U. S. Awaits Answer

PARIS (UPI) - A strict U.S. security lid and last minute cancellation of a North Vietnamese press briefing Monday heightened speculation of a possible break in the deadlock talks on the Vietnam War.

Both sides meet Wednesday for the 27th negotiation session since the talks began May 13. The North Vietnamese delegation headed by Minister of State Xuan Thuy called off without explanation its regular Monday morning briefing just three hours before it was scheduled to begin. Hanoi officials had announced Sunday the briefing would be held as usual.

Spokesmen for the U.S. negotiating team headed by W.aret Harriman were equally reticent Monday.

Mark Shad, U.S. press secretary, described delegation activities as "just a regular routine working day." He said Harriman and his right-hand man, Cyrus R. Vance, were in their offices in the U.S. Embassy, but "had no appointments listed." The timing of the release of 14 North Vietnamese prisoners of war Monday was viewed in Paris as an effort to make good on a deal Harriman worked out with Thuy at the conference table two months ago.

Sheehan said the Paris mission would have "no comment at all" on the release of the POW's, announced by the U.S. in Saigon.

Czecho-Slovakia

PRAGUE (UPI) - Prague Radio Monday announced the withdrawal of Hungarian troops from Czechoslovakia, exactly two months and a day after it broadcast news of the Warsaw Pact invasion and was driven from the air. It was the first official public announcement of troop withdrawals since the occupation treaty was signed Friday.

The one sentence radio announcement mentioned only "contingents of the Hungarian army" and did not say how many soldiers were involved or where they had been stationed.

In Budapest, reports said the first units of the Hungarian army crossed the border about noon Monday at the Hungarian town of Mede. It said they received a hero's welcome from deputy minister of defense Gen. Pal Kovacs.

LoMay Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Gen. Curtis E. LeMay said today he found no evidence in his trip to Vietnam for George C. Wallace that the church informant said the Holy See was "still ignorant" of the religious activities of the Gaultherian movement in Vietnam.

LeMay, former Air Force chief of staff and now Wallace's vice presidential running mate on the American Independent Party ticket, spoke at a news conference about what he learned from a four day fact finding tour of Vietnam last week.

LeMay said the current U.S. bombing campaign in Vietnam was an indication of American battle field successes and did not reflect any indication of American weakness.

"People expect Notre Dame to have one without the other in a free society." He maintained that channels and outlets must be found whereby "students can participate and participate meaningfully in society." As to the racial question, the Republican Senate candidate spoke of a "failure of leadership" on the part of Catholics and Protestant leaders and a "failure of polarization of attitudes."

Looking at the role of office holders, LeMay stated, "We must stop telling the Negro 'If you elect me your problems are over.' These are deep, difficult problems."

Ruckelhau strongly criticized President Johnson for not "getting on the gold jeweled road coupled with the gold outflow." He said the political situation is not clear on the surface with superficial phenomena, but strongly in favor of plans to send tax dollars back to the states in such areas as education. However, he also stressed the necessity of anti-discrimination clauses governing state expenditures of federal tax money.

Ruckelhau Says...

"Vietnam is a Colossal Blunder"

Republican Senate aspirant William Ruckelshaus told a televiion in the Library Lounge yesterday that "In my estimation the decision to get into Vietnam as we did in 1965 was a colossal blunder." However, the Indiana House Majority Leader stressed the obligation to U.S. troops in Vietnam of "the people's bull in bombing of North Vietnam, saying, 'If my estimation the advantage of North Vietnam is the crucial issue.'

Ruckelshaus spoke informally to an audience of more than 60, confusing his remarks to a brief opening statement and to a student question. While answering questions on the state of the economy and the cities, the Indiana House Majority Leader suggested speaking about a political campaign in Europe to speak at length on Vietnam. Stressing the role of a new a m d l y 'here and order' issue of the formulation of a peace plan, Ruckelshaus stated: "The next President, be he Democrat, Republican, or some other party God forbid, is going to have to end that war. The people demand it." Ruckelshaus was critical of Vice President Humphrey's pledge to stop the bombing, though, comparing Humphrey's stand to that of President Johnson on sending in troops four years ago. According to Ruckelshaus, "If Humphrey is elected and finds he cannot stop the bombing, he'll be in the same boat as Johnson. Nobody will trust him."

