In an election which brought out 675 of the SMC Student Body, Ann Marie Tracey yesterday became the first sophomore to capture the office of Student Body President.

Tracey defeated her opponent by 211 votes receiving 441 votes to Junior Carol Cusick's 230. There were 103 abstention votes registered in the SJP votes.

Junior Karen Schultz was elected to the seat on the Student Affairs Council over junior Nan Cavanaugh by a vote of 432 to 148. Abstention votes totaled 81.

Unopposed candidate Carol Henninger was affirmed at Academic Affairs, Commissioners with 544 in favor, only 24 opposed and 52 abstentions.

The vote count by all went as follows: Holy Cross - 162 for Tracey, 29 for Cusick, 14 abstentions; Le Mans - 96 for Tracey, 67 for Cusick, and 39 abstentions; McCandless - 63 for Tracey, 36 for Cusick, 34 abstentions; Regina - 120 for Tracey, 58 for Cusick, and 16 abstentions. The total number of votes cast was 876.

Commenting on the election, Ann Marie Tracey said last night, "I think it is significant that 675 of the student body turned out to vote. Demonstrate what people say this shows there is an interest on the part of the students in what happens at SMC."

"We plan to carry out the principles of our platform and to be open to any other suggestions by students as we try and develop new ideas of our own," she said.

"There is a purpose for both of us (Carol Cusick and herself)," she continued, "and despite the outcome of the election we would both continue to make contributions. Carol has many well-formulated ideas and I hope she will work with us in their implementation."

Jean Gorman, Vice-President for this coming year, said "We are happy we have won and I feel that we have a big job to fulfill. The student structure has set a good ground for us to work with."

In an interview last evening, Carol Cusick commented on the election and the campaign. "The most important thing for everyone now is to question the structure and why we're doing what we're doing. The point of the abettion movement and the questioning they advocated should be kept alive on the campus from now on."

She and her running-mate Suzie Way, she continued, were "very, very pleased that by getting involved in the structure we wouldn't be caught up in the day-to-day specifics which would keep us from creating the atmosphere we would like to see here."

She spoke of the disappointments expressed at the Open Forum, "The Forum was no compensation to what we're doing in Student Government. The superficial reaction against people trying to get rid of something that obviously was good was disheartening."

"Suzie and I will be very busy next year," she said, "we'll be planning for an informal educational program on racism, and I will personally be actively concerned with the Experimental College."

SMC Student Body President Susan Turnbull commented last night, "I was very pleased with the large turnout of voters. Ann Marie is a very capable girl and I'm sure she's equal to the challenge. One of the big problems they will run up against next year will be the student's right to privacy, both in her room and in the information on her sign-out card. These rights will have to be defined. Consideration should also be given to the role of the college president on the Student Affairs Council whether he is to act as a committee member or the man holding the veto power."

The students who advocated abettion in the election were polled for their reactions. Anne Reed said, "When you consider the number of abstentions this year compared with last year the Abettion Movement had a great impact. There was a significant increase in those voting and those abstaining, and in that way the movement achieved one of its prime goals. I'm really pleased. Even allowing that a percentage of those abstaining votes cast were not for us, there's still a significant increase." Maureen Meters and Sue Kerns, other students involved in the movement, said that they will continue to raise the question of a referendum for a moratorium next year because they feel there was a "justifiable amount of abstentions to merit going on."

Karen Schulte, who will be next year's representative to the Student Affairs Council, said last night she believes in the structure as it now stands. "In the past two years I have seen the changes that have been made and I am pleased that I can work with it next year."

Carol Henninger, Academic Commissioner for the 1970-71 year commented that she was "pleased that as many students responded as did with little publicity," and that the results during the election received. "I hope those in the student government will be diligent in putting aside that despite the voting response there was a very good point brought out at the Open Forum and that they should step back and look at Student Government."

Thrasher and Murry

We enthusiastically endorse Stay Senator Tom Thrasher and his running mate Greg Murray for the offices of Student Body President and Vice President. We feel that they stand out above all candidates in their aptitude for the office and Thrasher singularly stands out in his experience and record in student government.

Thrasher has been a Stay Senator for one year and has served the students faithfully in that position. It was through his persistent efforts working on the finance committee that for the first time this year students can be assured that their activities fee is going to worthwhile projects instead of being misused through waste and graft.

He has continually stood for honest student government. He has argued for the streamlining of the mass bureaucracy of La Fortune continually urging officials to get out into the halls and to talk to the students instead of spending most of their time in their offices.

His attitudes toward hall autonomy and the need for increasing the importance of the Hall Presidents' Council show that his sense of priorities lies where students are affected the most--in the halls. His progressive proposals for academic reform show that he realizes the need to make education more exciting and dynamic. We like his plans for work-study programs, expansion of pass-fail and the co-ex program. We like his plan for developing courses on a student interest basis by asking the university to grant credit for new courses which are developed by individual students and faculty members.

Thrasher stands firmly for co-education. He stands for other improvements in hall life and in the environment here like improved security. By realizing that we must not forget to work hard to improve that environment every day he shows that he is aware of the fact that the total educational environment is important.

Thrasher's ideas for improving minority recruitment are novel and far-sighted. He favors merging the academic programs of Notre Dame and Holy Cross in order to let them see what Notre Dame is like. He feels that this will be much more effective than limiting the recruitment program to only sending people out.

Perhaps the major difference between the two candidates comes in their positions on the student government structure. In contrast to David Krashna, Thrasher realizes that student government needs such a representative body to research and propose means toward academic reform, for improvement in security, the dining halls and in many other areas that affect student life. At the same time Thrasher has emphasized the need for a strong Hall Presidents' Council to handle hall matters. But unlike Krashna he realizes that improving the hall community is a full time job.

Krashna suggests that the Hall Presidents take on two jobs--their own functions as hall presidents as well as that of senator. But if a hall president must spend time away from the halls researching proposals for such things as academic reform, can he really give as much time as is needed to the job of hall president? Under Krashna's proposal each hall president must spend time at one meeting in a different hall. If the meeting is open to comments by all the students, the group will no doubt have to meet again to work out the particulars of any proposal that it is working on. Add the time that the hall president will have to spend on committees working on proposals and it is easy to see that he will no longer be a hall president.

It is Thrasher alone who realizes that hall community can come only if you have a full time hall president. The Senate has faltered for the past year and only half only because of its confusion of roles created by the advent of the SLC. It worked hard through this year to reassert leadership by keeping an eye on student government expansion and reform. But it has come up with a series of proposals by academic reform which include a proposal for an academic grievance committee. There is a need for a strong senate. We believe that Tom Thrasher can assure that by his enthusiasm and hard work that we have the strong senate that we need.

Thrasher and his running mate in a good one. Murray's background is significant in that as a resident of Alumni Hall he has been working all year to try to get black and white students to communicate with one another.

We feel that Tom Thrasher would make an outstanding Student Body President. We urge all students to support him with their vote tomorrow.
Tri-Class Prom planned for May 1

This year's Tri-Class Prom will be held Friday night, May 1, at Stepan Center with the theme of "Chances Are." The Committee has set up the format and schedule for the meeting, April 25. Mr. Sniegoski went on at length to describe the open session. He said, "Hopefully it will be held in the Library Auditorium." He outlined a new procedure for this segment of the meeting. "We are soliciting members of the community, students, faculty and administration, to give ten minute position talks at this time. They can be on any topic relevant to the community.

Sniegoski said that there was a deadline of noon Friday for students who wish to apply to Sister Suzanne for permission to add "The Forum." After all the volunteers to give their talks on May 17, the talks will be presented in three groups and each group will be followed by discussion. This should provide as much time for discussion as for speeches.

Mr. Sniegoski emphasized the "exploratory nature" of the second meeting of the Forum and also stated that they would attempt to have the definite agenda ready to be distributed by pamphlet or reprinted in The Observer on Monday, May 13.

Sniegoski concluded by emphasizing two points about this meeting. First of all the Agenda Committee does not want this to be a simple question and answer forum. Members will not answer direct questions but will involve themselves in discussion with the rest of the assembly. We hope that the speakers from the community will present questions that we can all discuss together. The Forum will be seeking information rather than giving soundings. This won't be a press conference for the Forum but a chance for us to explore and listen more than we did at the first meeting.

Sniegoski also expressed a desire that all segments of the community attempt to make themselves heard. He indicated that they would welcome representatives of groups but hoped that enough people would apply so that the Committee could try to have as large a group of speakers at the open session.

Sniegoski reiterated the idea that the meeting is being sponsored by Sister Suzanne Kelly by noon, Friday, March 13.

OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS VOTE 9-5pm IN THE O-C OFFICE

Seniors May Vote
by Don Ruane

Greatly upset by statements made by SBP candidate Tom Thresher in yesterday's Observer, Dave Krashna and his running mate, Mark Winings, commented on them yesterday in their campaign headquarters.

They were close to tears concerning Thresher's comments on their student forum plan and the challenge to a debate.

Krashna "couldn't get over" the accusation that their plan was "foolish and impractical," particularly when Thresher did not say specifically or in any part that was unstable. "We can constantly throw back the same arguments if we want, but I think that's foolish and impractical," added Krashna. Winings answered Thresher's charge that the forum would not be representative by saying that there are two types of representation.

"The first is the senate type which is a strictly proper representation. There is no consensus arriving from it. People don't get to the problems of the halls. The senate has never gotten any conclusions from the halls and there is no reason to believe that they will in the future." He cited the largest number of issues that have risen and added that there is also a large number that agree that the senator be abolished as evidence for the validity of their plan. Under their plan, the forum would meet in a different hall each week. Everyone would be invited and have a chance to challenge the SBP, SBVP and anyone else concerned with student government. "I consider the senate type and impractical," concluded Winings.

Another topic that aroused the ire of Krashna and Winings was the quote concerning the honesty and effectiveness of the student program organization. Krashna said the statement was "definitely mud," and Winings called it a lie. Krashna said the work was hard and that the "job gets done." Krashna had made a recruiting trip to Atlantic and used this experience to substantiate his statement.

"It's impractical, their proposal to bring Black students here. Thresher was saying when Krashna interrupted: "There was a那么多 in the senate to give us 54 parking lots, and we should go out to the high schools. If you bring in 200 students who want to be recruited, it's almost impossible with the money they've allotted from the student senate. It's probably the least practical thing to do, but certainly not the most practical thing to do.

Both Winings and Krashna were resentful of the way their student headquarters presented their debate proposal. Winings rejected the tactic of deciding to challenge the press without consulting his headquarters. "It's not that we are afraid of a debate, but there can be some consideration given to us. Peterson releases papers

by Greg Podhorodsky

Pete Peterson, candidate for Student Body President, announced that he will release literature in the halls tonight concerning what he feels are the problems confronting the independent candidate in his dealings with the student senate.

Holding off comment on the exact specifics of the material, Peterson did elaborate on what he feels is one aspect of the student settlement. The junior GM MP said that the difference between the respective figures of The Observer poll, the WSND poll, and a private poll conducted by the Peterson organization was proof of their inconsideration. Peterson was quoted that there is a disparity of "up to eight percent" in the polls.

The most recent Observer poll had Peterson with five percent of the vote. The candidate commented on what detrimental effect he believed such polls could have on the election: "The polls influence the casual voter who will vote for who he feels will win rather than for the best man."

In a yellow flyer circulated last night Peterson accused The Observer and Observer Editor Guy De Sapio and News Editor Glen Corsu in particular of unfair reporting practices.

"We will stand on our record," said Observer Editor Guy De Sapio, "we have attempted to be as fair as we could give our space limitation in our coverage of the candidates. Throughout the year the Student Body can probably attest to our fairness and objectivity. Pete is probably saying something new in the heat of the campaign that he would not say otherwise. Pete has written for us throughout the year and knows of our policy of fairness and objectivity. Today we endorsed a candidate. We hope to show the Student Body through the arguments in the editorial that he is the best man. We believe that fact wholeheartedly and so will endorse him to the bit editorially. Our news writing will remain fair so that students can draw their own conclusion."

"As far as Peterson's accusation about promising to run a letter that he wrote, we made no promise to any candidate since to promise to run any particular things would be contrary to any policy of fairness. Pete's feeling that one point raised in Friday's article was not properly interpreted was cleared up in Monday's story on Peterson," De Sapio concluded.

Peterson went on to state his belief that the campaign offers the student voters only one alternative and that choice is the Peterson-Barsch ticket, which he said has remained flexible.

"Both the liberal and the conservative candidates, Krashna and Thresher, decided their positions before the issues arose. A choice between two inflexible positions is no choice at all," he said.

Pete Peterson commented on his relationship with the other two major candidates in the campaign. He said that the Krashna-Winings ticket has not been diplomatic in their dealings with his organization. He mentioned what he felt was the lack of cooperation on the part Krashna in the area of the three man debate as an example.

Thrasher discusses halls

by Steve Hoffman

Declaring it an "absolute necessity that the Student Body President and Student Government remain open and sensitive to individual problems within individual halls," Student Body President candidate Tom Thresher last evening discussed his concepts of hall government.

Thresher emphasized the need for the further development and increased implementation of student hall government. Thresher then turned to the establishment of part-time officers under the jurisdiction of the Hall Life Board.

To better understand the problems and issues relating to each individual hall, Thresher talked to the President, an announcement that he will release literature in the halls tonight concerning what he feels are the problems confronting the independent candidate in his dealings with the student senate.

Holding off comment on the exact specifics of the material, Peterson did elaborate on what he feels is one aspect of the student settlement. SSS uses new techniques in polls

by Gary Greff
Director of the Student Survey

To paraphrase Mark Twain, everybody talks about dialogue but nobody ever does anything about it. In the hope of establishing this much overworked concept, my attempts increase the chances of a selective bias. It is not size which matters, but the manner in which the sampling is chosen. For example, a little over half (56%) of the students adhere to present parietal hour regulations, not necessarily reflecting the views of SMC, Notre Dame, or the national image of Notre Dame. The survey was conducted in February 23rd, the Student Life Council passed a resolution calling for individual determination of parietal hour procedure by each residence hall, after consultation with and approval of the Hall Life Board. On March 21st, the Board of Trustees will meet and consider whether such action should become University policy. A second concern is that the National Honor Fraternity national image should not be an important consideration in determining parietal hour regulations.

1. Would you prefer to see
   a) University established parietal hours - 3%
   b) hall established parietal hours - 68%
   c) No, it's not my responsibility - 29%

2. Would you prefer to see
   a) University enforced parietal hours - 6%
   b) hall enforced parietal hours - 94%

3. If parietal hours are UNIVERSITY established, would you feel it your responsibility to help enforce them by reporting violations?
   a) Yes - 18%
   b) No - 79%

4. If parietal hours are HALL established, would you feel it your responsibility to help enforce them by reporting violations?
   a) Yes - 45%
   b) No - 54%
   c) No reply - 1%

5. If parietal hours are UNIVERSITY established, would you adhere to them?
   a) Yes - 56%
   b) No - 44%

6. If parietal hours are UNIVERSITY established, would you adhere to them?
   a) Yes - 45%
   b) No - 54%
   c) No reply - 1%

7. If parietal hours are HALL established, would you adhere to them?
   a) Yes - 73%
   b) No - 26%
   c) No reply - 1%

8. If parietal privileges were taken away, would you still bring girls into your room?
   a) Yes - 77%
   b) No - 23%

9. Do you think that the University's national image would be harmed by having no parietal hour restrictions?
   a) Yes - 21%
   b) No - 79%

10. Do you feel that the University's national image should be an important consideration in determining parietal hour regulations?
    a) Yes - 18%
    b) No - 82%

Letters to the editor

OPEN LETTER TO ALL CAMPUS GROUPS AND ORGANIZATIONS:

Some time ago (9/23/69) the New Student Survey Council passed a resolution to the effect that the wording of letters or advertisements printed on surfaces other than specifically designated bulletin boards be a concern of the University administration, faculty, or students. In the hope of establishing this concept, I am taking this opportunity to stress the importance of the resolution in two further points. First, the resolution is being enforced by some members of the administration that illegally posted matter is being torn down and disposed of. I should like to end with a sincere request: "Ad-men" - save yourselves and us much fruitless labor by posting your material only in the proper places in Howard Hall. - please. Thank you.

Michelangelo Antonioni: Rebellious artist

Iconoclastic, stubborn and arrogant words often used to describe the eccentric filmmaker. A native of Italy, he was born in 1918 in the town of Ferrara. After his early education, he moved to Bologna for higher studies. He soon became interested in cinema, and began to work on short films, eventually creating a new language of cinema.

Antonioni was an influential figure in the Italian New Wave, a movement that emerged in the 1950s. His films, known for their complex narratives and exploration of modern life, often dealt with themes of alienation, isolation, and the difficulties of human connection.

Antonioni's films are characterized by their use of visual imagery and slow pacing. He often employed non-professional actors and relied on long takes, allowing for a more naturalistic and intimate portrayal of characters. His work is also noted for its exploration of modern society and its impact on individuals.

Several of Antonioni's films are considered masterpieces, including "L'Avventura," "La Notte," "L'Eclisse," and "High and Low." These films were not only critically acclaimed, but also influential in the development of the New Wave movement and cinema as a whole.

Antonioni's films often tackle themes of love, loss, and the search for meaning in a world that seems increasingly disconnected. His use of visual metaphors and his focus on character rather than plot have made his films enduring works of art that continue to resonate with audiences today.

Buz Craven from St. Edward's, along with Hall Presidents Mike Nevins from Cavanaugh, and Buzzy Rice from Zahn, all voiced their encouragement of the Senate, voicing their discouraged at the lack of support for the Student Forum.

Craven explained that the Student Forum would be an inordinate work load upon the Hall President, and would "keep them absent from the hall, possibly as many as three nights a week with various conferences, research, and meetings.

Craven further noted that the Student Forum would give a Hall President and Senator into a single person, would largely keep the Hall President from fulfilling his primary role.

Mataj argued that the Student Forum would reduce representation in that it would provide for only one representative from each hall.

"By having one person represent 90 students in Carroll, while another person attempts to represent 500 students in Grace restricts the voice of many students," Mataj concluded.

Both Mataj and Craven emphasized that Student Government should work to change attitudes, not titles with structures, and stressed the need for student opinion to be channeled through both the Hall President and the Senator.

Nevins and Rice issued state-ments pointing out that they felt that the combinations of the jobs of Hall President and Senator would take too much time away from working on hall problems.

Rice summed up their sentiments in stating that: "I truly feel that the job of Hall President and Senator will detract from the Hall President's being able to concentrate on hall problems. Although the campus issues that the Senate considers like academic reform, coodication of Black Students issues, and the like are not the most important, I don't feel that the Hall President can spend time doing research on those matters and still build a viable hall community. There is a definite need for masses to separate bodies.

Peterson said that while Thrasher and Murray have "pleased gentlemen" in their relationship with him, he felt that "(Thrasher) is not capable of a hard line stance in dealing with the administration in the event it is called for."

The junior candidate added that he believed the unfair practices were being used in campaign procedure. When asked to elaborate Peterson said that he would not repeat "mud-slinging rumors", but that what he has heard concerning the situation dealt with hall managers rather then the candidates themselves.

Peterson also gave his views on minority recruitment. Seeing the establishment of Notre Dame as a place where minority recruit wants come to as the primary concern in the hall problem, he said that the University should not settle for "token gestures." Peterson expressed the hope that besides the groups readily mentioned in the recruitment program that an added emphasis would be placed on Protestant or high school students in order to give Notre Dame a greater "variety of opinion and diversity of background."

Peterson aired his outlook on his chances in the rapidly ending election: "Since we expect to gain the vote of many who didn't have the intention of voting, a lot will depend on the turnout. The greater the turnout the better our chances."

The most significant outcome of this afternoon's meeting of the SLC was the council's adoption of the Student Residence Director's Report. A lengthy and thorough report dealing with Hall Life Legislation, it was the subject of lengthy debate. This report is to be submitted to the Board of Trustees at their next meeting.

The point in question was whether it should be offered merely as the personal labor of a draftsman, Fr. Edgar Whelan, or whether it should be considered the product of the entire council. The proponents against adoption reasoned that much of the material and many of the conclusions did not reflect the views of the majority of the council members. Fr. Whelan expressed his desire that the council adopt his report. Defen-ders of this alternative reasoned that Fr. Whelan, at request of the council, had gone to great effort to produce this report. Further, to submit it as anything less than the council's will reduce its impact upon the Board of Trustees. Following a number of textual revisions and the debate, the report was adopted by a 15-0 vote.

Amidst proposals of minor amendments, Fr. James Riehle suggested deleting an entire section of the report, treating the judicial boards. He considered this section to exceed the defined realms of Fr. Whelan's report. To do so would have meant deleting about a quarter of the entire report. After an enthusiastic debate, primarily between Riehle and Whelan, the motion to strike the proposed section was soundly defeated.

Running short on time, as usual, the council quickly dismissed a second report treating drinking, parental hours, and hall life submitted by the Hall Presidents Council. It was opposed to Fr. Whelan's report, to be accompanied by a written explanation.

In the waning moments of the meeting SBP Phil McKenna en-joyed by the slow pace of the SLC proposed convening the body twice weekly. Member's schedules caused this idea to be eliminated. Fr. Maurice Amore concurred with McKenna remarking that the SLC had a massive inability to discipline the allocation. This is simply un-true," said Winings. He went on to say that the inscription was not unfounded and that the recent vote in Alumni Hall favored the continuation of the concentration. The vote was 13 for and none against with two abstentions.

When asked about recent statements concerning protests, Krushna said that those who heard him may have missed the essence of his comments. He clarified them as such, "I believe that in a community there is often a need for demonstrations which bring about an awareness of the issues. The basic thing is the need to stimulate commu-nication by approaching that atmosphere, those basic environ-ments, but of equal im-por-tance to the candidates, was the allegation that there was "arm twisting" by the student govern-ment in the voting concerning the concentration of Black students in certain residence halls. We were greatly upset over the possible impact on the SBP Candidate Tom Thrasher

THE OBSERVER NEEDS A SECRETARY.
Parking lot security improvements initiated

Three recent immediate improvements in campus security were discussed by Dean of Student Affairs, Father Riehle, in an interview with the Observer yesterday.

Father in his office with a map of the university's grounds in hand, explained in detail the plan to update the security of the parking lots.

"Three things have been improved," said Father Riehle. "A new system for parking in the D-1 parking lot. In fact, I think the surveyors were already out there last Friday," the priest said.

The surrounding fence will be temporarily in C-2 because an Engineering Building will be open in the plant site in the future, Father said. Only one entrance, security surveillance will be installed in the future.

Permanent lights on the stadium shining out on C-3 parking lot too that "will prevent a couple of armed robberies in there."

Father Riehle, concerning the suggestion that an "outside agency will not take the responsibility," he said that "outside agency will not take the responsibility" to ensure the safety of students.

Security reports series of thefts

There was a series of watches and billfolds being stolen recently from students' rooms while they were asleep, Arthur Pears, Security Director, said in an interview yesterday. He said "It's my guess that one guy's in the room and the other guy's outside the room, and they're able to get in and out of the room while the students are asleep."

There of these incidents occurred in Dillon Hall on Friday night, a billfold, containing $15 to $20, was stolen from a student's room while the victim's roommate slept. Another student lost his cigarette lighter.

A similar incident occurred in Parkhomb Hall on Sunday at 5:55 p.m., two students found a person in their room. The intruder claimed that he was looking for another student, and the students accepted his story. After they found nothing, the billfolds were missing.

Campus Security claims to have a description of the suspect but "the police are unable to find him."

There are several cases of vandalism and theft, but it is obvious that vandalism in parking lots has been reduced.

Several vending machines have been broken into recently. A cigarette machine was broken into, and cigarettes were removed. Another cigarette machine was broken into, and a vending machine Operating Center. A candy machine was broken into the Engineering Building.

Pears also revealed that he has a report of a golf cart being stolen from Planner Hall on March 8.

Belle de Jour showing cancelled

Another mixup last evening caused the cancellation of the two showings of Belle de Jour. The mixup occurred, according to Sophomore Literary Festival Chairman Bob Hall when the group that handles the booking and receiving of films picked up the wrong film outside the office where it was being held. When Hall went to show the film it was gone, therefore the show had to be cancelled.

Hall stated: "I thought to apologize to the patrons and people who were waiting for the first showing. I also had to say that the misunderstanding did not come from negligence on the part of security or the SLF committee."

When asked if the movie would be shown again, Hall said that it depended on getting an appropriate date at Washington Hall, "I can think of no other site to show it later in the spring."

The next movie scheduled is Taming of the Shrew on April 7.

Alumni interhall champions,
Team balance provides win margin

by Jack Schaefer
Observer Sports Writer

Alumni Hall’s Interhall basketball team won the 1970 campuis championship with a solid 59–45 victory over Stanford. The two teams split the first two games in the best of three playoffs. Alumni held a one point lead, 13–12 at the end of the first quarter.

However, in the second period Craig Stark and Dale Mitchell went to work as Alumni opened a nine point halftime lead, 29–20. Chuck Nightingale and Mitchell found that quick passes underneath to Stark and Bob Singleton were all that were needed to break Stanford’s back. Stark’s rebounding was just too much for Stanford to contend with.

By the end of the third quarter Alumni had the game safely under control with an eleven point lead which they extended to fourteen as the season came to a close.

Mike Monaco, Bill Ester, Denis Garvey, Fred Swendsen, Tom O’Connor, Scott Andrews, and captain Phil Calandra all distinguished themselves.

Last weekend, Fred DeBoe, a junior from Hammond, Indiana, won the 1970 Novice Golden Gloves Championship (165 lbs.) at Indianapolis. DeBoe disposed of John Bouldric of Manchester, Ohio with a 1st Round TKO.
