Colfax 37 offered diversion program

Three arrested students with prior records, including Yeatman, to be ‘dealt with more harshly’

The St. Joseph County Prosecutor’s office offered the 37 people arrested Sept. 21 at a party on the 700-block of E. Colfax Ave. the chance to participate in a voluntary diversion program, according to a press release.

If the individuals in question choose to participate in the diversion program, they will pay user fees and "may be required to perform community service, participate in an alcohol use evaluation and follow through with any educational program determined to be appropriate after the evaluation," the release said.

This action is consistent with the handling of most first-time offenders who have been arrested for similar offenses, the release said. If they choose not to participate in the program, or fail to respond to the letter sent by the office, the reports will be referred for formal charging, according to the release.

Three of the 37 arrested Sept. 21 have prior records, and these individuals will be "dealt with more harshly, on a case-by-case basis," the release said. One of the three, Irish tight end Will Yeatman was on a "Deferred Sentencing" program for a January arrest for driving while intoxicated. He entered a guilty plea to the charges of Operating a Vehicle While Intoxicated, a Class C misdemeanor and Reckless Driving, a Class B misdemeanor, on Feb. 25. His sentence was deferred for one year, allowing Yeatman the opportunity to earn the dismissal of the charge of "Operating While Intoxicated," the release said.

A term of this agreement stated that Yeatman "shall not commit any criminal offenses during the term of this agreement," the release said.

Because Yeatman failed to comply with this term of the agreement, according to the release, he will be sentenced on the charge of Operating While Intoxicated, and both the State and the Defendant will "be free to make arguments to the Court regarding the appropriate sentence." The Court will set a date for the sentencing hearing.

Yeatman and the two others with prior records have been offered the opportunity to enter the voluntary diversion program determined to be appropriate after the evaluation, the release said.

Seniors consider post-grad service at fair

International, domestic sites pitch options including teaching, homelessness advocacy

By MADELINE BUCKLEY

Almost 80 service organizations came to Notre Dame Wednesday to educate students about postgraduate service opportunities for the University’s annual service fair.

The organizations represented at the fair serve domestic and international programs and sites that involve teaching, health care, prison ministry, homelessness advocacy and much more, the Center for Social Concerns’ Student Leadership and Senior Transitions director Mike Hebbeler said.

“It’s great for the students who have all these diverse interests,” Hebbeler said. "They are bound to find something that they are interested in as an issue." Hebbeler said he started contacting the organizations in August to invite them to participate in the fair. He e-mailed listserves for different organizations and found other groups through networking Web sites. Many organizations were easy to contact because they have come in past years, he said.

Hebbeler said he expected about 300 students to attend the fair.

“I hope students will first and foremost come to the fair, but see FAIR/page 6

Google explains Apps on pit stop

Notre Dame’s switch to Gmail also provides access to programs like Calendar, Talk

By BECKY HOGAN

With the switch to Google Apps service for student e-mail accounts earlier this semester, students have been able to do more than just send and receive e-mails — and the Google bus made a special trip to campus Wednesday as part of its “App to School” road trip to help students learn about these new features.

“The Google bus has been on its way around the country, visiting 10 schools since Sept. 8, starting out in Mountain View, Calif.,” said Mirrinn Schneider, associate marketing manager for Google Apps.

The bus’s trek across the country will end at Northwestern University on Friday.

Schneider said that “tours” of students stopped by to check out the 1978 eco-friendly bus, and learn about the additional features that Google Apps offers. In addition to the Gmail service, students also have access to other applications such as Calendar, Docs, Talk and Sites.

At the bus, which parked near Notre Dame Stadium’s northwest corner, students could explore the applications on computers.

Playing the stock market

I know as much about the stock market as I do about physics or women’s shoes.

I watch “Trading Places” and laugh at the appropriate times but have no idea what’s really happening. But I know enough that when the bailout plan failed in the House of Representatives Monday, I knew the bottom would fall out of the market. It did.

My roommate made a joke when we were talking about it.

“We should buy stock,” he said. A funny idea at first, but when we thought about it, it was the answer. The stock market lost more points than it ever had. It had nowhere to go but up.

I looked up which stock lost the most percentage-wise, and found a perfect fit.

— Wachovia. They sold $1.2 billion worth of assets and dropped from eight dollars to under two. Tuesday morning, I snatched up 25 shares. A nice social experiment, well-dressed scumbag robbing my hardworking trading day Thursday and I’d made $3.30 after the commission. It was pretty successful at this gig; I could see myself becoming the Michael Douglas character in “Wall Street,” a slick-talking, well-dressed scumbag robbing hardworking Americans of their money just to pad the top of my coffee a little more.

With my newfound prowess at predicting the market, maybe I can finally afford a new set of speakers, because my surround sound system cooled out on me recently. Maybe I can upgrade from Keystone and Natty to Four Bore. Maybe I can really have the Lamborghini Diablo I’ve always dreamed of, although it would be a pain to work with in the snow.

Then again, maybe my miniscule gain was a fluke. It could all be gone by tomorrow. If one company buys another, does the second company’s stock stay the same? Or does it disappear? I don’t know. I don’t even know if I really have stock. My bank’s Web site could be lying to me.

Regardless, I feel like I helped my country. The American economy is failing, and it’s the American thing to do to throw some dollars in the right direction.

Hopefully when the economy rights itself, it will remember my gracious contribution and throw a job my way in the future. That surround sound system may still be in the cards.

Mich. bride picks grandparents as matrons of honor

SAGINAW TOWNSHIP, Mich. — Many brides-to-be pick best friends to serve as their maids or matrons of honor. But Erica Schult’s best buddy isn’t a high school friend or a college pal. It’s her 92-year-old grandmother.

Angeline Schult will stand beside her granddaughter when the 26-year-old marries Mark James on Oct. 18 in Bay City.

“She is my best friend,” said Erica, who owns a Web design business with her fiancé. “When my grandma died, she bought a house down the street from our family. We both needed someone.

“I still go over to her house every day, to get her mail and prescriptions,” she told The Saginaw News.

School board trustee accused of ketchup theft

ORANGE, Calif. — An Orange school board trustee known for his dark glasses, knit cap and rants at meetings was suspected of confinement mapping.

A Chapman University spokesman said the man was cited for petty theft on Saturday after he put a ketchup bottle under his clothing and left the school’s cafeteria.

The man must appear in court, and if charges are filed he could face 45 days in jail.

In 2005, the board reprimanded the man and told him to limit his remarks to school issues after he rambled about credit unions and his father’s death. He sued the district for violating his right to free speech, but his case was dismissed.

Panel to discuss gender violence

By MANDI STIRONE

Domestic violence is something that may affect anyone, regardless of race, ethnicity or social background. Saint Mary’s Spanish professor Luzmila Camacho-Platero said.

Saint Mary’s two-day Symposium on Gender Violence began Wednesday with a movie screening and continues tonight with a panel discussion on gender violence.

"I think it’s important to talk about women’s issues and women’s politics," Camacho-Platero said.

The Vander Vennet Theater was mostly full for the showing of "Take My Eyes," which tells the story of a woman in an abusive marriage.

"We thought that students need to be very aware of these issues," Camacho-Platero said. "This is not something that happens only to strangers."

Saint Mary’s senior Becca Mason, who attended the screening, said she thought the film did a good job of making domestic violence not such a "dick and white" occurrence. It portrayed both people (the abused wife and the abusing husband) as real people," she said.

A Gender Violence panel will take place tonight from 5 to 7 p.m. at Vander Vennet Theater. The panel will include Edith Miguda, Yana Hashamova, Bettini Spencer and Linda S. Baechle.

The program was organized to be "as interdisciplinary as possible," Camacho-Platero said.

Miguda and Spencer are professors at Saint Mary’s. Miguda, an assistant professor of history, will give a talk entitled "Women and Violence in Electoral Politics in Africa." Spencer, an assistant professor of psychology, will discuss domestic abuse in her talk entitled "Thinking Gendered Violence: Domestic Abuse and Family Systems."

Hashamova is an associate professor of Slavic and East European Language and Literature at Ohio State University. She will discuss events in Eastern Europe in her talk, "Traffickling in Women: Reality and Repression."

Baechle is the Executive Director of the YWCA of St. Joseph County, she will also cover domestic violence in her talk "Justice for Domestic Violence Victims in United States."

The two-day symposium is sponsored by the Board of Governance (BOG), the Student Diversity Board, the Center for Women’s Intercultural Leadership, Multicultural Services and Student Programs, the Modern Languages Department, Women’s Studies, Justice Education, Intercultural Studies, the Office of Civic and Social Engagement, the Spanish Club and the Women’s Resource Center.

STUDENT SENATE

Group considers cab regulation

By JOSEPH McMATHON
Assistant News Editor

Student Senate discussed how the University should regulate cab service on campus at their meeting Wednesday, building on a meeting student body president Bob Reish, vice president Grant Schmidt and Senate Community Relations committee chair Gus Gari had with Notre Dame Security Police (NDSP).

"We communicated what we think the major issues with cabs are (at the meeting)," Gari said.

"We saw that there have been many students complaining that on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday taxi drivers are overcharging and some of the taxi drivers are being rude," Gari said.

