They have been working on this project, and once we were told by the Fieldhouse that we would only be transferred to the workers, their families and through education at St. Mary's in the education department, they would take the rest of their requirements for a degree in political science. Notre Dame is accredited, but they also ask the fieldhouse to be ready for showings. The first group took a former ticket office and transformed it into a Dramatic Arts Center. This center will be primarily dedicated to poetry readings, which will take place every other Sunday and small dramatic presentations. Already there are two on-campus drama groups that are willing to perform. The second group, made up mainly of Art Dept. members, continued its chore of converting the ticket office into a stage. They have been working on this gallery, called Isla, after the Egyptian god of light and darkness, for some time now in expectation of their first show room.

This is to take place on Friday, November 6 and run for roughly two weeks. The three people whose works will be exhibited are John Kelly, Dan Molidor and Paul Jalbert, all of whom are University Art Students. The show will be composed of work done by the trio while traveling through Europe. The emphasis, in this and future shows will be open to products of any member of the student body. The administration projects that 1.7 million dollars will be needed to renovate the fieldhouse completely. The Arts Council is asking for $6,800 for their activities this year. They are also asking the support of the student body.

Agnew: Demo's use the "big lie" to try to paint the old fieldhouse, now being used for various special events, as "a dark and sinister place," according to Democrat John V. Tunney, who is seeking the Senate seat of Republican George Murphy. The President and Vice President discussed their personal involvement in Nixon's Sen. Clemente office after attending a meeting at La Jolla Presbyterian church.

Agnew said both him and the President were impressed in their travels by the vitality of the nation: "this country is not a sick country." He has covered 32 states and approximately 12,000 miles in the campaign. Nixon has covered 22 states and about 15,000 miles. "This is nothing more than the big lie," Agnew said of Democratic charges that the unemployment is rising and inflation spiraling.

He said all of the recognized indicators of economic activity point to the opposite direction-

"The real GNP," the measure of the value of goods and services excluding the effect of inflation "is steadily improving," he said.

Housing starts are up sharply, and through 1970. The National Association of Home Builders said that new construction is up 15 percent from last winter and spring when it declined, the most recent figures show a rate of growth less than half that of which is predicted the administration will reduee the rate of inflation—when figured in three month periods. The rate for the first three quarters of this year, he said.

Tuition plan OK'd

Approval for the plan to donate Notre Dame student football tickets for the Georgia Tech game to children from South Bend was given recently by Father Edmund P. Joyce following a meeting at the White House.

Father Joyce, who has been out of town for the greater part of last week, was unavailable when the plan's organizers told him, and thus the future of the event remained uncertain. However, Candon said, "Both Father Joyce and ticket manager Donald Boufford have been extremely cooperative with us on this project, and once we were able to contact Father Joyce he gave us his approval." Under current plans Notre Dame students may obtain special tickets for the Georgia Tech game on November 14 at the ticket office at the A.C.C. during the preceding week. Candon stressed that the student's tickets would not leave the office but that their numbers would only be transferred to special tickets for the children of South Bend, with students being able to pick up their tickets from the A.C.C. the following Tuesday.

Once the tickets are collected, letters will be sent out to the children's parents explaining the project and monitors would be assigned for each ten children attending the game. Candon said that other details such as the exact procedure for turning in one's ticket would be made available at a later date after further talks with Mr. Boufford. Letters explaining the project will be mailed today to participating children's parents with instructions to reply by Friday. The replies will determine the exact number of tickets needed and prevent any extra ticket donations. Monitors will be assigned for every ten children attending the game. Candon said that other details such as the exact procedure for turning in one's ticket would be made available at a later date after further talks with Mr. Boufford.
Niemeyer: future politics

By Bro. Jim Siedlock

International political relations in a world beyond communism was the topic of Professor Gerhart Niemeyer's lecture in the Library Auditorium last Thursday night. Dr. Niemeyer, at Notre Dame since 1955, presented his lecture from an article to be published in December by Pacific Community: a Japanese-based publication.

The lecture centered on how international relations will go in a post-Communist world. The decline and end of Communism as an ideology, the development of four industrial world centers and the development of a political order based on East-West cultures were future developments forecast by Dr. Niemeyer.

The idea of political order, he said, would develop from cultures containing the principles of contemplation and meditation, and the nature of man's being in relation to other men. Dr. Niemeyer said Communism was based on the historical view that man's destiny is a classless society. This is the motivation of Communism today, Niemeyer said. This motivation is expressed with devotion and toleration, even the toleration of the inadequacies of the Communist Party.

Communist expansion is centered on ideology and not to be boundary or territorial acquisi­tions, and Dr. Niemeyer. Expansion by Communist proceeds by the domination of peoples with complete allegiance to the Communist Party. Dr. Niemeyer pointed out that the primary aim of Communism is a state of mind like Korea and South Vietnam is control of the government machinery. Thus, he said, is necessary to coerce the people toward Party allegiance.

That Communism has run its course is written on the historical horizon, said Dr. Niemeyer. Evidence is cited in the Cultural Revolution of the Chinese Communist Party in late 1966, where the Army, not the Party, gained the people's allegiance. Also, the events of Czechoslovakia in 1968 show the trend away from full allegiance to the Party. Dr. Niemeyer pointed out that it is unrealistic to give a date regarding the final end of the present world Communist ideology.

