NEW YORK (UPI) - Roy Wilkins, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said yesterday the NAACP would go to court to block the creation of "autonomous" black studies programs and black student dormitories on college campuses.

The statement put Wilkins, executive director of the nation's oldest civil rights group, in direct opposition to the recent move by some Negro students across the country now demanding black studies programs which they control and dormitories for black students only.

Wilkins said these demands represent, "in essence, the setting up of racially based Jim Crow schools," and he said the use of public tax monies to do this was being done by him and NAACP lawyers to be unconstitutional.

"... if some white Americans, torn and confused by today's clamor of some black students, should accede officially to the call for separate dormitories and autonomous racial schools within colleges and universities, there will be court action to determine anyone's right to use public tax funds to set up what are, prejudicedly, Jim Crow schools," he said.

Wilkins made the statement to about 200 NAACP representatives from throughout the United States at the 60th annual corporate meeting of the organization last night.

SAS Airliner Crashes In Pacific

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - A Scandinavian Airlines System DC-8 jet with 45 persons aboard crashed into the Pacific Ocean during a rainstorm last night, killing at least four persons.

The Minneapolis-based private small craft had picked up four bodies from the choppy sea and that 13 persons were missing. Earlier reports said all 36 passengers and nine crew members were saved.

Black Occupation Continues in East WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) - Protesting Negro students kept occupations of buildings going yesterday at Brandeis University and Swarthmore College in attempts to enforce their will on administration officials.

President at Brandeis steadfastly refused control of the campus switchboard by installation of 16 new telephone lines to prevent university business.

The Negroes barricaded in Ford Hall on the Brandeis Campus at Waltham, Mass., passed up an offer to submit their written demands to the school president for discussion.

The president, Morris B. Abram, invited the demonstrators to meet with them and talk over their wants. The blacks failed to write out their demands. He said if they did so he would be willing to sign them and talk over their wants. The blacks failed to respond to the invitation.

Abram briefed the mayor of Waltham on the situation and continued to decry bringing in police. That, he said, would be "the last thing" he would want.

Some two dozen Negro students remained for a fifth day inside the student center office at Swarthmore College in attempts to enforce their will on administration officials.

Student officials agreed to demands for active recruitment of black students, but they would not commit the university to a specific time for admission policies for black students and appointment of a Negro as counselor. They said they would not use force to escort the demonstrators.

Shaw Trial To Be Held on Schedule WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) - Dist. Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. today refused to delay or move the scheduled Jan. 21 trial of Clay Shaw on charges of conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

Haggerty denied defense motions to quash Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's charges against Shaw, and for a change of venue to move the trial outside New Orleans.

Haggerty said he would release rules for newsmen covering the trial today. Haggerty already had rejected the same defense motions once before. He turned them down summarily yesterday.

Garrison has accused Shaw of conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and David Ferrie in New Orleans in 1963 to murder Kennedy. Oswald, Ruby and Ferrie are dead.

Romance Rumors Run UCLA ANGELES (UPI) - The UCLA Italian Department chairman said yesterday he still was in the dark as to whether three teaching assistants wanted romance with particular coeds.

"We haven't talked to any coeds yet who have any such charges," Faculty Col. Paul said. "We have talked to all the teaching assistants in the department, but haven't come up with anything yet."

Fido heads a three-member committee investigating the report. The student paper also reported that the three teaching assistants wanted to keep these coeds baubles and that they would then ask their two Ph.D. students to take higher-level tutoring from specific teaching assistants.

"I cannot help wondering why the students who made the charges in the Daily Bruin did not come up and speak to me first," Fido said.

Wilkins Slams Black Study Programs

NEW YORK (UPI) - Roy Wilkins, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said yesterday he still was in the dark as to whether three teaching assistants wanted romance with particular coeds.

Student Union President Rick Rembusch commented last night on the proposed constitutional amendments included in the Hunter-Davye Senate Bill, which would effect sweeping changes in the Student Union, saying, "It disturbs me that some senators feel that this vote for amendment is a vote to increase their own power. That's simply not true. The Student Union is subordinate to the Senate right now, and the Senate has final words on everything."

Rembusch said that this amendment would in no way increase the power of the Senate; instead it would simply increase the power of the Student Body President.

Student Body Vice-President Chuck Nau, when questioned about the Student Union's opposition to the Senate's idea, said, "Rembusch has, for the first time, acknowledged the total power that the Senate has over the Student Union."

Nau continued, "It is hard for me to understand how the very few senators who support a completely autonomous Union, Mike Meade, in particular, can call for that kind of autonomy, and yet continually harp, as Meade has done, that first of all, the Senate has power, and Student Union spend too much money, secondly, the Senate has the right to control Student Union's such expenditures, thirdly, the students themselves have very little control over how their money is spent, and finally, there is very little opportunity for budget reviews."

