their meeting Monday evening.

A fan in the fourth infirmary bathroom started to smoke in the early hours of Friday morning, and the decision was made to pull the fire alarm in order to evacuate the building. Residence Hall Association President Amy Dardinger said: “Our main concern is that people did not hear the fire alarm.”

Student Body President Susan Mcllduff agreed many people had reported sleeping through the alarm — a problem for resident safety.

“It is very important that everyone is leaving [the building],” Mcllduff said. “It is campus policy that there will never be a drill at night.”

She also said residents should evacuate a building immediately at the sound of a fire alarm.

“Don’t be waiting, or stalling, or hiding things that may or may not be allowed in dorm rooms, just get out,” she said.

Dardinger said students should be aware there are some people that will never hear a fire alarm because they are heavy sleepers.

She said these students should tell their friends they need to be woken up during an alarm. A major concern about the alarm is that many students didn’t hear the alarm who believe they should have. Dardinger said: “If you didn’t hear the alarm and you think that you should have [LeMans Hall Director Patricia Hodge] is asking that you email her.” Dardinger said. “Alarms may need to be louder or we may need to put more in to be up to safety codes.”

In Other BGS News:

The Holy Cross Haunted Tunnels will take place the weekend after fall break on Oct. 26. Tickets will be on sale for $3 in the student center in the week leading up to the event, and $5 at the door.

Trick-or-Treating will take place in all residence halls on Oct. 29. Students who wish to participate can pick up an orange pumpkin slip from the front desk of their hall after break and place it on their door to let Trick-or-Treaters know to come to the door.

The sophomore board sold out of their first shipment of “SMC loves Football” T-shirts and will be selling a second shipment during the week of Oct. 22 for $3 at dinner, sophomore class president Christine Johnson said.

Contact Liz Harter at charte01@saintmarys.edu
The key to fixing such problems—and to create lasting change while forming a credible government—is continuity," he said.

"Unless you have princely leaders who insist that at Notre Dame, unless you participate, there is no possibility for continuity," he said.

Maduro said continuity is often difficult in Latin American countries because of the conflicts in policy from one government to the next. "When a new government comes, such as this one (the ruling party) will persuade people into government jobs," he said. "In the past, whatever party won the presidency would automatically get a majority in Congress because a vote for a president was automatically a vote for the other candidates [for seats in Congress]." Though Maduro never expected to become involved in politics, he decided to run for a seat shortly after his son was kidnapped and killed.

The future of Honduras, Madonna said, relies greatly on the continued creation of continuity and freedom from corruption.

"Unless you have a credible government—leadership, such as that at Notre Dame, unless you participate, there is no possibility for continuity," Ricardo Maduro Joest, former Honduran president, said.

Experts urge talks with N. Koreans

Sanction researchers investigate North Korea's nuclear power

South Korean nuclear arsenal has grown tenfold in the last five years, according to David Cortright, a research fellow at the University of Notre Dame's Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies. Cortright and George A. Lopez have spent more than a decade studying the use of economic sanctions to change the behavior of countries. The United States' imposition of sanctions against North Korea has failed, they contend, as has its policy of refusing direct talks with Pyongyang. America must restore normal diplomatic relations with North Korea, Lopez said.

"We must say ‘no’ to the old crime alert as ‘white, possibly 30 to 35 years old, with blond curly shoulder length hair’ wearing a white T-shirt, blue jeans and a white bandanna on his head. In the past, the woman was sitting at a table outside of the Inn at about 8:15 p.m. when the ‘suspect approached her and without speaking, touched her breast,’ the crime alert said.

Though NDSP responded and searched nearby areas, they were unable to locate the suspect, who allegedly took money from the Hammes Bookstore.

The man is described by the crime alert as "white, possibly 30 to 35 years old, with blond curly shoulder length hair" wearing a white T-shirt, blue jeans and a white bandanna on his head. Contact Kate Antonacci at kantonac@nd.edu

Lawmakers summon ex-pages for probe

Representative Foley ethics debate intensifies

WASHINGTON—Lawmakers, following a request from the House ethics committee, are surveying aides and former House pages to find out if any of them had knowledge of ex-Rep. Mark Foley's inappropriate conduct.

Charlie Keller, spokeswoman for Rep. Linzy B. Crone, R-Fla., said she contacted two pages before receiving the committee request and asked them if they had knowledge of inappropriate behavior from Foley, any other lawmaker or staff members. Both said they were not.

Aides for other House members reported similar results Monday.

The ethics committee's four-week investigation is said it approved nearly four dozen subpoenas for testimony Thursday. Witnesses are expected to testify Tuesday morning and Tuesday afternoon on what they knew and whether they investigated or reported the allegations.

There are other instances in which Foley was said to have been accused of inappropriate behavior. In 2000 or 2001, Foley was approached by Rep. Jim Kolbe, R-Ariz., or someone in Kolbe's office about what were described as "creepy" e-mails to a page. Korinna Jones, Foley's press secretary, said Monday.

CBS News's "60 Minutes" Tuesday reported that House Ethics Committee chairwoman Zoe Lofgren, D-Calif., was told of improper e-mail exchanges with a page. In an interview with CBS, Attorney General John Ashcroft said his office has asked the page's lawyers to look into the allegations. He declined to comment further, citing ongoing investigations. Speaker Gov. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said he expects the page's lawyers to look into the allegations.

A spokesman for the Ethics Committee said he could not comment on the page's allegations.

The Ethics Committee's four-week investigation is said it approved nearly four dozen subpoenas for testimony Thursday. Witnesses are expected to testify Tuesday morning and Tuesday afternoon on what they knew and whether they investigated or reported the allegations.

The ethics committee's four-week investigation is said it approved nearly four dozen subpoenas for testimony Thursday. Witnesses are expected to testify Tuesday morning and Tuesday afternoon on what they knew and whether they investigated or reported the allegations.

The ethics committee's four-week investigation is said it approved nearly four dozen subpoenas for testimony Thursday. Witnesses are expected to testify Tuesday morning and Tuesday afternoon on what they knew and whether they investigated or reported the allegations.
INTERNATIONAL NEWS

Protestant, Catholic meet in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Northern Ireland’s devout Protestant, Catholic meet in Belfast Wednesday in Scotland, which is leading three days of history-making negotiations by the Wednesday in Scotland, have given the Northern Ireland Assembly a Nov. 24 deadline to set up a Protestant-Catholic administration or be shut down.

Tree caused May crash killing 10

KABUL, Afghanistan — A helicopter crash that killed 10 U.S. troops last May was caused by a series of mishaps, a new report concluded. Problems included a nighttime landing on a small mountaintop zone, trees that were too close to the runway and soldiers who lacked axes to cut them down.

Missouri middle school in custody

Ferguson was part of the reenactment in late August in Friendship, a small community in southeast Indiana.

Lower standards raise recruits

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Army recruited more than 2,600 soldiers under lower aptitude standards this year, helping the service beat its goal of 70,000 recruits by throwing open an unpopular war and mounting casualties.

The recruiting mark comes a year after the Army missed its recruitment target by the widest margin since 1979, and it has triggered a host of concerns about the number of recruiters and the standards you set.

Tests don’t tell you the answer to the most critical question for the Army, how will you do in combat?” Goure said.

But, he added, accepting too many recruits with low test scores could increase training costs and leave technical jobs unfilled.

North Korea tests nuclear bomb

Country hears world’s condemnation for successful underground atomic explosion

The Associated Press

SEUL, South Korea — North Korea faced global condemnation and calls for harsh sanctions Monday after it announced that it had set off an atomic explosion underground, a test that thrusts the secretive communist nation into the elite club of nuclear-armed nations.

The United States, Japan, China and Britain led a chorus of criticism, with President Bush saying the test posed a threat to global peace and security, and “deserves an immediate response” by the U.N. Security Council, which met to discuss the crisis.

Bush said he had called the leaders of South Korea, China, Russia and Japan, and all had reaffirmed a commitment to a nuclear-free Korean Peninsula.

The reported test came one day after the ninth anniversary of the split of North Korean leader Kim Jong Il’s accession to power.

Members of the 15-nation Security Council were unanimous in condemning the claim amid worldwide concern that it could seriously destabilize the region with even North Korean ally China saying it strongly opposed to the move.

“No one defended it, no one even came close to defending it,” U.S. Ambassador John Bolton said. “The test is a threat by the unanimity of the council that it would not tolerate such a threat to international peace and security.”

The Security Council had warned the impoverished and isolated nation about two days earlier not to go through with a test, and Bolton said Washington will seek U.N. sanctions to curb North Korea’s import and export of material for weapons of mass destruction, as well as its illicit financial activities.

Bolton and key U.S. allies, including Britain and France, said they would seek a resolution under Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter that would seek punishing measures, going beyond the limited sanctions in a measure adopted by the council in March after North Korea conducted seven missile tests.

Chapter 7 grants the council the authority to impose a range of measures including breaking diplomatic ties, imposing economic and military action.

The Bush administration repeatedly has said it has no plans to invade North Korea and military action appeared unlikely. But the U.S. proposed stringent sanctions on Monday, including a trade ban on military and luxury items, the power to inspect all cargo entering or leaving the country, and freezing assets connected with Pyongyang’s weapons programs, according to a copy of the draft obtained by The Associated Press.

North Korea’s U.N. ambassador Pak Gil Yong said the Security Council should congratulate the country instead of passing “useless” resolutions or statements.

AP Television News footage showed North Koreans going about their daily business and there were no signs of heightened alert by security forces in Pyongyang on Monday, hours after their government said it performed a nuclear weapons test.

