Hershague expresses approval of Moratorium: Student views run from far left to far right

By John Dicola and Tim Treanor

University President Father Theodore Hershague, C.S.C., yesterday expressed approval of October fifteenth's moratorium, both as it was conducted at Notre Dame and as it was conducted across the nation.

Father Hershague, who neverthe less characterized the peace efforts of President Nixon "terrible," called the moratorium "an honest discourse by rational men...it's always good," he added, "to have serious discussion of the really great problems of the world.

He pointed with pride to what he called the "intellectual character" of the Notre Dame moratorium, which he said, "might have been difficult to find on other campuses." He was especially pleased with the Memorial Man held in front of the library.

Hershague was, however, less enthusiastic about the destruction of draft cards. "I think the destruction of draft cards is a very serious matter," he said, "Whether the destroying of draft cards has a place in another question, and it can be debated from both sides.

Father Hershague, C.S.C.

Teller decries secrecy in U.S. scientific policy

By Tim Westman

The much-discussed topic of the present nuclear arms race was treated in a new light as it was discussed by the ultimate authority of a democracy—the American people. However, Teller proceeds to cite some of those instances, which included the construction of electronic computers: President Eisenhower's 1954 "Atoms for Peace" Geneva conference; and the recent Apollo 11 moon shot.

"Secrecy does not permit open debate to continue," said Teller, "and it does not allow us to inspect, to recognize our dangers. Questions must be discussed by the ultimate authority of a democracy—the people. If they cannot be, there is no longer a democracy.

Teller further indicted secrecy as the real point of conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Our true difference is not economic or ideological, he said, "but the difference between open and secret and a closed one," he stated.

As a means to alleviate this condition, he suggested that the U.S. "open up all the way and stop imitating the Russians, if we can do this, we may induce them to open up and imitate us."

"Secrecy prevents us from understanding the other side's views, he continued. "I would rather have seen a more open policy, and I am convinced that Notre Dame is a Christian university. Ryan commended the peaceful, contemplative atmosphere, and said that people were making an effort to understand themselves.

A junior Theology major, Ryan quoted St. Paul in maintaining that the participants in the moratorium were setting themselves free for freedom's sake.

"The feelings of those people transcend all social or political power," he stated. Ryan remarked that he bore the first cross memorializing Notre Dame men killed in Vietnam. For Ryan, the cross impressed with the name of Robert D. Stark impressed him profoundly.

"Robert D. Stark came alive to me as I carried him, and when I placed the cross in the ground I died again, and a little bit of me died with him." Ryan mentioned that he became conscious of people celebrating freedom and life during the moratorium.

"It made me realize that no matter how powerful an economic or political Caesar might be, the indomitable human spirit would overcome it."

Ryan cited the moratorium as an assembly of human beings who resist an action, in their own (continued on page 2)

Ed Roicke

Given a day to reflect upon Wednesday's moratorium, four articulate campus leaders from contrasting political camps reacted strongly to its impact upon the Notre Dame community.

Father Hershague, off-campus Senator and one of the moratorium organizers, said he felt the moratorium was "very much a success, and I feel that the turnout, he remarked, was in excess of what was expected." He further predicted that the speakers as excellent and incisive.

Roicke was particularly impressed with the participation of the people in the Mass during the singing of hymns for peace, and with the attention they gave to non-m Hải.imported Communists. People seemed to be celebrating the spirit of peace and the Mass, he said.

"I was very pleased with the events as they occurred, and hope that the number, diversity, and enthusiasm of the people will carry over into November," Roicke commented.

Roicke hopes that the response will be greater when the two-day moratorium, scheduled for November 13-14, will be activated.

Roicke cited no significant opposition to the events, and reaffirmed his conviction that the people conducted themselves in the spirit of peace.

Campus liberal Bernie Ryan amplified Roicke's sentiments, and observed that, for the first time, he came to realize that Notre Dame is a Christian university. Ryan commended the peaceful, contemplative atmosphere, and said that people were making an effort to understand each other.

Kay Kunzler

She was however, distressed by the mandatory class attendance called for at 9:00 P.M., "I would rather have seen those who cared enough to learn than those who would refuse to listen. The worst people for those who don't think about it."

Kunzler stated that she was in agreement with the ND and SMC decisions to hold classes on Wednesday, but commented that it made the individual resolution all the more meaningful and the numbers of those attending more impressive.
Hesburgh lauds Resistance Mass
(continued from page 1)
the time it looked good; it looked like a few people could save the problem. Counter insurgency appealed to the Army and to the public imagination. But perhaps Eisenhower said it best when he said that it would be foolhardy for us to launch a war unless we were prepared to launch it full-scale, as we did against Germany; and obviously such a war is impossible under the present conditions.

