Reagan Protested

More than thirty members of the Notre Dame Chapter of Students for a Democratic Society picketed the Notre Dame Student Center on October 24, 1968, in protest of the approval by the Student Government of the national Student Democratic Society's resolutions condemning the SDS's actions as "ineffective demonstration." The students commented "It was just to express our opinion, nothing more." As to the blank signs, during the protest they were because we don't think he has anything to say about the problems of America."

Young Republicans' President Kelly praised the conduct of the demonstration, commenting: "I'd like to say that the SDS protest was well mannered. I appreciate the courtesy many of them showed Mr. Reagan."

A different opinion was taken by Bob Narucki, a leader of the Notre Dame Young Americans for Freedom. Narucki maintained "I thought it was an ineffective demonstration."

Recall Campaign On!

Campaigning began yesterday. I'd like to see Tuesday's recall election with all four candidates stumping for votes, primarily concentrating on the North Quad.

Student Body President Richard Rossie began his campaign in Keenan with several of his supporters and some Student Government officials appealing for votes in other halls. Rossie said he would concentrate his campaign in "eminently freshman halls such as Keenan, Stanford, Zahm and Creagh, with extensive campaigning also slated for Dillon and Alumni.

Krause said, "The emphasis has to be placed on freshmen because apparently for too many freshmen we have not made myself clear and they simply lack the awareness of what I ran on in Chicago."

Krause went on to say they were trying to do in Student Government this year.

He added, "I don't think the question is whether I win but whether I get points over to those who don't understand what I propose and basically because they are not aware of the issues."

Krause also said that he would like to see as many candidates as possible in the recall election, in his own behalf. He also began in Keenan.

Dillon urged, "As a moderate, my candidacy gives you a lot of people a chance to vote when otherwise they wouldn't." He then added, "I'd like to see a lot of students voting."

CPA Asked-back NCR

The regional meeting of the Catholic Press Association opened yesterday at the Center for Continuing Education without the NCR condemnation issue on its agenda. It made little difference.

The National Catholic Reporter was condemned Oct. 10 by Bishop Charles H. Helmsing of Kansas City.

Between student pickets pushing the NCR out front and CPA members seeking support for a private statement inside, the 100 delegates had time to think of little else.

CPA President Monsignor Terrence P. McMahon, executive editor of The Hartford Transcript, said the regional organization could make no statement as a group regarding the dispute--excepting that such action would be contrary to its bylaws.
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) - A militant band of 72 demonstrators gave up about midnight yesterday as hundreds of police swiftly broke into a barricaded building at the University of California.

A few rocks and dirt clods were thrown as the force of 500 officers surrounded Moses Hall in the predawn darkness. At 5:30 a.m. a fire touched off a barricade near the main entrance was doused quickly.

The flurry of violence was triggered by 350 sympathizers outside the building. Three policemen and two youths were injured slightly.

Inside Moses Hall Thursday morning, 72 persons, including 26 girls, were arrested. They had seized the hall 12 hours earlier and proclaimed it "liberated" to support their demands for academic credit for a course on racism with a Black Panther as a lecturer.

Moments later, four other youths were seized a short distance from the building to bring the number arrested to 76. The four refused a police order to leave a bonfire, one of 18 set in the area during the night.

Within three hours, the demonstrators were carried off to Alameda County prison where 121 persons, including a professor, were released Wednesday following a peaceful sit-in at another campus building earlier in the week.

Both protests stemmed from controversy over the course, Social Analysis 139X, featuring Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther minister of information. An ex-convict indicted on assault charges stemming from a police shootout, Cleaver has spent most of his life in prison where he wrote the widely read book, "Soul on Ice."

Cleaver's lecture series has drawn the wrath of most state political leaders, especially Gov. Ronald Reagan. The governor left on a nine state GOP political tour Wednesday night after being assured by Berkeley administrators there would be no apprehension. "California will fight these uprisings," Reagan declared at his first stop in Helena, Mont. He blamed outside agitators for the unrest on the 28,000 student campus.

Among those arrested were Peter Camajo, whirl voice leader of the Young Socialist Alliance, and Jack Bloom, a graduate student who is the head of the Independent Socialist Club.

Stender, 28 year old Camajo, described by police as a professional agitator, has been in the forefront of nearly all Berkeley uprisings in the past three years. Bloom led the demonstrators on a Wednesday noontime march to chancellor Roger Hayns' office where nearly 300 staged a brief sit-in.

When the demonstrators were thwarted by campus police in an attempt to take over Campbell Hall, the campus' multi-million dollar computer center, they seized nearby Moses Hall, which has administrative offices for the racism class.

They barricaded the entrances with office furniture dragged from several rooms in the three-story building. Roads and pathways outside also were blockaded with boards, rocks, sandbags, steel and ripped from nearby construction projects.

When campus police warned the demonstrators their arrest was imminent, all but a hard-core few fled. By late evening, however, an estimated 2000 students had gathered outside the greystone building.

The trouble was quickly corrected by resetting a circuit breaker, and later analysis showed the problem apparently was caused by a minor overload resulting from the simultaneous starting and stopping of two fans.

Even though the problem did not develop again during the 163 orbit voyage, it remains one of two questions not completely resolved. The second involves the charging rate of spacecraft batteries.

