Morrissey Manor's Hours. Despite Father Hesburgh's emphatic re­
forcement of University rules concerning the parietal hours matter, the rector level, Brislin said that a group of ten hall rectors is meet­ing at this time to consider further action concerning the parietal hours situation. These ten rectors are symp­athetic with the students' demands and would like to make it clear to the administration that it is not just students who would like to be freed of the social strangle-hold that comprises the present policy.

On the student level, referendums are being taken in the halls to determine exactly what the students want in the line of parietal hours. Of the two halls which have already tabulated the results of the referendums -- Farley and Howard -- the trend seems to be toward a rule which allows invited women visitors in the students' rooms on Friday evenings, Saturday afternoons and evenings, and Sunday afternoons. The Farley Hall Referendum, written by a com­mittee of the Farley Hall Council, is present­ly being adopted as the model referendum by most of the other halls.

Brislin said that all halls would soon complete their surveys and that the Hall Presidents' Council would then have a campus-wide student opinion to back further action in this area. The Hall Presidents Council also decided at its Thursday meeting to form a committee within the student senate concerning hall life and hall autonomy.

The Hall Presidents all hailed the Hall Auton­omy Bill passed by the Student Senate last Wednesday evening as a signal for increased student freedom and responsibility. Using that historic piece of legislation and the University's now limited ruling on hall autonomy, the Hall Presidents are hoping to play a big role in the upcoming United Action campaign in December and early January.

Petition Appears For McCarthy

Chuch Nau's first effort with the McCarthy campaign is the circulation of a petition of support for Senator McCarthy as opposed to the renomination of President Johnson. In an accompanying circular, Nau states, "We must have at least 4,000 signatures to send Senator Mc­Carthy by December 15th."

Nau instructs those circulating the petition to have "anyone who is opposed to Lyndon John­son on any grounds (war, civil rights, botched-up poverty war, scar, Ladybird, etc.)" sign the petition.

The Academic Commissioner hopes to have the Minnesota Senator speak here. In the mean­time, at least, McCarthy station­ary has been printed up, showing the Senator plus the late Pres­ident Kennedy in separate pho­tos. Also, there is a quote from President Johnson, a very old quote, praising McCarthy as a man who puts national interests first. See page 2

MCCARTHY

Gilbert's Thieves Expelled

Ever since last Thursday when the Observer broke the story of Notre Dame's "little Mafia," ugly rumors have spread quickly throughout the campus. From out of this muddled conglomer­ation of stories, certain facts have seeped through.

Two students, Jamie Buchnell and Ernie Belinois, have been dismissed from the Univers­ity. Both of these have been indicted for the $6000 robbery at Gilbert's. They are now free on bail, awaiting further developments. Contrary to reports, Gilbert's has decided to press charges.

Belinois is now at home in Pittsburgh, while Buchnell is still around campus, last seen loiterirg around the Huddle late Saturday night.

The size of the gang is approximately five, and Jamie Buchnell is supposedly the ringleader.

It has been fairly well substantiated that two others were involved in the robbery; however, if their names are known to the South Bend police or to the University officials, these officials have thus far refused to release them.

It is fairly well certain that the gang came from Cavanaugh Hall last year. Ernie Belinois was the only one to live in Morrissey Hall; the rest live Off-Campus. There has been little trouble in Morrissey, and most of the students are un­aware of anything.

Students are urged to turn any information they have to Mr. Arthur Pears, Director of University Security; Fr. James Riehle, Dean of Students; or to the Observer office.
A New Campus Fad

“McCarthy for President”

Student Union Academic Commission — Thursday evening, the University of Minnesota's Student Union Academic Commission met to discuss the possibility of holding a McCarthy campaign rally on campus. The commission, consisting of students representing various academic departments, debated the merits and implications of such an event.

Rossie No

A group of noisy demonstrators, led by Rossie Nau, a noted University of Minnesota political science instructor, marched through the University of Minnesota campus, calling for the withdrawal of United States forces from Vietnam. Their chants of “No More War” echoed across the campus, drawing the attention of passing students and faculty.

