Godot will stop by the campus of St. Mary's Sun. at 2:30 in O'Toole Hall-McDonough on Wednesday at first in French by the Irish samual Beckett, the English version of En Attendant Godot was first performed in the United States in 1956 when half a Miami audience left after the first act. The play performed at St. Mary's is in French, a co-production of Le Trefete de Paris and La Comedie des Alpes from Grenoble, France.

At Last

Student Body Vice-President Tom McKenna was first staged in the United States in 1956 when half a Miami audience left after the first act. The play performed at St. Mary's is in French, a co-production of Le Trefete de Paris and La Comedie des Alpes from Grenoble, France.

Poor March On

The YCS will sponsor a lecture by William Hollins, an aide of Dr. Martin Luther King and member of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The talk will be held in the Memorial Library Auditorium at 4:00 p.m. and will concern "The Poor People's March on Washington." Hollins has been touring the country, speaking at colleges, churches, and other organizations. His topic is that of the planned march on Washington this spring, designed to persuade Congress of the need for several bills dealing with the minimum annual wage, fair housing, and civil rights.

Meditation Speech

Notre Dame's departments of theology and education will sponsor a five lecture series on "The Molecular Biology of Meditation." Mon. at 4:15 p.m. in the Memorial Library Auditorium. Dr. Edward Maupin, who will speak, has written on the subject of Zen Buddhism and his doctoral thesis at the University of Chicago concerned meditation. A former member of UCLA's Neuropsychiatric Institute, he is currently studying new approaches to meditation, including sensory awakening and basic encounter groups.

Nobel Winner Explains Basis

Dr. Severo Ochoa, winner of the 1955 Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine will be on campus next week as Nieuwenhuis Lecturer in Chemistry. His general topic is "The Molecular Basis of Translation of the Genetic Message." Dr. Ochoa will deliver five lectures Mon., Wed.,... Fri., at 4:15 p.m. in Room 123 Nieuwenhuis Science Hall. Dr. Ochoa is chairman of the department of biochemistry of the New York University College of Medicine.

Cagers Take On Army

New York, Mar. 15-In 24 hours, the Irish will make their first appearance in the NIT. Here's what the coach, the captain and a prominent fan think about Notre Dame vs. Army at 1 p.m. tomorrow in New York's Madison Square Garden.

COACH JOHNNY D.E.: "Talent-wise, this is the best tournament they've had in years; Army is the favorite as far as I'm concerned. They've got 2-0 and they've got the best defense in the division. They press, they press, they press, they press. Man-to-man. Offense, (Bill) Schutsky is the leading scorer and (Steve) Hunt is second in the country in field goal percentage. On defense, (Bill) Schutsky and Whitmore and Hunt on. They're not going to do too much different in this game. We're going to do anything we want to do in the game. Nobody else can do anything we want to do in the way. In terms of offense, we've got to do something. In terms of defense, we've got to do something different. In terms of the game, we've got to do something different.

CAPTAIN BOB ARNEZI: "I think we can beat Army. They've beaten some teams we haven't beat, but that doesn't mean we don't have the best defense in the division. They play press, press, press, press, man-to-man. Offense, (Bill) Schutsky is the leading scorer and (Steve) Hunt is second in the country in field goal percentage. On defense, (Bill) Schutsky and Whitmore and Hunt on. They're not going to do too much different in this game. We're going to do anything we want to do in the game. Nobody else can do anything we want to do in the way. In terms of offense, we've got to do something. In terms of defense, we've got to do something different. In terms of the game, we've got to do something different.

FR. THOMAS BRENNAN: "The NIT? Sure, we'll win it.

McKenna, Higgins Plan Bills On Vietnam, Draft, ROTC

By BETTY DOERR

The V.Ietnam resolution would condemn the war, and call for "withdrawal and cessation that this is a liberation movement," McKenna said, "This is a national, social issue, but it affects student life greatly."

On the two issues of the draft and Vietnam, the results in the Senate will, according to McKenna, depend on "the tenor of the campus." He thinks that there will be much more favorable discussion in the Senate, but does foresee the possibility of a conservative reaction.

He expects that the ROTC bill will face stiff opposition. It will probably call for abolition of the program. McKenna indicated that in the Senate, it is "inconsistent with the Christian university." Other alternatives have been offered to this proposal. At very least, the bill would call for the ending of credit for those in the program. Another possibility would be for the University to extend credit for those in phy.