Many senators agreed that a student government can do to change the practices of South Bend cab drivers, they can ban certain cab companies from coming to campus.

"We can’t regulate customer service aspects, but we can regulate what cabs can come on campus," Gari said.

Gari said they discussed the idea of a universal flat rate for all students as well as placing cab stands somewhere near North and South Quads as possible ways to regulate the taxis.

"Only companies that entered into negotiations with the University could come on campus," he proposed.

Many senators agreed that a flat rate would be a welcome remedy to haggling with difficult cab drivers.

"I like the idea of a flat rate," Alumni senator Zach Reevens said. "I’ve had a lot of problems negotiating cab prices depending on where you’re going."

Cavanaugh senator Robin Link said one of the best ways to advertise approved cab companies would be to post fliers listing those companies’ numbers in the dorm entrances.

Senators Academic Affairs committee chair Ryan Brollenthin agreed the best companies should be advertised, and suggested an online rating system for different drivers and companies. "So it’s not such a much regulated by the administration but more by the students."

Saint Mary's to host
Light the Night Walk

By ALICIA SMITH
News Writer

At the Light the Night walk tonight, organizers and participants of Saint Mary's College community will be walking for "Team Kathy."

"Team Kathy," in honor of Saint Mary's sophomore Kathy O'Brien who was diagnosed with lymphoma in August 2006. In January 2008, she relapsed and is now recovering from treatments.

"I am so flattened to hear that people are walking for my team," O'Brien said. "I really don't know how great it's been to know that Saint Mary's is totally behind me."

Saint Mary's senior Sarah King plans to participate in the event by walking for "Team Kathy."

"I was so inspired by her story that I decided to make my Residence Hall section join on her team," King said. "We all try to stay away from the experience. Now that Kathy has had to go through this fight for a second time, it just seems even more necessary to take something to Light the Night in her honor."

Light the Night, an annual fundraising event organized by the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, takes place tonight at 7 p.m.

This is the second year Light the Night will be held at Saint Mary's, but the walk first took place in 1998, said Kein Walters, the Light the Night Campaign Coordinator of Northwestern Indiana and South Bend.

"Light the Night got started because it was aware that more needed to be done to raise money for cancer research and that those who were diagnosed with cancer wanted to do something to give back and help others," she said. Walters said she was fortunate enough to attend Light the Night this year.

Carrie Call, director of the Office of Civil and Social Engagement at Saint Mary's, said during the walk people were accompanied by balloons.

"Those who are supporters carry red balloons, survivors of cancer carry white and some walkers carry gold balloons in memory of one who has died," Call said.

Light the Night has raised $1.2 million in the past 10 years.

"The proceeds go toward blood cancer research, patient services and education," Walters said. "We have family support groups, financial assistance and work shops for patients and their caregivers," said Walters.

Registration closes at 5 p.m. on the Le Muns Green.

Tainted milk causes lawsuit

BEIJING — The parents of a 1-year-old boy who developed kidney stones after drinking infant formula tainted with an industrial chemical are suing the dairy at the heart of the scandal, the state media reported, as tests implicated 15 more companies Wednesday.

The case is the first civil lawsuit filed in response to the contamination of milk, yogurt and other dairy products with melamine, which causes kidney stones and can lead to kidney failure. Nearly 54,000 children have been sickened and four infants have died.

For 15 months, the boy was fed baby formula made by Sanlu Group Co. from the time of his birth, said the report by Caijing, a leading Chinese business magazine.

The child’s parents, who come from central China’s Henan province, filed a lawsuit in a court in Zhejiang province seeking $22,000 in compensation from Sanlu for medical, travel and other expenses incurred after the child developed kidney stones, the magazine said.

It said his clients sought legal help because they could no longer afford medical treatment for their child, the report said.

Russia to withdraw troops soon

KABALI, Georgia — Russian military officers said Wednesday that Russia plans to withdraw its remaining troops inside South Ossetia within three months and allow the region to declare independence from Georgia.

Military operations and deepening public skepticism about his running mate, Sarah Palin, is another sign of the radical shift in politics.

As the two senators prepare for the vice presidential debate next month, Obama’s stands at the forefront of the nation’s news.

George Bennett, of Braintree, disappeared on June 25 and was found dead a week later. The child’s parents, who come from central China’s Henan province, filed a lawsuit in a court in Zhejiang province seeking $22,000 in compensation from Sanlu for medical, travel and other expenses incurred after the child developed kidney stones, the magazine said.

Several GOP strategists close to McCain’s campaign privately fret that the arcane situation at the forefront of the race is still a month away, plenty of time for anything to happen in politics.

Added Neil Novosel, also a Republican pollster: “If anybody thinks we’re in for a straightforward next 30 days” of this campaign, all I’ll have to do is look back at the last 30 days of ugly turf war developments.

To be sure, the election is still a month away, plenty of time for anything to happen in politics.

Not all Republican insiders are pessimistic. Obama’s failure to achieve a double-digit lead and maintain it “has given a lot of hope to Republicans,” GOP pollster Whit Ayres said. Yet he also allowed, “You can’t have a playing field that leans this heavily toward the Democrats and not be nervous.”

Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Barack Obama shakes hands of his opponents but late Wednesday on the administration’s $700 billion bailout plan, 16 percent of likely voters said they thought McCain hurt negotiations over the proposal when he bolted back to Washington last week to get involved. Just 5 percent thought Obama did damage when he returned after a summons by President Bush to attend a White House meeting on the crisis.

McCain also lost ground among likely voters on experience, though he still leads on the issue, while Obama’s marks ticked up slightly. And McCain said a bit as voters assessed which candidate “cares about people like me,” while Obama gained.

INDY man arrested for extortion

ANKTON, Ind. — Indiana State Police said Wednesday that a 17-year-old man from Indianapolis tried to extort more than $20,000 from an insurance giant AIG after stealing a computer server that contained personal and health care information for more than 900,000 people.

Kevin Michael Stewart, 27, was in federal custody Wednesday night at the Marion County Jail, said Special Agent Wendy A. Osborne, an FBI spokeswoman. He was being held without bond pending a detention hearing.

There are people with injuries that are brought here, and I say this with confidence, if they went anywhere else in the world, they would not survive,” said Col. Mark Nasty, the commander of the hospital.

On one recent day, 5-year-old Sajad Lafula lay in his bed crying for his father while his older half-brother, Abdul Wahid, tried to comfort him by holding up a picture of a puppy that Sajad colored while recovering at the hospital. The boy didn’t know yet what Wahid, 25, came to visit him because his father was attending the funerals for two of his other young sons. They were killed by a car bomb that blew off Sajad’s lower left leg and left tiny pieces of metal scattered over his body.

"Thank God, we are positive he is going to live," said Wahid, who planned to bring the puppy picture home to their mother as proof that Sajad was alive.

Over the years, the hospital on Balad Air Base has become synonymous with combat trauma care. It is best known for saving countless U.S. soldiers with catastrophic battle injuries — more than 90 percent on average over the six-month period ending in August.

But even more astounding: During that same time, about 93 percent of Iraqis left the hospital alive — up from an average of 89.7 percent during the previous six months.

ELECTION 2008

McCain loses some ground in polls

Voters help Obama surge ahead with a seven point lead over McCain

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Barack Obama has surged to a seven­point lead over John McCain one month before the presiden­tial election, lifted by voters who think the Democrat is bet­ter suited to lead the nation through a deepening financial crisis, according to an Associated Press­Gallop poll that underscores the mounting con­cerns of some McCain backers.

Likely voters now back Obama 48­to 41 percent over McCain, a dramatic shift from an AP­Gallop survey that gave the Republican a slight edge nearly three weeks ago, before Wall Street collapsed and sent ripples across worldwide mar­kets.

On top of that, the surveys show Obama beating McCain in several battle­ground states, including Ohio, Florida and Pennsylvania — three states critical to the nation­state fight for the presiden­cy.

Several GOP strategists close to McCain’s campaign privately fret that the arcane situation at the forefront of the race is still a month away, plenty of time for anything to happen in politics.

Military hospital helps Iraqi patients

BALAD, Iraq — The U.S. military’s main combat hospital in Iraq has increasingly switched to helping Iraqis. As the number of wounded American soldiers has fallen, the hospital is now seeing the lives of a growing number of 93 per­cent of Iraqis who come with devastat­ing injuries.

"It’s another sign of the radical improvements in health care made at combat trauma centers in war­time — especially because unlike U.S. sol­diers, most Iraqi patients at the Air Force Theater Hospital don’t wear body armor and helmets or drive in vehicles designed to withstand roadside bombs.

There are people with injuries that are brought here, and I say this with confidence, if they went anywhere else in the world, they would not survive," said Col. Mark Nasty, the commander of the hospital.

Hebbeler said he hopes students will choose a program that interests them and that they will initiate contact with the organization because, he said, postgraduate service can be a formative experience.

"It is new to the students in a way that they will stay with them as they move on to medical school or to their businesses," he said. "It will have a lasting influence."

About 10 percent of graduating seniors and juniors choose to complete service every year, he said.

Interest students crowded the booths at the fair and cited different reasons for pursuing service opportunities after graduation.

Senior Michael Massengale said he was at the fair largely because he is unsure of a career path.