Father Hesburgh speculated that the United States would be unable to militarily respond to another insurgency similar to Viet Nam. "The American people simply would not abide it," said the University President. "Such renewed action would be politically disastrous." When asked what his own response to such a renewed involvement would be, Father Hesburgh said, "I really don't know.

Father Charles McCarragher, Vice President of Student Affairs, shared Father Hesburgh's warm feelings for the moratorium. In an interview he said it was "done with great dignity and with great reverence.

"I believe the non-violent attitude was accepted by everyone," McCarragher continued, "for certainly we all believe in peace.

McCarragher said that his first reaction to the moratorium was one of happiness because, "nothing but dignity, reverence and sincerity was demonstrated from the time the moratorium started until it ended in the afternoon." He expressed the belief that "everyone other than those simply doing and why they were doing it.

He did find fault, however, with the destroying of draft cards that highlighted the Moratorium day Mass. He voiced disapproval of "draft card burning, particularly at the Mass," but tempered his criticism by saying that the act was performed with "fact and respect.

McCarragher and Hesburgh are in agreement over the significance of the moratorium.

Conservatives attack Moratorium

From the conservative end on the political spectrum, reactions clashed strongly with those of Ruckel and Ryan were articulated by Tom Thrasher and Chris Wolfe. Former SLC member, Chris Wolfe, expressed his respect for certain segments of those supporting the moratorium who sincerely put forth reasonable and moderate arguments. However, a large segment, he feels, does not possess this moderation.

He deplored this great number of people so dogmatic in their belief of the absolute immorality of the war. Wolfe described this group as a disturbing element on campus.

"The academic community should be characterized by rational discussion, not by mindless acceptance of minority views and of what is essentially propaganda," Wolfe contended. He also noted that nothing changed his view that Wednesday was a day of propaganda rather than a day of discussion.

Wolfe was disturbed that many people don't see reason for the propaganda and publicity concerning the moratorium, coupled with the student's desire to cut classes, as giving up time to learn and help people interested in working, and denied the students the right to attend class.

Students study grades, super final

By Ann Conway

Pam Carey, SMC Academic Affairs Commission, yesterday announced the formation of two subcommittees to the Academic Standing Committee to study changes in the Senior comprehensive exam system and in the SMC grading system particularly in the area of pass/fail.

According to Miss Carey, there is nothing in the catalogue which states the necessity of an exam at the end of the senior year at St. Mary's. In many majors, a senior thesis, project or seminar is already substituted. "I think kids rebel against the idea of a super-final, not the idea of a comprehensive summing up of the four years of work, and consequently they would not be against the change to a seminar or thesis in the exam's place.

One subcommittee plans an evaluation of the comprehensive system as a whole, and ways to change the system to make it more effective. "There is a possibility of a change in the English major's comprehensive system by the end of this academic year.

The second subcommittee plans a complete evaluation of the SMC grading system, particularly the extension of the pass/fail system from 6 to 8 courses during the four years. Miss Carey stated that there was a recommendation in committee to extend the pass/fail and to accept a "D" rather than the present "C" as pass, but this bill was frozen in committee because basically "it wasn't as liberal as we wanted it to be.

The Academic Affairs Committee also plans to work being heard in the Rank and Tenure Committee. Majors are being encouraged to write recommendations concerning people in their majors who might be up for evaluation by the committee. These recommendations would go through the department head and would be read by the members of the committee.

According to Miss Carey, "Students have to get organized in order to be heard and listened to. As things come up in committee, I find I have to go to others in the various majors to get the opinions of the majors and to organize for or against a bill or actions. Having students serving on the various committees has increased the effectiveness of the community government, and has made it more workable than it was last year. It is possible to get things changed, we just need students paying us a visit and being interested in working, and people who are willing to come to me to learn about it.
Band pained by tactics of ‘Fighting Irates’

The following statement was given to the Observer by band secretary Steve Whimster.

The Friday night before the MSU game marked the dissolution of a great Notre Dame tradition—pep rallies in the Fieldhouse. But another custom—using the Band for target practice—reminded one of the good old days, when men were men, and lights were out at ten. During this time each bandsman risked life, limb, and instrument every time he marched at a rally. Students converged on the Band, stealing instruments and inflicting pain—much the same as you might have witnessed that Friday. Then, there was no one to hold back the “loyal Notre Dame students.” Finally it became too costly physically and financially, and the Band decided not to march at future rallies. This decision was strictly a last resort, as the bandsmen greatly desired to march if their safety could be assured.