The astronauts returned to the launch site Wednesday and are quartered at the moonport building where they lived during the final days before their Oct. 11 blastoff. They are scheduled to return to Houston Saturday for a reunion with their families.

Astronaut Chief Donald K. Slayton was participating in the talks along with engineers concerned with various moonship systems under discussion. The astronauts' recollections were recorded for future study.

The Yelllow-Billed Wordpicker doesn't write words. It helps you remember them.

The Scripto Wordpicker is a marking pen that underlines names, key words and highlights them in bright yellow. You don't use it to write down the things you have to remember; you use it to remember them.

That way you save all the time you used to spend making notes of those important things, and you also save the time you spent trying to remember where you wrote them.

The Yellow-Billed Wordpicker. For 49c, you shouldn't forget to buy one.
Gatz Announces Issue Day

Carolyn Gatz, SMC coordinator for the National Student Association, said yesterday that NSA has designated Tuesday, October 29, as Student Issue Day on university and college campuses throughout the country.

"The idea behind Student Issue Day," explained Miss Gatz, "is simply to provide us with the opportunity to meet with the members of the 'Establishment', both political and academic, and to question them face to face about the problems of 1968 and the plans for the future."

Miss Gatz said she has been in contact with all of the SMC professors holding classes on Tuesday and has requested that they set aside at least a portion of their class time for a discussion with the students concerning the particular problems of that class. In addition, several noonday teach-ins are being scheduled simultaneously around the campus. Miss Gatz said that many of the faculty members have agreed to participate in the teach-ins whose topics will range from "Motivation at SMC" to "Student Power". Sister Alma, Academic Dean, will conduct one of these on the subject of immediate academic changes in the college.

Following the teach-ins all the members of the faculty and administration have been invited to the SMC coffee house to meet with small groups of students. "I sometimes feel that our attitude over here is comparable to that of ghetto residents," said Miss Gatz. "We've been talking too long in vague terms about education and community; now it's almost November and still sitting on our hands. If, after four years and twelve thousand dollars you feel like education and community; now the attitude over here is comparable to that of ghetto residents," said Gatz. "We've been talking too long in vague terms about education and community; now it's almost November and still sitting on our hands. If, after four years and twelve thousand dollars you feel like education and community; now it's almost November and still sitting on our hands."

Lowentstein Canvass in New York Next Week

Pat Barbolla, chairman of the ND-SMC Students for Lowenstein, announced yesterday that students wishing to go to New York over the October 31-November 3 weekend to work for Cong. Alford K. Lowenstein will meet Sunday, October 27, at 2:30 p.m. on the second floor of the Laforet Student Center.

Lowenstein is the Democratic Liberal nominee for Congress in the 5th Congressional District, New York. An outspoken dove on the Viet Nam war, Lowenstein has stated that he would not vote for appropriations for the war.

"The idea behind Student Issue Day on the campus but he was unable to name either the professors or their topics until further plans had been formulated."

When asked if the SMC and Notre Dame activities were being held conjointly Kendall said: "No, but we certainly expect and welcome any St. Mary's students to join our discussions."

Girl's Ask for Seats

The St. Mary's College Faculty Assembly Tuesday discussed a bill that would place students on virtually every standing committee under academic affairs. Academic Commissioner Sally Davis reported that her proposal, which calls for total student participation in all aspects of academic life, was received favorably by the majority of the faculty members. The senate will discuss voting procedure on the bill at their next meeting, probably at the beginning of the week, Miss Davis said.

The new bill is a modification of a similar proposal written in September by the Academic Commission which called for students to be seated on two committees under the Academic Affairs council, and for some student representation on the main council itself.

"A faculty spokesman suggested to Miss Davis that a student referendum be taken on the proposal. This, he said, would strengthen the commissioner's stand that such a move is desirable to the majority of the student body."

The Assembly moved that the proposal be considered at the next meeting of the body. Davis said that the faculty has indicated that they would want a vote to agree with the principle of the proposal; second to decide which committees students should be seated on; and finally the number to be seated on the individual committees.

McDonald's French Fries

The best of the very best!

- made from Idaho Premiums
- prepared with extra care
- crisp and golden brown
- served piping hot!

"because there is a difference"

McDonald's

SOUTH BEND - MISHAWAKA - ELKHART

NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL LIFE

FINANCIAL PLANNING
for COLLEGE MEN

Your future starts the day you plan for it and sound planning starts with a call to:

David J. Stumm
134 St. Edward's Hall
283 - 8796

ORDER NOW FOR CHRISTMAS DELIVERY
NOTRE DAME BOOKSTORE

THE SPECIAL CHRISTMAS GIFT for SPECIAL PEOPLE

A beautiful token with a very special message, the Notre Dame miniature reproduces the official class ring design in delicately refined detail. Wide choice of plain and jeweled styles. Also matching wedding bands.

OFFICIAL NOTRE DAME MINIATURES

The SPECIAL FOR CHRISTMAS DELIVERY
NCR: Is It Catholic?