"Service is a good way for me to dedicate time to the community and figure out what to do with my life at the same time," Massengale said.

Senior Erin Dowd said she has always been interested in a career path that involves service.

"I would like to work with kids, but not in a classroom setting," Dowd said.

She said she would like to find a program that offers teaching opportunities at a community center or safe haven shelter.

Senior Jenny Holls also said she is interested in finding a teaching program like Alliance for Catholic Education (ACE) or Teach for America at the fair.

"I want to be a teacher and I think some of the programs here force you to go to places most in need of teachers," Holls said.

Senior Mike McCann said he wants a chance to leave the United States and gain new experience after graduation.

"If you go into the business world you start your life right away. With service you can continue to grow as a person," he said. "It's all about the experience."

Many representatives for the service organizations said they were eager to meet and recruit Notre Dame students.

showed students how to use applications on Google Apps by visiting google.com/apps/students.

"It's a great Web site that gives an overview of the products which are all linked to student's NID accounts," Schneider said. "A lot of students are familiar with the e-mail application and are already aware that Notre Dame has switched over its [student e-mail] accounts, but many students are not aware of other tools they can use like Docs, the collaborative word processing application."

Senior Kay-Wong, who visited the bus, said she has been using many of the Google Apps features including Calendar, Docs and Spreadsheets.

"I sometimes use Docs and Spreadsheets when I'm using another computer," she said.

Wong also said that she uses Google Chat frequently because she can chat and check her e-mail at the same time. However, she explained that the Google chat utility is not easier in use compared to other chat utilities such as AOL Instant Messenger or MSN Instant Messenger.

"It's not really easier to use because you have to manually invite people to chat with you the first time," Wong said.

The bus can also be used to "promote how to make students aware of a new application called "Forms" which is their newest application and will allow students to send surveys out through e-mail and get quick responses."

"There are always new things to learn, and we're learning how students are using these things as well. It helps us with the next step of the process," Schneider said.

Wong said that when she visited the bus she learned about the new "Forms" application, as well as "Sites."

"Sites" allows students to create Web sites and add content easily so that they can "share all their info in one place," according to the Google Apps Web site.

Students who stopped by the tent also received Google t-shirts, frisbees and whiteboards Schneider said. Students also had the opportunity to play Rock Band on the bus.

WASHINGTON — After one spectacular failure with the $700 billion financial industry bailout found a second solution in the form of $700 billion for something other than the banks, the Senate voted Sunday to pass the measure to start loans flowing to businesses and save off a potential national economic disaster.

“This is what we need to do right now to prevent the possibility of a crisis turning into a catastrophe,” Obama said on the Senate floor. In Missouri, before flying to Washington, McCain said, “If we're going to act, the gears of our economy have to start to turn.”

The House of Representatives passed the bill late Sunday, lawmakers voting for the rescue package at a cap on federal deposit insurance that would send the measure to start loans flowing and save off a potential national economic disaster.

It is necessary for us to work for as long as possible, and we’re going to have to work longer because of the value of their retirement savings. They were a double-digit hit this fall. They also still saw $425,000 on a house with a market value of $650,000.

Lobbyists worked for bailout votes
WASHINGTON — Lobbyists for restaurants, the hotel industry and other businesses are courting lawmakers at home and in Washington — to seek their support. By late afternoon, that list showed five legislators who’d voted “no” now leaning toward supporting an overhaul of the bill the House rejected by 23 votes.

The all-out lobbying came as the Senate prepared for a Wednesday evening vote in which the revamped legislation was expected to be approved.

ct. since January, but the burglars are hitting a wide variety of targets and not focusing solely on students. He said SPPD would be increasing its patrols.

"We're up in burglaries, but it's nothing one could say that this all happened when the Notre Dame people came back," Trent said. "There's been no [Irish] increase in break-ins at student houses."

St. Joseph's County Police Sgt. William Redman agreed with Trent, adding that all of St. Joseph's County has seen an increase in break-ins and burglaries recently.

"The last month or two, burglars in St. Joseph County seem to be on the rise as well," Redman said. "This is widespread throughout the entire county, and I know there have been some areas near the University that have been broken into also."

Students have been feeling the collateral effects of the increase in crime, with burglars targeting not only their homes, but to their cars as well. Seniors Mark Langhans and Daniel Castellanos, who live on the 200 block of N. St. Louis Blvd., said they have been the victims of nine separate incidents, eight involving items stolen from their cars and one involving a burglar breaking in through the first floor window to steal a laptop.

"Most of the times [the burglars were] just someone breaking into a car usually just by opening the door — my roommates leave their cars unlocked and empty so that their windows don't get broken, which happened at the beginning of the year — and rummaging around for something," Castellanos said.

Langhans said he and his roommates have had a variety of items stolen from them, ranging from a laptop computer to an empty backpack to $1.75 in change.

"There's no peace of mind," he said. "You're worried about stuff being stolen all the time, and I feel like you really shouldn't have to worry about that."

Langhans had his laptop stolen sometime last Saturday between the hours of 4 a.m. and 8 a.m. — the first time someone had actually broken into his house.

"The scary part of it was, in order to see the laptop, they had to have been up against the window," he said. "It's obvious that they're coming up and peaking in our house while we're sleeping."

Langhans lives in a house located across the street from the 700-block of E. Colfax Ave., where 20 hours prior to the burglary took place, police arrested 37 for alcohol-related charges.

"They burglarly happened 20 or so hours before the party was broken up," Trent said.

Langhans said he was disappointed that the rate of residential burglaries has risen, but to him, it seems as though police are more focused on preventing underage drinking.

"You know that they're targeting students, and you wish that they would step up patrols," he said. "The thing that makes you really mad is when you see [the headline] of 37 arrests for underage drinking because they were able to mobilize all these elite police forces, while, at the same time, our house can be broken into."

Mark Kramer of Kramer Properties, who owns the N. St. Louis Blvd. properties in addition to about 200 other housing units throughout South Bend, said he also thinks the police needed to readjust their priorities.

"I think the police need to concentrate their efforts more so on the real crimes in the community and the crimes that affect a lot less about parties inside homes," he said.

Kramer said he has had another break-in at a home this year, but has heard dozens of complaints from students about cars being broken into.

After the first home break-in earlier this semester, Kramer doubled his security force which checks on each of his properties nightly.

"We've had house break-ins, which is two too many. But if you look at the ratio between mobilize all these elite police and 200 total units, it's pretty low," Kramer said. "If we had [the first break-in], I doubled my patrols."

Senior Catie Peters, who declined to give her address but said she lives "near Club 23," said her home was entered in broad daylight several weeks ago and her laptop and some of her roommate's jewelry were taken. But Peters said after she attended a safety talk at LaFortune for off-campus students and a Notre Dame Security Police (NDSP) and SPPD, she understood that the police officers care much more about student safety than underage drinking.

"It was a very good event to have because it [became] very obvious that the police officers did not care that much about bustling parties," she said. "It just point[s] out to the public that police officers would care about student getting busted for underage drinking above their safety.... It kind of frustrates me when students aren't seeing this from a holistic point of view."

Peters said she blamed students' prejudice against the police for the University's failure to embrace the South Bend community.

"I think a lot of the problem comes from Notre Dame's failure to integrate into the community," she said. "Our Notre Dame is not a bubble, as much as it tries to pretend that it is." Student Senate Community Relations committee chair Gus Gari said students must be aware that, when they enter the South Bend community, they need to be vigilant.

"Like South Bend Police Chief Darryl Boykins told us, it's really easy money for [burglars] if students don't make sense that the University's failure to embrace the South Bend community," he said. "I think a lot of the problem comes from Notre Dame's failure to integrate into the community, they need to be vigilant."

"Well, what motivation do you have after you've been treated the way you've been treated," Trent said.

Langhans said while he still enjoys living off-campus and being a member of the South Bend community, his recent interactions with crime have lessened his view of the town.

"There's a lot cool parts of South Bend that you get to know being off-campus, but it's hard to look to the bright side of South Bend with what we've had to deal with," he said. "You want to find the good in it, but it becomes increasingly difficult the more you are taken advantage of."

receive for being executives," Weaver said.

The Executive Board can choose neither or not then wish to accept this money for their services to SGA and the student body.

"Last year was the first year the school took a profit," said Weaver. "They told us about it at the end of last year so it was something we needed to to vote on ....

"This year we're looking at things like making ground rules ... not just for this year but it'll continue in years to come," she said.

While it is not specified in the SGA Constitution if the Executive Board can set aside a stipend for themselves, it is also not stated that they cannot, Falvey said. The addition of a clause stating whether or not they can will be taken to the Constitution Oversight Committee and Falvey said she hopes it is more explicit in the Constitution.

Many BOG members said they took issue with the fact that this stipend is coming out of funds received from the student government or included in each student's tuition.

"I don't see how we can make time we get out of tuition and pay other students," health and wellness commis-ioner Pauline Kistka said.

Class of 2009 president
Jenny Antonelli agreed.

"I have an issue with it coming out of student funds ... that can be used for another activity on campus or some type of thing that could benefit the entire student body," she said.

OG members also took issue with the idea that students are deciding whether or not a stipend should be set aside for SGA executives.