Nau said that the constitution calls for the Student Union President to report to every Senate meeting, but Rembusch only has spoken at three meetings thus far."The constitution also calls for a report from the Student Body Treasurer," said Nau, "and he has done so at almost every meeting."

Student Union President Rembusch replied, "The word on anything we do doesn't have never informed me of when or where the Senate meetings are being held. I realize it is in the Constitution for me to be informed, but it is difficult for me to find out when I don't know about them. There have been occasions when I have wandered in on some of these meetings and have been recognized by certain members, but I have never been asked to take the floor."

Illegal Operation Foiled

LITTLE FERRY, N.J. (UPI) — Federal agents and state police confiscated a truckload of stolen military weapons yesterday night and arrested a National Guardian and a civilian employee, accusing them of running one of the nation's largest black markets for guns.

An Internal Revenue Service agent said the weapons included machine guns, anti-aircraft guns, carbines and explosives. They were picked up during raids on houses in this New York City suburb and in nearby Garfield. National Guard Sgt. William Walko, a fulltime guardman employed as an arsenal custodian at the National Guard armory in Teaneck, and Kenneth J. Herbeck, 26, a civilian gun repairman for the National Guard, were arrested.

The IRS said Herbeck worked out of the West Orange, N.J. armory and traveled all over the state making gun repairs. The two houses raided served as warehouses for the stolen guns.

Paul Hankins, chief of the IRS for New Jersey, said the raids produced "a truckload of weapons" and the cache was the biggest he had seen in 20 years with the IRS.

Hankins said the weapons apparently were stolen from military arsenals at bases throughout the country. They were resold on the black market when it became known "by word of mouth" that they were available.

Hankins declined to estimate the profits of the operation, but said the weapons "turn up in the hands of snipers and in riot areas."

The guns seized in the raids included Thompson submachine guns, Russian-made automatic weapons, and a .50 caliber anti-aircraft machine gun. Boxes of grenades also were seized.

Hankins said a third suspect was being sought. He said that the ring appeared to be operated by only a "few individuals" and that organized crime apparently had no part in the operation.

The Student Senate will meet tonight and mumble in the morass of "constitutional reform." The Senate, impotent, has chosen not to change and unchangeable, in this case, the governing of this University for several years, will finally have the chance of making itself feel. The change that it can effect tonight, that of making the Union President a direct and not only an appointed officer of the Student Body Presidency, will be, however, destructive, repressive, and reactionary.

Richard Rossie has spoken quite a bit about student power in the past two years. He scared a lot of people last spring, and his boorish tongue got him into a jam in September. Rossie, however, is really a pretty tame animal and a most constructive radical. He's been an excellent Student Body President and the most conscientious elected officer imaginable.

Student power, however, means more than opening student board of directors to abolition of the Union's Board of Directors is absolutely necessary for any change that it can effect tonight, that of making the Union President to a board; the SBP chairs the board. The board appoints and can remove the Student President. Meanwhile Rembusch, Wade, Lanwermeyer, Knappenberger, and Mroz have to contend with the details and try to please everybody with goodies and not just promises.

Changing the Student Union President's title and putting him in charge of the SLC, the judicial system, the inclusion of student rights in the student Manual, support of the Free University, curriculum reform, and furthering ND's contacts with NSA were possible because he was free from the jobs once performed by the SBP that the Union President now handles. Rossie has been free to meet with Hesburgh, Rielle, MacCarragher, Joyen, and Wilson, to see Ed Stephan, to listen to complaints, and to represent the student body. He hasn't had to worry about concerts, lectures, shuttle buses, campus press, the student directory, March First, Homecoming, Grand Prix, scheduling class functions, and whatever else the Union does.

This is hardly meant as a pan on the Student Union. The Union has its faults (The Academic Commission demonstrates a pathetic lack of taste and the Social Commission has more than its share of problems.), but it also does things and seems to do it pretty well.

So far Rossie's done his thing, and he's done it well. The problem seems to be that the Student President doesn't know when he's got it good. Right now he's on top of everything ND's number one hack-heel. The present constitution subordinates the Student Union President to a board; the SBP chairs the board. The board appoints and can remove the Student President. Meanwhile Rembusch, Wade, Lanwermeyer, Knappenberger, and Mroz have to contend with the details and try to please everybody with goodies and not just promises.

Changing the Student Union President's title and putting him under the direct appointment of and subject to direct removal by one arbitrary political figure ranks as the most foolish move witnessed on campus in the last two years. Senators favoring the bill have been basing their support on the contention that the bill's passage will enhance the power of the Senate. The Senate's present authority over the Student Union, its budget, its spending, and the appointment of its president, however, will not be enlarged or even affected by the legislation. Only the Student President's power will be enhanced.

Rossie contends that the Union is the service arm of Student Government. That's fine. The attempt to make the Union the service branch of the office of the Student President, however, is an entirely different issue. The Union has to be a business organization serving the student body; it can't be a political football.

The move to change the Union President's title and manner of appointment and to abolish the Union's Board of Directors is disturbing in several aspects. The Union Director, as Hunter and Davey would call him, is quite likely to be a hack politician, appointed without regard to qualifications. Playing with the Constitution again reinforces a growing precedent for constantly amending and changing and reamending the document. The most important point ignored by those who wish to alter the present set up is that the Union is a business doing one quarter of a million dollars worth of business per year. It has contracts to provide services and to consume goods and services. It can not be directed or administered by political whim. Those wishing to change the present structure are ignorant of any principles of management. The Union must be allowed to develop without needless change and continuity must be expected. The Union's direction is best determined by and its functioning best supervised by its board—a board which should be headed by the Student President, the highest elected representative of the student body. The day to day operation of the Union and its multiple facets, however, should be run by a Student President, appointed by and responsible to the board.

The title can be changed. That alteration is the only one which should even be considered.
Joe Is A Good Boy

MIAMI (UPI) — The most worried person in the ballpark was a boy.

John Namath, 61-years-old, has a perpetual glint in his eye like his son is like any other father. He doesn’t want to see his boy get hurt. "I’m the proudest father in the world," he said. "Not only of Joe son and is like any other father. He doesn’t want to see his boy get hurt."

John Namath was among the happy, excited celebrants in the home of super bowl victory over the Baltimore Colts.

"That’s the only thing that worried me," confessed the elder Namath after watching his son lead the underdog New York Jets to a last third quarter of the season against Boston and dislocated again against Oakland in the AFL title game two weeks ago.

"What are you gonna do, Joe, go out there and play the game all over," one of his teammates called after him, laughing all the time.

"Where did you ever get that hat?" Mr. Namath, you’ve got a remarkable son," he said. "You’ve got a ballgame, that he kept walking from one corner of the dressing room to another and finally out the door trying to escape the mob."

"Big kid," who looked as though he should be playing defensive tackle for somebody, threw in a hook shot to the delight of the entire student body.

The deciding factor had to be ND’s superior height advantage. This was especially true at the guard positions where Murphy and O’Connell could shoot or feed almost at will during the Irish rally. Aside from 6-10 Cliff Parsons, the Air Force just didn’t have the horses. Noting the way that the Irish rebounded (54-38 edge), it may be a better comparison to say that they didn’t have the kangoers!

One final note shows that the Irish had their fewest number of turnovers in quite a while. They gave up the ball 14 times and at least 10 of these mishaps occurred in the first half.

Irish Cagers Hijack Air Force, 88-53

By TERRY SHIELDS

It was like watching two different ball games with three different teams competing last night, the first half. Notre Dame’s Figh ting Irish confronted the Air Force Falcons in a mess contest that even junior high school teams could snicker. ND had the ball, and the Air Force Academy just looked incept.

However, in the second half, the Irish came out breathing fire and they looked every bit of the champions everyone expected that team that they are. Unfortunately, for them, the visiting Falcons continued their usual show of play and the end result was a convincing 88-53 rout by the home team.

Bob Arizmendi was the only bright spot in the otherwise dismal first half as he canned 15 points. Coach John Dee substituted freely during the initial start and there were many times of play that at times these were a little lower than murmurs) among the student body. ND still managed a 33-26 advantage.

The beginning of the second half saw the Air Force douse to 3 points on two quick buckets by the Falcons. Then Dwight Murphy hit a jump shot from 15 feet, Arizmendi tapped home a rebound, Sidney Catlett layed one in, "Murph," stole the ball and fed O’Connell and the rot was on. The Irish shot a scoring 62% in the second half and a very respectable 54% for the entire game.

Arizmendi led all scorers with 32 points, Bob Whitemore added 15 for second best, and Murphy netted 22. Joe’s father tried to answer but Jet coach Weeb Ewbank came over to shake his hand and then one of the Jet’s assistant also came over to have a word with him."

"I told him, ‘Mr. Namath, you’ve got a remarkable son,’ he said. "You’ve got a big kid,’ who looked as though he should be playing defensive tackle for somebody, threw in a hook shot to the delight of the entire student body.