No doubt about it. The much-aligned, perhaps more adored National Catholic Reporter has turned the pages of the once harmless and pointless Catholic press upside down. The organization of this jolted press—The Catholic Press Association—has been meeting at the Center for Continuing Education. They are considering officially through their national board of directors and unofficially through private petitions the recent condemnation of the NCR by Kansas City Bishop Charles H. Helmsing.

It used to be that the lead story in everybody's Sunday Bulletin Sheet broke the hard news behind the scenes of Bishop Pomp's groundbreakings, ring-kissings and those oh-so-humble feet washings. That's what the Catholic press was all about: public relations propaganda aimed at Catholics with a mentality the editors must have appraised as comparable to incense pots.

Today, much of the Catholic press, if such a tag is not a contradiction in itself, is well on its way toward replacing patronage with professionalism. Herein seems to lie the problem. The bishops and the editors can dialogue, communicate and discuss as much as they can endure, but professional journalism is just never going to mix with a frightened hierarchy.

The CPA board of directors has suggested that the nation's bishops and its association in "drawing up guidelines for both bishops and journalists who are sincerely trying to carry out their respective responsibilities." That's a nice idea, but as realistic journalists the directors should know better.

If past performances are any indication, Bishop Helmsing is never going to agree to the kind of guidelines a free Catholic press would have to demand. And Bishop Helmsing is regarded as one of the more progressive bishops in the United States.

The best of papers, secular and religious, have a knack for asking the significant questions and expecting rational answers. The NCR has questioned the Church in areas not essential to a Catholic faith but never dared doubted by loyal Catholics before; instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. Instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. But now with an officious condemnation from Bishop Helmsing. But still now. If the Catholic press is serious about becoming a seeker of truth, there simply can be no reconciliation between them and a hierarchy which insists on placing tradition above thought and fear and emotion above intellectual honesty.

The hierarchy's fear of a thinking church is understandable in the often irrational context of Roman Catholic authoritarianism. The bishops are to be sympathised with, but not acceded to. The press can do much to show them the beauty of a free people seeking God and truth, but it cannot permit them to impede its mission to the rest of the world.

What is the CPA, or if it feels unable to speak as a group, then the individual Catholic publications to explain to the people they serve in the United States. The CPA board of directors has suggested that the nation's bishops and its association in "drawing up guidelines for both bishops and journalists who are sincerely trying to carry out their respective responsibilities." That's a nice idea, but as realistic journalists the directors should know better. If past performances are any indication, Bishop Helmsing is never going to agree to the kind of guidelines a free Catholic press would have to demand. And Bishop Helmsing is regarded as one of the more progressive bishops in the United States.

The best of papers, secular and religious, have a knack for asking the significant questions and expecting rational answers. The NCR has questioned the Church in areas not essential to a Catholic faith but never dared doubted by loyal Catholics before; instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. Instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. But now with an officious condemnation from Bishop Helmsing. But still now. If the Catholic press is serious about becoming a seeker of truth, there simply can be no reconciliation between them and a hierarchy which insists on placing tradition above thought and fear and emotion above intellectual honesty.

The hierarchy's fear of a thinking church is understandable in the often irrational context of Roman Catholic authoritarianism. The bishops are to be sympathised with, but not acceded to. The press can do much to show them the beauty of a free people seeking God and truth, but it cannot permit them to impede its mission to the rest of the world.

The organization of this jolted press—The Catholic Press Association—has been meeting at the Center for Continuing Education. They are considering officially through their national board of directors and unofficially through private petitions the recent condemnation of the NCR by Kansas City Bishop Charles H. Helmsing.

It used to be that the lead story in everybody's Sunday Bulletin Sheet broke the hard news behind the scenes of Bishop Pomp's groundbreakings, ring-kissings and those oh-so-humble feet washings. That's what the Catholic press was all about: public relations propaganda aimed at Catholics with a mentality the editors must have appraised as comparable to incense pots.

Today, much of the Catholic press, if such a tag is not a contradiction in itself, is well on its way toward replacing patronage with professionalism. Herein seems to lie the problem. The bishops and the editors can dialogue, communicate and discuss as much as they can endure, but professional journalism is just never going to mix with a frightened hierarchy.

The CPA board of directors has suggested that the nation's bishops and its association in "drawing up guidelines for both bishops and journalists who are sincerely trying to carry out their respective responsibilities." That's a nice idea, but as realistic journalists the directors should know better.

If past performances are any indication, Bishop Helmsing is never going to agree to the kind of guidelines a free Catholic press would have to demand. And Bishop Helmsing is regarded as one of the more progressive bishops in the United States.

The best of papers, secular and religious, have a knack for asking the significant questions and expecting rational answers. The NCR has questioned the Church in areas not essential to a Catholic faith but never dared doubted by loyal Catholics before; instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. Instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. But now with an officious condemnation from Bishop Helmsing. But still now. If the Catholic press is serious about becoming a seeker of truth, there simply can be no reconciliation between them and a hierarchy which insists on placing tradition above thought and fear and emotion above intellectual honesty.

The hierarchy's fear of a thinking church is understandable in the often irrational context of Roman Catholic authoritarianism. The bishops are to be sympathised with, but not acceded to. The press can do much to show them the beauty of a free people seeking God and truth, but it cannot permit them to impede its mission to the rest of the world.