People also laid flowers by a statue of Kim Il Sung, the current leader’s father who died in 1994, ahead of Tuesday’s 61st anniversary of the North Korean Workers’ Party that he founded. Red flags of the party draped buildings and lampposts.

Iranian state radio, meanwhile, blamed North Korea’s reported nuclear test on U.S. pressure, saying the test “was a reaction to America’s threats and humiliation.”

Iran has said it will not abandon uranium enrichment despite the threat of international sanctions over its disputed nuclear program, which Tehran insists is purely for peaceful purposes.

Lower standards raise recruits

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Army recruited more than 2,600 soldiers under lower aptitude standards this year, helping the service beat its goal of 70,000 recruits by throwing open an unpopular war and mounting casualties.

The recruiting mark comes a year after the Army missed its recruitment target by the widest margin since 1979, and it has triggered a host of concerns about the number of recruiters and the standards you set.

Tests don’t tell you the answer to the most critical question for the Army, how will you do in combat?” Goure said.

But, he added, accepting too many recruits with low test scores could increase training costs and leave technical jobs unfilled.

North Korea tests nuclear bomb

Country hears world’s condemnation for successful underground atomic explosion

The Associated Press

SEUL, South Korea — North Korea faced global condemnation and calls for harsh sanctions Monday after it announced that it had set off an atomic explosion underground, a test that thrusts the secretive communist nation into the elite club of nuclear-armed nations.

The United States, Japan, China and Britain led a chorus of criticism, with President Bush saying the test posed a threat to global peace and security, and “deserves an immediate response” by the U.N. Security Council, which met to discuss the crisis.

Bush said he had called the leaders of South Korea, China, Russia and Japan, and all had reaffirmed a commitment to a nuclear-free Korean Peninsula.

The reported test came one day after the ninth anniversary of the split of North Korean leader Kim Jong Il’s accession to power.

Members of the 15-nation Security Council were unanimous in condemning the claim amid worldwide concern that it could seriously destabilize the region with even North Korean ally China saying it strongly opposed to the move.

“No one defended it, no one even came close to defending it,” U.S. Ambassador John Bolton said. “The test is a threat by the unanimity of the council that it would not tolerate such a threat to international peace and security.”

The Security Council had warned the impoverished and isolated nation about two days earlier not to go through with a test, and Bolton said Washington will seek U.N. sanctions to curb North Korea’s import and export of material for weapons of mass destruction, as well as its illicit financial activities.

Bolton and key U.S. allies, including Britain and France, said they would seek a resolution under Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter that would seek punishing measures, going beyond the limited sanctions in a measure adopted by the council in March after North Korea conducted seven missile tests.

Chapter 7 grants the council the authority to impose a range of measures including breaking diplomatic ties, imposing economic and military action.

The Bush administration repeatedly has said it has no plans to invade North Korea and military action appeared unlikely. But the U.S. proposed stringent sanctions on Monday, including a trade ban on military and luxury items, the power to inspect all cargo entering or leaving the country, and freezing assets connected with Pyongyang’s weapons programs, according to a copy of the draft obtained by The Associated Press.

North Korea’s U.N. ambassador Pak Gil Yong said the Security Council should congratulate the country instead of passing “useless” resolutions or statements.

AP Television News footage showed North Koreans going about their daily business and there were no signs of heightened alert by security forces in Pyongyang on Monday, hours after their government said it performed a nuclear weapons test.

People also laid flowers by a statue of Kim Il Sung, the current leader’s father who died in 1994, ahead of Tuesday’s 61st anniversary of the North Korean Workers’ Party that he founded. Red flags of the party draped buildings and lampposts.

Iranian state radio, meanwhile, blamed North Korea’s reported nuclear test on U.S. pressure, saying the test “was a reaction to America’s threats and humiliation.”

Iran has said it will not abandon uranium enrichment despite the threat of international sanctions over its disputed nuclear program, which Tehran insists is purely for peaceful purposes.
Faculty continued from page 1

with religious and priests," said Father Robert Sullivan, director of Catholic studies.

But this is no longer the case, because the University now faces the challenge of both recruiting Catholic professors and retaining them. "We're trying to continue Notre Dame's Catholic mission," said Sullivan.

Though the number of undergraduate Catholics has remained relatively consistent at approximately 85 percent, the percentage of Catholic faculty has gradually decreased during the past 25 years. In the 1985-86 school year, Catholics composed 65 percent of the faculty. This number has dropped to around 54 percent, according to statistics from the Office of Institutional Research.

To actively combat this decrease, Sullivan encouraged his faculty to address the creation of an initiative to recruit Catholic students and research positions at the University along with those K e o g h - H e s s o n Professorships — which will be funded with a donation from the Keough family, among others. A new office will be established with the sole focus of identifying scholars who would be eligible academically to teach at the University and will contribute to its Catholic mission.

Sullivan, who will direct this office, said the University "has a commitment in its mission statement to a preponderance, a preponderant number, of Catholic intellectuals on our faculty." This is Notre Dame's first effort, however, "to seek these people rather than sit through applications or maybe hear things by word of mouth," he said.

Sullivan said his immediate goal is to maintain the University's current percentage of Catholic faculty. A figure below that, he said, would call into question the maintenance of Notre Dame's Catholic identity.

Dean Mark Roche of the College of Arts and Letters worked with Sullivan over the past year to create a database of names of Catholic scholars who would be eligible to teach at Notre Dame. Since Roche became dean nine years ago, he has set a goal for new faculty hires to be at least 50 percent Catholic.

But that's just the minimum. The expected goal of new hires this year is 55 percent Catholic with a desired goal of 60 percent, Roche said.

Last year, the College of Arts and Letters fell below its minimum goal of 30 percent for the second time in nine years, he said. With the creation of the database, the Catholic scholars, Roche hopes to increase that figure.

"There is, I believe, an increasing challenge, and if we don't meet the need, it will stifle the distinctive identity of Notre Dame," Roche said. "That's why the goal I was hired to be more proactive in trying to meet it.

"How could a university widely regarded as the most prominent Catholic institution in the U.S. have such a weakness in attracting Catholic professors? In large part, it's due to significant periods of faculty leaving or retiring in recent years, Roche said.

Older Catholic faculty members hired when most new hires were Catholic are retiring, he said, and not being replaced by an equal number of new Catholic hires. Of all tenured and tenure-track faculty members who are retiring, Catholic faculty make up 40 percent.

"And attracting and retaining both tenured and Catholic is a challenge. In many cases, the professors we're losing are more in the category of tenured than Notre Dame, Roche said.

"I've found the next biggest hurdle is the quality of Notre Dame," he said. "I have some Catholic professors of Catholic last year who was very tempted to come, but he said at a top-five department in and the in the end couldn't get his arms around the idea of leaving a top-five department and coming to Notre Dame.

While the University has been successful in bringing a number of Catholics to the faculty, the University frequently has had to wait for replacement professors who would be eligible academically to teach the University and would contribute to its Catholic mission.

"This is Notre Dame's first effort, however, "to seek these people rather than sit through applications or maybe hear things by word of mouth," he said.

"I believe that any such action would be illegal and that a judge's decision in recent weeks to block a strike by Northwest Airlines further strengthens our position," Comair President Don Borroughs said in a memo to employees Monday.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.

"Our time has simply run out," Comair spokesman Kate Marx said. "After recent discussions with the NFB, it became apparent that we had exhausted every opportunity to reach a consensual agreement," Comair said, however, that it remains willing to negotiate and still wants a deal with the union. The company would not speculate on the possibility of a strike or its potential impact.

"We have lost options of our dispute, including court actions and other things, and we will have to live with one of them," Sultry said.
Google in deal to buy YouTube

Internet leader dismissing copyright concerns to obtain video-sharing company

Market Recap

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Stocks</th>
<th>Dow Jones</th>
<th>Up/Down</th>
<th>Composite Volume</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>11,857.51</td>
<td>+4.60</td>
<td>1,951.14 1,246 1,966,990,420</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Treasuries

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>COMPANY</th>
<th>CHANCE</th>
<th>PRICE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>AMEX</td>
<td>-0.48</td>
<td>59.78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NYSE</td>
<td>-0.26</td>
<td>40.98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S&amp;P500</td>
<td>-0.34</td>
<td>1,350.66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NIKKEI(T)</td>
<td>0.01</td>
<td>15,436.06</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FTSE100(London)</td>
<td>0.00</td>
<td>6,030.90</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Commodities

| LIGHT CRUDE (Barrels) | +0.20 | 59.90 |
| GOLD (K/Troy oz) | +0.00 | 582.80 |
| PORK BELLY | +0.43 | 89.00 |

Exchange Rates

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>zeigen</th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>CIF</td>
<td>119,080.00</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>EURO</td>
<td>0.705</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>POUND</td>
<td>0.5355</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CANADIAN $</td>
<td>1.1232</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In Brief

Stocks rise despite geopolitical turmoil

NEW YORK — Stocks rose slightly Monday, with the Dow Jones Industrial average briefly touching a new intraday trading high, after the U.S. Security Council condemned North Korea over its claim of an underground nuclear test. Wall Street had opened the session lower after North Korea announced it had set off an atomic weapon underground. Reports that OFPEC in May announcing its first output cut in two years sent oil prices higher. But stock prices rose mixed by midday and were higher by early afternoon.

“We are heartened by the fact the market seems to be shrugged off a major geopolitical event,” said Jim Russell, director of core equity strategy for Fiduciary-Third Asset Management in Cincinnati, which manages $22 billion. But Russell added that because of the Columbus Day holiday, volume was too light to say the day’s trading represented a trend or theme.

