Student leaders discuss party raid prevention

by Shawn Hill

A group of Notre Dame and SMC students met with SMC President Father John McGrath yesterday to discuss plans to prevent future party raids. The meeting was called in response to April’s raid which resulted in losses of several thousand dollars due to theft and damage.

Attending the meeting for Notre Dame were SBE Anne Marie Tracey, VP Jean Gorman, and Mary Anne Rossin. Representing Notre Dame were Rich Urda, Judicial Coordinator, Orlando Rodriquez, Human Affairs Commissioner, and Don Moreton, Judicial Relations Commissioner.

In addition to Fr. McGrath, the SMC’s administration was represented by Dean of Students Sister Mary Immaculata and Security Director J. Parker.

Economic boycott chairman Mike O’Shaughnessy received good news yesterday when he learned Coca-Cola could be cancelled by the dining halls. (See page 3)

Tuesday, May 12, to act on a student proposal concerning academic freedom. The student resolution had stated that faculty members, in consultation with individual students wishing to discontinue a course, have the option of permitting such a student to discontinue the course, have the option of allocating the following grades:

- W - Withdrawn with permission and passing.
- W/F - Withdrawal failing.

I. Incomplete having until October 1, 1970, to complete the course requirements instead of the usual three weeks after the close of the semester.

J. Unsatisfactory for course in which a student maintains an A, B, C average and Unsatisfactory for those in which the average is D or below, excluding major courses. (This grade is equivalent to the pass/fail system.)

II. Letter grades may be given only when the faculty member determines that course requirements have been fulfilled.

The Academic Affairs Council is charged with assisting the President in determining academic policy. Membership on the Council includes the President, Senior Vice President, Academic Dean, four faculty members and two students.

Community meeting continued yesterday with a panel discussion on "What I Think of the War." We think it stinks.

MC holds elections

by Jeannine Sweeney and Mary Kay Davy

SMC held elections yesterday for the four halls, Le Mans, McCandless, Holy Cross, and Regina. Ann Jones was elected Junior Class President 1970-1971.

Freshman Laura Bayer was selected Regina Hall President last night by the ‘70-’71 residents of the hall. Debbie Caruatta received the same position in Holy Cross Hall.

Laura, currently a Regina resident, served as a Hall Council Representative this year. With the help of the residents, she will become a counselor for student social, intellectual and community-oriented projects on campus next year.

She wished to thank those supporting her and even more importantly she added for “the support of ideas, time and interest from every girl who will be living in Regina next year.”

Debbie Caruatta served on the Student Assembly Committee as well.

Kelso states society’s ills traceable to bad economy

by Mike Chapin

Economic expert, Lewis Kelso contended that the present complaints were on a “spectacular wild goose chase” in trying to solve the problems of society by ending the Indo-China War. He said that poverty, crime, alienation and war are effects of a bad, outdated economy.

Kelso cited the Library Auditorium to a standing room of approximately 500 people, "two-factor" economics.

"These efforts to eliminate the war, poverty and criminality, the perversion of all liberal arts education into servile education, urban riots and unemployment, rising civil rights strife and alienation, rising crime rates, pollution, racism and inflation... the waste of our technology in space, the failure to develop necessary mass transit, all these are effects primarily of the single basic cause that I have identified."

Kelso contended that our government has been the first unnecessary generation to land on the globe. "Technology no longer needs us as a labor force," he said, while parasitical survival is the main cause of the high unemployment.

The solution to this problem is for capital to spread out over a mass distribution of the profits, or who have a stake in the strike (e.g. economic boycott, canvassing, etc.) or who have special economic problems, he said.

Unemployment figures are Strikers to meet

There will be a meeting tonight in the conference room of St. Mary’s Hall to discuss the strike (e.g. economic boycott, canvassing, etc.) or who have special economic problems.

The purpose of the meeting is to co-ordinate the different activities and projects which are or could be started so that the history of a work is avoided.

Kelso’s solution is as follows. Workers would buy stock in their corporations on credit from the banks. They would pay off this loan in six or seven years with the earnings of their stocks.

They would have to put up little or no money and their wages would not be affected. These stocks would be available whenever the corporations wanted to use them.

If the corporations would then give the full 20% of their earnings to the shareholders, $20,000 worth of stock that the worker put up no money for, would give him an annual income of $4,000 beyond his wages.
Informal seminar groups organized

by Bill Carter

Working in conjunction with the "communiversity," or the academic community effort, Academic Affairs Commissioner Wilka announced yesterday plans for a program of informal seminar groups to be set up within the halls structure. This will be part of the educational experiment begun in coordination with the strike activities over the past week.

Wilka said he and some of the organizers of the communiversity project have been contacting members of the faculty in order to gain support for the idea.

The program calls for meetings of small groups of students with individual professors to discuss topics on a far less formal level than the classroom. Wilka said the aim of the plan was to get the seminars into the halls on a floor by floor, or if possible, by section basis.

Whenever possible the professor would meet with the group up to four or five times, expanding the discussion so that the experience might be as meaningful as possible.

Wilka said he was pushing the idea for a number of reasons but primarily because he felt it was a great opportunity for students and faculty alike to engage in a new direction in the learning process.

He also emphasized the present as the ideal time for the organization of such a program due to the opportunity offered by the academic amnesty proposal passed by the University Academic Council.

"I believe the informal seminars will function in the spirit of the proposal passed by the Academic Council," Wilka said. "With so many students dropping out, hopefully the upcoming courses will be a real chance for students to have experience with something new in education. Any subject at all can be discussed in the seminars, we want to work it out so that the program is as flexible and open as possible."

"This could really be an important educational thing," Wilka continued. "The students can honestly work on some of the things they are really interested in, instead of something they have to do. We've contacted people from St. Mary's and are working to get as many girls involved as possible in the program."

The group Wilka is working with is trying to get the program organized in a hurry, aiming to begin the seminars next week. The plans call for afternoon and evening sessions set up within the halls. Wilka said the group was working with the Hall President Council in coordinating the idea.

Wilka emphasized that the topics chosen would not be determined solely by the professor, but that any student or group of students are free to contact the seminar organizers and describe a topic which they would like to hear discussed.

Wilka invited students to let him or the Academic Affairs Office know what topics they were interested in. He said there would be an immediate effort to find a professor to lead the requested discussions.

Wilka said he had worked people to expand and outline opinion on the idea among the faculty members and had already sent a letter to the professors asking for their response to the idea. He said he had received favorable response from a number of the faculty.

"The whole idea of these mini-courses depends on how much response we get and a number of other details such as the amount of free time each professor will have to work with."

For Cambodia

Funds cut effort growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Senate Republicans searched yesterday for a way to cope with a snowballing effort to shut off funds for continuing U.S. military operations in Cambodia.

With a vote tentatively scheduled for early next week, the GOP leadership called a meeting for today to find a party position on legislation designed to hold President Nixon to his promise of a quick end to U.S. attacks on border sanctuaries in Cambodia.

GOP leader Hugh Scott predicted a three way split with some members supporting the anwar measure, another bloc preferring no amendment at all and the other third favoring a compromise approach that would affirm the President's powers as commander in chief.

The Cambodia measure, sponsored by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Ideo., was attached to a Foreign military sales bill that was cleared by the Foreign Relations Committee last week.

The Cooper-Church measure was unanimously opposed to the legislation, impeached a three way split with some members supporting the amendment, another bloc preferring no amendment at all and the other third favoring a compromise approach that would affirm the President's powers as commander in chief.

Senator Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said a show down probably will be postponed until next week, but there was still a possibility the Senate would vote tomorrow.

The Cooper Church measure would prohibit the use of congressional appropriations for further American participation in Cambodia, bar U.S. payments to mercenaries, or military advisers to the Cambodian government and cut off funds for U.S. air strikes in support of Cambodia.

Some constitutional law lawyers say even if passed, the amendment is of doubtful effectiveness, in strict legal terms, because the constitution implicitly permits the President to take almost any reasonable step to protect American troops. This was the argument favoring entry in Cambodia initially.

Scott has promised an amendment to the Cooper Church measure that would seal this loophole by putting the President to take steps "as may be required to protect the armed forces of the United States."

Cooper and Church contended this would create a loophole that might sanction further expansion of the war in Cambodia.

Wilka added the group who had formulated the informal seminar idea was presently looking into the possibility of extending the project into next year.

COMMUNIVERSITY

As a result of negotiations following the Communi-versity - Community meeting on Monday, planning for community programming is under way. Representatives from U.S.B., ND-SMC and South Bend are organizing into specialized committees for community action.

Those interested may contact any of the coordinating committees. Areas under organization include: factory learning and inner coordinating, neighborhood centers including day care action, and police education.

Community action is also sponsoring committee action in such areas as: mini-courses on political issues, television, press, TV, and news releases. Other Community coordinating includes fund raising, treasury reports, Faculty coordinating, and Weekly Bulletin investigative work.

Nine men and nine women are needed now to work with union representatives in the Chicago community Saturday.

On the national scene, Syracuse University has set up a nationwide telephone relay service for efficient dissemination of information and news from other anti-war groups.

Staughton Lynd has made a special appeal to speak with the canvassers with hopes of having an informal exchange of incidents and reactions which occurred in their community efforts. He will be speaking at 1:00 p.m. in the La Fortune Ballroom. Everyone is invited.

THE OBSERVER
Coke may exit dining halls

A Notre Dame Food Service official said yesterday that their present contract with Coca-Cola could be ended if a situation developed that warranted such action according to Economic Boycott Headquarters.

A better offer from a competing company or if a majority of students requested alternative soft drinks were cited as developments that could cause a change in Coke being served. The dining hall official said that the food service exists to "serve the student body.”

Father William Lewers told headquarters last night that the current action against the Coca-Cola and Philip Morris companies probably had no major legal problems. Lewers is a professor in the Law School.

Lewers said that his experience with the Civil Rights movement in the South and the grape boycott indicated that as long as the boycott emphasized its demand for future action and not punishment for past action, he foresaw no legal problems. Lewers indicated that the action was not secondary boycotting that could be covered by Labor laws.

Discusses stopping raids

The group came to a consensus on a number of preventive steps. A study is being made by Rich Urda on the causes and effects of the panty raid phenomenon, and will be distributed to all students next year.

The police would be called, and arrests made with both the group and the police attempting to defuse the situation. Rich Urda pointed out that Notre Dame administration policy is only to warn the SMC security that a raid is in progress, but not to take action. It was suggested that Notre Dame student government call for some sort of disciplinary action against participants in future raids such as April's.

SMC elections

Debbie expressed the desire of "greater student involvement on the hall level". She hopes the new hall constitution and hall government structure will provide an avenue to that goal.

"We must get the members of the hall working together," she stressed the need to personalize the halls on campus and called for the actualization of the community ideal within the residence halls.

Spartans halt Irish momentum 4-1

by Jim Donaldson
Observer-Sportswriter

Shawn Nowitt's two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning propelled the Michigan State Spartans to a 4-1 victory over the Fighting Irish baseball team and put an end to Notre Dame's seven-game winning streak, Tuesday in East Lansing.

Trailing 2-1 entering the eighth, the Spartans pounded on Irish starter Mickey Karkut for three runs, in their half of the stanza. Rob Ellis led off by rapping a single. Ron Proctor walked, and Karkut allowed a double that enabled Ellis to scamper home from first. Karkut then decided the contest by slamming his round-tripper, sending Proctor across the plate before Karkut again thisweekend, playing host to Wayne State in a single game on Friday and a doubleheader Saturday at Carter Field. Ace不允许 photographer Jim Phillips photo op for the Irish this Friday while Jim Phillips and Karkut are listed as possible starters in Saturday's twin bill.