The CPA board of directors has suggested that the nation's bishops and its association in "drawing up guidelines for both bishops and journalists who are sincerely trying to carry out their respective responsibilities." That's a nice idea, but as realistic journalists the directors should know better. If past performances are any indication, Bishop Helmsing is never going to agree to the kind of guidelines a free Catholic press would have to demand. And Bishop Helmsing is regarded as one of the more progressive bishops in the United States.

The best of papers, secular and religious, have a knack for asking the significant questions and expecting rational answers. The NCR has questioned the Church in areas not essential to a Catholic faith but never dared doubted by loyal Catholics before; instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. Instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. But now with an officious condemnation from Bishop Helmsing. But still now. If the Catholic press is serious about becoming a seeker of truth, there simply can be no reconciliation between them and a hierarchy which insists on placing tradition above thought and fear and emotion above intellectual honesty.

The hierarchy's fear of a thinking church is understandable in the often irrational context of Roman Catholic authoritarianism. The bishops are to be sympathised with, but not acceded to. The press can do much to show them the beauty of a free people seeking God and truth, but it cannot permit them to impede its mission to the rest of the world.

The CPA board of directors has suggested that the nation's bishops and its association in "drawing up guidelines for both bishops and journalists who are sincerely trying to carry out their respective responsibilities." That's a nice idea, but as realistic journalists the directors should know better. If past performances are any indication, Bishop Helmsing is never going to agree to the kind of guidelines a free Catholic press would have to demand. And Bishop Helmsing is regarded as one of the more progressive bishops in the United States.

The best of papers, secular and religious, have a knack for asking the significant questions and expecting rational answers. The NCR has questioned the Church in areas not essential to a Catholic faith but never dared doubted by loyal Catholics before; instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. Instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. But now with an officious condemnation from Bishop Helmsing. But still now. If the Catholic press is serious about becoming a seeker of truth, there simply can be no reconciliation between them and a hierarchy which insists on placing tradition above thought and fear and emotion above intellectual honesty.

The hierarchy's fear of a thinking church is understandable in the often irrational context of Roman Catholic authoritarianism. The bishops are to be sympathetic with, but not acceded to. The press can do much to show them the beauty of a free people seeking God and truth, but it cannot permit them to impede its mission to the rest of the world.

We urge the CPA, or if it feels unable to speak as a group, then the individual Catholic publications to explain to the people they serve in the United States. The CPA board of directors has suggested that the nation's bishops and its association in "drawing up guidelines for both bishops and journalists who are sincerely trying to carry out their respective responsibilities." That's a nice idea, but as realistic journalists the directors should know better. If past performances are any indication, Bishop Helmsing is never going to agree to the kind of guidelines a free Catholic press would have to demand. And Bishop Helmsing is regarded as one of the more progressive bishops in the United States.

The best of papers, secular and religious, have a knack for asking the significant questions and expecting rational answers. The NCR has questioned the Church in areas not essential to a Catholic faith but never dared doubted by loyal Catholics before; instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. Instead of rational answers, these questions have been met with pleas for blind loyalty from Pope Paul, with soppy cries of "irreverent" from many clergy and people working for him. But now with an officious condemnation from Bishop Helmsing. But still now. If the Catholic press is serious about becoming a seeker of truth, there simply can be no reconciliation between them and a hierarchy which insists on placing tradition above thought and fear and emotion above intellectual honesty.

The hierarchy's fear of a thinking church is understandable in the often irrational context of Roman Catholic authoritarianism. The bishops are to be sympathetic with, but not acceded to. The press can do much to show them the beauty of a free people seeking God and truth, but it cannot permit them to impede its mission to the rest of the world.
The Moody Blues: A Study in Classical Rock

by Bill Thieman

There is considerable speculation of late as to the possibility of rock reaching the stature of "classical" music. Such albums as "Sgt. Pepper" and "The Who's Quadrophenia" and "In Search of the Lost Chord" (among others) suggest that the possibility of rock reaching the stature of "classical" music is not an outlandish conjecture. The question is whether or not this development will be a temporary fad or a permanent one.

John Lodge

The Moody Blues have advanced rock to an entirely new dimension. Let us hope that the trend continues and that the possibilities are limited only by the limits of art. Captain Eric Clapton and the Flying Lapels have advanced the form of rock music, it merely juxtaposes traditional Gregorian chant with an orchestral rock background. But, although considerably more sophisticated, suffers from the same defect of heterogeneity: it interposes good Moody Blues rock with symphonic passages by the London Festival Orchestra.

Sometime after "Days of Future Passed" (the Moody Blues), the Moody Blues have advanced rock to an entirely new dimension. Let us hope that the trend continues and that the possibilities are limited only by the limits of art. Captain Eric Clapton and the Flying Lapels have advanced the form of rock music, it merely juxtaposes traditional Gregorian chant with an orchestral rock background. But, although considerably more sophisticated, suffers from the same defect of heterogeneity: it interposes good Moody Blues rock with symphonic passages by the London Festival Orchestra.

