Carr's 37 points pull Irish through

by Cliff Wintrode

One of the faultless hands that drew the birthday cupcakes during Monday's selective service lotteries managed to a Notre Dame student.

Jack Crawford, Senior class president, had been chosen by Fr. Hasshub last summer to be Notre Dame's representative to the Indiana chapter of the Youth Advisory Committee on draft reform. He was selected last week by the other members of the Indiana Committee to act as the state's representative at the lottery drawing.

Crawford described some of the less publicized events surrounding the participation of the Youth Committee in an interview yesterday. Crawford said there were 53 youth representatives present in Washington for the ceremony, one from each state, New York City and Washington DC. The group, composed almost entirely of college, grad, and law students, had been brought to the capital at government expense to take part in the lottery activities.

"We were all under the impression that we were there to do more than just pick cupcake out," Crawford said. "We thought we could also have the opportunity to give some information on the fact that the national Committee felt the problems with the entire draft system, including the lottery, were. We had hoped to have a general meeting to discuss the opinions of the individual state committees but they managed to keep us busy all day Monday so that we didn't get the chance."

The group had a meeting with Gen. Hershey early Monday morning to work out plans for the mechanics of the lottery selection. Two student representatives asked that the group be able to hold a private meeting before anything was decided, but they were ruled out of order.

"Hershey then barred the two from any further participation in any of the lottery functions. Crawford was one of three delegates sent to an attempt to change Hershey's mind."

"We tried to explain some things to him but it was impossible. He didn't listen to any of our arguments, he just doubled his way around the whole thing," Crawford said. "We were all under the impression that we were there to do more than just pick cupcake out.

from last year's student government election to propose co-education."

A compromise to the tenured faculty was sent out yesterday and almost all of the very top administration officials have been contacted by the commission said O'Brien.

He said he hopes to receive replies from the tenured faculty by the middle of next week. O'Brien referred to the reaction of administration officials as being receptive to the idea and hopeful that this seminar could become a reality. He said that a student cares one way or another about co-education, then he ought to throw up on the hall discussions.

Grads air variety of views

Ideas came with a frequency rivaling that of the snowflakes last night at the Open Forum on the Flight of the Teaching Assistant sponsored by the Fact Finding Committee of the Graduates Student Union.

On the main point—the situation of the English T.A.'s debate centered on two major issues. On the one hand there was the original proposal that since these people teach a full load of six hours a week, coupled with all the outside work entailed in the teaching profession, they deserve more than the $1980 they now receive.

Many grad students from other departments took objection to the very fact that these English T.A.'s are required to put in the 40 hours a week that their teaching, correcting, etc. take regardless of the compensation. It was pointed out that such duties take so much time that the students are prevented from their primary role as students.

The English T.A.'s felt that the nature of their subject demanded many small classes so that they could have close personal contact with their students. They therefore felt that attempting to reduce the class load to combining sections would be a poor solution on two counts. Not only would they still have the same amount of theorems to correct, but they would lose some of this personal relationship.

Much of the discussion led to a consideration of just how the T.A. is officially viewed. There seem to be two schools of thought on the matter. Some feel that they are being used by the university to save money. Others expressed the view that money offered to graduate students is given with the purpose of being minimal support while they pursue their own studies.

Individual departments seem to bear a fair amount of the responsibility for the situation of their own grad students. A comparative study is now underway to examine these, but members of the departments represented last night did not exchange views. The Math Department was offered as the best model for English since both math and English are required for all incoming freshmen. While certain differences were recognized, the five math students in attendance offered some suggestions that might help alleviate the problems faced.

However, the more long range solutions tended to center on a proposal for a university wide council. The figures tended to be a minimum wage of $2400 - $2600 and a maximum work load of 12-13 hours per week. Those who proposed these pointed out that the wage should be a minimum below which no department could go and that it be subject to cost-of-living increases. On the other hand, the work load was to apply to the actual time spent and not just to class time.

Not all of the discussion centered around the hours and wages. Bro. Maurice Frechette reported a recent experience he had had with the bookstore when he went to pay his bill. At that time he was informed that he had lost his 10% discount. After checking with the bookstore authorities and Mr. Corbaci to whom he was referred, the best explanation of the action seemed to be that it was removed because his name was not on the list of T.A.'s granted parking permits by Mr. Arthur Pea.

Bro. Maurice pointed out that he could see why parking space had to be limited by space, but felt that the reason for the discount was to help alleviate the financial burden on the teaching assistant regardless of whether he has full responsibility for the course or not.

A report on these and other activities of the SGU will be given at Friday's meeting. All members are encouraged to attend the session which will be held at noon in the library auditorium.

Special for all scrap devotees

The maintenance department requests all who like scrap metal to please park their bicycles on the sidewalks during the winter months so that the snowplows may run them over easily.
by Jim Holsinger

Professor Donald P. Kommers of the Government Department said yesterday that there has been "widespread reception" of a letter he wrote to the Notre Dame faculty concerning the Dow and CIA demonstrations of November 18.

Kommers wrote the letter to offer what he called "a counter-veiling theory" of the relationship between the university and the private corporation. He asked that faculty members who agreed with his sentiments return the statement to him with their signatures.

"Actually I haven't counted them. The thing has received widespread reception in the College of Arts and Letters, but I haven't been systematically accepting them," Kommers said.

