Tom Thresher declares candidacy

by T. C. Treanor

Stay Senator Tom Thresher last night became the first to officially announce his candidacy for the presidency of Notre Dame's student body.

In a statement Thresher and his running mate, Assistant Student Union Commissioner Greg Murray, contended that this year's student government had "spiralled into disarray." Thresher, a 21-year-old Junior from Rochester, N.Y., calls his candidacy "an effort to bring government on the campus back to the only role which can justify its existence—the role of advocate of student generated solutions to University problems.

With painful slowness the students of Notre Dame have learned that possessing a weapon does not possess power but can ably use that commodity to influence or, if necessary, coerce a redacting of priorities in our University so-
Choate subsidizes Mrs. Olivarez

This is the second of three installments on Mrs. Grace Olivarez, who will be the first woman to be awarded a Doctor Degree by the Notre Dame Law School. She will receive the degree this spring—ed.

by Mark Walbran

In 1962 Mrs. Olivarez met Mr. Robert Choate who profoundly expanded her opportunities to do social work. Mr. Robert Choate of the Choate Foundation had long been interested in her work and asked her to join the Choate Foundation in its work in the south western United States. She was rather wary of Choate and suspected him to be just another White out to solve the Mexican Americans' problems. Choate knew that at this time Mrs. Olivarez was supporting only her mother and was using a considerable amount of her income to help starting families in the county who could not wait for the bureaucracy of the local Welfare Board to provide them with food. Choate made her see that she had become dependent on helping these people on a day to day basis without solving the situations which caused them to be poor. She admitted that she

Mrs. Olivarez sometimes almost felt hurt when families she had helped no longer asked her for assistance. Taking a leave of absence from the radio station, Mrs. Olivarez went to work for the Choate Foundation. At this time she began to realize how little formal education she had had. After speaking nothing but Spanish for fourteen years, she was now required to use English.

At this time too she began to read the reports of sociologists like Oscar Lewis and Michael Harrington. These people broadened the scope of her understanding of the poor. The problems were much larger and more widespread than she had expected and she realized how sheltered her life had been. Her work with the foundation took her around the Southwest and she met other concerned Mexican-Americans. Realizing the opportunity to make real progress, Mrs. Olivarez left her radio career behind and went to work full time for the Choate Foundation, taking a considerable loss in income from $7,800 to $5,000 annually.

"Mr. Ford Foundation"

One of the projects the Choate Foundation was working on at the time was a motivation program for minority group children to improve their progress in school. The work Mrs. Olivarez did in this area attracted the attention of the Ford Foundation who gave her a 30 day grant to travel the Southwest to investigate the problems of Mexican-Americans. After travelling and preparing her report, she went to New York to present her findings to Mr. Paul Yvniker, "Mr. Ford Foundation." Choate had advised her before coming to New York that the Ford Foundation people were on top and that she should remember that the future of her social work depended on how well she presented herself. But it soon became obvious to Mrs. Olivarez that Yvniker had not read her report, and she told him so. He said very few people told him that he had not done what he said he had, and that it was very refreshing. Most people, he told her, were so concerned about getting money that they would never think of disagreeing with him. He extended her travel grant so her investigation could continue and recommended her to the Advisory Council of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Serves on committees

"All of a sudden I was a big shot," she explained, "serving on committees with Kenneth Galbraith and Mrs. Robert McNamara, Whitney Young and Dr. Spock." Soon she was travelling extensively and giving lectures and organizing workshops on minority groups and their problems.

In 1963 Mrs. Olivarez met Fr. Theodore Hesburgh when the Civil Rights Commission was having hearings in Phoenix. In Phoenix no one really talks about discrimination but she spoke out and presented her findings. By 1966 Mrs. Olivarez had finished two years of television work in Phoenix and had left the Choate Foundation, presenting on TV the same kind of educational program she used to do for KPN. She was serving as an officer of the Arizona Office of Economic Opportunity, a job she lost after Governor Jack Williams came into office, later that year. She was becoming more disillusioned about the progress all her efforts were really having. Although she enjoyed travelling and serving on committees, the results of her work never seemed visible among the poor she knew so well in the mining towns and villages of Maricopa County.

Marilyn Reed is named Wilson Designate

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation has announced that Miss Marilyn J. Reed, a senior at Saint Mary's College, Notre Dame, Indiana, has been named a Woodrow Wilson Fellow Designate for 1970. The "Designate" status singles out these young women and men who are outstanding students with a strong interest in teaching. Miss Reed was listed as one of 1,153 designates selected from approximately 17,000 outstanding graduating seniors nominated for the honor by more than 800 colleges. This list of 15,000 designates will be used to graduate school deans in the United States and Canada, with the recommendation that those students be awarded graduate fellowships.

Miss Reed is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John J. Reed of Hobart, Indiana. She graduated from Andrean High School in Gary, Indiana, and is an art major with a special interest in art history at Saint Mary's College.
Chicago Seven denied bail

CHICAGO (UPI) - The government, charging two of the "Chicago Seven" and their two trial lawyers are "a danger and a threat to the community," yesterday asked a federal appeals court to grant bail pending their appeals.

Five of the "Chicago Seven" were found guilty by a jury of crossing state lines with intent to incite a riot during the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Hoffman found all seven defendants, together with Kasten and Weinglass, guilty of contempt of court for actions during the tempestuous, 45-month trial. In a 29-page brief signed by US Attorney Thomas A. Foran, the government said "evidence overwhelmingly demonstrates the defendants are a danger and a threat to the community and the record does not in any way establish that the appeal of the conviction is meritorious."

"The government submits that there is no policy to grant bail to all self styled political militants..." the brief said. "In this case denial is based on the danger in view of the evidence."

Federal rules leave the question of bail after conviction up to the "sound discretion of the court," the government said. The ACLU petition and 17-page supporting brief said, on the other hand, that "at the very least, the defendants are entitled to bail pending the outcome of the case." It said denial of bail violated the first, fifth and sixth amendments to the US Constitution.

and of our fellow students. For the next student government must derive power, not just from the passive consent of the society of students, but from their committed participation.

"The next thirteen days will be too important to allow this campaign to degenerate into a series of petty political games. This announcement of candidacy is a renunciation of the exclusivism that has marked past student governments. For this measure of this campaign's success will be more than the number of votes we will collect. It will be the number of people for whom we make student government truly the student's government. That will be the true measure. That will be the permanent measure."

Thrasher says that he intends to issue day-by-day position papers on the issues he considers to be most important. He also intends to do quite a bit of door-to-door campaigning. "It's important to make this campaign as personal as possible," Thrasher said in an interview after his announcement, "I'd like to meet at least on a section basis."

The election is scheduled to be held on Wednesday, March 11.

Grape Boycott

After meeting with some difficulty with vandals destroying signs publicizing their earlier attempts at discussion, the leaders of the Grape Boycott Committee will open their second series of talks tonight in Lewis Hall. Members will conduct a forum on the nature of the movement including not only the items of wages for the migrant farm laborers in Delano, Calif., but also the related issues of dangers to those people from pesticides and other related items.

Discussion leaders for the night will include members of PI Centro, a local group working on the plight of the Mexican-Americans as well as Notre Dame students and local residents who have been active in boycott activities.

While the group which recruited at registration had begun the year by picketing at local grocery stores which sold California grapes, they have recently organized into teams in order to speak to various groups of citizens in an educational effort to acquaint them with the cause. Most of the members of the teams have attended long training sessions to prepare them with information and background material.

The program is slated to get under way at 8:00 pm in the basement lounge at Lewis Hall. Bro. Mark Ratzka, P.S.C., has stressed in his publicity that all are welcome to attend whether they favor or oppose the movement or are just interested in learning or questioning.

Nutting mirrors Cawis' concepts

This is the second of five installments in The Observer in which members of the Nutting for President committee answer the fundamental question of why should any change be made in the existing power structure or why change the people now in power.-- by Mike Kovacevich

It's very hard for me to consider just what a university is anymore without realizing what it has come to be in America. It's very hard to forget that napalm was developed at Harvard and tested behind that institution's football stadium. Or that James Recter was killed by a shrapnel blast because Berkeley and Oakland police responded violently to Charles Farmer's concept that people attending the University of California, "street people," and other residents of the area should have a "People's Park." It's impossible. So in describing what a university should be, I shall also say what it is, in fact.

What A University Should Be

Probably more worthless nonsense is written about education than about any other subject except religion. Because of this prohibition of verbiage, it is one of the hardest subjects to write about objectively. The President of the University of Chicago--

Money for Africa

Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to compliment the dining halls for the gesture of good will which they expressed through their Western Night. However, we feel that this meal could not have taken place at alessopportune time. For while we at Notre Dame were observing lent through this obvious waste of food, thousands of Biafran's are starving. We do not know how these affairs are run financially, but we are certain that the dining hall management must be aware of the tremendous waste which accompanies these affairs. We are sure that if the student body had been made aware of this fact far in advance Notre Dame men would have sacrificed this meal for the needy in Africa.

Power to ladies

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

We commend and encourage the women who challenged Dr. Benjamin Spock on his attitude of male supremacy. They effectively used Spock's own device of shackling the establishment ("male superego") "by its lefty," and asked questions which the doctor did not effectively answer.

We're amazed that this glorious seat of rational discussion and community dialogue degenerates rapidly to the use of derision and antagonism when a view is expressed which is contrary to the cherished popular opinion. The treatment these women received (the cattism from the audience, the sarcastic comment from another questioner among their companions) was childish. It reflected beautiful on the "Notre Dame" mantle that they stuck so tenaciously on a cherished male belief is the best demonstration I have seen of the need for coeduction at Notre Dame: Towers for the ladies!

Does anybody remember Tom Dooley?

"Perhaps we cannot prevent this world from being a world in which children are tortured. But we can reduce the number of tortured children. And if you don't help us, who else in the world can help us do this?"

While you are reading this, someone is dying of tuberculosis in Southeast Asia. For ten cents, you might be able to help save a life, at the cost of a dime. But with your help, sixty more children might be saved. If you have twenty cents to spare, you can help to vaccinate one child in Asia against smallpox, just as surely as if you were there w hen the child was vaccinated. Most of you cannot be there in Southeast Asia wherein the child's life is saved and most of you reading this do not have enough degrees, because the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation can and do.

Formed in 1961 by people who respected Dr. Dooley's work and refused to let it go with him to the grave, the Dooley Foundation has continued his work with medicine and with compassion. Thanks to the Foundation, there are presently two bed hospitals and a mobile X-ray unit in Laos. There are mobile health units serving Tibetan refugees in the Kulu Valley of Northern India. Aide stewardess volunteer three months in the "Nurse to Nepal" program, where the Dooley Foundation also provides social welfare assistance to a Nepalese orphanage, a leprosarium and the Tibetan nursery.

In Viet Nam, the Foundation is temporarily providing assistance to the Orphanage of An Lac in Saigon. And the Dooley Foundation does more, much more. It pays a good money.

Because the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation is a non-profit, non-governmental, non-seeking organization, its success is dependent upon contributions. Notre Dame students have worked here since September to organize a "Fund Drive For the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation." The Drive is to be solely on this campus and at SMC, with radio spots reaching to South Bend across the local radio stations.

In a larger sense, nurses, doctors, medical technicians and stewardesses all volunteer their services to the Foundation. They are dedicated to helping the underprivileged, each in his own way, we can make ours. What's that Dr. Dooley loved about his work? Not just the gold on the Dome or the beauty of the Grotto, but people, people, people. Why not help save one of those people? We of the Fund Drive come with empty hands. We do not have anything to give to you. But we ask for those who have more to give to whom sickness is a way of life, and those such things as smallpox, malaria, diphtheria and leprosy are as familiar as the clothes you wear, and to you. Collected in the halls March 2-8, and in the dining halls lunch and dinner on March 8. Whether you give a dime or a dollar or even more, someone in the world will be glad that you cared. Will you help? If you do not, who will?
What's a Twyla Tharp?

"In the late three years as part of past Contemporary Arts Festivals you might be able to get the answer! But once again I really doubt it since the art form they represent is the least understood and least experienced by the majority of college students because it is the art form surrounded by the most misconceptions.

The people mentioned above are the biggest names in modern dance—a new choreographer of the rock, jazz-pop, ragas, and electronic yawping, symphonic orchestration, the authority rests in the SLC and Academic Councilors. The President is the decision-maker at Notre Dame. What gave birth to an active Chancellor? What if I were to say that the art form that breaks away from the traditions and cliches of traditional art forms in a manner that not even cinema (unless it is the dance dominated cinema of Nikolas and Ed Emshwiller) can even hope to attain. Yet surprisingly few people in the U.S.A. outside New York, Chicago and San Francisco have yet become aware of the inherent power in role in shaping social, political, economic, and ecological factors on a national and international level. He will be a bridge to the wider community, a man welcome on the campus and encouraged to seek out and assist the University and the broader community. He will do the impossibly valuable work that our current President has done so well.

Under Chancellor Hesburgh, we have suggested placing a devoted and truly learned educator to be 'the president residu.' The university community which we feel is lacking (as earlier suggested) is not the only responsibility of the new President.

The uniqueness of this refinement is not what I would point to as a recommend- tion, rather the proposal's attempt to create community is what we see in its principal justification. The titles 'Chancellor' and 'President' have been granted by various academic institutions. To argue that this proves we are seeking is feasurable reasoning, indeed.

As Dave Stauffer has said, "I think it is hardly legitimate to argue that because the people mentioned above are the most powerful and imaginative art form on the American scene today. Starting today, the Contemporary Arts Festival brings The Murray Louis Dance Company to campus for a three day period in order to take the opportunity to experience and boldly penetrating exploration into man's condition in the modern world."

For ten years he was the lead dancer with the Alwin Nikolais Company which has been consistently acclaimed for its imaginative use of props, costumes, lighting and film effects as well as electronic music.

The Louis company will give a free lecture-demonstration this Thursday, February 26, at St. Mary's O'Laughlin Auditorium for both students and faculty. The event which will include Louis' most famous work Junk Dances, an outrageously satirical piece that addresses the affluent society, set to the tune of television commercials, recipes for cake-mixes and pop art.

The Contemporary Arts Festival promises that the performance Saturday night will be the best ever so far this year, even better than the poetry reading by Ken Seidman, Monterey Pop... or Tom Paine... or General II... or the Son House Concert. Or even Yellow Submarine!

Trial of '8' in book form

A 320-page illustrated documentary of courtroom confrontations from the trial of the eight student defendants in the now-classified 220,000 page transcript, will be published next week by Bantam Books in a cloth-bound edition. Rushed to press as the 27th Bantam Extra immediately after completion of the trial, and within a month of the book's publication, the transcript is titled The Tales Of Hoffman and is the work of a fact-finding, non-fictional, practical, and the actual— it would seem that the handwriting is on the wall for the University of Notre Dame, unless Father Hesburgh himself revives both his thinking and his doing in regard to the campus which he does it as a one way or another by faculty and students, or both.

First point: the administrative structure, though perhaps "seventy inadequate" (Cullen, Cullen and Payne, p. 223), is anything but unclear. Second, our president is not an executive and not an educator. And thirdly, the community, which our college bulletin proclaims, is clearly an executive and not an educator. What right do you have to believe it will work at Notre Dame? And finally, how do you distinguish between an "external" and "internal" duty?

Let's begin with the question which most people are asking: Why isn't there a Chancellor at Notre Dame? Would a Chancellor-President structure "mess" up an already "certainly "mess" structure? What will the Chancellor (be) do? Just because some people think the university is a modern one, what right do you have to believe it will work at Notre Dame? And finally, how do you distinguish between an "external" and "internal" duty?

The President is in fact the decision-maker at Notre Dame, aided in financial matters by the Executive Vice-Presi- dent, the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce. Structurally final authority is in such instruments as the board of regents and the president, authority rests in the SLC and Academic Councilors. However, in fact the actual governing of Notre Dame is a most singular matter. Presidential decision-making is an uncontroversial philosophy at Notre Dame. No one disputes Hesburgh's final authority. The book goes on.

Now the simple, incontrovertible fact is that these top-level administrators are far more powerful than any educational innovators, or even usually sympathetic to any educational innovations and experiments. It concludes.
Poll to deal with academic, national affairs felt students had a strong interest in. Since four people worked on it, I think we did a pretty good job of hitting every major area."

In regard to views on campus issues, students will be asked to evaluate the success of the present student government administration and what they feel should have been done that was not done. They will also be asked to offer opinions of the job being done by the Observer, the Scholastic, and WSND.

The most controversial current issue of drugs, recruitment by Dow-CIA, military research, recent issues of drugs, recruitment, and what they feel should have been done that was strafion and what they feel students had a strong interest in. They will also be sent student government administration.

On the national level, the poll takes up the questions of solutions for the Vietnam War and the race problem. The students will be asked to evaluate the performance of President Nixon and offer their choice for the office if an election were imminent. Such areas as legalization of marijuana, economic reform, and educational opportunity for minority groups are also touched upon.

In explaining the necessity for such a poll, Corso pointed out the need to know what the students are really thinking before any changes can take place. "The primary reason we put out this poll, is to find out what the Notre Dame student body wants done and how it feels efforts in various fields such as minority recruitment, and academic reform are going," Corso said, "We hope that this poll will be beneficial to next year's student government in determining its course of action," he said.

Corso expressed the hope that the response to the poll will be significant enough to make some solid conclusions as to the direction of opinion among the students.

"I'd also like to extend special thanks to Steve Flavin and the hall clerks who gave up their spare time so that the poll could be distributed and collected as quickly as possible," Corso added.

and the relatively small size of his organization, which he estimated to be a few thousand. While he felt that large numbers of people gave moral support to his council, they do not offer financial contributions. He complained of the shaky budget of the organization. He said that he served not as only Executive Director, but also as Treasurer, but that he was being paid a cent for his work, and therefore was only a part time worker. He added that his organization included Mayor Lindsay and Adlai Stevenson III.

New CO Club to provide draft information

by John Papa

Approximately sixty persons attended a meeting in LaFortune Student Center last night exploring the possibility of the formation of a draft council and conscientious objection club at Notre Dame. The meeting was presided over by junior Tom Hampson, who led the discussion on the conception, purpose, and goals of the club.

The group was formed to be informative to anyone interested in the draft or conscientious objection and also to be supportive to those persons attempting to receive CO status. The club, titled the Notre Dame Conscientious Objection Club, was the conception of Hampson when he became interested in a CO classification.

He felt Notre Dame was in need of an organization that could help council students on the draft law and inform them of any alternative avenues open to them.

He stated, "The club would be a service to the university in that it provides information to its members on the complexities of the draft and the alternatives to it with emphasis on conscientious objection. In turn, it would be an agent of information to the entire campus." Hampson stated there were many people interested in the fine points of the draft law and that, "hopefully, we can get these people together, study and discuss individual questions and problems, and find out what's going on." He claimed this would be the primary function of the group.

Once organized Hampson plans to set up a table in the library or the Huddle and pass out mostly free information on the draft and conscientious objection. The club members hope to form small groups and cover topics relevant to each individual.

Counselors from the South Bend Draft Unit and a few Notre Dame law students are supporting the club and are offering their services. One of the counselors present at the meeting was.

Beytagh joins Law faculty

Francis X. Beytagh, Jr., assistant to Solicitor General of the United States Erwin Griswold, will join the Notre Dame Law School faculty August 1, 1970. As assistant, since 1966, Beytagh has argued many government cases before the U.S. Supreme Court. He also served as Senior Law Clerk to the retired Chief Justice Earl Warren and taught a seminar in constitutional litigation at the University of Virginia Law School in 1969.

CORRECTION

The story that appeared in the Observer yesterday, headlined "Proposes Channeling of Student Union Funds," was partially inaccurate. Senator Stone did not propose taking away any money from the Student Union to send back to the halls. Rather he proposed taking a certain amount off the top of every student's activity fee and sending it back to the halls. The story also mentioned that Stone proposed giving money to the halls that were not that well off financially first, under his bill. What Stone said was that smaller halls should be allotted more funds than bigger halls.
Rich Allen happy but greedy

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) -- Richie Allen is all heart. He wore the pitchfork uniform of the St. Louis Cardinals, and beamed from ear to ear when he could help lift inflation. He once said he was trying to get it all by demanding a $50,000 raise and big about it and take only $150,000.

When last heard from, you may remember, he had one other request.

"All I ask is to get out of Philadelphia," he said, "and I'll be out of the world." So far, so good.