Sometimes after "Days of Future Passed," the Moody Blues dropped the symphony orchestra, employed a bevy of 20 different instruments (all played by the Moody Blues), three voices, and their own music, and last month released "In Search of the Lost Chord." Yes, the same Moody Blues that four years ago recorded "Go Now" and then faded into obscurity with Freddy and the Dreamers, Gerry and the Pacemakers, the Prunes' effort is a total failure in that, rather than continue the ballsy rock of their first album, they have produced an album full of mediocrity, one that "thinking is the best way to travel," speeding through the universe on a beam of light. The insight that he is one with the universe, beyond distance and time, leads to the realization that "Thinking is the Best Way to Travel," speeding through the universe on a beam of light. The "Victims of Paradise," a song that is totally complete. It is on the second side that the central metaphor music comes to life. Ray Thomas' flute work is alive with color. The "Voices in the Sky" have become LeMans Circle 12:30, NO Circle 12:45 transportation & food (some) provided. Return by 5:30.

Ray Thomas Justin Hayward

appear to be up to date on Leary's "teachings." A reprise of the sprawling "House of Four Doors" is totally complete. It is on the second side that the central metaphor music comes to life. Ray Thomas' flute work is alive with color. The "Voices in the Sky" have become LeMans Circle 12:30, NO Circle 12:45 transportation & food (some) provided. Return by 5:30.

HOCKEY BOOGIE": the songs are written by Ringo! George Harrison reveals that the long-awaited Beatle opus (24 songs, including one that the group could not break the precedent of giving each song movement a separate title. For those with Dick Clark syndromes (a concentration span of under three minutes), "Ride My See-Saw" is making it as a single.

The Moody Blues have advanced rock to an entirely new dimension. Let us hope that the trend continues and that the possibilities are limited only by the limits of art. Captain Eric Clapton and the Flying Lapels have advanced the form of rock music, it merely juxtaposes traditional Gregorian chant with an orchestral rock background. But, although considerably more sophisticated, suffers from the same defect of heterogeneity: it interposes good Moody Blues rock with symphonic passages by the London Festival Orchestra.

If only does "In Search of the Lost Chord" board of unity and structure, it also presents a philosophy: the essence of that philosophy is order: structure and unity. Sgt. Pepper brought us a rough sketch of repeating melodies and themes. The trend towards classical rock has inspired efforts like Mass in F-Minor (the Electric Prunes) and Days of Future Passed (the Moody Blues). The Prunes' effort is a total failure in that, rather than expanding the form of rock music, it merely juxtaposes traditional Gregorian chant with an orchestral rock background. But, although considerably more sophisticated, suffers from the same defect of heterogeneity: it interposes good Moody Blues rock with symphonic passages by the London Festival Orchestra.

Sometimes after "Days of Future Passed" (the Moody Blues), the Moody Blues have advanced rock to an entirely new dimension. Let us hope that the trend continues and that the possibilities are limited only by the limits of art. Captain Eric Clapton and the Flying Lapels have advanced the form of rock music, it merely juxtaposes traditional Gregorian chant with an orchestral rock background. But, although considerably more sophisticated, suffers from the same defect of heterogeneity: it interposes good Moody Blues rock with symphonic passages by the London Festival Orchestra.

It is on the second side that the central metaphor music comes to life. Ray Thomas' flute work is alive with color. The "Voices in the Sky" have become LeMans Circle 12:30, NO Circle 12:45 transportation & food (some) provided. Return by 5:30.
Good Grief-- Pumpkin War!

The "Great Pumpkin Race" is on!

It all started two days ago when Observer editor Bill Laskow bought a 23 pound pumpkin and pretentiously flashed it in view of Student Union VP, Bill Wade. Wade turned orange with envy and the race was on. Immediately battle lines were drawn between the Observer and Student Union, and a quest began to search out and capture the largest pumpkin available or not available. It became a matter of pride and absurdity (with several cases of uts at stake).

An estimated 1,500 policemen have been mobilized for any candidate's appearance here in this year's campaign. The combined security force for any candidate's appearance here in this year's campaign, struggled to prevent clashes between Wallace and anti-Wallace factions inside and outside the huge arena before Wallace entered.

Inside the garden, police seized a Negro youth who charged toward the stage, allegedly carrying a pistol before Wallace and his running mate George Curtis LeMay had made their appearance.

At one point on the street a dozen mounted policemen were surrounded by the shouting, sign waving demonstrators, many of whom carried the American and Wallace factional flags and white type combat helmets. The officers swung their night sticks as they maneuvered the mob. The police hit the demonstrators harder before the rally began.

Wallace backers shouted "Hey Nigger, get out you don't belong." One youth in a checked jacket wearing a Wallace button shouted "Kill them." The demonstrators responded by smiling silently, their fingers raised in the "V" for victory sign.

Allow me to introduce myself, I'm Bernadine Connolly, a junior at St. Mary's, that school "across the road." I'm affiliated with Benton's in downtown South Bend, and we'd like to have you visit our store if you haven't done so recently. We take pride in our stock, ranging from the latest in casual wear to the newest in formal attire. Whether you're a guy looking for a gift for that "special girl" (from SMC of course) or a girl looking for something new for this weekend, we hope Benton's will become your store.