The McCarthy effect comes in the wake of a number of anti-LBJ efforts by liberal Democrats. Actor Robert Vaughn of “Man from Uncle” fame has organized a national committee of dissenting Democrats, New York attorney Richard Lussenthal, a national vice-chairman of ADA, has been active in organizing the anti-Johnson forces.

Support of President Johnson, though, was tempered by the call for changes in his Vietnam policies. When Johnson spoke to Democratic fund raising dinner in Los Angeles last late summer, the names of 8,000 Democrats opposing his policies were published in a three page add in the Los Angeles Times.

Now that there is a prospective candidate, Notre Dame organizer Nau maintains, the efforts will redouble. Nau, a former activist in the Americans for Democratic Action, expects the announcement to come at a later date.

Nau’s efforts will be in cooperation with those of Dr. James Bogle of the Department of Sociology, who will work in the McCarthy campaign Bogle, active in South Bend Democratic politics and a former activist in the Americans for Democratic Action, also looks to the Chicago conference to determine how much support may be expected.

25th Anniv. Next Month

Notre Dame will confer three honorary doctorates in an academic convocation Dec. 9 held in celebration of the University's 125th Anniversary. Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., President of Notre Dame, will address the Secretan Center meeting, and then confer the doctorate on Apostolic Delegate Archbishop Luigi Raimondi, Dr. Leo A. DeBruige, President of the California Institute of Technology, and R. Nevitt Sanford, director of the Institute for the Study of Human Problems at Stanford University.

The anniversary celebrations will include a pontifical mass, a symposium to be addressed by Sanford and DeBruige, and the convocation. Fr. Hesburgh has invited-7000 college to participate in the celebrations.

Celebrations will start with an academic procession and pontifical mass on the feast of the Immaculate Conception December 8. Archbishop Raimondi will be principal celebrant at the mass.

That afternoon, the symposium will get underway with Sanford presenting a paper on the life of the student. Following Sanford will be Rev. Paul C. Beinert, S.J., President of St. Louis University, who will speak on the university and man's spiritual and religious aspirations. The final symposium session the afternoon of December 9 will have DeBruige discuss the role of the university in the discovery and dissemination of knowledge. The convocation, at 3 p.m. on Dec. 9, will close the celebrations. Due to the wedding of his daughter, President Johnon will be unable to attend as originally hoped.

Nizer Lauds Jury System

Famed trial lawyer Louis Nizer, author of the bestseller My Life in Court, told a Library Auditorium audience Thursday night: “The truth never flies into a courtroom as is it drugged in.” Nizer said that the battle to obtain at least an approximation of the truth causes a trial lawyer to be rewarded more than any other.

Nizer spoke on courtroom procedure, focusing on the selection of and appeal to a jury. He maintained the type of jury chosen depends on the individual case, but that a general rule in criminal proceedings is to avoid personal atmospheres.

Nizer advocated strong open preparation of a lawyer, even before the close of oral arguments. He points out that many a witness faces an audience for the first time when he is called to testify. He stresses the necessity of preparing a witness for their appearance and make an important first impression on the jury.

Nizer stressed preparation of witnesses for their appearance on the witness stand. He says that many a witness faces an audience for the first time when they are called to take the stand. At the same time, he states, “A witness who lies cannot survive. The jury might forgive the mistakes he makes, but it will not forgive lies.”

As for summations, Nizer spoke of the necessity of thorough preparation, pointing out that an attorney can build up his case through the omissions of his opponents.

Nizer stressed psychology in jury and witnesses, pointing out that through certain physical traits, such as staring at the ceiling, he can tell if a witness is shaky.

In conclusion, Nizer spoke of the jury system as being a bastion for democracy in that it puts faith in mass judgement. He expressed his own faith, too, saying “As you multiply judgments you reduce the incidence of error.”

Mr. Black; It's About That Bill...
The dissent against the war in Vietnam rightens many as it turns more and more o resistance. The argument is made that the violence is out of order, that all the chanels have not been exhausted, that change omes in the secret ballot.

Violence may be out of place. That is a decision for the individual conscience and individual goals, but it is doubtful that the election coming next November will bring the changes dissent is attempting to presure.

The frustration of those who have asked for peace and watched a war expand is caramly understood. They have demanded an end to the draft and seen graduate school deferments ended; have asked for honesty in the government's statements and heard the issue clouded with lies. Dissent has been frustrating because its effects have been so minimal. Those involved in prot est find themselves dismissed under cover of names which do not touch the question.

Tweedle Dee

It is one of those neat little sociological truisms that a man generally chooses his information media. As a liberal and aspiring intellectual, I read liberal journals of opinion, converse mostly with other liberals, and in general avoid, through an intricate series of halftory, involuntary, popular media and conversation which would challenge my beliefs. Even if I should happen to read Bill Buckley or Paul Harvey, I am sensitized to their "errors" and I search their work like a Church Father scanning the writings of a suspected heretic.

But the flaming liberal of today is the same person who came to this university for the glory of God and country, not necessarily in that order. So when the Birchites in South Bend sponsored an ex-FBI undercover agent, Mrs. Julia Brown, it struck some harmonious chords.

She began and ended her speech with long philippics against the Communist conspiracy. She urged everyone to learn about Com munist and fight it, for "those who do not fight against Communism are aiding it through their apathy." And while I didn't necessarily share her concern about the entrenchment of the conspiracy in American life, I did admire her sincerity and, further, I was forced to admit that it would in fact go very badly for people like her: basically good, somewhat smug worshippers of a native American God and the capitalist system.

What worried me even more was that I had to agree with most of her conclusions about the goals of the Communist party in Ameri ca, even though I disagreed with her opinion of the success it was having in attaining them. It is in fact an alien organization which seeks to manipulate our domestic crises to serve its propaganda purposes, and in general avoid, through an intricate series of halfcy, involuntary, popular media and conversation which would challenge my beliefs. Even if I should happen to read Bill Buckley or Paul Harvey, I am sensitized to their "errors" and I search their work like a Church Father scanning the writings of a suspected heretic.

Mrs. Brown also talked for a moment about Carl Stokes, the native American God and the capitalist system.

And the story of her involvement in the Communist party re-

Amateur Hour (and oh how one must laugh at the title had mastered the stringed instrument. This, combined "amateur", when one knows of Master Figel) was to be which was pouring out of our American west, in the sound to that already fabulous symphony of music with his flawless voice, added an entirely new dimension insurpassable Austy.

It was only a matter of time however before youthful T. Russell faced the night with assurance which only comes to the accomplished artist. He listened to his predecessors, with a cynical, yet forgiving ear, for their ineptness. Cause of his youth impetuous—Figs faced the night with that assurance which only comes to the accomplished artist. He listened to his precursors, with a cynical, yet forgiving ear, for their ineptness.

He had approached the problem by looking for a hero who would embody all the qualities that he desired to emulate as an idealistic youth. Someone who would capture the beauty of nature with the soul of the American rugged individualist. One who would combine the passionate sensitivity of a Keats with the classical heroism of Odysseus. At age eleven T. Russell Figel finally found his hero, and at the same time his mode of expression. His superman was that undaunting and ever-valliant. Gene Autry, and young T. Russell was to be a singing cowboy.

Months of intense study had proceeded this never-to-be-forgotten evening. Figel, the youth, unerringly explored the vast and intricate theory behind western guitar and tried to bring these same sounds out of his own instrument. Days of practice turned into weeks, as he sought to express through music, the beauty of his native Iowa. It was only a matter of time however before youthful T. had mastered the strangled instrument. This, combined with his flawless voice, added an entirely new dimension of sound to that already fabulous symphony of music which was pouring out of our American west, in the personae of Roy Rogers, Johnny Mack Brown, and the unsurpassable Autry.

This night was to be the night of nights; the culmination of a long and arduous struggle for an artistic expression of beauty. The youth had been searching, for what had seemed an eternity, for a proper mode of expression. To somehow synthesize the tempestuousness and perception of the artist. To somehow synthesize the tempestuousness and perception of the artist. The youth had been searching, for what had seemed an eternity, for a proper mode of expression. To somehow synthesize the tempestuousness and perception of the artist.

This night, the occasion of the Earl Roberts's Kids Amateur Hour (and oh how one must laugh at the title "amateur", when one knows of Master Figel) was to be a pledge of no thousands of pennies. The utter defeat, after which the youth subsequently fainted, was the demise of young T. In scorn he turned away from the public life, for he realized that like Socrates and Christ, the world had looked at the truth he revealed and spurned it. And till this day, the beauty and talent of the young artist, T. Russell Figel, remains hidden in obscurity.

As le petit Figel mounted the stage a hush drew over the crowd, for even the crudest of musical appreciators can sense the prodigy. T. Russell, with accompaniment on the piano by virtuoso Roberts, began his program with a stirring rendition of "She'll Be Coming 'Round the Mountain", in which the master tried to mystically transport the audience to those days of yesteryear on the sprawling American Frontier. After his piece the silence of the audience was unbroken, and the youthful Figel believed that he had mesmerized them. His next attempt was "Home On The Range", but the crowd still reserved their applause. Now a line of worry broke over the young creator.

Dear Editor:

Our student senators seem to be appallingly ignorant of inter­national activities on campus. Student Government's lack of support is perhaps understan­dable in view of this, but ignorance may not be so. The International Students' Organiza­tion, accused of being "just another regional club" which "en­courages foreign students to form into cliques" (Stewart, Ob­server, Nov. 13) has had students from every country repres­ented at Notre Dame and at most every state and territory in the Union.

The purpose of the interna­tional clubs is to discourage the formation of cliques among for­eign students. Half the members of ISO are American. The topic for the International Midwest­ern Collegiate Conference to be held at Notre Dame in March is U.S. Foreign Policy. This topic was chosen primarily to attract greater participation by Amer­i­can students. Incidentally, ISO had to cancel plans for this con­ference last year because Student Government withheld ac­cess to the Union.

I would inform senators that out there beyond the Atlan­tic and the Pacific and south of Texas is a vast world inhabited by people — people proud of their heritage, but interested in their fellow-man. They are inter­ested in finding out how Amer­i­cans live, how they think, and they want you to know them.

The Notre Dame Rugby club climaxed a brilliant fall season by defeating a strong George­town University side by the score of 13-11. The victory left the Irish undefeated through the six game fall schedule and ranked first in the Mid­West Other victims of the cru­shing Irish attack included the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois and St. Louis University.

Dick Carrigan and Pat Kee­nan provided the punch in Sun­day's win. Early in the first half, Carrigan and the violent Brin Murphy smashed the Ho­ya fullback in his own end zone, separating him from the ball and Carrigan pounced on it for a three point try, and kicked the conversion for a 5-0 ND lead.

Later, Murphy reproduced his deed, the fullback fumbled once more, and this time hustling scrum half Keenan was there for another try. Carrigan converted again, and it was 10-0 Notre Dame.

Ruggers Perfect

The Irish 'B' team defeated their Georgetown counterparts 17-0 giving them an undefeat­ed season, also. The 'B' team is 40-1 for the duration of their four year existence, an enviable record.

The Washington Post called the Irish a 'national rugby pow­er,' and they may ( heaven for­bid) have understated. The Irish destroyed some of the best college sides in the coun­try, and in doing so amassed 70 points while allowing a mere 17. Moderator Ken Feather­stone calls this team "the most well-balanced Notre Dame side ever," and this is quite a state­ment. The 1965 Irish were named National Intercollegiate Champions. But Captain Tommy Gibbs has driven the nuggets hard and exercised good leadership in developing a fast, smooth work­ing backfield and a big, quick scrum that travels across the field in a pack with devastating results.

The undefeated season gives the Irish the needed impetus for the big spring season, which will be highlighted by a trip to Ireland. Present plans call for an April 11 fight from New York to Dublin, where the Irish will face the champion of the Dublin League.

Meanwhile, back at Notre Dame, Student Government abolished the International Commis­sion because of the "maturity" of campus international life.

I would inform senators that out there beyond the Atlan­tic and the Pacific and south of Texas is a vast world inhabited by people — people proud of their heritage, but interested in their fellow-man. They are inter­ested in finding out how Amer­i­cans live, how they think, and they want you to know them.

Some of these people are visiting Notre Dame as foreign students. You as the host ought to go out and meet them. Learn about their culture and show them that the Ugly American is a myth. Visit their culture and show them that the Ugly American is a myth. Visit their culture and show them that the Ugly American is a myth.

Irish Gridders Take Two

BY TERRY O'NEIL

"Notre Dame is, by far, the best team we've faced all year and that includes Tennessee and Miami," Georgia Tech Coach Bud Carson said flatly after Saturday's game in Atlanta.

It was quite a statement, considering Tennessee is ranked No. 2 in the nation and Miami trounced the Yellow jackets 49-7 the previous week. But Carson had just witnessed a very convincing performance by the Irish.

"You'd have to show me a better team in the country right now," he said. "I'm not sure there is one. Early in the year they didn't have a good running game. But they've got that Zimmerman now and the pass is still a tough weapon."

"All around, they're better balanced than Southern Cal or Purdue. You take away Simpson from Southern Cal, Keys from Purdue and see what happens. These guys are super-stars. You can't do that with Notre Dame. They've got the overall balance."*!

* A Southern writer suggested better officiating and the presence of All-American Lenny Snow might have made a difference in the 36-3 score. Again, Carson was shaking his head.

"They just have too much for us. After we watched the films, we spent all week practicing defense. In their last four games, they took the ball and just ran it right down their opponents' throat. So we came out and they did the same thing to us."

The Irish defense came in for a large measure to Carson's praise.

"I'm sure it's an intimidating experience trying to run the ball on them. They just force you into so many mistakes. And those linebackers are all over the field. Sure, they've got those big tackles and those big ends, but the linebackers make that defense go. They run like halfbacks. Pergine and McGill were everywhere on pass defense."

* In the press box, Tech followers were especially awed by the size and agility of Kevin Hardy. "Imagine a man that size having a man-eating defense, and you've got the Formula for Success.

The Notre Dame Novice Boxing Championships came to a close Friday afternoon with final bouts in six weight divisions.

In two split decisions, Dave Jones and Tom Sudsout outpointed Frank Eues and Mike Morrissey for the 135 lb. and 145 lb. crowns. Gene Zlaket tamed Dave "Wild Man" Spirek to capture the 155 lb. title, while Dave Snedeker got the 160 lb. class nod over Dave Pemberton. Two unanimous decisions went to Joe Murray, over Tim Hurley, and Ed Bernhoefer, over Jim Burke, in the 167 lb. and 177 lb. divisions.

Keenan's squad took giant steps toward intercollegiate football titles last Sunday, but Stanford and Oregon hung right on their heels. Holy Cross forfeited to Keenan, while Loyon dumped Alumni 20-12. Stanford routed Cavanagha 16-0, and Oregon shut out St. Edwards 120.

Stanford stayed a game behind Keenan when Chris Wolfe and Tom McCauley ran 30 yds. for first half touchdowns.

The Irish defense came in for a large measure to Carson's praise.

"I'm sure it's an intimidating experience trying to run the ball on them. They just force you into so many mistakes. And those linebackers are all over the field. Sure, they've got those big tackles and those big ends, but the linebackers make that defense go. They run like halfbacks. Pergine and McGill were everywhere on pass defense."

* In the press box, Tech followers were especially awed by the size and agility of Kevin Hardy. "Imagine a man that size having a man-eating defense, and you've got the Formula for Success.

The Notre Dame Novice Boxing Championships came to a close Friday afternoon with final bouts in six weight divisions.

In two split decisions, Dave Jones and Tom Sudsout outpointed Frank Eues and Mike Morrissey for the 135 lb. and 145 lb. crowns. Gene Zlaket tamed Dave "Wild Man" Spirek to capture the 155 lb. title, while Dave Snedeker got the 160 lb. class nod over Dave Pemberton. Two unanimous decisions went to Joe Murray, over Tim Hurley, and Ed Bernhoefer, over Jim Burke, in the 167 lb. and 177 lb. divisions.

Keenan's squad took giant steps toward intercollegiate football titles last Sunday, but Stanford and Oregon hung right on their heels. Holy Cross forfeited to Keenan, while Loyon dumped Alumni 20-12. Stanford routed Cavanagha 16-0, and Oregon shut out St. Edwards 120.

Stanford stayed a game behind Keenan when Chris Wolfe and Tom McCauley ran 30 yds. for first half touchdowns.