40 returned

About 40 of the letters have been returned so far, according to Kommers, and the letter is to be circulated among the faculty of the other colleges soon. Kommers noted that he had not intended to make an issue of counting the returned letters, and that the responses were varied.

The letter was written in answer to several other Notre Dame faculty members who were soliciting a similar statement that the University is guilty of "subservience to the political and economic systems represented by the Dow Chemical Corporation and the Central Intelligence Agency." The statement appeared in the November 19 Observer.

Defines terms

Kommers argued that the University, in the capacity of the University, cannot take a position on anything. He defined the distinction between the "university structure" and the "academic community." Kommers wrote:

"According to Kommers, the university is the structure which houses the diversified and pluralistic academic community. The university cannot arrogate sentiments which may not be shared. Only people can take a position," he said.

Recruits okay

"Corporations do not come here to exchange ideas with the academic community, they are not visiting the academic community, and they are not interested in the academic community. That is why it is unfair to demand that corporations defend themselves before the academic community," Kommers wrote.

Understanding in this way, the use of the university structure to channel students into society is then valid, and does not interfere with the academic community.

Kommers commented that he is uncertain of the value of his definitions as a working distinction, but that he was interested in establishing basic amenities to allow an intellectual exchange on the issue.

Applications are now being accepted

In a letter to the editor of the Observer, Rev. David Burrell, C.S.C. Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Notre Dame, commented on the actions of the Dow-CIA protesters in the light of Professor Kommers' distinctions, and in the aftermath of the confrontations on the university's position as an institution. Burrell argued that general student disinterest requires corporate decisions.

"I was not informed of the actual Cotton Bowl Trip until time. Once we could go ahead with arrangements, Student-Airfare (a nationwide student travel organization) gave us an offer for transportation to and hotels in Dallas. We thought the offer was too high. We then took bids from student travel organizations all over the Midwest. We handled over for three days until Student in International Association, Inc., of Ann Arbor was decided upon." After all this delay, we have only two days for sign-ups. According to Student-Airfare, we needed forty people on each place; but we received approximately twenty applicants for the Chicago flight and eleven for New York," Monnich continued.

Monnich cited a number of reasons for the apparent failure of the project. According to the Professor, conflict between the Cotton Bowl Trip and the scheduled skiing trip to Colorado. "People were willing to pay for the skiing trip, or for the Cotton Bowl Trip, but not both," he said.

Monnich continued, however, that general student disinterest in projects of the nature of the Dallas trip ultimately caused the cancelation of the trip. "I wanted the Student Union to run a trip to Europe this spring, but I think I'll keep my plans to myself," Monnich said.

The Commissioner also blamed the geographic nature of the Student Body. According to Monnich, many students could not reach Dallas as easily as they could reach New York or Chicago.

Monnich also cited the number of student-run trips as a contributing factor to the Student Union Services Committee's decision not to continue the project.

Applications are now being accepted for the following positions:

BUSINESS MANAGER

OBSERVER ACCOUNTANT

AD SALES MEN

Send resume to:

THE OBSERVER

NOTRE DAME, IND.

46556

Miss Notre Dame at the Cotton Bowl

Dec. 30 & 31 and Jan. 1

A St. Mary's Girl will represent N.D. at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. She and her escort will be the guests of the Cotton Bowl Committee. Lodging, meals and entertainment will be provided by THEM. Transportation equivalent to the fare of a round trip from South Bend to Dallas will be provided for Miss Notre Dame.

If you would like to be MISS NOTRE DAME, send a picture with your name, address, and telephone number to the Student Union Social Commission — Box 427, or bring it to room 4C LaFortune Student Center. Application deadline is 4 P.M. Friday December 5, 1969. Voting will be FRIDAY NIGHT in the dining halls.

Entries may be submitted by any ND or St. Mary's student.
Agnew again

"Outspoken minority' creates credibility gap

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said yesterday that political protests by an "outspoken minority" has shut off rational two way discussion of America's problems.

"That refusal to approach an issue with an open mind, that refusal to entertain a spirit of compromise — that is what is building barriers between the young and the old, between the outspoken minority and the soft spoken majority," Agnew said.

"That is the barrier we must be determined to dismantle from both sides."

The vice president said those who oppose the use of tear gas to scatter demonstrators and news coverage by the press and television are engaged in a "nicocett" rhetoric when people do not respond to what is said.

Ticket requests pouring in

"We started getting applications back on Monday and already we are 4,000 tickets in the hole," said Mr. Donald E. Bouffard, Notre Dame Ticket Manager, while explaining the procedures concerning Cotton Bowl ticket applications.

Mr. Bouffard explained that the University received 12,000 tickets from the Cotton Bowl Committee. The tickets are allotted according to three major priorities. These priorities are: season ticket holders, alumni and parents of students who live within an 18 state area around Dallas, and students. Members of the first two groups may send an application blank by mail which would allow them four tickets each. The price of each ticket is $17, the same price as that of a reserved season game ticket.

One thousand tickets are held for students. They will go on sale Sunday on a first come, first served basis at the Athletic and Convocation Center Box Office according to the following schedule: Seniors—Tuesday, Dec. 9; Juniors, Graduate and Law Students—Wednesday, Dec. 10; Sophomores—Thursday, Dec. 11; and Freshmen—Friday, Dec. 12. Students may purchase one reserved seat ticket at $3.50. I.D. cards must be presented at the time of purchase.

He explained that the Southw est Conference representative receives between 30 to 40 requests per day for tickets.