Bernadine

Riot at Wallace Speech

Police on foot and horseback scuffled with more than 1,000 protesters outside Madison Square Garden on Monday when third-party presidential candidate George Wallace made his much heralded first New York appearance.

An estimated 1,500 policemen have been mobilized for any candidate's appearance here in this year's campaign, struggled to prevent clashes between Wallace and anti-Wallace factions inside and outside the huge arena before Wallace entered.

Inside the garden, police seized a Negro youth who charged toward the stage, allegedly carrying a pistol before Wallace and his running mate George Curtis LeMay had made their appearance.

At one point on the street a dozen mounted policemen were surrounded by the shouting, sign waving demonstrators, many of whom carried the American and Wallace factional flags and white type combat helmets. The officers swung their night sticks as they maneuvered the mob. The police hit the demonstrators harder before the rally began.

Wallace backers shouted "Hey Nigger, get out you don’t belong." One youth in a checked jacket wearing a Wallace button shouted "Kill them." The demonstrators responded by smiling silently, their fingers raised in the "V" for victory sign.

Petition

Disagreement with Pope Paul's recent handling of the issue of contraceptives before the Vatican's most important clergy, many leaders in the church have decided to make a protest. A group of about 20 anti contraceptive demonstrators unfurled huge banners before the rally got underway. One read "Welcome to New York, You Racist Rattler." It quickly drew a large crowd of Wallace supporters and helmeted police with nightsticks at the ready moved between the two groups to prevent a clash.

"Black power," yelled the Negroes among the anti-Wallace group. "Fascists," shouted the white anti-Wallace demonstrators. Police and Secret Servicemen ringed the speakers platform which was decked in red, white and blue bunting with American flags at either end.

A Confederate flag draped behind the platform was removed shortly before the rally began.

Wallace backers shouted "Hey Nigger, get out you don't belong." One youth in a checked jacket wearing a Wallace button shouted "Kill them." The demonstrators responded by smiling silently, their fingers raised in the "V" for victory sign.

Max Lockman Lecture Tonight

The Graduate Theological Union is sponsoring a lecture this evening by the noted Lutheran theologian, Max Lockman. The talk, which will be given in the Moreau Seminary auditorium at 8:00 p.m., has been entitled "Does Peter Have a Successor?" and promises to deal straightforwardly with some diverse issues on the topic of reunion and ecclesiology.

Pastor Lockman, now an officer in teh League for Evangelical-Catholic Reunion, an organization which he helped found in 1960, has had a long and interesting career. Born in 1910 in Erfurt, Germany, and educated at the universities of Bonn, Basel, and Munster, he came under the influence of Karl Barth very early in his career. While still studying for the ministry, he spoke out quite openly against the Nazi regime and in 1936-37, he was imprisoned by the Gestapo for his anti-Nazi preaching. In 1937 he was released, but the German-Christian Church Board of Berlin denied him permission to take his theological examination because of his anti-Nazi and pro-British leanings.

When the war broke out in 1939, he joined the army, but soon after his discharge in 1941, he was more imprisoned, this time in Dachau, for his preaching. He stayed in the concentration camp until he was freed by the allied forces in 1945.

From this time until 1959, he served as pastor of the Evangelical State Church of Westphalia, and he has carried on extensive exegetical and dogmatic studies. Pastor Lockman, married and the father of five children spent four years as an observer of the Vatican Council in Rome.

Drury Here

James Drury, star of the television series The Virginian and Ed Whitcomb, the Indiana GOP gubernatorial candidate will be the feature attractions at the "Round-Up for Nixon" in Stegeman this Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The program is co-sponsored by the NDR's, ND Students for Nixon, and ND Students for Whitcomb. Admission will be by ticket only and complimentary tickets are available in room 137 BF and room 402 Morrey.

Louies Open

"...You never lose a fight for getting knocked down—only for not getting back up."

"Tres Magnifique"

131 S. Michigan St.
Downtown So. Bend

PAGE 6
THE OBSERVER
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1968
Didn’t Take Spartan Brenner Long

It didn’t take Michigan State’s Al Brenner long to enter his name in the football record books.

In October, 1966, Brenner, a sophomore playing in his first Big Ten game, picked off an Illinois punt at the Michigan State 5 yard line and raced 95 yards for a touchdown. He thereby set a record for the longest punt return in the 72-year history of the conference.

Now, two years later, Al is the team captain, an academic star and a top All-America candidate. At the start of the 1968 campaign, Al was third on the all-time Michigan State pass receiving list behind Bob Carey and Gene Washington. He already has passed Carey and moved up to the No. 2 spot. Washington has 102 receptions, though, and could be beyond Al’s reach.

This fall, in addition to his punt-catching duties, Al is called on to lend his talents to the defensive crew as a safety.

“Brenner has the ability to go both ways,” says receivers coach Cal Stoll, “because if you are a good receiver you know how to defend against passes.”

In 1966, as a sophomore, Al broke into the starting lineup of Michigan State’s national championship team. He proved to be no ordinary rookie as he grabbed 22 passes for 357 yards and one touchdown and led the Big Ten in punt returns.

Last year the 6-1, 202-pound end from Niles was one of the few bright spots in an otherwise disappointing 3-7 season. He headed in 26 punts for 462 yards and 4 touchdowns. He is a political science major with near “A” grades and is heading to law school. A very serious student, Al is married and the father of a three-year-old son.

ND 14 - Point Pick

(UPI) - Of the nine remaining unbeaten, unified football teams in the major college ranks, at least a third appear in danger of falling from the lofty heights Saturday.

The only team assured of keeping its record unblemished is top ranked Southern California—and that’s only because the Trojans are idle this weekend.

USC, Ohio State, Kansas, Penn State—the nation’s four highest ranked teams—all boast perfect records, as do Arizona, Harvard, Ohio University, Pennsylvania and Yale.

Ohio State, expected to struggle with Dayton to remain among the unbeaten and the same is true of Arizona with its 3-0-1 record, gets a chance this week to show how good it really is.

Sometimes sparkles in an otherwise disappointing 3-7 season. He is a political science major with near “A” grades and is heading to law school. A very serious student, Al is married and the father of a three-year-old son.

If you’re looking for -

1. Routine work assignments
2. A job without responsibility
3. A “9 to 5” atmosphere

Fine! But not at FMC

At FMC Chemicals, growth is in sales volume has been unprecedented in recent years. Everybody has contributed to this growth, through research, manufacturing innovations and unique marketing techniques - the result of new ideas, remembered and hard work. Would you fit in a team like this? To we have a challenge in the chemical industry.

We need people for:

- Sales
- Research and Development
- Manufacturing
- Engineering

At these locations:

- Philadelphia, Philadelphia, N.Y.
- Baltimore, Md.
- Saks, Miami, N.Y.
- Air Force Academy, Colorado.
- Princeton, Carteret, N.J.
- Middleport, N.Y.
- Princeton, Carteret, N.J.
- Boise, N.Y.
- Green River, Wyo.
- Boca Raton, Fl.
- Baltimore, Md.
- Baltimore, Md.
- Buffalo, N.Y.
- Wilmington, Del.
- Dallas, Tex.
- Carteret, N.J.
- Lawrence, Kansas

Would you like to learn more about how you can succeed at FMC’s program? Write the FMC Chemicals, Personnel Relations Dept., P.O. Box 280, Maspeth, N.Y. 11378, to find out more information about the FMC Chemicals training program.

Our Interviewer Will Be On Campus On:

Cavanaugh Hall Presents
Blitz the Spartans

At the Mishawaka Conservation Club, Friday, October 25, 8:00 to 12:00. Free Refreshments. Tickets $4.50. Buses leave the Circle at 7:30, 8:00, 8:30. Buses leave Holy Cross Hall at 7:45, 8:45.

Olympics Roundup

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - Debbie Meyer swept the women’s 800 meter freestyle with ridiculous ease Thursday night to become the first swimmer in Olympic history to win three individual gold medals and move the United States a huge lead for the games’ team title.

The United States won only one other gold medal during the day-by-Carl Robie of Drexel Hill, Pa., in the men’s 200 meter butterfly—but boosted its gold total to 37, one more than it won at Tokyo four years ago. In addition, Americans won a silver and three bronze in swimming to increase the York laurels medals total to 88, not including seven cinch medals in boxing.

There were four swimming finals Thursday night with Holland’s world record holder, Ada Kok, winning the women’s 200 meter butterfly in the Olympic record time of 2:24.7, and Mike Wenden of Australia outpacing Schollander and John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla., in 1:55.2, to win the men’s 200 meter freestyle.

The United States won only one other gold medal during the day-by-Carl Robie of Drexel Hill, Pa., in the men’s 200 meter butterfly—but boosted its gold total to 37, one more than it won at Tokyo four years ago. In addition, Americans won a silver and three bronze in swimming to increase the York laurels medals total to 88, not including seven cinch medals in boxing.

There were four swimming finals Thursday night with Holland’s world record holder, Ada Kok, winning the women’s 200 meter butterfly in the Olympic record time of 2:24.7, and Mike Wenden of Australia outpacing Schollander and John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla., in 1:55.2, to win the men’s 200 meter freestyle.
ND Over State

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - These Olympians aren't telling everything they know.

If you're looking for something good for Saturday, for example, you have to know a Greco Roman wrestler, who sends you to a guy who knows.

Pittsburgh over the Air Force—Those Panthers do some peculiar things. Dake over the Army—Blue Devils are making this one of a bunch.

THE SOUTH

Virginia over Navy—Middle are too erratic.

Arkansas over Brown, Yale over Cornell, Dartmouth's over Harvard, Princeton over Pennsylvania, Buffalo over Holy Cross, Villanova over Butler, Maryland over Columbia, Rhode Island over Maine, Connecticut over Massachusetts and Temple over Delaware.

THE MIDWEST

Kansas over Iowa State—Little chance of any upset here. Notre Dame over Michigan State—Could be one here, though. Purdue over Iowa—Boilermakers still boiling over some of last week's push-around.

THE FAR WEST

San Diego over Arizona State, Oklahoma over Colorado, Missouri over Kansas State, Wisconsin over Northern Illinois, Illinois over Ohio, Michigan over Wisconsin, Missouri over Iowa, Oklahoma over Missouri, Texas over Oklahoma State, Michigan over Ohio State, Colorado over Oregon, Michigan State over Stanford, Washington over Notre Dame, Stanford over Washington, California over Oregon State.