Voila—the “Meat Squad” was born! These red-blooded Americans offered to restrain the Notre Dame buglers if the Band would continue to play the school songs at the rallies. This seemed to be an acceptable solution. But, bombardment continued, and it reached its climax Friday night. In the wide open spaces through which we marched, it was virtually impossible for the Meat Squad to hold back students disturbed over the change in pep rally sites. The “Fighting Irates” threw stones, bottles, firecrackers, and, of course, toilet paper. From frighteningly close range. They broke through our ranks stealing drum sticks and damaging other instruments.

Strange as it may sound to some, the Band has a job to do. The Southern California pep rally will be held at the scheduled destruction of the fieldhouse in November. The last minute decision to hold the MSU rally in the ACC was due to the medical condition of the band prior to the game. A number of them had colds and the coaches felt the stifling heat of the fieldhouse would not help these conditions. The changes that resulted from the switch in locations were due to the lack of time for preparation. The band did not find out about the change until 10:30 on the morning of the rally. Consequently there was not enough time to completely coordinate the efforts of all people involved, which accounts for the band not playing the alma mater at the end of the rally.

ATTENTION RACE FANS

The position of Grand Prix Chairman is still open for further information please write:

SOCIAL COMMISSIONER
BOX 427
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

We get carried away when you come around... and we love it!

Budweiser
is the only beer in America that's Beechwood Aged

(But you know that.)
With nation wide attention focused on the moratorium, the Soviet venture into space has not received too much publicity in the American press. We wish to offer our congratulations to the Soviets and our hope for continued success. We join countless others in the fervent hope for the safe return of the one astronaut until such time as we again prepare to return to the moon. Each time the Soviet Union or the United States lifts a man into orbit, humanity usually follows the venture with acute interest of a growing child exploring something which is new to him. The journeys usually raise questions about the potential of mankind to explore the outer limits of space. Much of the space work on the moon served to persuade even some of the skeptical that indeed quite possibly the scope of mankind’s reach is unlimited if he seeks to channel his initiative and imagination in a particular direction.

The space efforts on the other hand, raise serious questions about the potential of mankind to conquer the natural limits established by mother earth.

Most advocates of a rededication of our national priorities along these lines cite the potential billions of dollars that the space program consumes. They are quick to remark, however, that many of the funds which could be channeled to provide for improvements of conditions here at home. No doubt there is much validity to their argument. There are limitations though, for one could argue that the exploration of space might open up untold avenues and provide a wealth of knowledge which would benefit mankind to a great degree in the future. There are also certain economic questions involved in channeled all funds spent on space exploration into social action work.

Perhaps the whole question can provide an opportunity for the beginning of a better relationship both in the United States and the Soviet Union. Scientists of both countries suggest that cooperation on space exploration between the two giants would be mutually beneficial. Together both countries could agree on targets for exploration which could prove to be more in the interest of mankind as a whole.

We encourage both countries to seriously consider the possibility, and ask Americans to support the idea. Such cooperation will not only bring tangible benefits to both countries but also hasten the day when the two learn to live on more amiable terms with each other.

The Fieldhouse

This evening’s pep rally will be held in its rightful home, the Notre Dame fieldhouse. Without a doubt pep rallies just couldn’t be the same any where else. At least not for the Notre Dame men who have ever shared the emotionalism that goes into a rally in the grand old place.

The university intends to have the old girl torn down, if and she goes as many an alumni, Notre Dame fan, and student that will mourn her passing.

Funny thing, in times when traditionalism is seemingly an outmoded thing, a lot of people seem to wonder how to make a commitment at this time to Professor Fern’s plans. We like to think as though a number of Notre Dame’s...
The old man and change
By Chuck Darst

Once while I was working in Chicago for the Burlington Railroad, a fellow worker—an old black—shared with me some interesting thoughts on the nature of campus disturbances.

"Ya know," he said, "the young people today are uncovering truths. I don't know exactly what it's all about, but I know the administration was unable to find funds to increase T.A. salaries or provide us with anything. It was quite clear that the administration considers all T.A.'s, at least those in English, as ultimately replaceable through faculty teaching loads. With full cognizance of such screwing, we all promised Father Walsh that every possible pressure would be exerted to understand us.

We the undersigned resolve that the English T.A.'s are完全可以 to continually encourage the acceptance of change but to accept change. It seems better to continually encourage the acceptance of change but to accept change. It is conformitv ity. Too often what we do is wrong because everyone else is doing it. More often, we suffer extreme consequence to that change. And in order to resist threatened by that change you have to have something to lose.

It was really an ence to see somebody his age—he must have had push 70. I was really interested about things to come.

However, that kind of entho seems a long time ago. And it struck me how so many—of us young people in general, as well as old, included—look with such utter terror upon the change. It's what we don't think, that we broadcast is right. We don't think that because it's easy or that it's better, but because people are not even afraid of doing anything new... or anything old in a new way. Turn out the opposition is courage, not cowardice. Too often we have to learn that people are not going to do everything for us, because everyone else is doing it. Worse, we sometimes become extreme consequence we have to endure such a change, and to that change, you have to have something to lose.

It is precisely this makes the university threaten us so paranoid when a student receives loans or aid because they burned us with a list of proposed innovations. The old pay working for the road feels no less of this paranoia, but he has nothing else to lose, he is free only to accept change but to welcome it.

That's a hard thing for most of us to do, to accept change.

Yet why is it something we've struck out at in fear? Of course, we spend our whole lives trying to plug up security, something we can always hold on to. However, it takes little insight to see that the only thing we can take security in is the thing we fear most—security. The only consistency is inconsistency, and change is a contradiction. Change should be "the accepted thing." The only thing we have to avoid is that particular brand of blind, heraldic belief which is the only thing we can accept and which was acknowledged by Father Walsh but was later adopted by all the English T.A.'s and supervisors of Notre Dame. It is not justifiable to request a mid-year raise in salary. Furthermore, since the record of raising T.A. salaries at Notre Dame has been one of very little change, it seems that once the raise is raised to the minimal level, the administration will then undertake the moral task of keeping wages in line with the rising costs of living, through yearly increments.

Both resolutions were forwarded to Father Walsh on Monday, September 29.

The promise of a booksticker discount for all teaching assistants proved empty when the first people attempting to ask for this discount were denied it. Father Walsh was supported by his fellow Brother Conan of the change, but no progress had been made during the entire summer in requesting lists of the teaching T.A.'s from the several departments involved.

The English list was finally requested and delivered to the booksticker by a T.A. The parking sticker concession fared little better. Because of administrative confusion several non-T.A.'s and non-teaching T.A.'s were able to obtain faculty lot sticker group. By the time the tangle was unraveled, at least two eligible T.A.'s were left without stickers. One of these teachers was told that she would have to buy a sticker from the University. The security chief told her that he had his way, no T.A.'s would get stickers next year.

Attitudes like that of the chief are, sadly enough, more often the rule than the exception at Notre Dame.
Science academy appoints Gordon

Dr. Robert Gordon, associate dean of the College of Life Sciences at the University of Notre Dame, has been appointed to a six-year term on the United States National Committee of the International Union of Biological Sciences, by the president of the National Academy of Science, Dr. Philip Handler.

The committee advises the president of the Academy on all matters concerning United States participation in international programs in the biological sciences. As Gordon begins his term, one of the most important problems facing the committee concerns the continuation of the International Biological Program. This program, originally planned as a five-year venture, is scheduled to disband in 1971. The committee would like to continue receiving information from the 60-country network of biologists, who have been evaluating the world's environmental quality, productivity, and population status.

Gordon, whose research interests include ecology, population dynamics and cold-blooded vertebrates, is also a proponent of better communication between the scientific community and laymen and hopes to help the committee set up a world-wide communication system for scientific information. In addition, he is a member of the Pacific Science Association's standing committee for science information.

His other memberships include: the American Association for Advanced Science, the American Society for Zoology, the Ecological Society of America, the Herpetologists' League, and the Herpetological Society of Japan.

Gordon has taught at Notre Dame since 1958, and has served as both acting head of the biology department and editor of the American Midland Naturalist.
Emergencies close schools

A comprehensive national survey of Catholic school facilities by a University of Notre Dame educational research team has concluded that Catholic school closings have occurred as emergency measures rather than as part of an overall educational plan. In an article in the November U.S. Catholic/journal, Dr. Richard H. Metzrutz, an assistant professor of education at Notre Dame, and two of his doctoral students, Philip T. Sciotrino and the Rev. Lawrence M. Deno, reported on "Project Schoolhouse," an analysis of data supplied by 147 diocesan school superintendents and 346 Catholic school administrators. The study revealed that Catholic school closings and grade eliminations effective this September were:

- Generally decided by a parish-council elected by the clergy and organization of the new Institute for the Study of Man in Contemporary Society.
- Most prevalent among small, parish-controlled schools with diocesan authority.
- Usually executed without firm plans for utilization of abandoned facilities.

The report said its findings "project a continuance of enrollment losses, grade eliminations, and school closings," and its authors urged that more consideration be given to the many factors that might influence such decisions.