"As there a way that Karen Johnson, Patrick [Daniel], Sandle [Houjoude, director of Residence Life], and [College President Carol Ann] Moore can sit down and decide this?" public relations commissioner Katie Danko asked. "I don't think it's ethical for students to decide this.

Kistka also said she doesn't know how she feels about the fact that the students who will be receiving the money are the ones deciding the budget.

"We were not informed of this [ Happening] last year," she said. "My concern is that I know that six people — and I'm not saying you guys, I'm saying on boards prior — were then given the permission to earn money. If the decision was in their hands, that's the ones going to receive the money. I don't see the open-endedness of the decision or an unbiased decision regarding this. I guess I kind of see a conflict in getting money in general.

Admissions commissioner Kristie Hodges, who held the same position on last year's BOG, said former student body president Kim Hodges and the rest of the Executive Board did not come up with a proposa-for the executives to receive a stipend out of the blue.

"The student governments at most schools and universities don't just for this year but they get free room and board," Hodges said. "They get a lot of other privileges that Saint Mary's [executive board] does not get at all." she said.

Daniel said he knows that the amount the College's Executive Board allocated for a stipend is "a drop in the bucket" compared to larger schools and "very comparabile" to schools of the same size.

"This is not something that does not happen," he said.

Elections commissioner Francesca Johnson, however, said she thinks putting a clause to a stipend for students in the SGA Constitution will change the reasons why people will run for student body president and vice president.

"Out came up we get to the point that we need to be rewarded?" she asked. "I think it's taking away from the reasons why in the future people are going to be running for positions and running for board... In the past it was because you love student government or you love the organization you are in. I don't see why we have to say because I put in so many hours and because I put in whatever I have to get something out of it."

Gruscinski sent an e-mail to the Executive Board members as part of their discussion before approving the budget, stating that she was okay with the executives receiving a stipend, though not the $5,000 last year's Executive Board took.

However, she "would not keep the stipend and (she) would publicly give it back to the school in a way that (she) know had benefit the students."

"As the president of our student body, I cannot ethically and intentionally connec-tomyself to something which upsets the student body," she said.

She said she does not want to receive any sort of stipend from the money collected from student activity fees.

"I believe it is unethical, no matter how much we would allocate to ourselves or how we try to justify it, to decide to pay ourselves out of student money," Gruscinski said. "The cure value for this year is justice and I think we need to hold ourselves to a higher standard and choose what is just.

Professors preview vice presidential debate
Missouri match up poses different challenges for Republican Gov. Sarah Palin and Democrat Sen. Joe Biden

By AMANDA GRAY
News Writer

Less than a week after presidential candidates Democratic Sen. Barack Obama and Republican Sen. John McCain faced off for their first debate, their races are still considered tight tonight which ticket has the strongest answer.

Sen. Joe Biden, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, and, Gov. Sarah Palin, the Republican vice presidential nominee, will announce tonight which state they are from moderator Gwen Ifill, the managing editor and moderator for "Nightingale Week" and a senior correspondent for "The NewsHour with Jim Lehrer.

Some Notre Dame political science professors expect economic policy and the financial recovery plan, as well as the war in Iraq, to be major topics in tonight's debate.

Biden, a senator from Delaware, has been involved with policies at a national level since 1972. Palin, the governor of Alaska, becomes the term in 2006. The candidates could face different challenges for the two candidates, professors said.

Biden is a smart and experienced senator with loads of foreign policy experience a domestic policy experience, but he is also prone to giving gaffes," political science professor Peri Arnold said. "I suggest that one might watch for Biden's inability to self-censor.

Palin, who lacks the extensive experience of Biden, will face difdferent challenges in the debate.

"This election is extremely important, especially for young adults. Don't be arm-chair consumers of politics. Become informed and participate in the process," Darren Davis Political science professor

"Gov. Palin may be given the opportunity to clarify or make-up for issues that appeared to give her problems in previous interviews," political science professor Darren Davis didn't appear to have problems with his experience and lack of experience dealing with the intensity of a national campaign," Arnold said.

"Biden agreed on the point of Palin's inexperience. As Democratic
student body president, Palin was known to benefit the students."

"It's understandable why Obama chose Biden," Davis said.

"However, if Obama had chosen Senator [Hillary] Clinton, I think his chances of winning would be a lot higher.

All the professors agreed their belief that this election is crucial.

"This election is extremely important, especially for young adults," Davis said. "Don't be arm-chair consumers of politics. Become informed and participate in the process.

The vice presidential debate will be held tonight at Washington University in St. Louis. It will begin at 7 p.m. EST.

ND Votes '08, a non-partisan campaign of the Center for Social Concerns, will host a debate watch followed by commentary from members of the Notre Dame Debate Team in the Coleman-Morse Lounge from 9 p.m. to 11.

With 8:41 left in Saturday’s game, an already low-flying and still descending, wheels-down plane blazed across Notre Dame Stadium. I couldn’t help but watch and imagine the crowed interior of the stadium and Notre Dame and Purdue fans gawk in unison, knowing what’s about to come and helplessly to stop it. This isn’t Titanic, and the band stops playing, Screams, then fly.

On board, passengers call loved ones, then enter Saint Mary’s. The over-military jet from America the Beautiful returns to the air and the President is briefed somewhere, hundreds of miles away. A rush of fire trucks and media, even if the NBC cameras survive. Like something starring Nicholas Cage and we’re to the 40,000 extras, but after this time we’ll never get to collect our $100 appearance fee. The heat and beer turn in my stomach.

And then, James Aldridge rushed left for seven years. He’s studentwriting properly applauded. The plane kept going, off to South Bend Regional Airport.

At the time, I didn’t say anything to my friends. Maybe nobody else noticed. Maybe I am just a New Yorker oversensitive to these things. But the next day, I chastely flew it to a friend from Washington, D.C. There’s nowhere to remember the plane. Every time she sees a plane like that, she told me, she wonders. A friend from Kansas City remembered the plane, too, and said she talked to someone about it during the game. I was not the only one.

A few weeks ago, of course, we recognized the seventh anniversary of Sept. 11. We memorialized the victims by reading their names. The Presidential candidates marched together to place a wreath at Ground Zero. We had a service on campus.

Two years ago, I hit a candle at the Grotto. This year, I bought Fruit Roll-Ups at Walmart’s grocery store. The anniversary, like Year Seven in general, passed relatively quietly. Remembering those who died is a profound, and important experience. But in addition to remembering, we need to re-evaluate the meaning of the Sept. 11 for those still alive. Sept. 11 turns anything we can imagine, the worst scenarios play out. Literature and new meaning, because all are suddenly real. It makes a plane that flies over the world and becomes a funeral bomb.

In the weeks and months after Sept. 11, I expected this sort of reaction. But at the time, I never thought that seven years later, the power would still exist. It still influences us. It still terrifies us. We have to be okay with this. We can’t get rid of it. No matter what we do to protect ourselves, this imagination now does to us what it did to us.

Often today, to talk about Sept. 11 is talk about the politics of the last seven years. It is to speak about war in Afghanistan and, Iraq. It is to speak about the PATRIOT Act and Guantánamo and Abu Ghraib. Even bipartisan memorials on the anniversary come filled with political undertones. It’s remarkable that Sept. 11 is becoming a political issue. This is an enduring national trauma, as the reaction to the plane above Notre Dame Stadium proves. But its mere mention invokes a series of polarized political questions about civil liberties, race, and religion. Even commentaries on the politicization of Sept. 11 becomes a partisan statement itself.

For this politicization of Sept. 11 distracts from meaningful policy questions about which we can all agree: port and border security, emergency response funding, disaster relief.

But equally importantly, it comes at the expense of reaction to what Sept. 11 the event actually means for our collective and individual psyches as we move forward. The observation that the terror of Sept. 11 lingers isn’t political. It doesn’t explicitly mean we should or shouldn’t do anything in particular to stop future terror.

But it does mean that we have to recognize the Sept. 11 still directly impacts our daily lives, seven years later. It means that no matter which side we’re in politically, our collective and individual psyches are left in a state.

Proud to be Irish

The worst building of campus

Mistaken identity?

I graduated from Notre Dame in 1982. I also happened to meet my same-sex life partner in 1982, so you could say that was an important year for me. Since graduating, in every year that I can remember I have contributed when asked to the Notre Dame Annual Fund and have done so every year. At least once a year I am solicited by the ND Development Department. I may not be major donors by University standards but at least we are consistent. To my surprise, just last month the first time my solicitation was addressed to both my partner (Michael DeLoe) and me (Gregory Bourke). Further, on the back of my pledge card there was the printed note “Gregory and Michael are legally married.” Thank you for your consistent support. We hope we can count on you again this year.

For as long as I have had the option several years at least on the Notre Dame on-line alumni directory I have had my partner listed under the spouse category. We were legally married in Canada five years ago. It seems the ND Development Department has not updated its files cross-referencing with the on-line alumni directory, which is all well and good.

Maybe they think my Michael is a woman. We both vote in the state and federal elections and I have filed our joint state and federal tax returns as a married couple after 26 years together. When we got married we hired a bishop to officiate the wedding and had our partner listed under the spouse category. We were legally married in Canada five years ago. Death Magnetic Metallica

Label: Warner Bros.
Recommended Tracks: "All Nightmare Long," "A Day That Never Comes," and "Suicide And Redemption"

The Oxford-based band, originally named "The Bends," is truly an all-killer no-filler band that has been a concert favorite. Easily considered "speed metal" the band's pieces are impressive feats of musicianship. A slower more vocal oriented work, "The Unforgiven III," also manages to feature the piano only for a few moments. "Suicide And Redemption" is an instrumental track and demonstrates how heavy metal can function without lyrics, especially when the lead singer's voice is a growl. In "Death Magnetic" there is no shortage of catchy riffs, heavy metal rock or impressive sound, but originality is lacking. "Death Magnetic" is a return to greater quality music, but this album is a rehash of sorts and lacks originality. With songs such as "All Nightmare Long," and "Cyndi," the listener can enjoy speed metal at its best, while "A Day That Never Comes" gives a greater sampling of the bands creative range. This album is no doubt to be found on Rock Band VII and Guitar Hero X within a few years, as soon as the rights are given and as soon as the band becomes a little more lenient with the leaking of their music. After all "Death Magnetic" was leaked 10 days early and the only response by Lars Ulrich was to USA Today, "By 2008 standards, that's a victory. If you'd told me six months ago that our record wouldn't leak until 10 days out, I would have signed up for that." Ultimately "Death Magnetic" is a step in the right direction, and Metallica is once again reminiscent of their heavy metal prime. Fans will no doubt be grateful.

Thursday: Krispy Kreme's and Karaoke at Legends

Never thought you'd see these two together, huh? Thanks to the creative folks at Legends, you're in luck if you find yourself craving fried desserts and public singing in one night of entertainment. Whether or not you know the literal translation of "karaoke" ("empty" and "orchestra," according to the wise words of Wikipedia), we suggest checking out what will hopefully be the latest in a long series of donut-themed karaoke nights at Notre Dame's on-campus club. Krispy Kremes and Karaoke starts at midnight.

Friday: The Hot Club of San Francisco at DPAC

The Hot Club of San Francisco, a swing band, will be appearing at the Belk Auditorium Performing Arts Center this Friday at 8 p.m. in a multimedia event called "Silent Surrealism." The band will perform live jazz while five silent films from the early 20th century will be shown on screen in the DPAC's Leighton Concert Hall. These films include "It's A Bird" and "Now You Tell One" by Charlie Bowers, as well as others from the era. No doubt a unique experience for the adventurous concertgoer, the performance should prove to be a highly interesting one for any fan of music, film or both.

Saturday: Kennedy's Kitchen at Bright's Irish Pub

Students are likely familiar with Kennedy's Kitchen, a traditional Irish band who often play at Fiddler's Hearth in downtown South Bend. Kennedy's Kitchen, who have performed with the Chieftains and Tommy Makem, as well as in a variety of music venues and Irish festivals, will play this Saturday from 7:30 to 11 p.m. at Bright's Irish Pub. Often mixing stories, Irish tales and ballads into their concerts along with traditional music, the band is sure to provide locals and visitors alike with a solid night of entertainment. Who knows — maybe you'll see a jig or two. Bright's Irish Pub is located at 52901 SR 933 North in South Bend.

Saturday: "Dr. Strangelove" at DPAC

"Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb" is nothing short of a film classic. Made at the height of the Cold War nuclear fears in the early 1960s, the film is a star turn by Peter Sellers, who plays no less than three roles. "Dr. Strangelove" features an impressive ensemble cast including James C. Scott, Slim Pickers as Maj. T.J. "King" Kong, and even a young James Earl Jones. For fans of film, outrageous comedy and political jibes, anything like this 1964 classic is not to be missed. The film shows at 7 p.m. Tickets are two dollars, but must be reserved ahead of time by calling the Ticket Office at 574-631-2890.

WANTED

PHILADELPHIA — Cole Hamels was so dominant the Milwaukee Brewers were glad to see Brad Lidge come in. The second-place team scored nearly as many runs against the Philadelphia Phillies behind their top two arms, the Phillies grabbed their first postseason victory in 15 years — barely.

Hamels pitched eight brilliant innings, seven scoreless, and the inning jam and Philadelphia took advantage of Mike Cameron's misuse in center field for a 3-1 win over Milwaukee in the opening game of their National League playoff Wednesday.

Once Uley's two-run double slipped out of Cameron's glove in the third, helping the Phillies take a 2-0 lead, Lidge allowed a run in the ninth but struck out Corey Hart with runners at second and third to end it.

"I can't let him get a hit there," said Lidge, who was 41-for-41 in save chances this season. "I've always been a strikeout pitcher and that's what I wanted to do."

Eleven of the best-of-five series is Thursday, with ace CC Sabathia going to the mound for the wild-card Brewers on three days' rest for the fourth consecutive start of the Myers pitches for the Phillies.

It'll be tough for anyone to match Sabathia's performance. The 24-year-old lefty retired the first 14 batters and allowed two hits, striking out nine.

Phillies manager Charlie Manuel considered sending Hamels out to start the ninth, but decided not to.

"The Brewers got the run going to the pen, but Prince Fielder fanned for the second out," after J.J. Hardy walked in the tying run, Hlavacek hit a wild pitch.

"Not too many times you can say you're happy to see Lidge, but we didn't hit the ball off Hamels all day," Brewers manager Dale Sveum said.

In Game 2 on Thursday night, when they send mercurial right-hander Carlos Zambrano against Chad Billingsley.

"Invariably, when you keep putting people on, they're going to score, and they scored three times there with that grand slam," Piniella said.

When Matt Kemp followed with a double, Piniella had seen enough and brought in Sean Marshall from the bullpen. Marshall gave up Ramirez's solo shot in the seventh that made it 5-2.

The Dodgers padded the lead in the eighth when Blake DeWitt doubled and reached third on an error by Cubs' third baseman Edwin Rios, scoring on Casey Blake's single off Jeff Samardzija. Martin home run, off Jason Marquis in the top of the ninth.

On the first day of spring training, Dempster said he thought the Cubs would win the World Series this year. Now, they're in a hole already.

"Now, their team looks a little bit better," Piniella said. "They have a better bullpen. They have a better defense. They're going to score, and they scored three times there with that grand slam," Piniella said.

Braves defense dominant in win over LA Tech

BOISE, Idaho — For years, Boise State's defense has taken a back seat to the Broncos' clever, high-scoring offense.

But this year, the defense is taking every opportunity to change that perception. Thanks to a fourth-quarter goal-line stand, a stifling run defense and constant quarterback pressure, it was the defense that led the 17th-ranked Broncos to a 38-3 victory over Louisiana Tech on Wednesday night.

"When our defense plays the way it did today, it gives us a lot of confidence," Broncos coach Chris Petersen said after his team won its 16th straight home game. "Every defense wants to play like that. But these guys have really been backing it up."

The offense didn't do too much, either. Kellen Moore threw for two touchdowns and D.J. Harper rushed for two more.

PG Gordon signs one-year extension with Bulls

CHICAGO — Chicago guard Ben Gordon accepted the Bulls' one-year, $6.4 million tender offer just before the deadline Wednesday night. A restricted free agent, Gordon was looking for a long-term deal that never materialized. He led the Bulls in scoring last season with an 18.6 average.

"He's very happy to be able to go back and play basketball," agent Raymond Brothers said. "He looks forward to talking to the Bulls next summer about an extension."

Chicago's leading scorer the past three years, Gordon can not be traded this season but could leave as an unrestricted free agent next summer. He had few options this time. He was unable to work out a sign-and-trade deal and rejected the idea of playing overseas since the Bulls would have retained his rights. The only other option would have been a multiyear deal.

Engram returns from injured shoulder

RENTON, Wash. — He's been waiting for eight weeks on the injured list. But Bobby Engram is still unhappy over the Seahawks refusing to renegotiate his contract that is in its final year.

"You would hope that you're appreciated before something like that has to take place," Engram said of his injury, his eyes growing wide over the thought Seattle hasn't gone beyond $1.7 million he is earning this season.

It's not even the most or second-most among Seahawks receivers.

Just ask the 35-year-old, who set a team record last season with 94 catches, if his 1-2-team knows his true value by not having him for two months.

Frilling captures first career titles

By KATE GRABAREK
Sports Writer

Irish freshman Krisly Frilling captured the first singles and doubles titles of her collegiate career on Sept. 21, teaming with senior Kelsey Tefft for the doubles title. Frilling, a native of Sydney, Ontario, took down Florida’s Anastasia Revzina 6-4, 3-6, 1-0 to earn the singles title.

“It was a great way to start her career,” Irish coach Jay Louderback said. “She showed very good poise, and had to play a lot of tennis in these days.”

To earn her spot in the finals, Frilling had to defeat Florida’s Marratt Bonnstet. She had less difficulty in that match as she earned a 6-2, 6-3 victory.

In the doubles bracket, Frilling and Tefft came up with some big wins for the Irish.

In the final match, Tefft and Frilling knocked off Kentucky’s Carolina Escamilla and Christine Johnson 6-2, 6-2.

Tefft also competed in the singles draw and defeated Central Florida’s Kate Grabarek 6-2, 6-2.

Sophomore Kristen Rafael also earned a victory over South Florida’s Isci Itti 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Overall, the Irish finished with a 6-2 record at the tournament, and Frilling and Tefft came out with a 4-0 record in doubles.

New assistant coach Julia Scaringe will seek to help the Irish on off the court this season.

Scaringe was the assistant coach at Harvard last season and was hired at Notre Dame this year.

Elizabeth Schmidt took the doubles.

She is a 2003 graduate of Florida, where she helped lead the Gators at the No. 1 singles position.

She has a national championship with the Gators on her resume, along with two SEC conference championships, three SEC tournament championships. She also finished as the NCAA runner-up and national team indoor runner-up.

Before entering college, Scaringe also spent some time on the junior circuit as a member of the US National Team. She also participated in all four Grand Slam Events on the junior circuit reaching the round of 16 at the Australian Open.

“We want to win the Big East Championship. Louderback said. “We also want to put the team in position to compete for a national championship.”

The Irish will turn to a core group of upperclassmen to lead the way this season.

The Irish have only two seniors — Tefft and Katie Potts — and three juniors: singhing Galora, Kali Kriak and Colleen Riel.

“We have a really great set of upper classmen,” Louderback said. “When you add in our three juniors, they have been a big part of our success over the last two years.”

Four Irish players will participate in the All-American tournament beginning on Oct. 2 in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Duo leads squad over Trine

By PAT STYNES
Sports Writer

Lorna Slupezynski and Kaela Hellmann could not be denied.

The junior-senior combo once again dominated the Saint Mary’s offensive attack, combining for 39 kills (19 and 20 respectively) in the Belles 3-1 win over Trine University Wednesday night. The win moves the squad to 12-5 on the year, 5-3 in conference play.

As has been the team’s trademark all year, the key to last night’s victory was the strong start of the team’s attacking players. Hellmann fired off seven kills in seven attempts in the first set as she scored over a quarter of the team’s points in the first set. Hellmann contributed another four kills in the second set, while senior Charity Kurczak also chipped in offensively with six kills.

In the third set the Belles faltered and their sloppy play allowed Trine to overcome two match points and take the set by a score of 24-22. But Slupezynski quickly reminded theThunder that Hellmann was not the only offensive force on the floor, ripping off seven kills and six digs in the final set and helping the Belles earn the win as they took the set 25-16.

The duo’s quick scoring edge was the offensive display of Hellmann, Slupezynski, and Kurczak is the ability of Saint Mary’s Lauren Bianchi Brink, who distributed an impressive 26 assists while contributing 11 digs defensively.

Saint Mary’s has now won five out of its last six matches, and carries a great deal of momentum as it travels to Michigan to take on Alma College this Friday at 7 p.m.

Belles drop third straight

By MIKE GOTIMER
Sports Writer

Saint Mary’s dropped its third straight match Wednesday in a 2-1 loss to Illinois Wesleyan.

The Belles found themselves in a familiar spot when they fell behind 1-0 just nine minutes into the game after Illinois Wesleyan freshman Mollie O’Brien scored off a corner kick.

The familiar slow start disappointed Belles coach Ryan Crabbe.

“Overall I was very disappointed with the effort we showed in the first half,” Crabbe said. “We allowed the visitors to quickly establish the tempo of the game and our girls never matched their intensity level.”

The score remained 1-0 at the half, but Illinois Wesleyan expanded its lead to 2-0 just three minutes into the second half on a goal from junior Erin Kugler. Saint Mary’s got on the board in the 33rd minute with a goal from senior captain Lauren Hinton, assisted by junior Mckie Heding.

Hinton leads the team with 3 goals.

Despite Hinton’s late goal, the Belles’ offensive woes continued in the match, as they scored just nine goals in eight games and haven’t had a multiple-goal game since a 2-0 win over Mount Mercy on September 13.

Saint Mary’s is winless in their two home games this season, a fact that disappoints Crabbe.

“We do not have any games at home this fall and we need to take advantage of the opportunities we have to play on our home field,” the coach said.

The loss dropped the Belles to 1-6-1 on the season while the Titans improved to 6-4. The Belles are 0-3-1 in their last four matches against the Titans.

Crabbe said he hopes the team learns from the disappointing loss and that they can build upon what has been a relatively disappointing start on the whole.

“Right now, we need to learn how to win and be the better team. I hope the players are disappointed and find the motivation to take us on our next opponent. Ryan Crabbe
Belles coach

“Right now, we need to learn how to win and be the better team,” he said. “I hope the players are disappointed and find the motivation to take us on our next opponent.”

The Belles should be motivated in their next match when they face Hope College on Saturday. In the teams’ previous match up, the Belles squandered a 1-0 lead as Hope scored twice in the final seven minutes of play.

Ex-Bronco Henry arrested by DEA

Associated Press

DENVER - Former Denver Broncos running back Travis Henry has been arrested, following an alleged cocaine deal, the Drug Enforcement Administration said Wednesday.

Henry and James Mack were arrested a day earlier after the two met to buy cocaine from a person who was cooperating with authorities, according to an arrest warrant affidavit.

Mack and Henry were in federal custody on suspicion of knowingly and intentionally conspiring to distribute and possess with intent to distribute cocaine. They were advised of charges Wednesday. A preliminary hearing and detention hearing were scheduled for Monday.

It was not immediately known whether Mack had an attorney. Henry's attorney, Harvey Steinberg, confirmed he was representing Henry in the case but declined to comment on the charges when reached by The Associated Press.

Boldin out with fractured sinus

Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — Anquan Boldin has a fractured sinus as a result of what he acknowledges was the worst hit he's received in his football career.

The Arizona Cardinals standout wide receiver doesn't know how long he will be sidelined, but when he returns, he says, there will be no change in his trademark tough, aggressive style.

"For me it was just a part of football," Boldin said after watching his teammates practice on Wednesday. "It's an unfortunate incident that happened but, you know, you take your bumps and bruises."

NFL commissioner Roger Goodell suspended New York Jets safety Eric Smith for one game and fined him $50,000 for the helmet-to-helmet hit on Boldin in the end zone during the waning seconds of the Jets' 56-35 victory over the Cardinals at the Meadowlands on Sunday.

"You never know somebody's intentions," Boldin said, "but I didn't think it was intentional.

Arizona coach Ken Whisenhunt said it wasn't for him to say whether the punishment was warranted.

"I think the commissioner certainly has made it very clear that player safety is an important issue," Whisenhunt said, "and I think he addressed that."

Boldin said he was consulting with doctors on whether to have the sinus repaired or let it heal on its own. He expected a decision "in the next couple of days."

According to the Web site, eMedicine, a high-impact sports injury is the second most often cause of a sinus fracture. The most common cause is an automobile accident.

Whisenhunt said that until he hears from doctors, he is not ruling out Boldin's participation in Sunday's home game against Buffalo, although it seems highly improbable that he would play.

The two-time Pro Bowl receiver scoffed at any suggestion that this would change his bruising, aggressive style.

"As soon as I get back on the field, it's the same old me," he said. "I don't plan on altering the way that I play, because if I did, I wouldn't be Anquan."

Boldin, his face swollen and his lip cut, said he never lost consciousness for an instant.

He crossed the middle of the end zone and went high for Kurt Warner's throw. Boldin was hit in the back of the Jets' Kerry Rhodes, then from the front by Smith, snapping the receiver's head violently backward.
Belichick denies Davis’ tampering allegations

Associated Press

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Patriots coach Bill Belichick denies the claims by Raiders owner Al Davis that New England had a hand in trade for superstar safety Randy Moss before obtaining him in a trade with Oakland.

Davis said Tuesday that the Patriots had traded for Moss before the deal in April that brought the wide receiver to the Raiders for a fourth-round choice in the 2009 draft — the year on the weekend of the NFL draft.

“I’ve told the story about Randy many, many times,” Belichick said in a conference call with members of the media covering the Patriots, “and the first time I ever talked to Randy was the Sunday morning of the second day of the draft last year. So that’s the first time I met him. That’s the first time I talked to him. There was no workout. There was no other contact with him. He made the tampering accusation after ending a news conference in which he announced the hiring of coach Lane Kiffin.”

Asked Wednesday if he had a response to Davis, Moss said, “No, not at all. Belichick sidestepped the question when asked by New England reporters, saying he was concentrating on Sunday’s game at San Francisco.

In an e-mail to The Associated Press, NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said Wednesday, “No tampering charges have ever been filed with our office with respect to Randy Moss.”

Davis said for most of his two seasons with the Raiders, set an NFL single-season record with 23 touchdown receptions in his first season with the team.

Davis said other teams didn’t want Moss before the Patriots obtained him.

“You know how many teams turned him down? That guy in Green Bay thought he couldn’t run any more. Even Denver, where they let him turn anybody, turned him down.”

He did not identify the person in Green Bay.

Davis said former Raiders senior personnel executive Michael Lombardi, who was hired by the Patriots this season, spoke to Belichick about the trade.

“What’s his name knew he could run, he’s a friend of Belichick’s. Belichick said Tuesday, “Mike (Lombardi) is a friend of Belichick, on the idea that he could run. They tampered with him.”

“I remember when he scored off a screen and drove a slap shot past Fernandez during a two-on-one advantage 26 seconds into the second. With Boston’s Jeremy Reich still in the penalty box serving minors for hooking and holding late in the opening period, the 37-year-old New Jersey Devils’ victory was the Bruins’ first preseason defeat, 4-1, in two overtimes.

Atlanta’s Hyder was a frequent target of Belichick’s, who figures to have his third season with the team, working on clearing his name.

Green Bay thought he could run, but I’ve been told he couldn’t.”

Brisebois’ power-play goal leads Montreal over Boston; Flyers sneak by Capitals in rematch of last year’s playoff series

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Mikael Samuelsson scored two power-play goals and had an assist to lead the Detroit Red Wings to a 4-1 preseason victory over the Atlanta Thrashers on Wednesday night.

“I thought we played well,” said Samuelsson, who had an assist in the Wings’ 2-0 victory over St. Louis on Saturday. “It will take time to get used to wearing a shield, but I will eventually.”

Bob of Samuelsson’s goals came within 20 seconds of Atlanta being called for a penalty.

“It is always good to get time on the power play,” Samuelsson said. “I was fortunate to get the puck to go twice.”

Both of Samuelsson’s goals went past Thrashers goalie Evgeni Khudobin. Samuelsson added an empty-net goal with 1:10 remaining.

Erik Christensen scored for Atlanta (1-3-0), tying the game at 1-1 midway through the first period. Samuelsson’s second goal, 8:10 into the second period, gave the Red Wings the lead for good.

Detroit’s Chris Osgood made 27 saves, while Kari Lehtonen stopped 29.

Nicklas Lidstrom played wearing a face shield after being struck by a puck last week and had two assists for the Wings. Six-time Norris Trophy winner broke his nose and needed stitches over his right eye.

“It will take time to get used to wearing a shield, but I will eventually,” Lidstrom said. “I haven’t worn one since I was a rookie, I plan to keep it on all season.”

Leafs 2, Capitals 1

Jeffrey Lupul had a goal and an assist and the Philadelphia Flyers handed the Washington Capitals their first preseason defeat, 2-0, on Thursday night.

Glenn Metropolit scored for the Flyers (4-2-0), who lost their five games in the Eastern Conference finals last season.

Nicklas Backstrom scored for the Capitals (4-1-0), who are still enjoying their best preseason since 1999 when they went 5-2-0.

Washington’s Brent Johnson, who figures to back up Jose Theodore this season, stopped 22 shots.

Philadelphia’s Martin Biron had 19 saves and thwarted the Caps in eight power plays.

Washington’s Matt Jones, who figures to back up Jose Theodore this season, stopped 22 shots.

Metropolit, who played for the Leafs last season, scored from the slot after taking a pass from Lupul to put the Flyers ahead at 6:49 of the third period.

Lupul made it 2-0 when he flipped in a shot from the right circle on a power play at 2:19 of the third period.

Backstrom scored an unassisted goal at 14:19 of the third.

Philadelphia forward Steve Downie was injured in a fight with Jay Beagle of the Caps late in the second period and did not return.

T.O. in middle of Boys’ controversy

Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Folks in San Francisco and Philadelphia must be loving this: Even though the Dallas Cowboys tried getting the ball to Terrell Owens on one-third of the plays last Sunday, he still wasn’t satisfied.

Is this the beginning of the end of his blissful relationship with Tony Romo? Are the Cowboys about to be divided, quarterback supporters on this side, receiver supporters on the other?

Or was T.O. just blowing off steam after a loss to the Washington Redskins?

Back at team headquarters Wednesday, Owens and Romo insisted a lot is being made of nothing.

"I know in my heart, this team, we’re still together," Owens said. "Dude, I promise you, we’re fine in this locker room."

Owens is well aware that any slightly provocative comment he makes will become big news. So he should’ve expected a back-lash for saying he didn’t get the ball enough after catching seven passes, taking two handoffs and having 11 more balls thrown his way in a 26-24 loss to the Washington Redskins. All said, T.O. was the focus of 20 on five plays.

"Dude, it was frustration," he said. "Dude, we lost. It was a game we should have won."

He also blamed the media for "making their stake at a claim to divide this team — and it’s not going to happen."

"It’s funny how the week before you guys praised me for giving extra effort," Owens said, referring to positive coverage he received for making a tackle on an interception and a touchdown block on a touchdown run during a victory at Green Bay, a game in which he caught only two passes.

"Then I come out this week and say I need to be more involved and I’m vilified ... I feel like everything is being nit-picked."

Romo gave his usual lines about Owens wanting the ball as much as anyone else but because T.O. is T.O., his requests get more attention, and that he likes teammates who want to be involved.

"It’s easy to work with a guy who goes hard and comes here and wants to win," Romo said. "The rest of the stuff? It’s stuff. You’re going to go through ups and downs. The season is not going to be without bumps in roads. Bumps and bruises along the way. We’re going to have good moments and bad moments. If you can’t keep an even keel, that’s when you get in trouble. But this team is fine. There’s enough leadership and people on this team that we’re going to be fine."

Owens said he didn’t need to talk to Romo or offensive coordinator Jason Garrett to straighten things out. And if he did talk to them, "you guys won’t know about it."

"We’ve just got to right the ship. That’s all," Owens said. "I just think we need to play better as an offense."

Owens’ problem with what happened Sunday was quality more than quantity.

"Put on the screen all 18 passes that were thrown my way and you make the assessment of all those passes," Owens said. "We just didn’t execute. For whatever the case may be, we just didn’t play well."

Part of the problem appeared to be how much Romo was trying to get Owens involved. For instance, running back Marion Barber got only eight carries. Just three were in the second half — and two of those came on the opening drive.

Romo denied he was trying to appease his star receiver.

"I don’t think you consciously think about anything other than trying to win football games," Romo said. "He does the same thing. He believes that getting the ball helps us win. ... The reason you try and throw him the ball a lot is because he’s good. He gets open. If he wasn’t as good you wouldn’t throw it to him as much."

Armstrong accused of doping

PARIS — It's just like old times for Lance Armstrong. Hours after the French anti-doping authority challenged the cycling's governing body later to the coach said.

Not only the experience they had here at Notre Dame with playing in national championships and Final Fours and the level of competition we play," the coach said. "But also I think that all of those kids, with all their national team experience, that when the draft begins around May 1st we have to go have to give our players a real look.

Weber said that even though the undefeated Irish still plan on winning a national championship run this season, the prospect of playing professionally is too enticing to ignore at this point.

“We all kind of don't know what were gonna be up to next year so I think its always kind of in the back of your mind,” she said. “Right now we’re obviously focusing on our season but it's kind of hard not to think about it every once in a while.”

sat down from celebrating before the lead was gone. Less than a minute after Dike’s goal, Wolverines forward Jake Stacy sneaked to the back and headed a Perica Marosevic cross home. “We absolutely had control of the game at that point, yet we let up two goals on three shots,” Jeff Jackson said. “It can be a funny game at times. Although we had the majority of the play, they have guys that can counter very well.”
After taking their one-goal lead into halftime, Michigan returned to the field even more content to remain in their own half of the field and play for the occasional counterattack. That strategy paid off in a game-clinching third goal in the 69th minute. Marosevic was the goal-scorer this time as he received a Fuzetti pass and fired past Tuttle.
Although the Irish pressed for the rest of the game and generated five corner kicks, they were unable to mount a comeback.
“They were content to sit on their lead and counter, so it was difficult to create chances,” Clark said of the second half. “We created a lot of half-chances. I felt in a funny way it was easier for them as they could sit back and counter.”

back.
Michigan State, Miami (Ohio) and Northern Michigan rounds out the top five, albeit in a different order in each poll.
This year marked the first time the Irish were picked No. 1 in either CCHA pre-season poll, but captain Erik Condra said he knows the team has a long way to go to make good on their ranking.
“The CCHA is so tight, you never know who’s going to come out and be the lead dog in the race,” Condra said. “Some teams are picked first in the league in the beginning and they end up in the bottom six.”
Last year, Notre Dame was ranked third in both preseason polls. The Irish finished fourth, but mainly because of a red-hot start, as the team struggled during the middle part of the season.
“Being ranked that high, there’s always a target on your chest,” Condra said. “Teams aren’t going to take you lightly.”

Erik is very well-respected, and he’s very well-liked. That’s a very good combination for a captain, especially when he's your top player.”

Jeff Jackson
Irish coach

“Kyle Lawson is a guy that plays passionately,” Jackson said. “It’s a passionate kid that cares about people, cares about this program, and wears his heart on his sleeve.”
Condra admired his Lawson’s ability to stand up for his teammates when things get rough. “He’s intense,” Condra said. “He’s willing to start some conflict up if things are going away. He’s right there to step in.”
Hansson, a senior center, came on at the end of last season for the Irish, a trend Jackson hopes Hanson continues in the new campaign. Condra said Hanson’s affability is a good quality to have in an alternate captain.
“He’s buddies with everybody,” Condra said. “He knows everybody. He’s a guy that can be friendly with everyone and talk to everybody and works hard on the ice.”
Thang, a junior right wing, is one of Notre Dame’s big scoring threats after leading the team with 18 goals last year.
“Ryan Thang is a good guy to follow in terms of his approach to detail,” Jackson said. “And in terms of his training, his conditioning, and his work ethic.”
Condra echoed his coach in praising the hard-working forward.
“That’s just a workhorse,” Condra said. “He’s a guy that pushes everybody to go harder and move on to the next level. He just shows the younger guys how hard you have to work.”
The Irish drop to No. 5 in the polls, a year after being No. 2 in the rankings.
“Those are just preseason,” he said with a laugh. “I haven’t played hockey in six months.”
Lawson, a junior defenseman, also earned all-conference first-team honors for the second consecutive year.

Quartet of seniors hopes to get picked for pro league

By FRAN TOLAN
Associate Sports Editor

Seniors Brittany Bock, Carrie Dew, Kerri Hanks and Elise Whalen are determined not to think about canceling their postgraduate job hunts. This weekend, the Irish Women's Professional Soccer league opens play in April and those four Irish players are prime candidates to be drafted at the conclusion of their college careers.

The league will originally consist of seven teams, which Irish coach Randy Waldrum said will force the nation's elite players to compete for the limited roster spots.

"It's gonna be really small with the few reserve players they have — you know, just 4 or 5 roster spots are gonna be at a premium," he said. "Each team also gets roster space for five foreign players and when you start adding the foreign players to the mix, there's not a whole lot of roster spots left."

Still, Women's Professional Soccer — WPS, for short — should have a strong Notre Dame contingent. Three former Irish players — Melissa Tancredi, Kate Markgraf and Shannon Boxx — have already joined teams as the nation's top players. The remaining seven squads. And they will surely be joined by at least a few other Dones.

"We've got eight seniors, and no figure more than any of these," Waldrum said. "It's always nice to think about being chosen by the general draft, next Monday. Waldrum said the heavy Irish presence in the WPS helps the current players evaluate their own chances of making the league.

"It's easy sometimes to take us for granted if this is what you're used to being but when you see those [players] ... making this a career it certainly gives those [current] players hope and inspiration to seize the opportunity," he said. "Like these girls are role models for the little girls that come to our games, those older girls are role models for them."

Brock, Dew, Hanks and Weber will not be draft-eligible until they finish their NCAA careers but all have strong enough resumes to garner consideration from the professional teams.

"I think the window [with roster spots] is gonna be a tough one but certainly those four seniors,成品看,也有机会。"

Irish fall for second straight game, 3-1 on the road to Michigan

By GREG ARBOGAST
Sports Writer

Notre Dame had another first Wednesday night against Michigan, but this was one that Irish coach Bobby Clark may opt not to remember.

With its 3-1 loss to Michigan in Ypsilanti, Mich., Notre Dame has lost back-to-back regular season games for the first time under the Scowsman's eight-year tenure as head coach.

The loss drops No. 8 Notre Dame's record to 6-3-1 overall on the road, where it will likely be accompanied by a fall in the rankings, but that's of little importance to Clark, who sees benefit to the difficult competition the Irish have played to date.

"We've played arguably the toughest schedule in the country, and we're going to lose games like it or lump it," Clark said. "My approach is always to get as hard a schedule as possible, and hopefully it prepares us for down the road."

"If we're fortunate enough to make the NCAA Tournament in November, we'll be battle-hardened and ready for anything the Tournament throws at us," he said.

Wednesday night was a good preview of the type of game the Irish might see come November. Although the visitors possessed the ball for the majority of the game, Notre Dame ran into a stingy Michigan defense that sat back and looked to counter.

The Wolverines made the initial breakthrough in the tenth minute on their first shot of the game. Finding space twenty-five yards from the goal, Michigan junior forward Mauro Fuzetti ripped a low shot past Notre Dame goalkeeper Philip Tuttle, who was given his first start of the season by Clark.

The Irish responded 13 minutes later when sophomore forward Jeb Brousky threaded a ball behind the Michigan defense into the path of fellow forward Bright Dike. The senior made no mistake as he fired it home from five yards out. With the goal, Dike has a team-leading seven tallies and he's found the back of the net in four straight games.

The Irish bench had hardly been active in the first half, with both teams struggling to make any progress.

"It's been a different story in the second half tonight at Richfield. Waldrum said the heavy Irish pressure was warranted in the latter stages of the game.

"Our wide receivers have not been able to create anything all week. The players have been working on our offensive structure."

Badin and Lewis face off

By CHRIS MICHALSKI
MATT WISELEY and RYAN O'CONNELL
Sports Writers

With both teams coming off a loss, Badin will take on the Lewis tonight at 9 p.m.

"The Irish bench had hardly been active in the first half, with both teams struggling to make any progress."

Lewis captain Katie Sushinsky was not entirely displeased with the team's performance.

"Collectively, we showed great improvement on both sides of the ball," she said. Sushinsky said turnovers were a main factor in the loss. In practice, the team has focused on taking care of the ball to hopes of winning the turnover battle in future games.

So far, the Chick's strength has been their defensive line, which created an aggressive pass rush last game.

On the other sideline, Badin struggled with moving the ball in their last game.

"Pangborn was able to pick us up where our receivers were running," Bullfrogs captain Katie Rose Hackney said. As a result, the Bullfrogs' focus in practice has been mainly to diversify their offense to confuse opponents. On defense, they are working on the fundamentals, such as pulling flags, Badin's strength thus far seems to be its ability to share the ball.

Walsh v. Welsh Family

The resilient Wild Women of Walsh will attempt to hand Welsh Family its first loss of the season tonight at 8 p.m.

Coach Jackson names Condra team captain

By SAM WERNER

After edging out Michigan in last year's national semifinals, Notre Dame finds itself knotsed with the rival Wolverines atop the CCHA pre-season polls, which were announced at Tuesday's CCHA Media Day in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Irish took the top spot in the coach's poll, with 128 points and eight first-place votes, Michigan ranked a close second, with 122 points and three first-place votes.

It was a different story in the media poll, though, with the Wolverines topping the rankings with 945 points and 43 first-place votes. The Irish were No. 2, earning 915 points and 23 first-place votes.

Either way, the Irish are certainly one of the top dogs in the CCHA.

"It's always nice to get ranked high, but it doesn't have a whole lot of meaning at this point," Notre Dame coach Jeff Jackson said. "It just speaks for how we finished the season last year and the group of guys we've got coming back tonight at Richfield Field.

The Bullfrogs (0-2-1) lost to Pangborn 21-9 last week, while the Chick's (0-2) lost to Walsh 14-0.

Despite being shut out, Lewis captain Katie Sushinsky was not entirely pleased with her team's performance.

POST-GRADUATE SERVICE

Greetings! On behalf of the Center for Social Concerns, I invite you to consider continuing your commitment to service and justice through post-graduate service. Post-graduate service offers you an opportunity to enter into a relationship with a new community where you will continue to learn and share the gifts and talents you have nurtured at Notre Dame, Saint Mary's, and Holy Cross College. It would be a chance to challenge yourself to be transformed and, in return, transform the world.

Annually, over two hundred graduating seniors from Notre Dame, Saint Mary's, and Holy Cross commit to a year or two of post-graduate service at one or more locations across the nation and world. They serve with a range of programs and agencies, from internationally recognized organizations like the Peace Corps and Jesuit Volunteer Corps, to national teaching programs like ACE and Teach for America, to local Americorps projects and Catholic Worker houses. They go on to become teachers, lawyers, doctors, community organizers, social workers, politicians, CEOs, mothers, fathers, and so much more.

Consider joining this group of outstanding graduates. There are opportunities to serve among the young, the old, the sick, the hungry, the homeless, the imprisoned, the lonely, the poor, and the oppressed; to learn about a new culture, language or perspective on life; to build relationships with new friends and communities; to change the world.

As we seek to live in solidarity with our sisters and brothers, we remember Jesus called love the greatest of all commandments—to love the Lord God with all our hearts and to love your neighbor as oneself (Mark 12:28-31). It is not easy, but it remains no less our challenge and call. It is the foundation on which we will build the justice we seek and the peace we long for.

Be a part of the transformation we are called to, and be transformed. Give yourself away. One or more of the opportunities on these pages could quite possibly change you forever.

You are in my prayers. God bless you well.

AMERICORPS VISTA

GOAL OF PROGRAM: VISTA is a national service program dedicated to eliminating poverty by helping individuals and low-income neighborhoods make positive changes for themselves. Through VISTA, ordinary people provide extraordinary service in organizations and agencies to create and expand programs and to build permanent infrastructure that ultimately bring low-income individuals out of poverty. The Indiana VISTA program seeks the highest-caliber candidates for national service. Indiana VISTA members and applicants with high-quality professional level opportunities in national and local non-profits, faith based and other community agencies across the state. VISTA service is not a job, but rather professional volunteer service that can help prepare you for a future in the public, non profit or governmental sectors. VISTA will enable you to practice citizenship at its highest level, by serving other Americans. The Indiana VISTA experience involves incredible professional experience, tremendous responsibility and great challenges. VISTA affords members a unique experience that will endure for a lifetime. Members develop new skills and enhance abilities they have already developed. VISTA members commit to a year of service and are assigned full time to organizations and agencies working to fight poverty at its root cause. By living and working in the community they serve, VISTA members learn behind lasting solutions to some of our country’s greatest problems.