The Pros

Don Shula, Baltimore's coach, discovered he didn't have to draw many diagrams for his players. They know, without any pictures. Sunday is the day they do or don't. They also know there's only one—either a tough offense or a tough defense. Our opponents also have some fine personnel on defense. Coach Parmer gave us a report from Duffy Daugherty.

The South

Miami over Alabama—You can't make a move against those Hurricanes. Georgia over Kentucky—Kentucky's quarterback has come down with appendicitis.

The Irish Eye

By Terry O'Neill, sports editor

Butler Trio

Butler, Pa., High School has supplied the nation's colleges with a number of fine athletes. Three of the best will be on display Saturday in East Lansing—Terry Hanratty, Rich Saul and his identical twin brother Ron. Hanratty's distinguishing physical mark is a chipped tooth. There's a difference in the classroom, too. Hanratty and his mates could manage "only" a 7-2 record.

Next year, Rich and Ron were on the line and T.H.I. (in the defensive secondary as the Golden Tornado went 9-0 before losing the Western Pennsylvania Class AA Final 12-6 to West Mifflin in the North.)

In 1964, Hanratty moved to quarterback and directed an 8-1 season. "The Gobbler" graduated that year. However, the Sauls carried on in 1965 with another 9-0 record, but another defeat as the West Penn championship tilt.

Rich (6-2, 218) is more highly regarded than his twin. In fact, has been one of Sports Illustrated's five top seniors in 1967. From the first day of practice, he was MSU's starting defensive left end. He logged 296 minutes and led the squad with 92 tackles, including 33 solo.

Rich was switched to roverback at the start of 1968 spring drills, but wound up at linebacker due to the rapid development of sophomore Gary Parmienter at the rover spot.

In one of his rare, serious moments, Duffy Daugherty said of Rich, "He is so sound technically. He doesn't make any mistakes on defense." That quality, plus size and speed (4.8 for the 40-yard dash in full football gear) brand Rich a top pro prospect.

Ron (6-2, 235) will start Saturday at offensive right guard. He came in for a share of praise from assistant mentor Cal Stoll who said, "These kids are two of the finest, most dedicated football players you'll find in the nation today. I've never seen anybody so coachable as they are, and I know Duffy agrees with me.

In a routine head photograph, with their mouths closed, it would take brother Bill, a Pittsburgh Steeler linebacker, to tell them apart.

Rich's distinguishing physical mark is a chipped tooth. There's a difference in the classroom, too. Rich carries a B average in liberal arts while Ron, a physical education major, sat out his freshman year, bringing his grades up to the Big Ten eligibility level.

On Tape

One of the latest trends in sports publicity is the taped telephone interview. It is designed to keep sportswriters off a busy coach's back throughout the week and still dispatch necessary information to the press.

Michigan State probably uses the system more extensively than any other school.

On Tuesdays and Wednesdays, writers can call a secret number (made available only to the press via MSU's weekly releases) for a report from Duffy Daugherty.

Thurdays and Fridays are devoted to Spartan features. On Saturdays and Sundays, one can hear the weekly review of all MSU weekend sports activity.

Notre Dame employs a similar service "All America". On Tuesdays, the publicity department mails out to the media three questions which Ara will answer on tape. Again, the phone number is kept secret.

Look Out, Duffy!!

One of the biggest rivalries in the country will continue tomorrow afternoon. Its great prestige is apparent from the public demand to have it nationally televised. This year's game is one of the many ND-MSU battles the tube has picked up, so be looking for the Goodyear Blimp flying over Spartan Stadium.

When Notre Dame and Michigan State clash, you can throw away all records and statistics and look for a game filled with many thrills and surprises.

All the teams we have played so far have had one platoon much stronger than the other—either a tough offense or a tough defense. But Michigan State is the most balanced team on our schedule this fall.

Our defense this season is much different from Spartan teams we are accustomed to. We will not see any Bobbie Smith or George Webster. This squad will be considerably smaller and quicker.

MSU has one of the best pass receivers in the country in Al Brenner. He is very unusual because he is one of the few fellows in major college football who plays both offense and defense.

Duffy has a veteran quarterback, Bill Feraco from Greensburg, Pa. Feraco had an exceptional second half against the Irish in '67 when he brought the Spartans within 12 points of us. Along with Feraco in the backfield will be Dan Hightower and Tommy Love, a pair of runners who will continue the tradition of fleet-footed backs on the East Lansing campus.

Our opponents also have some fine personnel on defense. Coach Pastner says, "Michigan State has two of the finest linebackers in the country in Don Law and Rich Saul.

I can tell you of the ability of Rich Saul. He and his twin brother, Ron, who plays offensive guard, were teammates of mine from sixth grade through high school. We are good friends off the field, but we seem to have a difference of opinion about who should win the game tomorrow.

Another defensive standout you might watch for is All-America candidate Charles Bailey who is playing his third straight year as a regular for coach Daugherty.

The Notre Dame team of 1968 has broken many records already. But there is another string we would like to break tomorrow. The Irish have not beaten the Spartans in East Lansing since 1949. Look out, Duffy!!