In the case of student issues McKenna sees a chance for, at least, "limited success". The first of these issues is complete control of the Student-Center by students. This would include maintenance and upkeep, as well as opening and closing times, the time and place of meetings then, and eventually even course assignment. The Center would be very definitely the students'.

Connected with this bill, would be another for student incorporation. The main part of this bill is to provide a means to find out the logistics and feasibility of such a move. The results and benefits of incorporation would be that the student body could act independently on financial matters such as operation of the Student Center and contracting debt.

The final bill would concern student membership of the University's governing councils. This bill concerns the entire community. Hopefully this membership would include voting privileges. Students have already achieved a degree of influence in dealing with student affairs. Students, for instance, were given a say in deciding the eventual form of the planned highrise dormitories. McKenna's rationale for the student issues is that "students are a necessary part of any great university."

Ambrusko Wins SMC SBP

By BETTY DOERR

The election results remained untoucheed until the night of the vote. Mr. Ambrusko was elected SMC Student Body President Wed. night, capturing 77% of the votes cast. Mr. Ambrusko's undeclared running mate, was elected SMC Student Body Vice-President with 61% of the votes cast. Suzanne Strobel, Ambrusko's opponent, received 20% of the vote. Strobel's rival for office, Mary Kennedy, collected 36% of the votes. Strobel's votes in the elections.

The final bill would concern student incorporation. The main part of this bill is to provide a means to find out the logistics and feasibility of such a move. The results and benefits of incorporation would be that the student body could act independently on financial matters such as operation of the Student Center and contracting debt.
Reagan Forces Muster Little Support

By P.J. SCHROEDER

Tom Frericks, campus Campaign Manager for Ronald Reagan at the Mock Political Convention, said today that he believes the conservative viewpoint has been downed out at Notre Dame by the liberal and pro-leftist elements among the student body and the administration.

We’ve heard a lot about intellectual selectivity and academic freedom around here; and I guess that’s very true if you happen to be a liberal.” Frericks made this comment with regard to the “Mister MXTYZPLK”, Student Union Academic Commission’s failure to prevent the full spectrum of political opinion in speakers. “There has not been one responsible conservative speaker that I know of who’s spoken on campus yet this year.”

Frericks said that school is being “sold out” by the administration when they accept grants from the “Liberalist and Left” Ford Foundation which “has definitely made its influence felt on this campus.”

Frericks made an additional comment on the progress of the Reagan campaign. Frericks said that he was disappointed about two aspects of the Mock Convention. “First, I have heard that certain delegations have been ‘stacked,’ and this appears to me to be true.” Secondly, Frericks said that he felt the Scholastic and the Observer had failed to present adequately the views of the candidate “or even the Conservative stand, in general.” Frericks said that he would consider any kind of representation at the Mock Convention to be a good showing. “But we don’t expect to get the nomination on a campus like this.”

Dan Lungren, Campaign Manager for Richard Nixon said that he, too, thought that certain delegations had been ‘stacked’ and cited the Florida and Texas delegations as examples of this. Frericks has heard that both of these delegations are heavily pro-Hatfield, and to me, this just doesn’t make sense.” Lungren said that he believed many of these delegates were recruited into their respective delegations by the show’s ‘anti-war contingent’ which has no interest in representing the actual opinions of each state, but which is merely a last-minute candidate nominated by the Convention. Said Lungren, “Don’t call it a Mock Convention, call it a Peace Movement.”

Lungren, delegation chairman for the state of California, said that he expected his delegates to make a sincere attempt to represent the views of their state and not their own personal political opinion.

Sex is Sex is Sex

By PAT GAFNEY

“Sexuality develops from birth as a long process of conditioning... it is not inborn in the child,” Dr. Calderone, the liberal and pro-leftist element among the student body at the Mock Political Convention, “Or, perhaps even the society,” not nature that determine the individual’s sexual role... To ‘teach children’ the process requires the possibility of “establishing a new family structure” based on free “more meaningful relationships.” The more prominent among the ideas offered to an overflow crowd this Tuesday night in Washington, D.C., by Mary S. Calderone. Her lecture was entitled “Sex and Sexuality”, the second in a series of five in the 1968 Marriage Institute.

Dr. Calderone, a 63 year old grandmother, has written extensively on sex education and related topics. She has edited Abortion in the United States and the Men-Hatfield Delegation of America. In July, 1964 she resigned to help establish the Sexual Information and Education Council of the U.S. (SIECUS), whose objective is to do for sex what other voluntary agencies have done for tuberculosis, polio, and mental illness.