Draft service opens

A new draft counseling service has made its appearance on the Notre Dame campus. This organization, the idea of seniors Mike Yarborough and Tom McCloskey, is headed by ten ND Freshmen—Friday, Dec. 12.

The purpose of the organization is to guide current students concerning the draft. In the interview for this article, Mike Yarborough stressed that this organization is not simply for the benefit of draft dodgers or conscientious objectors but for all students who have some question and want answered.

Crawford made advisor

Continued from page 1

hours. The entire southern campus boycotted the meeting because they were opposed to anything that even seemed like a protest," Crawford said.

"But we did come out of the meeting with some resolutions. We agreed to press for a number of changes in the draft system including better legal advice for C.O.'s, service financed by the government with competent lawyers to be appointed by the courts to defend the objects. We also advocated a selective C.O. bill and in general expressed a desire for far greater draft reform than the simple could accomplish 'peace in our time,' but we say to the next generation — we are just as much concerned with peace in your time. We refuse to accept a solution that says 'peace now — pay later' because it's our children's younger generation who have to pay later the price of surrender now.'

Agnew, who shook hands with Nixon after his speech, said the "outspoken minority" was engaged in "politics of protest" and he listed these "Ten Commandments of Protest."

"Thou shall not allow thy opponent to speak; thou shalt not set forth a program of thine own; thou shalt not treat anybody over 30; thou shalt not honor thy father or thy mother; thou shalt not breed the lessons of history; thou shalt not write anything longer than a slogan; thou shalt not present a negotiable demand; thou shalt not accept any establishment idea; thou shall not reverse any but totalitarian heroes; thou shalt not ask for forgiveness for thy transgressions, rather thou shall demand amnesty for them."

Pollution confab slated

An all day conference exploring the menace of pollution from different points of view will be held at the Library Auditorium Thursday, December 11.

The conference will consist of five ninety minute panel discussions. Dr. Frederick Rossini will open the conference at eight and will preside over a discussion concerning the "Geological Overview" and dealing with pollution in the earth's crust. Following discussions will consider the "Fresh Water Crisis" and "Pollution and Life." Des. James Maney and Ralph Thorson will turn the methods of engineering and biology on the subject.

The afternoon session will treat the roles of corporate responsibility and legislation. Chairmen of those panels are Professor Robert Anthony and William Sexton. Dean Lawless of the Law school will be on hand for the legislation panel.

This conference is the "open to the public" run of the closed Seminar held November 12 and 13. This Seminar was attended by invited faculty and students and the delegated executives of the corporations which are sponsoring the program. Eight major corporations six midwestern and two from New York — are paying for and participating in a series of three seminars. All of the seminars will deal with the problems of cities. Professor William Sexton is in charge of the program which consists of the voluntary aid of faculty in many different disciplines in an effort to expose meaningful questions and answers.

House for Rent

Mr. Donald E. Bouffard, 15,000 and 18,000 tickets. The rest go to Cotton Bowl stockholders and to the general public.

Tonight - Dec. 4 - 7:00 pm
Two PEACE CORPS

PRESENTATIONS:

1. 'Opportunities for Science and Engineering Graduates in the Peace Corps,'

-Tunisian Stereo Slide Show and Discussion.

Engineering Aud. - Room 303

2. Peace Corps Film: 'CONFRONTATION', followed by discussion.

Center for Continuing Education
Audio - Visual Theater
THE OBSERVER
An Independent Student Newspaper
DONALD C. HOLLIWAY, Publisher
GAETANO DE SAPIO, Editor
FOUNDED NOVEMBER 3, 1966
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

Tim O'Mellia
Which game?

He would rather have been in Miami for New Year's, he thought, as he watched the crowd file into the Cotton Bowl. He didn't dislike Dallas or the people but Miami had better weather, better hotels, and better football. The Dallas fans had two things: they hated you as much as boozing and luxury as you could pay for. In Dallas they would rather win the damn football game than fill your glass.

He watched the smoke curl up from the fat, ugly cigar of the priest sitting to his left in the press box. It didn't seem to bother the old priest that they were in Dallas instead of Miami, but then he never knew where he was after a few drinks anyway. His head ached and he remembered the party of the previous night when the old priest had kissed the waiters at midnight. The waitress was indignant, but everyone else had laughed. The university's administrative officials all plowed and kissing waitresses. It was ludicrous. But in red morning another man. He had learned quickly enough after the university had hired him the difference between image and reality. Those roman collars were easy enough to come by. But they only came off at night.

The stench of the cigar began to reach him as he watched the old priest make bets with the slow-talking Texas sports-writers. They were sure the Steers would cream Notre Dame as badly as they had Arkansas. He really didn't much care himself; who won; he would have much rather have been in Miami.

His thrill would come in a few months as he and a few other assistants would watch Father Joyce open the certified letter from the Cotton Bowl committee which would contain a check for more than $300,000. So simple. Play a football game and drink your brains out, then figure out what to do with more than a quarter of a million dollars. The game was so easy if you were smart enough to figure out the rules.

He had often thought of what the university would do with the money. How ironic. Those loudmouth red-neck Texans would pay Notre Dame enough money to buy a few minority group members. He frowned; he wasn't sure who was winning that game.

He looked down into the crowd and spotted what could have only been some Notre Dame students. Drunk and wearing Notre Dame jackets and singing the Victory March. The same Victory March he had sung years before when Notre Dame was a very different place. The place had changed a lot since he had been a student but it still made him feel a bit ashamed.

