House Sets Up TV Debates

WASHINGTON (UPI) - House Democrats forced passage of legislation that could set up televised debates by major presidential candidates after cracking an all-night Republican filibuster with extra strong-line tactics.

Only after 27 hours and 45 roll calls and a minor scuffle between Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, and a doorkeeper, was the House able to approve a measure 280 to 35.

In the end, the bill got substantial support from Republicans who had claimed all along they opposed it - not on its contents - but as a means of forcing the Democratic leadership to take up congressional and elections reform measures.

All 182 House Democrats who were present voted for the bill. They were joined by 98 Republicans on final passage. Thirty-five Republican senators also approved it.

The bill, approved in what is believed to have been the second longest session in House history and with the members locked in the chamber since noon Saturday, now goes to the Senate, which is expected to tailor its own bill, approved earlier, to conform to the House measure.

The House measure would change temporarily the federal law to permit the three major presidential candidates to debate on a national network broadcast without lesser candidates having the right to claim "equal time."

More Trouble for NY Schools

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Board of Education, moving to head off a renewal of the crippling citywide teachers' strike, yesterday increased pressure on a dissident Brooklyn experimental school district to reverse its policy of not assigning teachers to a school.

The board barred seven principals from their schools and ordered them to report for reassignment.

The school district of the Ocean Hill Brownsville district, Rhody McCoy, was relieved of this duty by Sup't. of Schools Bernard Donovan Tuesday evening.

Violence broke out in the largely Negro and Puerto Rican district yesterday shortly after the schools opened. Seven persons, including one woman, were arrested outside Junior High School 271, focal point of the latest dispute.

Police moved in with night sticks when parents and other community residents numbering about 200 tried to pass police barricades. At least three men were clubbed to the ground.

Apollo 7: All Systems Go

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) - One of America's smoothest countdowns ticked yesterday toward the Friday launch of the three-man Apollo 7 while a second spaceship was moved to another pad for a possible December flight to the moon.

The unprecedented simultaneous operations of Apollo 7 and Apollo 8 signified the speed up in the nation's $25 billion drive to get to the moon ahead of Russia.

If everything continues on schedule, the final part of the countdown will begin this afternoon for the 11 a.m. EDT blastoff of Apollo 7 astronauts Walter Schirra, Donn Eisele and Walter Cunningham.

They have mapped out an 11 day, 163 orbit voyage around earth to be followed by an ascent into lunar space. Apollos, the third generation manned spacecraft is ready to go to the moon.

This will be the last trip into space for Schirra, the 45 year old veteran of Mercury and Gemini spaceflights who says he plans to retire from space after Apollo 7.

But he plans to remain in the program, at least "until we do what we set out to do, which is to effect the lunar mission and return."

If Apollo 7 goes well, the Apollo 8 mission set for Christmas time will be a moon orbiting trip for astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders.

Nixon Wants Pornography Laws

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Shouting "Sock it to 'em, sock it to 'em," a beaming Richard M. Nixon yesterday wooed fickle California voters who won't leave him alone.

The GOP presidential candidate hit hard at pornography and hecklers as he stumped through smoggy sunshine in Los Angeles suburbs yesterday.

To 7,000 supporters at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium, Nixon acknowledged that the polls showed him leading Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey in the struggle for California's lode of 40 electoral votes. "But I don't care what the polls say, we're going to sock it to 'em."

Hecklers in the audience, some of them waving banners reading "McCarthy was a fascist" and raised signs reading, "Nixon in a four letter word."

But Nixon only smiled, noting that at Nixon rallies there were no hecklers. "Sock it to 'em, sock it to 'em, mister," he shouted, egging on his supporters to drown out the hecklers.

"I propose that we adopt a law making it a federal criminal offense to mail obscene matter to children under 16. And in that law, we can set standards about salacious, perversions and violent sex to protect children."

Proposals were generally favorable. Senior Eileen Hayes commented, "Under this proposal the problem of jurisdiction should be eliminated. The student body will be represented in a far more accurate manner, plus we can do away with the fragmentation that is a problem under the present structure."

Several members of the campus legislature expressed concern that the new senate may become bogged down in petty judgments that could conceivably be handled by the individual halls. Student Body Vice President Sylvia Strobel suggested that the Present Hall Senators remain in existence; She felt the new authority has a role to play in areas that pertain only to the individual halls.

AL Teaching Award Set Up

It was announced yesterday by Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, CSC, that an anonymous alumnus of the University's College of Arts and Letters has set up an endowed fund to provide a $1,000 annual award for excellence in teaching.

The award, according to the donor's wishes, will be named after the Rev. Charles E. Sheedy, CSC, dean of the Arts and Letters College for sixteen years before his appointment this year to head the University's new Theological Institute. It will go each year to a member of the Arts and Letters faculty who has distinguished himself as a teacher.

Father Sheedy, currently on leave at Harvard University where he is working on organizing a consortium of theological institutes, has been on the Notre Dame faculty for 26 years. serving a decade in the department of theology including two years as department head. He holds a bachelor's degree from Notre Dame in 1933, a law degree three years later from the University of Pittsburgh, and a doctorate in sacred theology in 1946 from the Catholic University of America. He was ordained in 1942.

The Gross Out Game

With the introduction of the campus-wide Centrex telephone system, an exciting evening has come into being. I call it the Gross Out Game, more commonly known as the Hot Line.

The rules of the game are kept pleasantly simple for the sake of the players who have shown themselves to be woefully deficient in both intellectual and emotional stability. Perhaps this explains why the game has been popular among ND students in so short a time. However, I guess it is only a natural phenomenon that a contest like the Hot Line should attract the minds and imaginations of maturing students at one of the country's finest universities. Especially a Christian one.

But back to the game. Its object, like its rules, is clearly supplementarity. The only thing the other contestants must master is a sense of repugnance, disgust, infantility, perversion, deviant and subhuman thoughts expressible. And the proficiency of the players appears inversely proportional to their verbal skills.

The Gross Out Game is truly unique. Unlike any other competitive sport, its champion guard their anomie with such magnificent humility! My cynical heart takes comfort from this fine example. Many of these young warriors stand like giants in the realm of degeneracy and I implore them to step forward into the spotlight of public adoration so they might receive that which they have so justly merited. And I would love to be the one to give it to them.

For the benefit of anyone who might be interested in joining the fun, maybe I should run quickly over a few of the qualifications necessary for participation. I should certainly hate to see some poor, naive soul enter unprepared to join in a battle with those with such superb specimens of true masculinity. The primary requisite is a deep seated sense of inferiority. One must feel that he is such a poor, inferior specimen of a twelve year old. If you feel that this last might disqualify you, I suggest you just listen in some evening soon, because if five minutes on the Hot Line doesn't make you vomit, then you know you've got what it takes.

SMC SOLVING SOCIAL VACUUM

According to manager Diane Smith at Mary's Coffee House, now dubbed The Sorrowful Mystery is ever finding new ways to solve the social vacuum that has been ailing the MDC campus community. It is located in the renovated St. Mary's social center, a once barren underground O'Laughlin Auditorium. According to it's new volunteer managers, Smith and Grady, this is so that will be added to the atmosphere as it was last year is increased flexibility and openings.

"We want it to be a place," said Smith "where people can get together on a more personal basis, something informal, and more than the shallow, mixer-type atmosphere."

The coffee house has numerous functions, including one from occasional entertainment. First, of course, is the coffee. A fresh pot is made each morning, surrounding in it, of course, the doors open, then there is brew available in the precipitator throughout the day. Visitors are welcomed at the tables.

St. Mary's Plans for Jubilee

St. Mary's Jubilee Committee has chosen this theme for the 125th anniversary of the college.

Focus on NOW...how we got here...where we're going. The anniversary year will open in early February, 1969 with a symposium on The World in 1844, in which speakers will explore influences of early movements on today's "revolutionary trends." A Black Arts Festival will be held during Negro History Week, also in February. During the spring the Jubilee will sponsor an Education Seminar in "Contemporary Trends in Education with a Threat to the Future," and will also host a Symposium on the Symbol, which will involve almost every academic department. Visiting philosophers will lecture, conduct seminars, and be available for discussions throughout the year. Artists-in-residence will be working and exhibiting during the year.

Also planned for the year are a Seminar on Authority and Freedom, Lectures on Women, development of bed symposiums, an Urban Affairs symposium, a Shakespeare production by Robert Sprain, creation of a title book catalog, a TV series...and the first mass composed by Norman Dello Joio to close the year in December.

Sister Miriam Patrick, CSC, chairman of the campus group, stresses the fact, that "the Jubilee is for the students. Hence it will be possible for students to enroll in "Special Studies" and earn from 1-3 credits per semester for serious discussions during the year.

The Jubilee class of 1969 has formed its own committee. Endless Letters to different speaking prospects have been written under the direction of Chris Hand, committee chairman. Senior will work in coordination with the campus group, and will take care of hosting for the anniversary sponsored functions.

There will also be a closed circuit TV grant for a symposium on Women in Politics. Student politicians who have been active in the campaigns will participate in a forum for a ½ hour show to be televised in the Spring.

Beatty: Bad Year for Democrats

Indiana's Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, James W. Beatty, got up to speed yesterday at the States Mary's coffeehouse, the Law Auditorium, and the Faculty Club yesterday, to answer questions dealing with the presidential campaign, Vietnam, law and order, and student involvement.

Beatty is Marion County Democratic Chairman and was delegated to speak at the Democratic Convention. He was one of only two county chairmen who went to the convention in the primary. Beatty supported Robert Kennedy last spring, and voted for Eugene McCarthy in Chicago. He favors reform in the convention system in order to increase citizen participation in the selection process. "The convention system is democratic in theory but not in practice," Beatty said.

In "a choice among imperfect men", Beatty favors Humphrey. "He's less militant and hawkish than Nixon, and has built institutions that are bridges toward peace," Beatty said. He sighted the Poof for Peace Program and the International Peace Table as examples of the Vice-President's contributions. Beatty feels that Wallace and Nixon are appealing to fear and racism in order to win votes. "The Wallace campaign is a put-on to make money. Wallace won't be President, but he will never have to work again," the candidate said. He feels that the election year is marked by "emotion and lack of reason." Beatty is concerned about state constitutional reform, Beatty replied that it was necessary, especially judicial reform both on the civil and criminal levels.

Beatty's interpretation of law and order in the program gun control laws, and better training for police forces. He favors psychological testing of police candidates to "get rid of the sadists", and a law prohibiting the use of a deadly weapon except when there is a threat to human life. The present law in Indiana allows police whatever is necessary to secure arrest.

Beatty has been visiting colleges and universities across the state in an effort to keep students involved in politics. "Young people get involved in politics, are disillusioned, and quit after the first year. They go from naive to total cynicism. The naive can't get anything done because they don't have the know-with-all. The cynics don't because they copout. It is in the territory in between these two that things get done," Beatty said.

SMC SOLVING SOCIAL VACUUM

An unexpected rise in graduate school population, despite current draft policies, has given Notre Dame a record enrollment to dip by 44 students this year compared with 7,723 in the fall semester of 1967. Attempts to keep the freshman enrollment in the 1,550 limit have caused undergraduate enrollment to dip by 44 students to 6,710. The overall increase in coordination with the campus is accounted for by a total of 1,392 grad students, 140 more than last fall.

Although the number of persons and rooms enrolled in grad studies remained the same, increase in enrollment came primarily in the categories of laymen, laywomen, and seminarians.

More Notre Dame students than ever are taking advantage of the academic exchange program with SMC with 140 taking 197 courses, compared with 33 taking 67 courses last fall.

ST, LOUIS (UPI) - Jim Northrup's grand slam homer Wednesday as the spunky Detroit Tigers routed the St. Louis Cardinals 13-1 to even the World Series at three games apiece and set the stage for the seventh and deciding game Thursday.

Northrup, who hit four grand slams this season and has seven in his lifetime, connected against Cardinals' ace Gaylord Perry.

The Tigers, attempting to become the third team ever to rally from a 3-1 deficit and win the series, will send Mickey Lolich against Bob Gibson-the only man ever to win the seventh game of two different World Series in the deciding contest Thursday. The game, delayed by rain for 49 minutes in the eighth inning, started 10 minutes late because of a morning shower and the Tigers ended a series hitting drought which included Northrup's homer, six singles, four walks and one hit batter. The Tigers went out to the series lead with three home runs in three games. Detroit added one to his three home runs for the Tigers.

"All the money in the world won't do you any good if you work so hard to get it that you aren't around to enjoy it," says the soft-spoken 25-year-old Detroit ace in one of his rare philosophical moods. "I'm not looking to grab every nickel offered me."

McLain's agent, Frank Scott, confirms the statement.

The realization that he hit the jackpot this time by winning 30 plus, and may never do it again, has crossed McLain's mind a few times and he has heard about Babe Ruth and the international fuss surrounding Mantle's homer and he shouldn't. It wasn't the first time making something out of nothing. He has done many things for nothing and hasn't talked much about them.

"I couldn't do it all alone, that 1 had to have hitting and fielding support behind me."

Nor does McLain think that merely because of his tremendous accomplishment he's the greatest baseball hero who ever came down the pike. He has heard about Babe Ruth and the international fuss surrounding Mantle's homer and he shouldn't. It wasn't the first time making something out of nothing.