Bond investors knock down rates

NEW YORK — The bond market’s rally in recent months looks to be the work of a new generation of “vigilantes” who have turned the notion of holding the Federal Reserve’s feet to the fire on its head.

Back in the 1980s and early 1990s, these vigilantes took matters into their own hands whenever they felt the Fed wasn’t doing enough to fight inflation. By buying bonds, they pushed rates on things like 30-year Treasury bonds high enough to slow the economy in hopes of warding off the stinging effect of higher interest rates.

This go-around, a new class of bond investors seem to be working the opposite way. They are knocking down rates of Treasury securities in what amounts to an audacious gamble that Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke and his colleagues will not have to raise rates.

As some on Wall Street have pointed out, this change in tactics may have something to do with who manages money these days. Hedge funds and other speculators play an ever-larger role in the bond market and the pressures they face to show outsized returns are intense.

Business

Airbus chief resigns after short stint

Associated Press

PARIS — Airbus chief executive Christian Streiff resigned Monday after more than three months as head of the troubled European plane maker and parent company EADS, only to be replaced by its chief operating officer.

Streiff’s departure deals a fresh blow to crisis-hit Airbus. The plane-maker, which stumbled investors in June by doubling the A380’s production delay to one year, doubled it again this month to two years and said the holds would wipe $5.1 billion off EADS profits over four years.

Streiff took over as Airbus CEO just over three months ago, replacing Gustav Humbert — who was ousted along with EADS co-CEO Noel Forgeard as a result of the A380 production crisis. EADS didn’t say in the release announcing Streiff’s resignation why he was leaving.

In an interview for Tuesday’s edition of the French daily Le Figaro, Streiff said he had not been allowed the “necessary operational powers” to do the job effectively and welcomed as “a step in the right direction” the combination of the Airbus and EADS roles.

Streiff, a 52-year-old former Saint-Gobain executive, drew up a cost-cutting turnaround plan for Airbus that enjoyed strong support from EADS directors, but he clashed repeatedly with the board over how the plan should be implemented and how much control he would personally exercise, according to three officials familiar with the discussions.

Streiff wanted to report to the parent company every quarter and have final say on Airbus appointments, while senior EADS executives demanded closer oversight, according to the officials, who asked not to be named because the discussions were confidential.
It’s not just for gays anymore

Lichtschtir hockey arena plans

As the University looks to invest money in the aging Joyce Center, a few questions need to be asked. First of all, an arena that admittedly was built too small is now going to be losing seats. Second of all, the hockey arena has been deemed inadequate and needs to be moved away from the other inhabi­tants of the South Dome. They want to build a new hockey arena. Has the idea ever been considered to fix both problems with one construction?

Rather than build a new hockey arena, take the South Dome, which currently houses the basketball arena, and turn that into a nice and perma­nent hockey arena. The seating would be adequate for a good-sized arena that would rival the quality of confer­ence foe such as Ohio State, Michigan State, and Michigan. For the money that would be spent on the renovations of the Joyce Center and on a new hockey arena, use that plus additional funds to build a new state-of-the-art basketball arena. Under this plan you would be utilizing the limited space that we already have in the Joyce Center and would have nice and ade­quate-sized arenas for both basketball and hockey. I would think that the University should step back and look at a plan that’s best for both programs, instead of one that still creates prob­lems in limited seating and adequate arenas for both.

Tom Staudt
french
O’Neill Hall
Oct 6

Pep rallies lack true spirit

I read Rohan Anand’s article about the decline in student pep rally atten­dance with some amusement. The rate for decline is weak in academic workloads, extracurricular activities, or anything similar. The decline is because, to be blunt, the pep rallies have departed from their original pur­pose.

In the darkened Stepan Center days, if you went to the pep rally you got hot and sweaty, you yelled your lungs out, and got fired up for the game. That was the true purpose of the pep rally. Disney-­fed experiences currently hap­pening in the Joyce Center do not qual­ify on those counts. Now everyone brings their families and sits in the seats cheering silently, making sure not to offend anyone with noise or God forbid, spirit.

Spirit cannot be forced, it must be inspired (hence the common root of the words). The current pep rallies, with dorm sponsors and matching shirts and go-­jay­ish shirts, seem man­ufac­tured and, as a result, are ill­equipped to get the job done. Want to see pep rallies that work? Head over to the rally’s roots. Get people together in one place so they can get crazy and fire­ up, put up a kick back or sanitizing it, but rather embrace and enjoy it.

Mike Coffey
alumnus
Clone of a clone
Oct 9
Vote with Benedict

Are you trying to decide how to vote this November? Benedict XVI can help, whatever your religion or lack thereof.

In the recent article entitled "The Bishops: Issuing a Pastoral Letter," the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) is calling on Catholics to reawaken their faith, "but rather to challenge your present opinions about marriage and its defense from attempts to make it juridically equivalent to different forms of union." In the United States as well as the European Union, a further secularization of culture is threatened from the acceptance of contraception which separates the procreation from the legitimacy of the marriage. The main political issue is whether to confer the name or legal incidents of marriage upon homosexuals. In 2003, then Cardinal Ratzinger, now Benedict XVI, described the family as "the primary unit in society" and said "married couples ensure the succession of generations and ... therefore ... civil law grants them institutional recognition." Putting homosexual unions on the same level as marriage would be like creating a model (and would obscure basic values such as the protection of the rights of parents to educate their children). Parents, and not bureaucrats, are the primary educators of their children. "More than in any other historical period," said John Paul II, "there is a breakdown in the procedures of basic moral and religious values between generations."

Letter to the Editor

Walk for Uganda

Ninety percent of people in northern Uganda have been forced into internally displaced people's camps where poverty, hunger, and disease claim over 1,000 lives daily. Tens of thousands of children have been abducted into the rebel Lord's Resistance Army, which aims at the destruction of the government. Thirty-five percent of abducted girls are raped. 39 percent of all the children have been abducted to another child, and six percent have seen their own mother, father, brother or sister killed. Thousands of eyes "night commuters" walk miles nightly to sleep in towns where there is a decreased risk of abduction. The Global Health Forum brought some awareness to campus regarding these issues in hopes of increasing dialogue and activism from Notre Dame. It brought the message that we are all brothers, as Jews, as Muslims or most fundamentally as members of the human community to take action against war. In a world of increased globalization, ignorance is no longer an excuse for inaction in the face of international or domestic atrocities.

Justice for all. Yes, even the poor.

This is part two in a three-part series examining capital punishment. Part three will appear tomorrow.

According to Amnesty International, 95 percent of convictions on death row could not afford legal representation. Ninety five percent. If that statistic doesn't set off alarms in your conscience, I don't know what will. Our country still feels justified in its use of the death penalty.

Twenty years ago the United States Catholic Bishops issued a pastoral entitled "Economic Justice for All". Various organizations such as the Center for Social Justice and Notre Dame campus are using the anniversary to bring attention to the front of today's social discussions. The letter attempts "to look at economic life through the eyes of the poor and defenseless." I wonder if we, as our country claims to provide a fair trial to all its citizens, are far from it. Despite the blatant disparity between penalties for the have and have-nots, our country still feels justified in its use of the death penalty.

The first principle stated by Benedict XVI is "as the one who ordered the execution of Jesus Christ...if His conclusion was right, if all do or don't, all are children of God." Economic Justice for All calls us "to speak for the voiceless, to defend the rights of the poor to access life styles, policies, and social institutions in their interests." They also state that capital punishment had the death penalty in mind when they wrote these words 20 years ago. After all, what gracious injustice can be perpetrated on the poor of this country than the systemic state-sponsored taking of life?

I am well aware that those facing execution have been convicted by a jury of their alleged peers. But those who oppose the death penalty are not allowed to serve in the juries of capital cases. This means that those whose perspectives should be heard in such cases are continually excluded from such cases. While I realize that a sense of justice might not be reached if they were allowed to serve as a juror in such cases, I wonder: is that so wrong? Is it all just that someone who has examined the policy of capital punishment and opposes it not to be allowed to represent the rest of the population who oppose the death penalty? A poll available in an article in The National Catholic Reporter shows that 48 percent of Americans support life without parole over the death penalty while only 47 percent still would choose the death penalty. Is it just or democratic then that the majority 48 percent are excluded from such cases while the 47 percent minority sentences the poor to death? Just, to quote the Bishops, says that "The challenge of this pastoral letter is not merely to think differently but also to act differently." I dare say that this is one of our most pressing issues of our time, though on a slightly different tier of impact than a pastoral letter, is to think differently about the death penalty and to act whatever they may be, and to act on them.

Will McAuliffe is a senior political science major. He is co-president of NDASS, a new campaign environment organization. The purpose of the campaign or comments on this column may be to make sure you find out about the upcoming "Walk for Uganda," a three-part series of columns examining capital punishment.

The voices expressed in this column are the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
George Lucas, right, directs "Star Wars." Lucas is among several directors who re-release their films.

Photo courtesy of bangkokpost.net

Susan Shu, left, and Chen Chang star in "Three Times." The film is known for its unique visual style and stunning cinematography.

Photo courtesy of cinemas-online.co.uk

SCENE & HEARD

DVD re-releases prompt vicious cycle

Releasing a special edition is all well and good, but in most of these cases, there already was a special edition. "Scarsface: Anniversary Edition," released in 2001, was an elaborate two-disc set included the original 1931 Howard Hawks classic.