The students didn't seem to be hangover. The harder they bitched about the Lone Star beer, the harder they drank. Not much different from the old priest. The story was that the old man cursed his hangovers with his second chalice-full of wine at last. No, neither the students nor the old priest seemed to have hangovers.

Not much difference at all.

He watched the captains march out on the field for the coin toss. The Texas captains had their helmets off. He could see their hair was neatly in place. Their burnt orange jerseys and white pants somehow made them seem sleek and powerful. The Notre Dame captains looked awkward lumbering out there with their helmet on and their blue stockings. Clumsy and out of place.

The Cotton Bowl queen and the eight princesses caught his eye. They were escorted onto the field to watch the toss. They looked very much alike from where he sat. All wore wide smiles and small crowns that glinted in the sun.

He looked for Miss Notre Dame. He spotted her immediately. She was last in line and left with easy. The story was that the old man cursed his hangovers with his second chalice-full of wine at last. No, neither the students nor the old priest seemed to have hangovers.

Not much difference at all.

He watched the captains march out on the field for the coin toss. The Texas captains had their helmets off. He could see their hair was neatly in place. Their burnt orange jerseys and white pants somehow made them seem sleek and powerful. The Notre Dame captains looked awkward lumbering out there with their helmet on and their blue stockings. Clumsy and out of place.

The Cotton Bowl queen and the eight princesses caught his eye. They were escorted onto the field to watch the toss. They looked very much alike from where he sat. All wore wide smiles and small crowns that glinted in the sun.

He glanced at the awkward princesses to the shabby-looking Cinderella; some students had wanted to name her Miss Notre Dame and St. Mary's Community. His face reddened. Why couldn't Notre Dame play the game as well as these Texas hicks?

He heard the 'Eyes of Texas' being played and suddenly he cared very much who won the game. At once he knew what he wanted to do more than anything. He wanted to buy Miss Notre Dame some high heels, a blonde wig, and a padded bra.

Jim Holsinger
Picking dates

Many Notre Dame students are happy with the lottery method of draft selection as evidenced by their comments in yesterday's Observer. They believe the lottery is just, or at least more equitable than the old system. Many students support the system because they believe it puts an end to the gross inequity of planning a career. If men must be drafted it probably is more fair to choose them at random, and the new system does let a young man know where he stands in the selective service line.

But there are also many students who have been fooled by what they see as an end to confusion and protest over the morality of the draft. And many dear thinking students who have been silenced by the luck of a happy birthday.

A small minority even thinks the whole idea may be unfair, but is unconcerned. The Observer quoted an anonymous Notre Dame student yesterday who said, "What do I think about the lottery? Nothing really. I got a good number, I don't care anymore. It may be unfair to some, but me, I'm in the clear."

According to last Monday's lineup, I am among those born on the right day. In fact, no one had a better birthday, and no one would be happier than I to forget about the draft altogether and to write in the safe 366th place for the war to end. But et us not be hypocrites. Let us not be fooled. The immunity of a third of the people doesn't kill the disease in all the others.

Can we judge the justice of a lottery system by the odds we might be called? The lottery system may be more fair than the old system which picked only the people who couldn't or would not shuffle fast enough or often enough to avoid it. But in either case, young men are still being taken away from constructive living and ordered to kill.

Perhaps the whole lottery system is only an attempt by the Nixon administration to relieve the pressure placed on the selective service system in recent times by men who believe in peace and the end of armies. The only peace that results from pulling numbers from a fabulous is peace of mind for Richard Nixon and peace of mind for those born under a lucky star. Richard Nixon has consistently turned a deaf ear to the voices of those people in America who call for an end to the war, and now he is attempting to appease the American people with a new method for sending young men to war. I continue to condemn the Nixon administration for its failure to face the demands for peace in Vietnam.

But what of Nixon's projected volunteer army? Many Americans claim that there would be no need for a draft if we had a well trained volunteer army. Is the world any closer to peace when trained volunteers do the killing? Is a soldier less dead when he volunteers for service? There would also be no need for the draft if there weren't any war.

Let's pick a date for ending the war.
Arian finish season 16-6-9: clinch pennant!

by Pete Peterson

The house of Mars was the unlikely scene for a victory party Monday night after the Arian Rams had hounded the Washington Kangaroos a stunning 345 point loss to clinch the pennant and force a run-off next Friday night. Record Team Captain Tom "Don't tread on me" Jefferson, emerging from a day of manhood, and our two score leader, Captain Jeff Davis, who has become a student of a game, opened with an impressive 334 point win over the Kangaroos in the nightcap. Sure, we had some bad games; we had a 14-point whooping on the 11th of April, but the nightcap was lost and with a smashing 34-6 pasting of the Kangaroos.

Asked of his team would participate in any post-season bowl games, "Trends" laughingly said, "We are a tradition we have no intention of holding back. We're pretty happy with the pennant, and I think we'll just stick with it." In another part of the same House, the atmosphere was more subdued. The Scorpios were feeling the sting of defeat, having finished in the cellar with a 5-12-12 season. Captain Davis stated, "It hurt, especially to be in the same boat with the Rams. But of course, they use the house by day, we use it by night. The house of Mars at night, well, we just want beauty and laughter, and more so than anything else." The team's mood was tempered by the fact that they had just finished the season with a 5-12-12 season. Captain Davis, who scored 301 points for the Twins, expressed with satisfaction a reaction which included the connections of 324, 361, 357, 356, 335, and 341 points, and a league leading 360 point, on their way to a 16-12-6 season.

