Nominations extended deadline for Community Government

Nominations for Saint Mary's student government positions have been extended to noon today when actual campaigning will begin.

According to Student Body Vice President, Sally Strobel, the nomination period was extended because of several untested offices, and the election commission wanted to reopen nominations until Friday noon in the hope that more people will apply. She added that it's not really unusual for elections at Saint Mary's to have untested offices, but that she was surprised that "these positions in particular were untested because they offer the greatest opportunity for students on this campus."

Although two students, Barb Carter and Susan Turnball have filed for the office of President, the only candidate to have filed for the office of Vice President, and Miss Driscoll believes that "we have at present a more or less token imitation of what a community government should actually be. The way I would interpret Community Government is a participation in all segments of the community, students, faculty, and administration, in all aspects of community life."

She feels that students have spent much time in the social realms of Saint Mary's and that they have just begun to concern themselves with the academic realm.

Miss Driscoll encouraged the students to study the subject and said, "It strongly enhances their position in seeking or demanding participation in the government of this college that they evidence interest in the form of voting."

LeMann Hall President, Karen Weller, has submitted her nomination for the student representative to the Student Affairs Council. She is a junior and the chairman of the St. Mary's Residence Hall Committee.

Students running for office are: 1) for a greater appreciation of diversity and dissent; 2) for the full implementation of the concept of Community Government; and 3) to create an academic and community atmosphere where now there is none.

Pat Carey, the Chairman of this year's Teacher-Counselor Evaluation at Saint Mary's, has placed her name in nomination for Aca­dem ic Affairs Commissioner.

According to Miss Carey, "Next year, the most important thing will be to work on the committees as representative and as informed to the needs of Saint Mary's as possible. My main concern is that those people do the best job they can.

Miss Carey has been working with the National Mobilization Com­ mission since Freedman year. Next year she would like to see more programs in our curriculum, to mobilize and broaden the areas worked on by this year's committee, and a widening and improvement of Admin­istration and scholarship programs.

The final election date has not been changed. Elections will still be held next Friday, March 28.

29 Arabs killed on flight to Mecca

CAIRO (UPI) - A Russian built turbo-prop aircraft carrying home Arab workers who won a pilgrimage to Mecca in a national lottery crashed and burned yesterday at Awam Airport. At least 92 of the 104 persons aboard were killed.

The 2 a.m. crash at the hilltop airport 500 miles south of Cairo was the second major airline disaster in four days. A Venezuelan DC9 jetliner went down Sunday in Maracaibo, killing at least 154.

The ministry said of the 97 passengers aboard, 90 were killed and 7 injured.

Other cities besides New Albany in the top 11 were Saginaw, Mich., Charlotte, N.C., Cottage Grove, Ore., du Pont, Del., Ky., Edinburg, Tex., Fairbanks, Alaska; Jacksonville, Fla.; San Diego, Calif.; Savannah, Ga., and Snyder, Tex.

Senates announces stay senators

Last night, the Student Senate held a special meeting by teleconference with the direction of Richard Rosae, the outgoing Student Body President, and his admin­istration.

The major point of business was the election of stay senators for the next senate term. Sena­tors Rich Dickinson of Green­ Phillips, Ed Davey of Farley, John Zimmerman of Alumni, and Foul Thramer of Stanford were elected by the members of the Senate.

Two bills calling for the amendment of the Student Government Constitution and the Report of the Investigating Committee on the Pornography and Censorship Conference were also presented to the Student Senate for debate at the next business meeting.

After the senate unanimously decided to fix the number of stay senators at four, Rosie stated both the purpose of and the position filled by stay senators. "It is customary," Rosie said, "that there is a large turnover in the senate from year to year. Stay senators are the men who will be the leaders of next year's "class," and they will be the chairman of the Student Senate. Stay Senate: Student Life Committee, Academic Affairs, Human Rights, and Constitu­tion Revision.

Prior to the election of stay senators, Rosie read a letter (continued on page 6)
Farmer calls Civil Rights Movement obsolete

The meaning voice of James Farmer, U.S. Undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, filled the Morris Civic Auditorium and closed out this week's SUAC Black Power Forum at 8:00 last night. The Undersecretary, speaking entirely without aid of a microphone, presented his views on the changing civil rights movement and the concept of Black Power in general.

"I'm very pleased to be here tonight," he said, "because I feel that it's terribly important that there be discussion and dialogue on the racial question. Answers to discussion and dialogue are needed.

Farmer noted that the sum total of segregation has increased during the past few years; he propounded the explanation that all Americans, white and black, have been "programmed by the racism in the nation's culture." He cited as examples the unfair historical treatment of the Negro in public school textbooks and the stereotyping of Negroes in films. "It's hard to grow up here without residues of this programming," he said. "So how can a black child develop self-esteem when he's faced with such a condition? How can the white develop any respect for the black?"

To effectively combat this "cultural racism," the Undersecretary advocated the "change of agenda" offered by Black Power: "This nation, contrary to popular belief, is not a melting pot, it's a pluralistic society made up of ethnic groups. We must enter it as a proud entity."

To accomplish this, he favors instruction and appreciation of the black man's African heritage. "We must identify with our homeland," he said. "It's the umbilical cord to our past."

Kennedy backs Red China's admission to UN

Kennedy clearly took issue with a position taken by President Nixon at his first White House news conference Jan. 27 where he opposed Red China's admission to the United Nations.

Nixon, who many political observers will believe will have to fight Kennedy for the presidency in 1972, said at that time it would be a "mistake" for the United States to abandon its opposition to Communist China's admission to the United Nations.

The President added he was looking for indications "whether any changes of attitude on their part on major substantive issues may have occurred.

"Until some changes occur on their side, however, I see no immediate prospect of any change in our policy," Nixon said.

This summer, study a language with the world's most experienced teachers.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D. Mass., taking a position dramatically opposed to that of President Nixon, called yesterday for Communist China's admission to the United Nations and for early discussions between Peking and Washington on resuming diplomatic relations.

Kennedy proposed giving the Chinese Communists the seats now held by the Taiwan regime of Chiang Kai shek in the U.N. General Assembly and Security Council, with Nationalist China retaining some representation.

The United States should take the initiative because it is unreal for Peking to do so in the light of past relations, Kennedy said in a speech prepared for the National Committee on United States China relations in New York City.

"It is our obligation," he said, "any self-esteem when he's faced with such a condition? How can the white develop any respect for the black?"

"We are the great and powerful nation, and we should not condition our approach on any favorable action or change of attitude by Peking."

"For us to begin a policy of peace would be a credit to our history and our place in the world today," he added. "To continue our present path will lead only to further hostility and the real possibility of mutual destruction."

"It is our obligation," he said.

We will fly you to the language of your choice.

Your teachers will be waiters, waitresses, bartenders, barmaids, shopkeepers, bellboys, chambermaids, hotel clerks, policemen, cab drivers...and just plain and fancy natives.

You'll do more than learn a language.

That you can do through text books.

You'll learn how to communicate with that language.

What language do you want your forte to be? French, Italian, German, Swahili, Spanish, Portuguese, Greek...? You name it.

And TWA will fly you there for your summer vacation.... Why TWA?

Because we have more flights going to where you're probably going during the summer, than any other airline.

That means you can leave when you want to leave—not when someone tells you it's your turn to leave.

Call TWA, your travel agent or the TWA campus representative.

The things we do to make you happy.
Over 1000 parents coming

Junior Parents-Son Weekend starts today

Notre Dame's annual Junior Parents-Son Weekend is set to begin today. It will open with parent registration this afternoon at 4:00 and will end with a communion breakfast at 9:30 Sunday morning.

In a letter addressed to the parents at the University President, Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, stated that the purpose of this weekend is to provide the opportunity for them "to come to the campus, to meet the members of the Administration and faculty, to witness the methods by which our goals for your sons are being achieved, and to feel the true spirit of notre Dame." On Friday night the parents will have the choice of spending an evening of either culture or athletics. The Bengal Boat finals will be held at 8 PM in the Athletic and Convocation Center. Also at the Student Union Social Commission will present the Broadway musical, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," at the Morris Civic Auditorium.

During registration on Saturday morning, the University will hold an open house. Tours of specific buildings on both the Notre Dame and St. Mary's campuses will be given. The tours will be followed by a luncheon in the South Dining Hall.