The pattern of international relations after the end of the Communist threat will center on the development of four industrial world areas: East Asia, Western Europe, Eastern Europe and India. There is no trend now that would predict a return to a tenebrous ideology. Dr. Niemeyer pointed out that ideologies such as anar­(Continued on Page 4)

Notre Dame. This Institute, "a unique conglomerate of cognate educational enterprises of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College," includes the Office for Educational Research, the Counseling Center, the Office of Teacher Preparation, St. Mary's department of education and the department of graduate studies in education.

The report also outlines the evaluators' major areas of interest: the placement of qualified faculty in their particular fields, the quality of students in the department, and an evaluation of the physical plants of both schools.

Besides listing the Institute of Education as it exists today, the study also forecasts long and short term objectives for the teacher education program.

The report lists these goals include: (1) the use of teaching assistants from Notre Dame by the St. Mary's College education faculty, (2) an increased two-way exchange of faculty between the graduate depart­ments of Notre Dame and the undergraduate departments of the two institutions, and (3) counseling of students by the entire staff rather than by one or two individ­uals.

Other stated objectives include: the participation of staff members in the supervision of student teachers and the intro­duction of a Montessori class for students to acquaint them with the Montessori approach.

The report is also significant as a predictor of the future of the two institutions, "there is rapidly taking place a union, not a merger, of the two institu­tions," the report said.

According to the report, the SMC education department has suc­cessfully fused with Notre Dame's department to become a genuine asset to the university community.

"Given the resources of a na­tional Catholic University like Notre Dame and a prestigious women's college like St. Mary's College, we are convinced that we can assist importantly in meeting the educational challenges of the seventies with our innovative structure," the report reads.

"Even as the basic St. Mary's-Notre Dame relationship is itself innovative, distinctive, and mutually enriching, so is the institution a structure which unites the educational enter­prises of the two institutions," continued the text. "Granted the resources of our institutional structure which are made to the accepted, we deliberately want to break out of the patterns of the past to better prepare young people to assume the serious responsibilities for the quality of human life."

By receiving NCATE accredi­tation, a student who graduates from the St. Mary's department of education will automatically receive certification in at least 28 states. Many other states, according to Dr. Campanale, will also recognize the accreditation, but not officially.

One other NCAE advantage is that it provides students with the opportunity of working for a teaching license while in Indiana.

Although this is Dr. Cam­panale's first major task as chair­man of the St. Mary's education department, he is no stranger to the campus educational system. He received his B.A. and M.A. from Notre Dame and was formerly dean of the graduate department of education at St. Mary's, 1967-71 and was recruited to Notre Dame's Office for Educa­tional Research (1968) and Office of Teacher Preparation.

Last year, he participated in one of the NCAE evaluations of Fordham University, New York, in preparation for up­coming evaluations of Notre Dame.

The Irish Score First

The contest was enjoyable for a neutral football for one quarter. The Irish, playing with loose, could be found smiling. The Irish team took the kickoff and then the Irish broke loose for their most productive yard burst for the touchdown. Brian Doerthy had returned the kickoff to the nine,丁ray Allen and raced unmolested for the score. David Harper kicked the extra point attempt, as the Irish now led 7-0. The Irish moved to the 17 and Tennessee left the field at the 15. Aided by a call of the afternoon with 133 yards gained, scored two of the three touchdown. Metzger answers charges

By Steve Kane

Student Union Academic Commission Jim Metzger, under criticism lately for purportedly presenting a biased speakers program, responded to his attackers recently by saying that they have over-emphasized the issues involved.

Metzger remarked that, "It doesn't upset me that they have over-emphasized their attackers recently by saying that they have received one-sided as much as it does that they have received much over-emphasized attention.

He further explained his comment in reference to Miss Atkinson's appearance. "The purpose was to expose the students to the philosophies behind the Women's Liberation Movement," Metzger said. However, with an unexpectedly bitter message accompanied by the heckling of the audience, the whole affair proved counterproductive.

"Furthermore, George Metzger, Commissioner Jim Metzger, as it does that they have received doesn't upset me that the speakers program, responded to the issues involved.

chime, communism and fascism have shown little success. Movements identified with the New Left lack organization and ideology, he said.

The four industrial centers will cluster on common cultures. These centers would reach a point where technological development would be the same in all areas, hence there would be little existing rivalry.

Problems faced in international relations would be those of boundaries and trade. The ideology problem would be non-existent without a successor to Communism. The boundary problem would be slight because of the lessons of the past. Dr. Nieneyer stated that the successes of Japan and Italy have shown that political domination of a country's needed natural resources is not necessary. Trade problems in relations would be diverted with countries operating planned economics, keeping economic agitation away from the external policies of a country.

International relations would be dependent on qualitative development. Dr. Nieneyer related the French student rebellion of 1968 as disrupting the internal affairs of the country because of demands for the nation's well-being.

Parents' Weekend

not for sophs only

Speaking on the upcoming Parents Weekend, Gary Caruso, the Executive Coordinator for the Sophomore Class, told the Observer yesterday that he has a surplus of 100 tickets and stressed the fact that the weekend is for parents of all students, not just for Sophomore parents.

Caruso, stated that the Sophomores must sell the tickets or a loss, explained that anyone who knows that their parents are coming for the game and would like to come to the dinner, please telephone at 7935 or contact him at 309 Lyons.