"Future decisions regarding the existence of a school or a grade level should be mitigated not by expediency, but by an informed effort to establish a viable system of Catholic schools," the report stated.

It advocated a widening of decision-making to include parishioners, religious communities, and the clergy, and it stressed the necessity of abandoning parish boundaries and diocesan authority in planning school decisions.

The report also noted that "future directions in Catholic school statistics which are available on a national level are inconsistent and lacking comparability" and added that financial data "are seriously unobtainable."

Due to a change in seating arrangements additional floor seats have been made available for Blood, Sweat and Tears. They are available now at the A.C.C. Office.

Dr. Fahey heads OER

Dr. Frank J. Fahey, associate professor of sociology and anthropology, recently named associate director of the Office for Education Research (OER) at the University of Notre Dame. The Rev. William B. Friend is acting director.

Fahey, who is also associate director of the Social Science Research and Training Laboratory, is known for his research with youth, Catholic school studies, poverty, and manpower problems. He is also interested in applying computer programming and statistics to studies in education.

The OER became a component of the new Institute for Studies in Education at Notre Dame last July. Formerly it was a part of the Center for the Study of Man in Contemporary Society.

In expanding its areas of interest to become a continuing program of basic and applied research and training, the OER has added several new staff members.

Dr. Francis X. Wallace, the author, will be at the Bookstore Sat. Morning from 10 am to Noon.
The Wonder of wonders, miracle of miracles, the Mets ignored all the odds and the New York Mets, base­ defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last double capped a typical come and a solo homer in the seventh over the Baltimore Orioles.
and completed one of the most sixth inning, lined up he was hit by Wally Post, and didn't hit four balls
in that 1957 series when Ed
was foul by a foot. He then swung away and hit an opposite field drive to right that heir was just a foot. He then smudge of shoe polish Thursday up flags, tore up the bases and the situation reminds me of the hitting two errors.
netting two errors.
meets two errors.
three errors. Incidentally, he hails seven passes, allowed only a 41%
the play of Ralph Stepaniak.
the play of the Theismann Expansion Theorem - which proves he is just as Geometry problems I used to basic before catching the fly this show. This either that he is a poor scrambler or in the same season. This shows either
and the New York Mets, base­
RUNNER WATT TINY HIT
on track. To do that he has to be Northwestern Wisconsin-by 6.
Tennessee by 6. Upsets always get the Bear mad,
'to be considered of Dom. The change of decision of the plays. The offense has the 396 foot mark for a double leading Hills of Delaware-by 21. Still ranked number eight, the as four fumbles and has been began. He showed a shine of polish. The defense has improved steady all year as It was the third catch a fly before connecting the wouldn't have been hit.
always been noted in the field
offense to protect but Domino ruled Jones was safe.
Ohio State over Miami-by 10.
and her left brother at 6-5).
Theismann at the 396 foot mark for a double leading first baseman who was out on
was foul by a foot. He then are new and old
the fence.
the heads by Sam Dickson.
that is was fouled by a foot. He then sac to the outfielders.
the outfielders.
The homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted
and the New York Mets, base­

payed more yards than their
the backs.

had never hit one in Shea Sta­
the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who the Mets. He promptly honored to tie the game 3-1. Naturally.

appearance in the. This shows either coaching staff came up with a

Beaver bouncing out of the his glove before catching the fly the fumbles. Jimmy Jones is leading off the sixth climbed both the offense's

Jim Gunn (a second-team All­ three touchdowns and a 73-yard run That was on the basis of the
has been in the series ever since Mike McCoy is still around.
has given rise to one in Shea Sta­ her left brother at 6-5).
in track. To do that he has to be
the outfielders.
the fence.
and an upset by Vanderbilt is unspeakable. Watch the Crimson Tide touchdowns and a 73-yard run

Interceptions: The Mets had only two hits in the series, slammed 3-1 to Don Buford made a long run

any given result. Jones has com­ ality and a 2.5 punt return

Lowest total ever for a five game
and completed one of the most
in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come
and the New York Mets, base­

the oriole.
offense to protect but Domino ruled Jones was safe.
three errors. Incidentally, he hails

 hut was hit by

The homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.

Homer helped win Clen­
the ground, have intercepted

in track. To do that he has to be
the fence.
the Mets, base­defeated the Baltimore Orioles, brought in Eddie Watt in the last
double capped a typical come

the Mets, who'd never even
who was A1 Weis, the .215 hitter who 1111

Penn State over Syracuse-by 14.

Mike Mc Coy is still around.

almost normal for them.