A business trip through midland America on your way back to school from Thanksgiving vacation is just-dismal! Take it from us. We've been there and we know just what it's like.

To begin with, there's the bus station. Standing there, we asked our driver if we didn't even have the benefit of illusions to cheer us up on our way downtown. We know you Indians are a race of travelers. The room we were in for, what we did find vaguely delightful, had only the lost sensation of being the largest station on our route, would probably be (and was) the best bus station we've seen in America. We'd like to register a complaint.

We could being with the fact that it's impossible to find a seat on any bus leaving our home city for any other city with anything which included the connections to get to South Bend. Arriving at the bus station on time (always a perilous thing to do), we were cheerfully told full-price ticket for the already full bus, a ticket, we might add, the prize of which can be refunded by engaging in voluminous correspondence with the Greyhound Bus Home Offices in Cleveland, Ohio, reportedly.

We presently found ourselves at the corner of about two hundred and sixty people (well, it was really nearer forty people) waiting to get on the thirty-six seat Scenicruiser. We were cramped, muddied-up windows. Did we forget to mention that our bus was carrying twenty people sitting on it from a previous incarnation at a bus stop? We questioned our sanity at the same time.

Then we sat down on our suitcase and began to weep quietly. Luckily the relatives who had sent us didn't seem to detect the tears. For travelers' oasis were still around, in the midst of weeping and crying, the first leg of the journey, to a city some seventy miles away.

That being said, this was to be the original full bus to the transit point; beat it we certainly did. When the bus to South Bend pulled out of this second station, we had not yet seen the original bus on which, but for the grace of you-know-who, we would have been riding.

Having a great sigh of relief to be finally safely on our way, we settled down to enjoy the pleasures of a perfect sixty-minute ride through beautiful rural Indiana. What fun.

Have you any idea how ugly rural America (at least along the bus routes) would look Midland America? You would have been amazed! We ran through beautiful Indiana. What fun.

How long can the tempo last? Is it really.

Paul Brennan is having his doubts, the same fears we all experience. He is losing his faith in the product - himself. The Bible is merely external. The selling is in yourself. To the draft board, to the graduate school, to the people we must play, we constantly selling ourselves, all the time we have faith in our product, we move in a milieu of confidence, we keep the tempo moving.

But Paul Brennan is having his doubts, and the same fears we all experience. He may have our own doubts, the blown sales-pitch, the missed arrangement, the self-pity, the new crysalis, the appeal to humanity's interest in its to take a real Paul Brennan go down raw before our eyes, the narrowed eyes of failure too embarrass ing to endure because it's real without the mask of a fictional frame. Emasculation, castrating, the down-hill ride pathetically covered with some scraps of dignity. The first sneazy humming, the first doubts casually thrown aside. "There are many people who know the Bible. There are many people who can quote from the Bible. But you're somewhat different..." The uneasy re-occurrence of self-doubt...the loser.

"The Best seller in the World is the Bible, for one reason. It's the greatest piece of literature of all time. It's really tremendous, isn't it? Here are the Shepherds and the Three Kings. The Flight of the Three Kings. The Flight of the Shepherds. The Flight of the Rams." Paul Brennan is stepping. Paul Brennan is looking. The problem Paul Brennan has to answer is the impact of Salesmen, the everyday merchandise transaction elevated to the heights of metaphor.

The next day, the Arians were due on the Cinematheque in Washington Hall, Sat. & Sun. at 2 & 8 P.M. It is of course a fine offering from the American scene and it has only recently filtered into the Midwest via the recent Chicago International Film Festival where it was one of the most acclaimed films in the series. The film is the first effort of a directional team of brothers, Albert and David Mayles, and is shot in the Cinema and photo style made somewhat popular by Godard and the New York school of cameramen such as Richard Leacock and D.A. Pennebaker (Don't Look Back, Beyond the Law, Monotony Pop). The film is a work of this "direct cinema" impulse is the new modernity in film equipment. Lighter and easier synchronization equipment and lighter camera have made it possible for even two-man film crews to explore dimensions of reality literally in "the street" rather than in artificial studio settings. This is of course the way Salesmen was made, one brother on sound, and the other filming with the modulated Auricon camera.

The four main characters in Salesmen have stepped right out of mythical America. The Badger, The Gipper, The Rabbit, The Bull. Paul Brennan, Charlie McDavis, Jimmy Baker, Ray Martinez. Their job - to tell the Word of God, in sylon-bound, plastic-coated packages of $4.95, "washable and outlasts leather 4 to 1."...Fehlertauts of the Chicago-based Mid-America Bible company, they range from shack to shack down Boston town to the legs spread aura of Miami beach. Selling the Gospel to all who will listen. Their main street is Parma-Barno-Parma-Barno flats, flashing down sub- -hours of selling. Unloading and garishly greasy food eaten on the run, Araiba Ave., Sesame St., Sharazad Boulevard...another door, the pitch, the handshake, the smile..."is your mother home?", the convincing gesture, the timing, the tone, long can the tempo last?..."...and the salesman was good..."
Letters to the Editor

Attacks hard line

Editor: Thursday's editorial in support of the University's stand against those participants in the Dow-CIA demonstration who chose to block entrance to the recruiter was an exercise in sophistry and shallow thinking that cannot go unanswered. It was indeed disheartening that the student newspaper (or perhaps only its editor—it is becoming hard to tell) would so quickly and callously shrug off the expulsion of its fellow students. One would have hoped to see, at the very least, some dissent from the severity of the punishment if not a questioning of the law's legality.