Her candid presentation of the problems posed by sex education pushes beyond the old diligence of the “biological” or the “mor¬al” approach. She places the burden of responsibility squarely on the individual. Repeatedly she has stressed that it is up to young people to recognize their sexual roles, for they communicate their own attitudes “quite without words” to their children.

Mr. MXTYZPLK, that mysterious Superman comic character has inspired two campus comics with an existing unusual word game that’s on campus, MXTYZPLK.

The object of the game is to unscramble the sets of letters, so that they construct a word. Then by taking letters from the appropriately marked boxes, form a word or series of words that complete the puzzle described in the cartoons.

Mr. MXTYZPLK will appear regularly in the Observer, but you must save your correct MXTYZPLKs for valuable prizes at the end of the month. That’s when Super MXTYZPLK the unusual big word game appears.

The name's the game over at Saint Mary's in this week as the machine behind the College's 125th Jubilee Year goes into gear. Just think up an acceptable theme for the celebration, and $50 will be yours.

Second semester seniors will do a lot for $50 by coming up with a theme for the sake of God, Country and Saint Mary's is one of them.

"The Beatification Fulfilled," "Predestination of the Judas-Christian Concept of Man," and "An Academy of Learning" are some of the more esoteric entries.

Of course, all this creativity has as its basis the question of where there will be a Saint Mary's College in need of a theme next year. There have been several joking comments that such will not be the case. However, a new form for the college magazine is laid to rest by our Board of Trustees which has tentatively slated $300,000 to meet the expenses of the Jubilee venture.

Some question has been raised as to why the school is willing to make such a large financial outlay when faculty salaries are at a much-rejected low. Perhaps the answer is that the Jubilee Year endeavors, complete with visiting professors and a contest to "create community," will result in more revenue as potential contributors realize that the place has a past worth celebrating and a future worth toasting. It takes money to make money, etc.

Unfortunately, in a fit of isolationism, the Jubilee team has limted theme entries to SMC students and faculty. But those of you in the ex-coffee program may have a chance, and any SM C'er would be willing to accept a giant $50 gift from an ND'er in her name. Or maybe you could make some sort of deal to split.

But whatever, felas, sharpen your wits and pencils and hop to it. You all should have a better-than-average chance.

As we hear it, the Irish are noted for their wit and pencils and hop to it. You all might as well join the Irish in that.

I Just Don't Trust Them

Experienced Seniors can tell our beloved Father Hushey that all his talk about a great Catholic University has tragically neglected the focusing agent of all student activism and intellectual confrontation: the hang-out for the 'in' people, the last bastion of the Bohemian generation. Harvard's status would crumble to the level of Bethel College without the Bohemians. And of course, we have all heard the Yale men sing of the tables down at Mory's. They're missing out on the action. Danie men, too, have their place, and it is named simply, but elegantlv, "Louie's." The brilliancy of debate might not always rest just in the company and cuisine, but in the presence of a resident professor, Louie Rappoli. This gentleman is not listed in the Notre Dame faculty catalogue, but the quality of his wisdom and counsel is surpased only by that bestowed in Frank O'Malley's moving rhetoric.

Now Louie has seen many generations of Notre Dame men pass through the sedate observations of the fluctuating world scene. From the standpoint of an Italian exile possessed of a message of dissent, and General deGaulle, one is able to calmly ponder the complexities of various ideological movements. So it is that perhaps the American people are willing to give anyone who promises to A-Bomb Hanoi, Poking, and rooting stem areas--or to rid the nation miraculously of corrupt politicians in a quick purge. But perhaps true that the American people have been cheated by their government and their President. It is perhaps true that the corruption can drop out. The writers of White House news releases could win the Pulitzer prize for fiction. But the answer is not yet the gun, but the ballot box.

Knock the Rock

Nelson Rockefeller has been a good governor. There are a lot of good roads, and the students and scholars who testify to that fact. But as a presidential hopeful, Rockefeller is suffering from a..."bad case of Scranton's disease." We like to bitch a lot. There is too much work. The work is not good. Our classes are boring. And eight-thirty is such an ungodly hour to start thinking. We might as well apart every aspect of university life. We complain but do little more. We vocally state that Notre Dame is the United States. We know that just "ain't so." They feed us, do our laundry, make our beds, pay our bills, and furnish us with every living convenience. It may not be luxurious but it is far from a desrt