Turning to the problems of the cities, Ruckelshaus discussed the "here and order" issue of the current campaign, saying, "There are two elements here: here-order and program. I don't think you can have one without the other in a free society." He maintained that channels and outlets must be found whereby "students can participate and participate meaningfully in society." As to the racial question, the Republican Senate candidate spoke of a "failure of leadership" on the part of Catholics in the church and a "failure of polarization of attitudes."

Looking at the role of office holders, LeMay stated, "We must stop telling the Negro 'If you elect me your problems are over.' These are deep, difficult problems."

Ruckelshaus strongly criticized President Johnson for not "getting on the gold jeweled road coupled with the gold outflow."

The balance of payments situation is not clear on the surface with superficial phenomena, but strongly in favor of plans to send tax dollars back to the states in such areas as education. However, he also stressed the necessity of anti-discrimination clauses governing state expenditures of federal tax money.

Alumnus Ken Woodward Returns

Notre Dame Not a "God-Box"

BY CHARLES JACKSON

Religion editor of Newsweek and author of "God's Answer to the War" and "The World's Religions," Ken Woodward said the Notre Dame campus is "not the political protest place many people think it is." However, he also stated that "Christianity was affected by the anti-war movement." The speaker went on to say that "There is a lot of hope in the theology of Hope and that the Church is working out its role."

Woodward also commented on impressions on returning to this campus, he said, "On coming to Notre Dame, I felt like I was coming to Princeton. There is a strong look of urbanism here, although walking around I don't feel it. I think Notre Dame serves as a kind of umbrella from certain situations of life and that this is not a bad thing." He also was pleased that many faculty members who has encountered in his stay over last weekend were the kind of men and women who could serve as model representatives for a true Christian university.
Rossie and Senate Arrange Agenda for SLC Meeting Today

Senior cars, parietals, Off-campus housing, and the new perfect system will be the first items to be considered by the recently formed Student Life Council. The Student Senate acted, last night, to approve a list of proposals covering these questions submitted by Student Body President Richard Rossie. The first of Rossie's proposals, which he plans to submit to the SLC at their first meeting this afternoon, maintains that Seniors should have the right to own and operate motor vehicles while they are attending the university. Bay Senator Bob Rigney added an amendment that no extra fee be charged to students who may wish to bring a motor vehicle to campus next year.

With strong support from O.C. Senator Pat Barbolla, a second motion was ratified asking that all off-campus students be permitted to live in housing of their own choosing as of January 1, 1969. The question of women's visitation hours in student's rooms caused little debate and the question to the SLC will be that they decide to leave parietal decisions up to the individual hall councils.

Barbolla suggested strongly that an addition be made to the list, stating that the overcrowding that presently exists on campus be alleviated by the new dorm complex before any off-campus students are made to return. The motion failed by a 19-18 vote.

Another addition was likewise defeated: Rick McDonough, O.C., motioning that the list include a suggestion to allow campus media to employ alcoholic beverage advertisements.

The additions were put aside in order not to detract from the urgency of the other proposals to the SLC.

In other Senate business, an amendment by Breen-Phillips Senator Rick Hunter passed, setting up procedures for any further recall of a student official. A clause eliminating first semester freshmen from signing any recall petition drew criticism from Stanford Senator Tom Thrasher who said, "We have to realize that by passing this amendment we are denying the freshman a basic right: the right to exercise their opinion on the people who govern them."

Mike Mead, Senator from Holy Cross, countered by saying, "The Freshmen have proven that they are extremely active and can be used for political purposes."

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS: October 29, 1968
In the presidential campaign it is more or less obvious that both major party candidates stand for settlement of the Vietnam war by negotiation, as does the present administration. This has raised hopes that somehow the U.S. will be able to withdraw leaving behind a treaty between non-Communist Vietnams. There are, unfortunately, a few problems with such hopes. Two things that a negotiated agreement must include to satisfy Hanoi are: first, Communist representation in a democratic South Vietnamese government and second, mutual withdrawal of North Vietnamese and American forces. If the U.S. is willing to accede to these terms government and second, mutual withdrawal of North Vietnamese first, Communist representation in a democratic South Vietnamese will be Communist, in the fullest sense of the word, civil warriors seeking only redress for grievances against past South to secure complete control of a country. If anyone wants to see the sort of participation in a democratic government except as a means to hide it in South Vietnam. After twenty-five years of guerilla the U.S. could react quickly enough to any renewed aggression against South Vietnam. The reasons for withdrawal mean a long way across a two thousand mile ocean—for most of its men control of over half the country to Communist forces which were supposedly withdrawn.

The lastian situation also points to the second reason why a negotiated settlement cannot work, namely the fact that Communist will keep an agreement only so long as it helps them, and will break it for any gain. Considering the record of communists in other areas of our history, especially in the Far East, there is absolutely no reason to believe that they will start having any respect for treaties. In some cases the broken treaty would not be so harmful because it could be detected and reacted to quickly. But a settlement would have to include mutual withdrawal, and that changes the picture. Hanoi has only to withdraw men and material across the border, or to hide it in South Vietnam. After twenty-five years of guerilla warfare, the Communists are not likely to be caught by international inspection if they choose to temporarily fade into the landscape of South Vietnam. For the United States however withdrawal means a change in campus recruiting policy which has lost control of over half the country to Communist forces which were supposedly withdrawn.

Those of you who believe that South Vietnam would be better off the presence of CIA recruiters on the campus. There was a sit in a fourth floor homecoming queen. The demonstrators were seated in protest of the building the in the interest of students voted twice. The school administration was aware of the school's homecoming queen. About ten other Negro students marched in front of the building in carrying signs in protest of the procedures used in electing Sarah Wright of Glen Ellyn, Ill., the homecoming queen last Sunday.

Frank Bowens, an ISU student and leader of the school's Black Student Association, charged that some ballot boxes were returned unlocked and some white students voted twice. He said the school administration was aware of the election irregularities.

ISU president Samuel Brayden told the demonstrators that he was sympathetic towards the group and called for the university to review election procedures. He proposed election of several "queens." Brayden also told the group that "all campus procedures" would be examined in an attempt to eliminate any discriminatory policies.

Three Oppose Rosse in Election

Four students picked up petitions last night for qualification for running on the recall ballot against Student Body President Richard Rossie, however one has withdrawn and the other isn’t talking.

Students for a Democratic Society intend to place campus chapter councillor Ed Roickle on the ballot. Don Wycliff, recently resigned Human Affairs Coordinator, will run on behalf of the Afro-American Society.

Paul Dillenberger, President of Stanford Hall, also picked up a petition but refused to comment on whether he will become a candidate, or whether he was representing someone else. "I’m just picking up petitions," Dillenberger said.

Sophomore Greg Fazakerley also obtained a petition from Permanent Election Chairman Charles Nau but later declined to run.

"Originally I believed that there were only going to be three men running, all of whom Lennon and Friend
LONDON (UPI)-Beatle John Lennon and his pop film maker girlfriend Yoko Ono were mobbed by a grappling crowd of 300 fans Saturday when they left a London court hearing on marijuana charges.

The pair was released on bail of $480 each until Nov. 28 when they will appear in the same Marylebone Magistrates court again. They were granted bail in their own recognizance of $240 each and surety, put up by friends, of $240 each.

The hearing followed a police raid Friday on Lennon’s apartment in fashionable Marylebone where 34 year old Miss Ono has taken up residence. Scotland Yard detectives led by two Labrador dogs specially trained to snuff out drugs hustled Miss Ono and Lennon down to the Paddington Green police station after they had searched the apartment for drugs. Lennon and Ono were charged with possessing marijuana and obstructing police in the execution of a search warrant.

The crowd which gathered to ogle Lennon Saturday morning included an unlikely assortment of old women in thick coats and rolled stockings, soldiers apparently on furlough, shop girls in aprons, and gumchewing youths with tattoos on their arms, and football supporters from Lennon’s hometown of Liverpool. There wasn’t a mini skirt or pair of beads among them.

As they emerged from the courthouse, the previously subdued crowd erupted.

Miss Ono burst into tears and Lennon, his face expressionless, nestled her under his arm. They hurried together, looking frightened, until police finally linked arms, encircled them, and bulldozed through the pack up to Lennon’s chauffeured limousine.