Instead, though, we are given a rebuke of the old 'law-ordert' line—a line which, I readily admit, seems emanating just and rational once we have accepted the original tenets that "The 'killers' by Dow Chemical is another matter in itself. The issue is whether the group of protesters had the right to block the entrance to their room because of their disagreement with Dow." But the whole question can not and must not be divided into two "matters" at all. This is far too simplistic an approach and one I am surprised to see The Observer take. The two matters (Dow's complicity and students' rights) are inextricably bound together and any attempt to separate them is an attempt to form absolute answers to relative moral questions, an attempt to say that no student has, under any circumstances, the right to "forcibly prohibit a job inquirer view." Surely, though, you can not believe that and must concede the point established in the oft-repeated What would you do—if Hitler was using the universities-to-recruit-gas-chamber-attended's analogy.

Thus the question you pose is a false one and all your appeals to "reason" and "logic" and "rational dialogue" prove deficient. What we must ask is whether, in this particular case, a moral outrage which can no longer be rectified by rational dialogue has been committed and, if so, what one ought to do about it. It is indeed the killing (why you put quotation marks around that word is beyond me—all it is real people who are dying) by Dow Chemical that is at stake here.

If you would permit me the space, there are a few more points I should like to quickly bring up.

The thrust of your editorial is discouragingly similar to that of Fr. Hesburgh's now famous letter in that it implicitly places the entire burden for a moral controversy on the shoulders of students. It involves the institutional immoralities of racism, weaponry, peddling, etc. Students are being soundly thrashed for their misdeeds but who, pray tell, is going to give the University or its administration 15 minutes of meditation?

You say nothing about the arbitrariness of the selection of the ten violators, an arbitrariness that bespeaks a possible attempt to isolate and crush the more radical leaders at the Chicago Conspiracy.

You say the demonstrators were trying to force an "opinion" upon the student body. This is patently untrue, as anyone (and this most certainly must include those who have seen how impossible this sort of attempting to make the student body a "bogus forum") the burning issues of the day as it has been pointed out, Hesburgh once termed them, not forcibly mold their opinions.

Finally, you take comfort in thinking that the "remaining one hundred" of the demonstrators will still be here to argue and discuss their point of view to the rest of the community." Putting aside for the moment the callousness of this statement ("so what if we knock off a few militante—we'll have enough around to keep our discussions lively"), may I submit that this attempt at hypocrisy will soon be disproved, like maybe next Monday. If the University kicks out ten of its members for being too moral to back up their beliefs with action, it is more than a mere possibility that more will (voluntarily) follow.

Yours in Notre Dame
Michael Costello
139 Lyons

Revolutions

Praises parodies?

Editor: You play Teddy Hesburgh's new disk backwards at 76 rpm, one distinctly hears the words "God is the walrus.

"We resign our right to trial before the University court, and accept immediately the jurisdiction of the Appeals Board." The Notre Dame Ten

Bermuda 70

Met Club

Revolutions Anti-Acne Cover'!

This smooth little cream-in-a-tube just took the 'ugly' out of fighting acne. It spot-treats and conceals acne pimples, helps them dry and heal fast. In 9 shades, so you can match your skin coloring perfectly. It stays dry, stays put. Won't cake, flake or smear. And it conceals any little flaw so perfectly, it's almost like putting on a beautiful new skin!

NEW NATURAL WONDER 'ANTI-ACNE SPOT COVER'!

Available at:
St. Mary's College Bookstore

HOMECOMING

Pictures may be picked up in the Social Commission Office
From 3 - 5 Thurs. & Fri.

Revolutions Anti-Acne Cover'!

This smooth little cream-in-a-tube just took the 'ugly' out of fighting acne. It spot-treats and conceals acne pimples, helps them dry and heal fast. In 9 shades, so you can match your skin coloring perfectly. It stays dry, stays put. Won't cake, flake or smear. And it conceals any little flaw so perfectly, it's almost like putting on a beautiful new skin!

NEW NATURAL WONDER 'ANTI-ACNE SPOT COVER'!

Available at:
St. Mary's College Bookstore

Sunshine Festival

Friday Dec. 5
9 pm
Stean Center
MUSIC BY: First Friday
Pilot-Free Form Jam
House Show by Greater North Bay Alchemical Co.
sponsored by Student Union Social Commission

Europe $189

Round Trip Jet
University Charter's 6th Annual Charter Flight Series
Sponsored by Notre Dame, St. Mary's - Students International non-stop Jet
open bar and complete meals
Detroit departures from near-by Metro Airport
$50 deposit, final payment in March cancellation provisions until day of departure complete range of travel services our Ann Arbor office can book you into student priced hotels before you leave, and our London office will look after all your needs while you are in Europe
June 26 to August 26 - 8 weeks Detroit/London/Detroit $229 members receive $189
June 11 to July 27 - 6 weeks N.Y./London/N.Y. $189
Open only to Notre Dame and St. Mary's students, faculty, staff and immediate families
$50 Deposit Reserves Seats

Notre Dame Student Service Center
4 E. Lafontaine Student Center
283-7757

St. Mary's Contact
St. Mary's Student Services Organization

General Meeting
Thurs. 7:30 Rm. 118 Nieuwland

God is the walrus

Editor: You play Teddy Hesburgh's new disk backwards at 76 rpm, one distinctly hears the words "God is the walrus.