On Saturday afternoon, at 1:30, the four colleges, including the military and architectural departments, will hold receptions with the deans and faculty members of each of the colleges and departments. The receptions will be held in the respective college buildings, with the exception of the Business and Science receptions. The business reception will be held in LaFortune Student Center and the Science is to be held in the Memorial Library.

Following the college receptions, Fr. Hesburgh and the University Executive Vice-President, Rev. Edmund Joyce, will hold a reception in the Center for Continuing Education. At 7:30, the President's Dinner will be given in the Stetpan Center. Fr. Hesburgh and Leo Klemm, the President of the Junior Class are scheduled to be the guest speakers. The toastmaster for the affair will be Jay Fittimmons, the Chairman of the Weekend.

The weekend will conclude Sunday with a special Mass for the Juniors and their parents, followed by a communion breakfast in the North Dining Hall. This year's featured speaker at the breakfast will be Richard Rosenthal, President of the St. Joseph Valley Bank and the former President of the Notre Dame Alumni Association.

True Community

In yesterday's editorial entitled "Visititation" we explored the Board of Trustees concession to the student body in the form of parietal hours. We pointed out that the University holds the attitude that the students are its precious children and that their every move should be guarded with extreme caution. The essential difference between administrator and student is not parietal hours, but rather a deeper disagreement on the role of the University and the so-called "University community."

That last hackneyed phrase is shuffled back and forth among the University President, Student Body Presidents and candidates, Student Senators, faculty members, Student Life Council members, alumni, and even OBSERVER columnists. The problem is, everyone of them has formed his own definition of just exactly what the Notre Dame University community should be.

Through a careful examination of University President Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh's speeches and pronouncements over the years, can be gleaned his idea, more or less, of a University community. It is a residential community-everyone living on campus. The traditional Notre Dame family idea, as professed by the various University publications, is the basis on which the University's public relations is built. Therefore it would be safe to assume that the "official University," i.e., the administration, is attempting to fulfill image. It seems to us that concept has long been untenable.

The students have been treated as the children of the Notre Dame family with the administration as the benevolent father. That is no longer acceptable. Students are mature and responsible enough to take part in much of the decision-making of the University, as regards student life, academic affairs, and all other areas where students have a legitimate stake.

High hopes have been placed in the Student Life Council, as giving the student an equal voice in at least his own affairs. But even that body's decision are subject to the grandfatherly whims of the Board. If that is to remain the case, students should have places on the Board. But the student voice in academic affairs is nil. Only after absurd lengths of time will the student ideas for academic reform be placed before the Academic Council. And even all that painstaking work may be ignored.

It is a mistaken idea to assume that a true community must be built upon room after room of the identically sterile living conditions which now exist in the halls. A community does not depend upon a close proximity of residences. True, a community does depend upon a common element among its members, but that element is an attitude.

There needs to be a common definition of what the Notre Dame community should be. And the administration must realize that the students will not be content to be cast in the role of acne-faced, adolescents. The sooner they come to this realization, the quicker the sharing, not a ruling.
Hesburgh letter has met stiff criticism

Since the time Father Hesburgh issued his now famous hard-line stand against campus demonstrations, reactions have been received from administrators at small and large, peaceful and troubled colleges from across the country. A surprising number have said that "confrontation," a term most abhorred by college officials, may be the unfortunate result of the letter.

Many administrators, rather than standing with Hesburgh, believe that his policy may be a prescription for disaster, a typical reaction comes from an administrator at California’s San Fernando Valley State College, where an agreement with black students was recently reached. "If we had taken Father Hesburgh’s stand the place would probably have burned down."

Most administrators have agreed on a policy of moderation—a calculated and conciliatory strategy designed to grant legitimate student demands and, above all, avert chaos. William Caples, a former steel executive and now president of Kenyon College, says, "I've tried my best to keep the channels of communication open with the students. If there's anything I've learned from years of bargaining with the Steelworkers' Union, it's that you have to stay loose, be flexible and talk."

Hesburgh pleaded for "rational discourse" rather than a resort to force. But many administrators see his stand as an intractable one that could produce violent disorder. And many call it unrealistic. "We think we can work things out without resorting to ultimatums," says an official at Claremont College in California. An administrator at the University of Chicago declares, "We have to answer to 1,000 faculty members, while Father Hesburgh has to answer only to the Pope." (This is not quite true, as Father Hesburgh in fact answers to the lay-dominated board of trustees.)

The president of one prominent liberal arts college says, "He has taken a simplistic approach to a complicated problem." This man says, "It isn't fair to mock so many people— including the President of the United States—into thinking that this hard line will result in a restoration of peace on the campus. I haven't talked to a single college or university president who feels this is a good solution. It merely encourages state legislatures to pass restrictive bills, or people who are threatened in some way by youth to crack down." "Father Hesburgh, if I understand him correctly, rules out due process completely."

Brown University Dean F. Donald Eckelmann says, "You need a completely intimidated student body to make that sort of statement and get away with it. I think it will come back to haunt him." Dean Eckelmann adds, "We'd never consider that sort of approach here."

Administrators queried concede, however, that the time for stern action may come. Charles Hitch, president of the University of California system, says an administrator must be "as firm and tough in opposing vandalism, coercion and violence on the one hand as he is wise, reasonable and responsible in considering valid suggestions on the other."

When strong action becomes necessary, moderate administrators are careful to diffuse responsibility and bring students into the disciplinary process. At Oberlin College in Ohio 59 students face punishment including possible expulsion for a sit-in February 29, when Marine Corps recruiters attempted to hold interviews.

The disciplinary decision has been handed to a panel of four students and four professors. Provost John Kneller and President Robert K. Caru remain aloof from the proceedings. "Anything the president or I said would be construed as influencing the board's deliberations," Mr. Kneller explains.

Kent State University now feels it is in a position to take a firm stand because it has shown moderation; it didn't press prosecution of about 250 militant demonstrators in November. "We've shown faculty and moderate students that we were willing to sit down and try to work things out," says Robert Matson, vice-president for student affairs. But if another demonstration comes, he warns, "We'll be in the same league with Father Hesburgh."

Four stay senators elected

In this letter McKenna also recommended the election of Hunter, Zimmerman and Davie for the position of stay senator. The fourth senator recommended by McKenna, Steve Ahern, withdrew from the race. The four new stay senators will take over the positions previously held by Senators John Hickey, Mike Kendall, Bob Rigney and Steve Ahern.

After the election of stay senators, Rosie adjourned the meeting. The next senate meeting, on March 31, will consist of the installation of the next Student Body President, McKenna and his administration.

A Service of Student Union
Breaking the rules less and enjoying it more?

It is rare that a student is suspended or dismissed here at Notre Dame. In fact, the 1966-67 school year saw only two dismissals from the university and nine suspensions, and last year there were but three dismissals and seven suspensions. There has been a noticeable decline in the number of dismissals from the school over the years, and it is not simply a matter of fewer laws for the student to comply with. It's "the way they're being interpreted," says Fr. James Richie, Dean of Students.

Most students were probably shocked by the 1898 newspaper clipping in the east library bulletin board on Fr. Morrissey, President of Notre Dame at that time; students undoubtedly found his extreme position on drinking almost humorous. Even the strict disciplinary rules of the past ten years seem rather far from the student today, and with women visitations and drug-related rules: motor vehicle regulations, laws governing stealing, and almost uncalled property damage, drunkeness, relative to their times - relative to customs, modes of thinking, for, and yet rules which were applied, rules which now seem very much out of the time; students undoubtedly decline in the number of dismissals and seven suspensions.

The city of South Bend yesterday made great gains yesterday in their attempt to annex the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. Proposed annexation ordinances were filed in the City Clerk's office Thursday and will be brought before the South Bend Common Council on Monday evening.

South Bend would gain by this annexation by becoming eligible for a larger distribution of Indiana cigarette and motor vehicle taxes. The distribution of these funds is made on the basis of population. If the two campuses are annexed, South Bend could receive an additional $83,000 after the 1970 census.

One of the conditions that must prevail in any annexation is that the annexation must be in the best interests of the city and the territory under consideration. The area must also be contiguous with the boundaries of the city.

The property of Notre Dame under consideration is bounded on the south by Angela Blvd., on the west by St. Joseph's River, on the east by U.S. 31, and on the north by a line north of the Indiana Toll Road. The total area proposed for annexation includes 1,105 acres of Notre Dame property and 787 acres of St. Mary's U.S. 31, and on the north by a line north of the Indiana Toll Road.

Gary Canori. "Sudden Tom," to John McGrath, the eventual champ, should merit the crown promoter Dominic "Nappy" Napolitano.

There will be 12 matches in all, 10 finals and two special over Tom Kress.

145 final: Fred Deboe over Ervin. Deboe, a lefty, probably could have KO'd Hal Smith Wednesday, but settled for a unanimous verdict. His unorthodox style may give the favored Deboe difficulty.

140 consolation: Jim Lusk over Ebby Moran. Bet next overly careless. Ferrer, however, should have enough quickness and mobility to retain his title in a surprisingly close fight.

150 final: Ed Ferrer over Jack Etter. Ferrer is too strong and well-conditioned.

155 final: Kent Casey over Tony Kluka. Kluka has gone too careless. Ferrer is not powerful enough to knock out Landolfi; few men are. And if it's a close decision, you have to figure the judges will lean towards Chuck, a senior and crowd favorite. Don't look for it to be close.

A pair of finalist favorites in action Wednesday night: Matt Connelly over Tony Kluka. Kluka has gone only one and a half rounds so far. He draws a bye Monday and Wednesday his bout was stopped midway through the second round as Joe Renice packed it in with a bad shoulder. He won't be sharp enough to stop Connelly.

Heavyweight final: Chuck Landolfi over Hank Meyer. Hank is not powerful enough to knock out Landolfi, few men are. And if it's a close decision, you have to figure the judges will lean towards Chuck, a senior and crowd favorite. Don't look for it to be close.

Bucks' fans to pay Lew

MILWAUKEE (UPI) - Bearded Wes Pavalon, the millionaire board chairman of the Milwaukee Bucks, plans to use the fans, if necessary, to win what could be pro basketball's biggest prize ever—7 foot 1 Lew Alcindor.

"But I want to remind you, I'm one of the fans," Pavalon said, making it perfectly obvious that he's willing to shell out more than a little of his money to get the UCLA star for the National Basketball Association.

The Bucks won the right to negotiate for Alcindor Wednesday with a flip of the coin with Phoenix. The two teams had finished last in the NBA's Eastern and Western divisions, making them eligible to draft first in the annual NBA pick of college talent.

The flip actually determined which team would select first and while Pavalon and John Erickson, the Bucks' general manager, coyly denied there was any one "name player" in mind, there was little doubt Alcindor would be the man.

Erickson was scheduled to go to Louisville, Ky., this weekend for the NCAA basketball finals. Alcindor and UCLA will be trying for a third successive NCAA title.

Erickson said he would talk to Alcindor and UCLA Coach John Wooden, but not until after Saturday's finals.

Pavalon was recently quoted as saying that if the Bucks won the rights to Alcindor, he had the resources of the entire state of Wisconsin to back him up in any bidding war with the American Basketball Association.

"The Milwaukee Bucks are owned by the citizens of the state. To get our first round draft choice, should that be Lew Alcindor or anybody else, we have ways of going to the citizens all over the state and asking them to support me."

Did that then mean he would be asking the fans to pick up some of the estimated cost of landing Alcindor?

"Possibly," Pavalon said. "But I just want to remind you that I'm one of those fans."

Upsets spice ice playoffs

Second division teams won two of the three quarter final pairings as the ND interhall Hockey playoffs moved into the second round.

First place Morrissey advanced to the finals by drubbing room-dwelling Cavanagh. Fourth-place Zahin, a much improved team and a definite threat for the title, took its second straight game from Off Campus, by the score of 8-3. Fifth-place Farley completed the upset of runner-up Howard with a 2-1 overtime victory on Wednesday night. Howard had tied the series with a 6-3 win last Monday night, but Dick Lubbe's goal with 2:15 gone in overtime vaulted the Collegians into the semifinals.

Zahin and Farley will play a 2-of-3 series for the right to meet Morrissey in the finals. On orders from varsity coach Lefty Smith, the finals have been cut down from 4-of-7 to 2-of-3 games.