In the case of "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," the film was originally released as a bare bones DVD, then upgraded to a single-disc Special Edition, then a two-disc Collector's Edition and now a three-disc Extraordinarily Deluxe Edition.

Aside from trying to milk every last penny from die-hard fans, who will upgrade to the new edition, regardless, what do these DVDs accomplish? Some of the special features have been changed and shuffled around, but many of them are just re-readings.

Unless there's a really important or enlightening new feature that can be added, changing these things around is mostly just bothersome. Big fans will feel the need to buy every edition in order to have every special feature, but a definitive DVD should contain everything viewers need to know about the film.

In the case of "Scarsface" and "Monty Python," both films received new covers, which means the picture quality has been upgraded. This is undoubtedly frustrating for fans, because they expected that the original special editions contained the best possible picture quality — the studios should have gotten it right in the first place.

Audio is another issue. A few years ago, when "Saving Private Ryan" was re-released in an "Anniversary D-Day Edition," the picture quality was upgraded from the original DVD, with a noticeable difference — in its original single-disc edition, "Saving Private Ryan" was available with either a Dolby Digital 5.1 mix or a DTS-mix.

The DTS mix was superior, but the 2-disc re-release dropped it in favor of the Digital 5.1. In fact, the only way to get the DTS version was to buy the four-disc box set, which included a pair of documentaries and cost about twice as much.

Studios need to do the right thing. Miramax can talk about "multiple bites at the apple" in terms of "Kill Bill," but it only hurts fans. Even films like "Lord of the Rings" have gotten new releases despite the seemingly definitive "Extended Editions," and the upcoming version of "Star Wars" finally got a re-release — yet not in an anamorphic transfer.

There needs to be a single, definitive version of a film that the dialogue is conveyed.

For instance, the classic Fritz Lang film "M" received a re-release from Criterion after the company obtained a new print and was able to drastically improve the picture quality. In most cases, however, there is no reason for DVDs not to have the most important features — the film in an anamorphic transfer with the original aspect ratio intact and the original sound mix.

Everything else is a bonus, which is why they're called "special features." If studios got those two things right, then that special edition will be really special.

Contact Brian Doxtader at bd@tdstate.edu The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

DVD REVIEW

Film artistry defines ‘Times’

By ERIN McGINN
Assistant Senate Editor

Love — an emotion that connects people across time and place. But in Hou Hsiao-hsien's latest film, "Three Times," he argues that love actually is fully dependent on the elements of time and place.

In "Three Times," Hsiao-hsien uses the same two actors (Qi Shu ("The Transporter") and Chen Chang ("2046")) as the central relationship in three separate stories taking place in three different time periods.

Hsiao-hsien says that he came up with the first section of "Three Times" after dreaming of being in a pool hall and hearing the Platters' classic song "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." Like legendary director Martin Scorsese, Hsiao-hsien's use of music and imagery punctuates his stories with vivacity and beauty. Seeing the movie is like watching a dream, where every shot is nearly perfect with composition and color.

The first section, called "A Time for Love," takes place in 1966. It follows Chen (Chang), a soldier who frequents pool halls while on leave and subsequently writes love letters to the pool hall girls while on duty. When he returns from leave, he finds that his most recent love interest has been replaced in the hall by the quiet and breath-taking May (Shi). Although their interaction is limited, he promises to write her every 46%, as he grows away.

When he returns once more from leave, he finds that she has been replaced, and he travels through several towns in order to find her. In the end, only one night. Shot in rich colors and with a musical score composed of classic songs by the Platters and Aphrodite's Child ("Rain and Tears"), "A Time for Love" is a sweetly romantic masterpiece.

The second part, "A Time for Freedom," while spectacularly filmed like the rest of the movie — makes its cinematic mark as a recreation of a silent film. Set in 1911, Hsiao-hsien returns to the concubine era of his earlier work, "Flowers of Shanghai," to tell the story of a diplomat, Mr. Chang, whose political leanings are generally liberal. He offers to help the married son of a prominent family buy the contract of a concubine whom he got pregnant in order for her to marry him.

Chang, however, does not apply these liberal traits to his own life, as he tries to restrain his feelings for the concubine he frequents. Until last the first three minutes of this portion, the only sounds heard are that of a piano and an old Taiwanese love song, as all of the dialogue is conveyed with title cards.

Lastly stands "A Time for Youth." Taking place in 2005 Taipei, it is a present-day cacophony of emotional and sexual tribulations. Jing Shui, a bisexual pop singer, is cheating on her girlfriend with her photographer, Zhen (Chang). They write poems to each other and sneak away for late-night trysts while their significant others grapple with being unloved.

In great contrast to the first two sections, where there is little outright communication, here there are voicemails and text messages incessantly thrown about between the pieces of this love triangle.

Despite the communication, these characters are the least connected and easily the most miserable.

Although very different in tone, style and content from each other, what ties the three sections together is the use of the same two actors as the leads in each period. Seeing their transformation and how they relate in each time frame conveys Hsiao-hsien's overarching message that people are formed by the period in which they live. It is a meditation and reflection on not only love, but on time. It emphasizes that love is not the same from one age to the next — it is always changing, and not always for the best.

Contact Erin McGinn at emcginn@nd.edu

Three Times

IFC Films

Love — an emotion that connects people across time and place. But in Hou Hsiao-hsien's latest film, "Three Times," he argues that love actually is fully dependent on the elements of time and place.

In "Three Times," Hsiao-hsien uses the same two actors (Qi Shu ("The Transporter") and Chen Chang ("2046")) as the central relationship in three separate stories taking place in three different time periods.

Hsiao-hsien says that he came up with the first section of "Three Times" after dreaming of being in a pool hall and hearing the Platters' classic song "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." Like legendary director Martin Scorsese, Hsiao-hsien's use of music and imagery punctuates his stories with vivacity and beauty. Seeing the movie is like watching a dream, where every shot is nearly perfect with composition and color.

The first section, called "A Time for Love," takes place in 1966. It follows Chen (Chang), a soldier who frequents pool halls while on leave and subsequently writes love letters to the pool hall girls while on duty. When he returns from leave, he finds that his most recent love interest has been replaced in the hall by the quiet and breath-taking May (Shi). Although their interaction is limited, he promises to write her every 46%, as he grows away.

When he returns once more from leave, he finds that she has been replaced, and he travels through several towns in order to find her. In the end, only one night. Shot in rich colors and with a musical score composed of classic songs by the Platters and Aphrodite's Child ("Rain and Tears"), "A Time for Love" is a sweetly romantic masterpiece.

The second part, "A Time for Freedom," while spectacularly filmed like the rest of the movie — makes its cinematic mark as a recreation of a silent film. Set in 1911, Hsiao-hsien returns to the concubine era of his earlier work, "Flowers of Shanghai," to tell the story of a diplomat, Mr. Chang, whose political leanings are generally liberal. He offers to help the married son of a prominent family buy the contract of a concubine whom he got pregnant in order for her to marry him.

Chang, however, does not apply these liberal traits to his own life, as he tries to restrain his feelings for the concubine he frequents. Until last the first three minutes of this portion, the only sounds heard are that of a piano and an old Taiwanese love song, as all of the dialogue is conveyed with title cards.

Lastly stands "A Time for Youth." Taking place in 2005 Taipei, it is a present-day cacophony of emotional and sexual tribulations. Jing Shui, a bisexual pop singer, is cheating on her girlfriend with her photographer, Zhen (Chang). They write poems to each other and sneak away for late-night trysts while their significant others grapple with being unloved.

In great contrast to the first two sections, where there is little outright communication, here there are voicemails and text messages incessantly thrown about between the pieces of this love triangle.

Despite the communication, these characters are the least connected and easily the most miserable.

Although very different in tone, style and content from each other, what ties the three sections together is the use of the same two actors as the leads in each period. Seeing their transformation and how they relate in each time frame conveys Hsiao-hsien's overarching message that people are formed by the period in which they live. It is a meditation and reflection on not only love, but on time. It emphasizes that love is not the same from one age to the next — it is always changing, and not always for the best.

Contact Erin McGinn at emcginn@nd.edu

Three Times

IFC Films

"Three Times" is a meditation and reflection on not only love, but on time. It emphasizes that love is not the same from one age to the next — it is always changing, and not always for the best.

Contact Erin McGinn at emcginn@nd.edu
CD REVIEW

DiFranco’s latest stays the musical course

By MARTY SCHROEDER
Assistant Scene Editor

Ani DiFranco has an agenda in her latest "Reprise," and she wants everyone to know about it. Not that this is a bad thing. DiFranco weaves and waves with lyrics more intelligent than any sort of pop music on the scene. Feminist-punk or rainy day folk rock would be the genre in which DiFranco might find herself if she had to define her sound. Instead of looking for a genre, though, she looks for change, using her acoustic guitar as an axe to hack society into metamorphosis.

Growing up in Buffalo, DiFranco surrounded herself with art. She later moved to New York City at age 19 with little but a list of songs and a guitar. She is one of the most successful do-it-yourself musicians in the business, and has successfully fought off music conglomerates with her own brand of folk-punk that she weaves into this latest album.

It's not punk in the sense of edgy electric guitars and fast drums. The attitude is a middle-finger-to-the-air brand of punk that apologizes for nothing. And it shows. Her lyrics are sometimes sung, sometimes almost spoken and sometimes occupied by unfiltered rhythms that are an ode to feminism and folk-punk. Those who don't like acoustic punk or feminists will be the only ones who could exist on a deserted island and still make liberals smile and conservatives grimace. DiFranco's DIY ethos goes so far to the point she started her own label, Righteous Babe Records.

In this way, she can sing to all the liberal men and women out there, but when she's done, the liberal men and women will be liberal, and the conservatives will still be conservative.

However, she doesn't apologize for any of her lyrics, tearing gently through her songs and singing about what is important to her.

This album deserves to be lauded for the more fact it does not ask for permission to be what it is. Most pop seems to exist only in relation to the listeners who consume it, while "Reprises" could exist on a deserted island and still make liberals smile and conservatives grimace. DiFranco's DIY ethos goes so far to the point she started her own label, Righteous Babe Records.

In this way, she can sing about anything she wants and release whatever she wants. Luckily for her, she has enough of a fan base that she doesn't have to go to a major label for support.

"Reprises," DiFranco's latest album, continues in the folksy, punk rock vein of her previous releases. The singer-songwriter's politics influence her music and audience.

Powerful cast, story keep 'Eternity' from showing age

By BRIAN DOXTADER
Scene Editor

"From Here to Eternity" is one of the classic American films, a rich and dark portrayal of military life in pre-Pearl Harbor World War II. It remains a tragic, well-told story, aided by its memorable cast, high production values, though its impact has dimmed slightly in g.

The film's story chronicles Sergeant Sergeant Harpo (John Garfield), the wife of his superior, Sergeant Maggio (Frank Sinatra as the tragic Maggio) - a completely cast against type. Both Garfield and Sinatra were honored with Academy Award nominations that year, and Sinatra won for his performance.

In its time, "From Here to Eternity" was a hotly anticipated film, and everything about its production is superior, from Daniel Taradash's script to Frank Zinneman's direction. Zinneman is smart enough to let his story tell itself, and especially since the film featured a dazzling all-star cast, which dominates the picture.

Many of them - most notably Donna Reed as a lonely prostitute and popular singer Frank Sinatra as the tragic Maggio - were appreciated for the freedom of playing against type. Both Garfield and Sinatra were honored with Academy Award nominations that year, and Sinatra won for his performance.

The gritty, black-and-white cinematography has a "cinema verite" feel to it at times, which is appropriate for the film's topic of war.

Though it might seem staged and unrealistic by today's standards ("Saving Private Ryan" is not), it is, in the film it was hailed for its realism and unflinching portrayal of war from the side of human nature.

"From Here to Eternity" helped increase realism in film and also helped bend the production codes of the time. There are some frank discussions about life, love and war, and Zinneman and his cast handle them beautifully.

The most famous scene, of course, is the beach scene, in which entwined lovers Kerr and Lancaster kiss while waves crash over them. A cliché now, its depiction of blissful romance in the face of surmounting odds even as the violence of World War II steadily approaches remains a cinematic icon.

"From Here to Eternity" was a huge winner at the Oscars, taking home eight statues, including Best Picture and Best Adapted Screenplay. It was also nominated as one of the American Film Institute's 100 Greatest Films of All Time, coming in at No. 52. The film picks up the story of the man who fights and dies in the Greatest Generation.

"From Here to Eternity" will be screened on Saturday, Oct. 22 in the Browning Cinema of the DeBartolo Performing Arts Center as part of the PAC Classic 100.

Contact Brian Doxtader at bdoxtader@nd.edu
NFC

Jacksonville’s Peterson out for the season

Jaguars' top tackle toer pectoral muscle in win against Jets

Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Already missing the past pass rusher, the Jacksonville Jaguars will be without their best tackle for the rest of the season.

Linbacker Mike Peterson, the team’s top tackle the last three years, tore a pectoral muscle in the 41-0 victory against the New York Jets on Sunday and is out for the season. It’s the latest setback for a defense that lost Reggie Hayward in the opener and lineman Pat Thomas the following week.

Tinsley Monday noted the severity of Peterson’s injury. Coach Jack Del Rio said Peterson likely will get a second opinion, but he was confident the eight-year veteran will be place on injured reserve.

“It’s unfortunate,” Del Rio said. “Mike is obviously a very good football player and a very spirited leader. He brings a lot of energy, a lot of temperament. He worked really hard to have a big year for us. He’s played well in the middle for us since we got here in ‘03. That’s a blow. It’s another blow for us to over-

“The way we approach it is to prepare our guys to be able to step up and fill the gap. We expect guys to play well around us and we continue on our course,”

Peterson started every game for the last three seasons for the Jaguars, recording 352 tackles, 12 sacks, six interceptions and two forced fumbles. He started all five games this year and had a team-high 42 tackles, two quarterback pressures and an interception.

The Jags 13-2 will use their bye week to figure out how to replace their defensive star. Del Rio said Barry Smith, Tony Gilbert or Nick Greisen probably will move into the starting spot. Either, the loss will be too tough to overcome for a defense that relies heavily on a speedy middle linebacker to make plays.

Then again, the Jaguars are getting accustomed to filling voids. They lost safety Donovin Darius early last year. Finished 12-4 and made the playoffs. They’ve also had to replace two other starters this season.

Hayward, who led the team with 31 sacks last year, ruptured his Achilles’ tendon in the opener against Dallas and had season-ending surgery. Thomas, who entered training camp as a starter, suffered a season-ending hamstring injury.

Jacksonville also lost running back Greg Jones to a season-ending knee injury during the preseason.

“That’s tough to replace,” Del Rio said. “You’re talking about front-line players, guys that you expect to go in the game and not come out and play a lot of football for you. It’s not easy to replace them. We’ll work at it. We’ve got good guys. It will require some work, but we’re going to carry on as a football team.

“We’re not going to ask for anybody to feel sorry for us. We’re not going to look for any alibis. It doesn’t make anything easier, that’s for sure. But we will rally around the guys that

Kansas City stars continue to be plagued by injuries

Hall’s status for Sunday uncertain; Green out once again

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dante Hall, one of the NFLs most dangerous kick returners, has a hip injury and his status is uncertain for this week’s game at Pittsburgh.

Hall had an MRI on his hip Monday and the Chiefs were awaiting the results. The two-time Pro Bowler, who earlier this year got his 11th career touchdown return, was hurt while running back a kickoff in Sunday’s bruising come-from-behind 23-20 victory at Arizona.

“It might just be a hip pointer,” coach Herm Edwards said Monday.

Also out for the fourth straight game will be quarterback Trent Green, still recovering from a severe concussion sustained in the season opener Sept. 10.

Edwards said running back-

ner Larry Johnson was OK despite a frightening few moments when he lay motionless on the turf Sunday.

Johnson was grabbed by the facemask at the end of a 78-yard catch and run that set up Lawrence Tynes’ winning 19-yard field goal with 1:36 to play.

“Larry was in today. He’s going to be fine, but his neck is obviously sore,” Edwards said.

Hall, who also has become a favorite wide receiver target of backup quarterback Damon Huard, was replaced on punt returns by Eddie Kennison. Rookie wide receiver Jeff Webb returned kickoffs. Edwards said those two would continue to fill in if Hall is out.

“Eddie does a good job of making decisions,” Edwards said.

“Then that was a big-time play he made in the fourth quarter when he fielded that punt and got those extra 4 or 5 yards. Most guys don’t catch that ball and have the awareness to get what you can. Webb doesn’t know any better. He hits it like you’re supposed to hit it. He’s just following the wedge.”

Green went with the team to Arizona, his first road trip since he was knocked unconscious and taken away on a gurney.

For the second week in a row, he offered suggestions and encouragement on the sideline for Huard.

But Edwards said he did not know when the two-time Pro Bowler would start working out.

Doctors have said Green would be eased back into action, beginning with light workouts and progressing to full practice before he could think about getting back into a game.

But Edwards couldn’t shorty be starting workout. I just know if this week or next week or exactly when,” Edwards said.

It will be the fourth straight start for liuar, who has both delighted and surprised the Chiefs with his performance.

He threw for 285 yards against Arizona, rallying the Chiefs from a 10-point deficit with less than 10 minutes left.

They’re Mac’s, and I’ll buy a couple of their beers before to see some of the germs in the game. That’s two guys who we look at
to.

Hall, who also has become a favorite wide receiver target of backup quarterback Damon Huard, was replaced on punt returns by Eddie Kennison. Rookie wide receiver Jeff Webb returned kickoffs. Edwards said those two would continue to fill in if Hall is out.

“Eddie does a good job of making decisions,” Edwards said.

“Then that was a big-time play he made in the fourth quarter when he fielded that punt and got those extra 4 or 5 yards. Most guys don’t catch that ball and have the awareness to get what you can. Webb doesn’t know any better. He hits it like you’re supposed to hit it. He’s just following the wedge.”

Green went with the team to Arizona, his first road trip since he was knocked unconscious and taken away on a gurney.

For the second week in a row, he offered suggestions and encouragement on the sideline for Huard.

But Edwards said he did not know when the two-time Pro Bowler would start working out.

Doctors have said Green would be eased back into action, beginning with light workouts and progressing to full practice before he could think about getting back into a game.

But Edwards couldn’t shorty be starting workout. I just know if this week or next week or exactly when,” Edwards said.

It will be the fourth straight start for liuar, who has both delighted and surprised the Chiefs with his performance.

He threw for 285 yards against Arizona, rallying the Chiefs from a 10-point deficit with less than 10 minutes left.
BUFFALO 1-4 CLEVELAND
MINNEAPOLIS 1-4 GREEN BAY
CHICAGO 2-2
OAKLAND 1-4

AFC South
indianapolis 3-2
Tennessee 1-4

AFC West
San diego 3-1
Oakland 2-2

NFC West
Seattle 3-1
San Francisco 2-3

AFC East
New Orleans 4-1
Atlanta 3-1
Carolina 3-2
Tampa Bay 9-4

NFC East
Philadelphia 4-1
Dallas 2-2
New York giants 2-2
Washington 2-3

NFC South
Chicago 5-0
Minnesota 3-2
Green Bay 1-4
Detroi 0-9

MIAA Soccer Standings

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>team</th>
<th>league</th>
<th>record</th>
<th>overall record</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Calvin</td>
<td>4-0</td>
<td>12-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>St. Mary's</td>
<td>3-1</td>
<td>6-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Alfred</td>
<td>2-2</td>
<td>3-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Adrian</td>
<td>2-1</td>
<td>3-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>Alma</td>
<td>1-2</td>
<td>2-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>Olivet</td>
<td>1-2</td>
<td>3-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>Kalamazoo</td>
<td>1-2</td>
<td>2-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Hope</td>
<td>0-3</td>
<td>0-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>Trinity</td>
<td>0-4</td>
<td>0-10</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NFL

AFC East

- New England: record 67 percent, PA 108 percent, PA 74 percent, PA 96 percent, PA 132 percent, PA 105 percent, PA 61 percent, PA 91 percent.

AFC North

- Baltimore: record 69 percent, PA 89 percent, PA 46 percent, PA 95 percent, PA 85 percent, PA 113 percent, PA 77 percent, PA 109 percent.

AFC South

- Indianapolis: record 13 percent, PA 100 percent, PA 150 percent, PA 100 percent, PA 11 percent, PA 74 percent, PA 77 percent, PA 113 percent.

AFC West

- San Diego: record 103 percent, PA 36 percent, PA 36 percent, PA 49 percent, PA 34 percent, PA 113 percent, PA 52 percent, PA 111 percent, PA 135 percent.

NFC East

- Philadelphia: record 89 percent, PA 57 percent, PA 97 percent, PA 82 percent, PA 113 percent, PA 82 percent, PA 113 percent, PA 135 percent.

NFC West

- Seattle: record 88 percent, PA 83 percent, PA 83 percent, PA 141 percent, PA 83 percent, PA 83 percent, PA 141 percent, PA 83 percent, PA 141 percent.

NFC South

- New Orleans: record 108 percent, PA 25 percent, PA 86 percent, PA 96 percent, PA 113 percent, PA 52 percent, PA 113 percent, PA 86 percent, PA 113 percent.

MIAA Soccer Standings

- 1. Calvin
- 2. St. Mary's
- 3. Alfred
- 4. Adrian
- 5. Alma
- 6. Olivet
- 7. Kalamazoo
- 8. Hope
- 9. Trinity

In Brief

O’Neal could miss presea son opener due to brawl

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Pacers forward Jermaine O’Neal expects to miss Wednesday’s pre-season opener against New Jersey because of a law suit stemming from the brawl with Detroit Pistons fans two years ago. O’Neal could testify on Tuesday or Wednesday, leaving him doubtful for the game. Jury selection is scheduled to start Tuesday morning in U.S. District Court in Detroit.

O’Neal punched the plaintiff, Charles Haddad, on the court during the Nov. 19, 2004 incident in Auburn Hills, Mich. Haddad wants the Pacers to testify and if he is able focus on his driving duties, Smith said. "We will offer security escorts in and out of the airport and anywhere he feels he needs our assistance."

A spokesman for Vickers and Hendrick Motorsports was unaware of Smith’s gesture until reached by The Associated Press for comment.

Broncos prevail in defensive battle

DENVER — A cold rain and two stingy defenses turned the Baltimore-Denver showdown into a kicking competition, and Jason Elam bested Matt Stover in the Broncos’ 13-3 victory over Baltimore Monday night.

The Broncos (3-1) intercepted three Steve McNair passes — including Champ Bailey’s leaping end-zone pick just before halftime — to hand the Ravens their first loss after Baltimore started a franchise-best 4-0.

Deep in Ravens territory with a 6-3 lead and 1:55 left in the game, Denver took a chance at the end zone, icing the game on Jake Plummer’s 4-yard touchdown pass to Rod Smith. It was Smith’s first touchdown this season and also the first TD the Ravens have surrendered in a second half this year.

"We stuck together tonight," Plummer said. "It was ugly, ugly for awhile, but in the end we came and put together some drives when it counted."

Elam connected from 43 and 44 yards, the second one breaking a 3-3 tie with eight minutes remaining and capping a drive that was set up by Sam Koch’s 10-yard punt.

With safety John Lynch on the sideline after pinching a nerve in his neck, cornerback Darrent Williams intercepted McNair’s pass at midfield with 6:47 remaining, and Jason Walker had a 27-yard catch that set up Smith’s score.

Ravens defensive end Trevor Pryce, who was quiet all week about his return to Denver, which dumped him and his $10 million salary in the off-season, was even quieter Monday night, assisting on just one tackle.

The teams were tied 3-3 at halftime, and the rain only got heavier during a scoreless third quarter in which the Ravens avoided a big momentum-shifter when center Mike Flynn smothered McNair’s fumble at the Baltimore 12.

The Ravens and the rain combined to limit Denver to 9 yards of offense in the first quarter, tying a franchise low since Mike Shanahan became the Broncos coach in 1995.

The Broncos turned the ball over on their first two possessions — one was a fumble by taillback Tatum Bell on a swing pass and the other on an overthrown pass from Plummer to Walker — but the Ravens turned one over themselves in the end zone just before halftime.

Speedway adds security for this weekend’s race

CONCORD, N.C. — Lowe’s Motor Speedway is beefing up security for driver Brian Vickers after angry race fans called the track to complain that Vickers wrecked Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Jimmie Johnson on the last lap at Talladega.

The Next Cup Series is scheduled to race Saturday night at Lowe’s, and track owner Bruton Smith felt the need to offer Vickers assistance because of the flood of phone calls the track received Monday.

“We want to make sure Brian has an uninterrupted weekend here and that he is able focus on his driving duties,” Smith said. “We will offer security escorts in and out of the airport and anywhere he feels he needs our assistance."

O’Neal could miss presea son opener due to brawl

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Pacers forward Jermaine O’Neal expects to miss Wednesday’s pre-season opener against New Jersey because of a law suit stemming from the brawl with Detroit Pistons fans two years ago. O’Neal could testify on Tuesday or Wednesday, leaving him doubtful for the game. Jury selection is scheduled to start Tuesday morning in U.S. District Court in Detroit.

O’Neal punched the plaintiff, Charles Haddad, on the court during the Nov. 19, 2004 incident in Auburn Hills, Mich. Haddad wants the Pacers’ claims that Haddad trespassed, was intoxicated and violated the waiver of Smith’s gesture until reached by The Associated Press for comment.

MBL PLAYOFFS

Detroi at oakland, 8:00 p.m, FOX

NHL

Philadelphia at New York Rangers, 7:00 p.m., VS
NBA

Bogut may miss start of season

Milwaukee Bucks center will be out for six to eight weeks

Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Milwaukee Bucks center Andrew Bogut will likely miss the beginning of the season with a lower left ing sprain that is expected to sideline him for six to eight weeks.

Bogut was helped off the court during a team scrimmage on Saturday after hanging his leg into Steve Blake’s knee. He did not return to the scrimmage.

"Obviously, he’s disappointed he’s not going to be playing," Bucks coach Terry Stotts initially said of the injury was not serious. But the No. 1 pick in last year’s NBA draft was evaluated by team doctor John Heinrich on Sunday and will undergo rehabilitation for the injury.

Bucks general manager Larry Harris said Monday that Bogut’s injury, such as Bogut’s injuries, will allow players such as Dan Gadzuric and Brian Skinner to get more playing time in the preseason and the first few weeks of the regular season.

But the injury will make it harder for Bogut to quickly establish chemistry with forward Charlie Villanueva, the Bucks’ major offseason acquisition, Harris said.

Bogut, who grew up in Australia and was the national collegiate player of the year at Utah, averaged 9.4 points and 7.0 rebounds as a rookie last season.

The team didn’t ask Bogut to add muscle or make any other major changes in the off-season.

Bucks general manager Larry Harris said Monday that Bogut’s injury will allow players such as Dan Gadzuric and Brian Skinner to get more playing time in the preseason and the first few weeks of the regular season.

"He was in great shape," Harris said. "The thing is, his spirits were very high. He was looking forward to the season."

Harris said Bogut appeared to lose confidence as a rookie last season but regained it during the offseason.

"That was coming along," Harris said.

---

SHARK TIME

Irish receiver Jeff Samardzija looks downfield after catching a pass against Stanford in Notre Dame’s 31-10 victory Saturday.

Miller speaks out against Jackson

Former Pacer talks after current player’s run-in with the law

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Former Indiana Pacers star Reggie Miller said Tuesday he doesn’t understand why Stephen Jackson’s teammates are standing by him following a violent incident outside an Indianapolis strip club.

Police said Jackson fired a gun in the air in apparent self-defense early Friday after he was struck by a car that sent him tumbling onto the hood.

Miller, who played 18 years for the Pacers and is the NBA’s career leader in 3-pointers, spoke out about the incident Tuesday on Dan Patrick’s ESPN Radio show.

"That’s ridiculous," Miller said. "That is a blurr cloud. That is a punch in the gut. It’s a punch in the gut for team CEO Donnie Walsh and team president Larry Bird."

The Pacers have an aggressive preseason publicity campaign, with television ads and billboards featuring players and the "It’s up to us" slogan.

Even Jackson, who was suspended 30 games for his role in the brawl with Detroit Pistons fans two seasons ago and often was at odds with coach Rick Carlisle last season, talked about spending a summer "soul-searching" and returning with a positive attitude.

The Pacers didn’t even make it to their preseason opener before their latest public relations mess. The Pacers have rallied around Jackson, and Miller disagreed with that on Patrick’s show.

"You shouldn’t stand behind a player that is someone slapping you guys in the face during the middle of training camp being out at a strip club at 3 o’clock in the morning shooting it up like it’s the Wild, Wild West," he said.

---

University of Notre Dame’s Study Abroad Program in Angers, France

“Should I stay or should I go?”

INFORMATION MEETING

With Angers’ Program Coordinator and returnees of the program

Tuesday, October 10, 2006 7:30 PM 229 Hayes-Healy

For Academic Year 2007-2008 Fall 2007 and Spring 2008 Applications available: www.nd.edu/~intlstud

Application Deadline: Nov. 15, 2006

SAME TIME AND PLACE

NEXT AND FINAL INFO SESSION: Monday, November 6, 2006
UCLA QB Olson sidelined

23-year-old sophomore to miss several games with sprained knee

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Ben Olson waited nearly five years to become a starting college quarterback. Now, the 23-year-old UCLA sophomore will miss the toughest portion of the Bruins' schedule because of a knee injury.

Olson sprained his knee in the first quarter of Saturday's 27-7 victory over Arizona at the Rose Bowl when his left leg rolled on after a pass.

He had an MRI on Monday, which showed a torn medial collateral ligament. Olson will be sidelined four to six weeks, UCLA spokesman Marc Dellis said.

Earlier Monday, coach Karl Dorrell had said Olson wouldn't play this week.

Patrick Cowan, effective after Olson went out, will get his first start Saturday when the Bruins visit No. 18 Oregon.

"It's unfortunate it had to happen like this," Cowan said following the Arizona game.

The Bruins (4-1, 2-1 Pac-10) are tied for third in the Pac-10. Olson, a red shirt season at reserve in Westwood.

"We need another week of improvement going up to Eugene," Dorrell said. "We still aren't quite at our potential yet."

After Oregon, the Bruins play at No. 9 Notre Dame, and visit No. 12 USC on Nov. 4. Olson's injury will force him to miss a key stretch of the season. He could possibly return in time for the final three games — Oregon State on Nov. 11, Arizona State on Nov. 18 and rival Southern California on Dec. 2.

Olson and Cowan competed for the starting job in training camp, with Olson emerging as the starter after spending a redshirt season at BYU, two years on a Mormon mission in Canada and one season as a reserve in Westwood.

UCLA quarterback Ben Olson lays on the ground after being sacked against Stanford Sept. 30.

MLB

Torre's future with Yankees is uncertain

"Look, I don't want to get into that subject. It's not right. I respect the situation too much for me to comment on anything else," Piniella added.

There was no sign of Torre at Yankee Stadium, and the team's media-relations staff was unsure when he would give his annual summation — which last year was delayed until after Torre and Steinbrenner met in Tampa. Captain Derek Jeter and Alex Rodriguez also have not come to the ballpark to clean out their lockers.

Jaret Wright, who lasted only 2.2-3 innings in the final game of the Yankees' first-round loss to the Tigers, said the defeat wasn't Torre's fault.

"I mean he didn't get any at-bats," Wright said. "He didn't throw any pitches. We did that and we wish we could've turned it around better for him, for us and for the fans this season and you go from there."

Wright packed up his locker while avoiding the mess of cardboard boxes filled with baseballs, hats and athletic apparel strewn across the floor.

Miguel Cairo threw a pair of shoes from his locker into a nearby garbage can, then thought better and fished them out.

Cairo could hardly imagine a new skipper sitting in the office at Yankee Stadium.

"He's a class act," Villone said. "I don't know what you guys are talking about. He's going to be the manager until something happens different but he's still the manager."

The 66-year-old Torre led the Yankees to an AL-best 97-65 record this season. His 11-year managerial stint is the longest uninterrupted period for the club since Casey Stengel was in the dugout for 12 straight seasons from 1949-1960.

The Brooklyn-born Torre has won four World Series championships with New York, but the last title came in 2000 — a virtual eternity for the demanding Steinbrenner.

"He's a class act," Villone said of Torre. "He knows what he's doing. He's a great manager."
Saint Mary’s faces Hope

The Belles will honor seniors before game

By SAMANTHA LEONARD

Saint Mary’s faces Hope College tonight at 6:30 at the Angelo Athletic Center. The Dutchmen are second in the MIAA with a 7-1 record and a 14-6 record overall. Saint Mary's stands at fourth in the conference at 7-4 against Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) opponents and 14-6 overall.

Belles coach Julie Schroeder-Biek believes the team just needs to take the one step at a time.

"We are in the home stretch with some tough matches ahead of us," she said. "We just need to keep taking one game at a time and finish strong." The Belles must watch out for Hope's senior middie hitter Amber Hoezee. She averages 4.4 kills in her last three matches, according to the conference. Hoezee is known for her consistency and will be a threat to any opponent.

On Friday the National (teams) played the American (teams) and it was a clean sweep for the [National division]," Clifton said. "I'm not sure if the parity is there.

The Irish are used to grueling stretch runs, according to Waldrum, who doesn't believe a team should have won. They haven't seen our recent and they should have won set back a little bit.

The Huskies’ Big East structure is similar to that of the conference and has a deep pool of talent. This year, the conference much stronger from top to bottom compared to last year's group. In the league's first season, teams are well-coached and have a strong foundation.

"Rutgers and Rutgers coach

Lightning fall to Panthers at home

LV Kozlov scores lone goal in first period

By SAMANTHA LEONARD

The Lightning have four games left this season, with three on the road and one at home. The Lightning have been on a hot streak, winning five of their last six games. The Lightning are looking to continue their winning streak and secure a playoff spot.

"On this ice, I felt like we were playing a tennis match, not hockey," Kozlov said. "You never know who's going to get the puck."

Marc Denis made 19 saves for Tampa Bay, which has lost two straight at home. Lightning goalie Marc Dennis makes a save against the Panthers in Tampa Bay's 1-0 loss to Florida Monday.

"It's obviously a great feeling to win," Dennis said. "We've come a long way as a team, and we've earned this opportunity."
 passes in the drive, including a 25-yard touchdown completion to Gutierrez. Wieland finished 7-12 with 93 yards and a touchdown. Zahn drew first blood on a Gutierrez fumble recovery returned 35 yards for a touchdown. But the Rambler line didn’t have a place kicker and failed to convert their two-point attempt. However, on their third drive of the game, the Ramblers established themselves offensively with a 66-yard drive that pass from sophomore quarterback Max Young started. ‘Young’s first touchdown of the game, the Ramblers up 13-6 with a yard drive that was capped by a receiver Gary Burke returned 35 yards for a touchdown completion of the offensive line and our defense played especially well. Our team is successful because we have a very good coach and a lot of experience.” Coach Mark Bennett was also pleased with their team’s play but cited the constant need to improve. “We took care of business today,” he said. “We played alright but we need to keep improving if we’re going to do well in the playoffs.”

The Big Red ground game controlled Sunday’s contest as Dillon running back Alex Duffy rushed for 196 yards and three touchdowns as the Big Red took the South Quad Classic. Dillon’s rushing offense was dominant today but did not attempt a pass in the second half. Duffy, who had touchdowns for 54, 30 and 35 yards, creffid his offensive performance.

“The line was making holes, so we had no reason to pass,” Duffy said. “We were getting five yards a pop and we felt we could convert third and longs running. I haven’t seen holes like that all season.”

The Dawgs offense showed some promise early. A multi-faceted rushing game, in which quick running back Brett Shapot complemented the big rushers, led to a 29-yard touchdown on a sweep past the line of scrimmage. The second half, however, Dillon had thes of Jose Figueredo, it resulted in a safety. That safety put the Vermin up 13-0.

After Sherman forced a three-and-out, the Knights took possession on a fumble recovery. That safety put the Vermin up 13-0.

A late score was enough to seal the victory. Fiser’s defense allowed only 57 total yards, forced two interceptions and recovered a fumble. “They just plain beat us,” Fiscus said.

“We were running the same system and they were saying some more looks on defense at the end when we knew they were really going to try and get us out of field goal range. We have confidence in our offense, and we had to go for the win.”

“Fisher’s defense will never shake me, this team will always be my baby.”

Joe Gemino
Morrissey coach

Green Wave running back Thomas Sullivan carries the ball against the Otters Sunday at Richie Field.

Fisher 3, Sorin 0
Neither Fisher nor Sorin could get anything going offensively until Fisher’s fourth-and-10 conversion set up a 23-yard field goal by Thomas Sullivan — the only score of the game.

For the first six possessions, both teams lacked a first down conversion. The first time Fisher moved the chains didn’t come until the fourth quarter when the Green Wave converted a fourth-and-10 on a pass from quarterback Kevin Rabii to Pat Bradel. We had a play we thought we would work, Fiser coach Ryan Bradel said. “We were in four-down territory, because we were outside of field goal range. We had confidence in our offense, and we had to go for the win.”

“Fisher’s defense allowed only 57 total yards, forced two interceptions and recovered a fumble. “They just plain beat us,” Fiscus said.

“We were running the same system and they were saying some more looks on defense at the end when we knew they were really going to try and get us out of field goal range. We have confidence in our offense, and we had to go for the win.”

“Fisher’s defense will never shake me, this team will always be my baby.”

Joe Gemino
Morrissey coach

Contact Matt Hopke at mhopke@ed.edu and Andrew Kovach at akovach@ed.edu.
continued from page 20

so we didn’t expect this today.”

But PE let the Whirlwinds know that they were in for a dogfight. On the first drive, the Ballfrogs completed two first downs before turning the ball over on downs near midfield. On the next drive, PE forced the Whirlwinds to go three and out, and PE capitalized on its final stand, knocking down a tipped pass by the Whirlwinds finally broke into the game with a defensive stop on fourth and short.

The second half featured more back-and-forth action. The Whirlwinds intercepted a pass inside the Pyro red zone, but PE refused to let down and took momentum back with an interception of its own on the next play.

On their next drive, the Whirlwinds finally broke into the Pyro red zone, but PE was able to stop the drive on fourth and short. But again PE refused to let down and took momentum back with a defensive stop.

An impressive catch and run by Cavanaugh, 7, Lyons 0

Cavanaugh completed a 14-yard strike from screen pass to wide receiver sitz just shy of midfield.

“We went out there with the mentality that we had nothing to lose,” PE’s head coach, John Fox said. “We always seem to play at the level of our opponent, good or bad.”

Earlier this season, the Pyros earned their third win against then-undefeated Cavanaugh.

The second half featured more back-and-forth action. The Whirlwinds intercepted a pass inside the Pyro red zone, but PE refused to let down and took momentum back with an interception of its own on the next play.

On their next drive, the Whirlwinds finally broke into the Pyro red zone, but PE was able to stop the drive on fourth and short. But again PE refused to let down and took momentum back with a defensive stop.

The second half was dominated by defense even more than the first. The Pyros had field position for most of the half, but could not seem to generate anything against the Chaos.

Cavanaugh, which snapped a two-game losing streak against the Pyros, now looks to the postseason.

“Two quick 20-yard passes put the Pyros in the red zone with less than 20 seconds remaining. The Pyros had to convert two field goals with no timeouts to pull out a victory.”

That wasn’t a problem for Pangborn as the Pyros were hitting their peak right about now.”

Farley 26, Lewis 0

Two quick 20-yard passes put the Pyros in the red zone with less than 20 seconds to play. A pass interference penalty negated the drive before the Pyros were able to get a first down.

Two quick 20-yard passes put the Pyros in the red zone with less than 20 seconds to play. A pass interference penalty negated the drive before the Pyros were able to get a first down.

Farley then meticulously moved the ball down field against an energized Lewis defense. Megan Hunt picked off the Chicks quarterback deep in Lewis territory, allowing for a four-yard toss to Crehan to cap the scoring.

Healy was very pleased with the win, but also focused on what lies ahead for his team.

“Having really good players makes it easy to take a team to the playoffs,” he said. “I think we’re hitting our peak right about now.”

Farley's defensive line continued to shut down the Phoxes, giving the team a 13-6 win.

The second half was dominated by defense even more than the first. The Pyros had field position for most of the half, but could not seem to generate anything against the Chaos.

Cavanaugh, which snapped a two-game losing streak against the Pyros, now looks to the postseason.

“When a tipped ball was caught by a tipped pass was intercepted by the Babes’ secondary, giving the Babes the ball at will, converting on three and out.

The Babes were in trouble as Pangborn’s defense hindered the Babes’ secondary, giving the Babes the ball at will, converting on three and out.

The Babes were in trouble as Pangborn’s defense hindered the Babes’ secondary, giving the Babes the ball at will, converting on three and out.

With just two minutes remaining, the Babes had the ball at midfield, but were unable to convert on fourth down.

“Our team’s strength defensively is the secondary, and we showed that today,” said Brian Fallon, the Babes’ head coach.

Farley was left with three minutes to play, but the Babes were still out of the game.

“We had Farley in a fourth and short situation just shy of midfield, but WE didn’t get the stop.”

Farley only scored two touchdowns in the second half, but each was huge.

The Babes were in trouble as Pangborn’s defense hindered the Babes’ secondary, giving the Babes the ball at will, converting on three and out.

We’ve got new players on our team that can play against the best team in our conference and be in the game which gives us a lot of confidence.”

Walshe, Badin 0

Walshe wide receiver Molly McCarthy caught a five-yard touchdown pass to give the Wild Women a win over Badin Sunday.

McCarthy’s touchdown would prove to be the only score in a defensive struggle in which both teams played a lot of intensity. Our momentum held out a lot.”

The Bulldogs failed in their attempts to get their offense started, as the Wild defense tightened. This defensive effort gave the Wild Women great field position throughout the first half.

In the second half, Badin had an easier time moving the ball, converting often on third and fourth downs. But the Walshe defense again proved to be too much, bating down passes and making crucial stops.

“We are happy to be going into the playoffs with a winning streak,” Fallon said. “We have a lot of momentum and we know what we’re doing.”

Notes:

Passerella West won Sunday due to a McGlinn forfeit.

Contact Vince Kenadly at vkenadly@nd.edu, Colin Reimer at creimerl@nd.edu and Michael Burdell at mburdel1@nd.edu

The Observer • SPORTS

Tuesday, October 10, 2006

A Breen-Phillips receiver runs upfield after a catch while being pursued by a Pangborn defensive back.

“We’ve got new players on our team that can play against the best team in our conference and be in the game which gives us a lot of confidence.”

Walshe, Badin 0

Walshe wide receiver Molly McCarthy caught a five-yard touchdown pass to give the Wild Women a win over Badin Sunday.

McCarthy’s touchdown would prove to be the only score in a defensive struggle in which both teams played a lot of intensity. Our momentum held out a lot.”

The Bulldogs failed in their attempts to get their offense started, as the Wild defense tightened. This defensive effort gave the Wild Women great field position throughout the first half.

In the second half, Badin had an easier time moving the ball, converting often on third and fourth downs. But the Walshe defense again proved to be too much, bating down passes and making crucial stops.

“We are happy to be going into the playoffs with a winning streak,” Fallon said. “We have a lot of momentum and we know what we’re doing.”

Notes:

Passerella West won Sunday due to a McGlinn forfeit.

Contact Vince Kenadly at vkenadly@nd.edu, Colin Reimer at creimerl@nd.edu and Michael Burdell at mburdel1@nd.edu

The Observer • SPORTS

Tuesday, October 10, 2006

A Breen-Phillips receiver runs upfield after a catch while being pursued by a Pangborn defensive back.

“We’ve got new players on our team that can play against the best team in our conference and be in the game which gives us a lot of confidence.”

Walshe, Badin 0

Walshe wide receiver Molly McCarthy caught a five-yard touchdown pass to give the Wild Women a win over Badin Sunday.

McCarthy’s touchdown would prove to be the only score in a defensive struggle in which both teams played a lot of intensity. Our momentum held out a lot.”

The Bulldogs failed in their attempts to get their offense started, as the Wild defense tightened. This defensive effort gave the Wild Women great field position throughout the first half.

In the second half, Badin had an easier time moving the ball, converting often on third and fourth downs. But the Walshe defense again proved to be too much, bating down passes and making crucial stops.

“We are happy to be going into the playoffs with a winning streak,” Fallon said. “We have a lot of momentum and we know what we’re doing.”

Notes:

Passerella West won Sunday due to a McGlinn forfeit.

Contact Vince Kenadly at vkenadly@nd.edu, Colin Reimer at creimerl@nd.edu and Michael Burdell at mburdel1@nd.edu
Smash mouth football

Zahn beats Siegfried, Carroll blanks Knott

By MATT HOPKE, BILL BRINK AND ANDREW KOVACH
Sports Writers

With less than a minute to play, a reverse to Eddie Gutierrez allowed Zahn to convert a two-point conversion and seal a 14-13 victory over Siegfried Sunday in men’s Interhall action. “We actually put in that play last week,” Zahn coach Rich Petty said. "We saw that teams were overplaying the run and we needed a play to take advantage of that. The boys really executed it to perfection.” The two-point conversion capped a two-play, 45-yard drive that all occurred in the final two minutes. Much credit goes to Zahn quarterback Sean Left, Carroll running back Mike Johnson is tackled by a Knott defender Sunday. Right, a Breen-Phillips running back carries the ball past a Pangborn defender Sunday.

ND WOMEN’S SOCCER

ND’s Big East lead not a given

Notre Dame has tough road games remaining

By TIM DOUGHERTY
Sports Writer

Despite holding the top spot in every major poll for most of the season, No. 1 Notre Dame still finds itself in a dogfight for the Big East lead. Until Sunday’s 2-0 win over Rutgers, the Irish (6-0 Big East, 13-0 overall) trailed the Scarlet Knights (5-1-1, 11-2-1) by two points after Notre Dame’s 1-0 lead over Cincinnati two weeks ago was washed away by game-ending storms.

Currently, the Irish have earned 18 points in their six conference wins, placing them one point ahead of Villanova (5-0-2, 13-6-2) and two points ahead of Rutgers in a log-jammed National Division. One slip-up in their final four games could cost Notre Dame the No. 1 seed in the Big East tournament; a small margin of error considering the Irish hit a two-point conversion and sealed the score indicated. The Pyros had only one victory this season and were going up against a Welsh Family team that coasted to an easy win over the No. 1 seed in the upcoming playoffs.

“We weren’t focused today,” she said. “We shut them out pretty badly last time we played

Irish midfielder Jill Krivacek tackles Scarlet Knights midfielder Jenifer Anzivino in Notre Dame’s 2-0 win over Rutgers Sunday.