Patrick Henry Buckley
430 Howard

Ten explain decision

Editor: The following statement was prepared by the University Senate Tuesday morning explaining the decision of the ten students expelled or suspended to go before the Appeals Board rather than the University Court.

"The means are the ends in embryo. It is necessary to incar­ enate the ends in the means. There is an inviolable connection between means and ends. Our end, was and is Peace, not hate; Love, not violence; Community, not alienation. We, therefore, find it impossible to participate in the proceeding of this Court. For us, who have voluntarily accepted suffering and the possi­bility of future suffering in order to help bring to a climax Notre Dame's complicity with the de­struction of men, women and children around the world, it would be death to participate in and thereby incar­nate in our own persons, the "spirit" of the SLC on Monday, November 24 and the University Court on Wednesday, November 26, 1969. If we were to cooperate with the SLC and the University Court in this matter, we feel we would be incarnating not the living truth of the spirit of the Jesus Christ, but rather the dead lie of the spirit of a power politics mentality, of self interest. Peace, Love and Community can not flow from this latter spirit.

"It is our feeling that this court will be bogged down with semantics and proceed in a "most Court" fashion. We feel a more informed proceeding is in­valuable because of the scope of human emotions and individual moral convictions involved. The adversary system will not lend itself to the problem of hand which may prove fatal to our conception of community.

"We resign our right to trial before the University Court, and accept immediately the jurisdic­tion of the Appeals Court."

The Notre Dame Ten

Bermuda 70

Met Club
WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.

Nixon urged understanding of drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.

Nixon urged understanding of drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.

Nixon urged understanding of drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.

Nixon urged understanding of drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.

Nixon urged understanding of drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.

Nixon urged understanding of drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon urged the nation's governors yesterday to wage a community campaign against growing drug abuse by stressing "more information, more understanding," rather than harsher criminal penalties. Nixon said he would ask federal officials to address a daylong conference to get as many students as possible involved in the sale of marijuana and other illicit drugs, especially among the young.

"I first thought the answer was more penalties," the President said, "but when you are talking about 13 and 14 year olds, penalties are not the answer...the answer is more information, more understanding."

Mardi Gras emphasis on the city

The Mardi Gras committee chairman, Dewan, revealed that the awareness of the South Bend Community will be emphasized this year's Mardi Gras. In setting the next couple of days, but that the awareness of the Mardi Gras committee's plans to overhaul federal drug laws to provide lighter penalties for possession of illicit drugs and to give police broader legal authority to move against users.

The President's remarks were in line with the administration's plan to overhaul federal drug laws as a misdemeanor rather than a felony. The maximum penalty for a first offense would be a year in jail and a $5,000 fine, rather than the present mandatory sentence of five to twenty years' imprisonment.
Sid leads comeback, onsprained ankle

by Mike Pavlin
Observer Sports Editor

Heisman形状
Sid Catlett, seen hobbling around campus Tuesday and expected to miss four games with a sprained ankle, came off the bench to spark a desperate Irish rally which carried ND to an 87-86 win over Michigan.

Entering the game with 16:32 left and the Irish nine points down, the 6-8 forward hit three shots in a row as ND came from behind to wipe out a horrendous half and a fine individual performance by Wolverine Rudy Tomjanovich.

For the Irish, it was an embarrassing first half. Predictably, the Wolverines came out running on all occasions. They also had an offense all ready for Johnny 24 hoisting matching-zone defense. By virtue of quick passes, they were able to isolate men in the corners and then shoot or beat free men cutting underneath. Forwards Rod Ford and Rich Carter hit from the corners throughout the game.

Notre Dame was plagued with a rash of fouls and turnovers during the period and did not score a field goal until Jim Hinga knocked one in at 17:54. "You know how it is," said Dee O'Connell afterwards, "It's the first home game and the boys are tight. I told them, 'Why don't you loosen up and just play like you do in practice.' Then we get in trouble and I have to do it in practice. Then we get in trouble and I have to do it in practice."

Although cold from the floor, the Irish called several offensive fouls and managed to take a 12-10 lead at 14:59. After a poor start, captain Austin Carr began scoring with a vengeance, mostly from underneath. His three-point plays at 8:34 and 4:46 kept the Irish close and his jumper at 4:15 gave ND a 36-35 lead. But a stretch of perfect free-throw shooting by the Wolverines and several Irish turnovers made a fence out of the remaining moments of the half, which ended with Michigan up 49-40.

Carr had 20 points, but the Irish snared only four points from the floor. Michigan hit 44% and 79% from the line. Tomjanovich and Ford had 15 and 14 points respectively. Four Irishmen - Colin Jones, Hinga, John Pleick, and Sid Catlett - had each ended the half with three fouls apiece.

As Carr entered the contest, it began revolving around Tomjanovich. Hitting 36-50 foot shots and beautiful tip-ins, he began drawing Irish defenders all over him, leaving men at all spots. The Wolverine lead reached 12 at 15:30, but with O'Connell putting together some great drives and Catlett scoring twice, the Irish were able to tip-up 73-65 at 10:57.

And what about Catlett? "He played with a sprain I don't know how he did it," said Dee. "He just kept saying he wanted to play, he wanted to play. I told him that it was a running-time ballgame and I didn't want him to hurt the ankle, but finally I said, 'Well, go in there and see what you can do.'"

Jones scored twice, Catlett blocked two Tomjanovich shots in a row (which really put the 7,324 fans on their feet), Carr canned a jumper at 9:03 and it was 74-68. Going in, Tomjanovich rallied the Wolverines with buckets, but Carr (having a fine shooting half) hit for eight points (two on one foul) to tie the game at 71-all at 5:20.

The Irish lead reached three after two more Carr free throws at 1:32, but Rick Bloodworth put Notre Dame in a prelim in a basket at 1:08. O'Connell and Bloodworth then flayed foul shooting, leaving the Irish in possession of the ball with 39 seconds left and a one-point lead.

Trying to dribble-out the clock, Jackie Meeman (O'Connell had fouled out) bounced the ball off his thigh and out of bounds. With 20 seconds left, the Wolverines worked the ball around, but Bloodworth missed the basket at 0:03 and that was that, 87-86.

Undoubtedly, it was one of the finest halves ever played in the Convoy. Gore was the mistakes (at least, much fewer than the first period), the fouls, and when it counted, ND was shooting one-on-one at the foul line. Dee finally got his first unit together and they played well.

Carr ended up with 37 points and Jones with 15. Pleick played the finest game of his career with 13 points, 18 rebounds (high in the game), and two assists. It was ND's superior rebounding edge (64-44) which helped forge the comeback.

Tomjanovich led Wolverine scoring with 28 points, while Ford (21) and Carter (19) played exceptional games. Michigan now stands 1-1 on the season.

A blistering 60-second half propelled the Michigan fresh to an easy 104-82 win over Notre Dame in a preliminary game. The young Wolverines, led by Johnson (27) and Wilmore (20), had five men in double figures. High scorer in the game was ND's Don Silinski who had 32 points.

Winning 9 of 10 matches, four on pins, the Notre Dame wrestling team opened their season with a convincing 33-5 victory over Valparaiso University last night at the A.C. The Irish were clearly the superior team, outclassing Valparaiso completely and gave first-year coach Tom Mather a solid performance for so early in the season.

Tom Ciccaro started the Irish off well by outpointing his opponent 13-3 in the 118-pound class and giving Notre Dame a 3-0 lead. Team points in wrestling are awarded on the basis of three points for a decision victory and five points for a pin.

If the grapplers tie, each team is given two points. Captain Keith Giron provided all the other points Notre Dame was to need when he registered a first period pin in the 126 pound class. John Maas (134) outpointed his man and the Irish rolled off two pins in succession in the fourth and fifth matches of the night as Ken Ryan (142) and Bob Habig (150) each nailed their opponents to the mat, keeping the Irish team's scoring tied up at 10-10.

Irish wrestling captain Krith Giron helped his squad to a convincing win over Valpo as he registered a win in the 126-pound class.

ND smashes Valpo

ND's e hockey statistics

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Player, Position, Home town</th>
<th>Pts</th>
<th>Go</th>
<th>Aes</th>
<th>Ga</th>
<th>Pen</th>
<th>Min</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Phil Witthoff, Jr-W, Pt. Huron, Mich</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paul Regan, Fr-C, Scarborough, Ont</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gary Noble, Fr-C, Toronto, Ont.</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gary Little, Fr-Trail, B.C</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kevin Huene, So-E, Dudhill, Minn</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jim Cordes, So-W, Farmington, Minn.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Book, So-W, St. Paul, Minn</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bill Green, Fr-D, Roseville, Minn</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Womack, Sr-W, Thiel Rvc Fls, Minn</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Rosewell-D, St. Paul, Minn</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jim Morris, So-D, St. Paul, Minn</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mark Long, So-D, Evedale, Minn</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Adam Stelmaanzensky, Fr-W, Niagara Fls, Ont.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bruce Rashiob, Fr-D, S. Vadnais, Ont.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mark Steinborn, Fr-D, Pt. Huron, Mich.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mike Rossano, Fr-D, S. St. Paul, Minn.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paul O'Neil, Jr-D, S. Boston, Mass.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mike Collins, Jr-D, Oak Park, Ill.</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Goal tending stats

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Goal Tenders</th>
<th>Ga</th>
<th>Per</th>
<th>Sa</th>
<th>GA</th>
<th>Pet.</th>
<th>Avg</th>
<th>SO</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dick Tomasoun, So, Chisholm, Minn.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>68</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>.895</td>
<td>2.7</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chet Goebel, Fr, Duluth, Ont.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>68</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>.895</td>
<td>2.7</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notre Dame

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pts</th>
<th>Go</th>
<th>Aes</th>
<th>Ga</th>
<th>Pen</th>
<th>Min</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>68</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>.895</td>
<td>2.7</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Opponents

| 3 | 9 | 68 | 8 | .895 | 2.7 |

Scoring by Periods

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Notre Dame</th>
<th>Opponents</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Irish wrestling team opened their season with a convincing 33-5 victory over Valparaiso University last night at the A.C. The Irish were clearly the superior team, outclassing Valparaiso completely and gave first-year coach Tom Mather a solid performance for so early in the season.

The Irish grapplers will next see action this coming Friday and Saturday when they travel to Rochester, New York, to compete in the Rochester Invitational Tournament. The Irish are sending six champions of the tourney and Jim Hansen hopes to be able to fare as well this year's competition as he did last year when he was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler.