Two of the contests that are of special interest to the Notre Dame campus are the Senatorial election between Vance Hartke and John Brademas, who were separated by only a 4000 vote margin. With 80% of the vote reported, Vance Hartke had received 772,000 votes to John Brademas' 768,000 votes. The race had been projected as a winner at this time and all of three believed that the winner could not be declared until the early morning.

The candidates left the same way Hartke had left at 1 a.m. and will not make statements until morning.

ZPG's abortion program advocates liberal code

by Kevin McGall

Five authorities from the University and from South Bend spoke last night to an overflow audience at the Plummer Hall Pit on various aspects of abortion. The program, sponsored by the Notre Dame Biology Department and the Zero Population Growth, presented arguments and ideas on both sides of the ethical and psychological considerations of abortion and its impact on society.

The first speaker, Dr. Kenyon Twedted, head of Notre Dame's Biology Department, gave a biological definition of abortion as "the induced removal of a nonviable fetus from the womb." The major difficulty, he said, is in defining the duration of the nonviability of the fetus, or the age the fetus must attain to allow it to survive as a premature child outside the womb. He said that up to 21 weeks the fetus is definitely nonviable, but that some would allow abortion until the twenty-ninth week. A number of the audience later questioned the validity of this helplessness as a measure for lack of humanity. He remarked that no one who is alive can hope to survive for long.

Fr. Charles Sheedy took a position against all forms of the Catholic moralistic view of abortion. The head of Notre Dame's Theology Department pointed out the differences between law and morality and stated that the moral solution to abortion might differ from the legal solution. He felt that in all cases the moral "reward imperative," must be followed on the individual level, but that morality is not subjective but an art that is absolutely right or wrong.

Dr. William Shriver, a sociologist, appealed to a "morality of starvation," claiming that the world population is growing too rapidly for us to survive. "By the year 5000," he said, "the population of the earth will have consumed the matter of the earth and the earth will be expanding at the speed of light." Dr. Shriver also spoke of a number of abortion methods both in use and under experimentation.

Mrs. Melba Laird, from the South Bend Mental Health Clinic, said that "there is no evidence that abortion as such creates psychological problems in the mothers." She called abortion a "people problem" and said that it should be solved by a woman and her doctor. A priest (Continued on page 3)

Political campaigns find campus support

UPI — Have students, who tuned in and tuned out to political last spring, dropped out? A Princeton professor believes most of them never turned on in the first place.

A Georgetown University sociologist says students, like many adults, are suffering from apathy.

A conservative student leader says candidates want nothing to do with student volunteers because of voter renunciation towards campus violence.

Whatever the reason, a newly silent majority of American students in sitting out the 1970 election campaign, even on campuses where they have been given time off from classes to participate.

The massive mobilization of students was an important campaign for antiwar candidates, which some observers foresee after the widespread campus protests over Cambodia last May, has not materialized.

Nonetheless, a cadre of many thousands of young men and women - both conservatives and liberals - have been ringing doorsbells, mailing campaign literature into envelopes and mailing telephones across the nation on behalf of candidates in the Nov. 3 elections. They have provided

In the undecided races Vance Hartke held a 51-49% lead in Indiana, with 93% of the vote reported. Roman Hruska also led by a 51-49% margin in Nebraska. Hartke was projected to win by approximately 20,000 votes. This area is traditionally democratic and the Brademas victory was expected.

The Democrats swept all of St. Joseph County. Among the casualties was former Notre Dame security chief Elmer Sokol who was defeated in his bid for re-election to the office of County Sheriff.

The Hall Presidents' Council, which includes South Bend, John Brademas won an easy victory over Donald Newman. Brademas was projected to win by approximately 20,000 votes. This area is traditionally democratic and the Brademas victory was expected.

The consensus seems to be that although the antiwar candidates are disillusioned and the war issue has been defused, there is just as much political activity if not more than in the 1968 "children's crusade" of Eugene McCarthy. The difference is that McCarthy's "children" are not children any more, but experienced political activists valued by many candidates.

In the 3rd district of Illinois which includes South Bend, John Brademas won an easy victory over Donald Newman. Brademas was projected to win by approximately 20,000 votes. This area is traditionally democratic and the Brademas victory was expected.

The Democrats swept all of St. Joseph County. Among the casualties was former Notre Dame security chief Elmer Sokol who was defeated in his bid for re-election to the office of County Sheriff.

The Hall Presidents' Council, which includes South Bend, John Brademas won an easy victory over Donald Newman. Brademas was projected to win by approximately 20,000 votes. This area is traditionally democratic and the Brademas victory was expected.
The Observer

Concert season finalized with Rare Earth booking

by Dave Bach

The Student Union Social Commission has rounded out its fall concert season with the addition of the Chambers Brothers, The Pacific Gas and Electric Company and Rare Earth. Social Commission Chairman John Porst said yesterday that the Pacific Gas and Electric Company will be appearing in Stappy Center Friday, Nov. 13, in the Athletic and Convocation Center.

The Chambers Brothers, after a popular campus appearance last fall, will return to the Convocation Center Saturday, Nov. 14. Their co-stars will probably be Martha Reeves and the Vandellas, although this has not been definitely confirmed, Porst said.

The final Concert of the fall will feature Rare Earth with Blood Rock on Friday, Dec. 4, the night before Notre Dame's home basketball opener with South Carolina.

Porst said that the Commission had decided to bring the Pacific Gas and Electric Company and Rare Earth for students who have complained about a lack of "hard rock" entertainment.

Porst said that the student Union Social Commission will plan more concerts along this line if the demand is evident from the two fall concerts.

Groups that Porst mentioned as possibilities, if the demand is great enough, included Ten Years After and Delaney and Bonnie.

Porst also said that the Commission was still negotiating with Rare Earth booking agents.

This year's Mardi Gras, designated Notre Dame Expo '71, will be held in Stappy Center starting on Thursday February 4 and ending on February 9, a Tuesday. The Mardi Gras will represent a World's Fair patterned after Monrad's Expo '67.

Chairman of the event, Greg Stepic said that "in the past years, the charitable part of the Mardi Gras has been dwindling, so much that the Mardi Gras spirit was almost entirely lost. This year we intend to emphasize more the charitable aspect of the event."

Already halls and clubs are designing booths for the Stappy Center carnival. The architecture of the booths will have their displays fall under the all-encompassing theme of a world's fair. Along with the carnival, a 1971 Luxury Sedan Oldsmobile will be raffled off. The proceeds from the raffle and the inexpensive admission fee for the event will go to the ND Charities.

All students who manage to sell one book of raffle tickets will receive free admission to the Mardi Gras along with one chance toward winning the student grand prize of a 1970 Fiat 124 Spider. For every raffle chance sold, the student will receive a 20% commission.

S pertinent, 5% commission will be withheld to cover the commission for those who take on the responsibility of hall representatives. If more than 3,000 books are sold, the rep will receive a 2% commission after the student commissions are subtracted. If between 3,000 and 4,000 books are purchased the commission rises to 3% and if more than 4,000 books are sold, the commission will be 5%.

The total profits from the raffle, the carnival, the Mardi Gras, and all, except air intelligence, will go to the Notre Dame Charities.

Novel Air team offers advice

A Naval Aviation Information Team headed by Lt. John Coleman will spend four days on campus at Notre Dame University to counsel and advise students on a career in Navy air. Lt. Coleman shoule arrive on campus before noon on November 3rd, and will be available to interested students from 9:00 AM till 4:00 PM thru November 6th. The team will be stationed in the South Dining Hall.

The Navy currently has open trainings in three aviation programs, pilot, flight officer, and air intelligence. All of these programs lead to a commission as an officer in the United States Navy, and all, except air intelligence, enable qualified applicants to compete for the Navy's "Wings of Gold." Primary training is at the Navy's "Annapolis of the Air", Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida.

Dome Pictures

All advisory councils and honor frats wishing to be included in the 1971 Dome - please contact Jeff Sauter at 1287 as soon as possible.

Call Bruce 7471 or 6787

Sergio Mendes
&
Brasil '66

with Casey Anderson and Don Sherman

Saturday, Nov. 7
8:30 in ACD
Tickets $5, $4, and $2 at Student Union Ticket Office and Dining Halls (Thu., Wed., Thurs.) presented by Student Union Social Commission & ACD

Feb. 4-9 fixed as Mardi Gras weekend

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company and Rare Earth, which sells the greatest number of books per number of residents will merit a prize of $500. The top seller will win $50. The second best seller will win $250 and the third, fourth, and fifth best saleswomen will net them $50 each. Students who have complained with The Chambers Brothers but couldn't work out an agreeable date. He hopes that both can be scheduled this spring.

Pat McDaniels, who is in charge of the Social Commission free "over the hill" concert series said that after running for three weeks in a row, the concerts will probably be staged every other week from now on. If the concert is a success, it will run on a loss-only basis, but is trying to keep expenses to a minimum while maintaining the "breaks" on the books piping by. The concerts are piping by on the books piping by.
Abortion termed ZPG “backup”

(Continued from page 1) in the audience later protested that facts, recounting from his own experience girls who had had abortions and had later committed suicide. Dr. Shriver reminded him of the many suicides by those refused abortions, and related that a number of British investigations disclosed that only between zero and thirty per cent of the women who have abortions have any guilt feelings. The last speaker, Dr. Thomas Paulson of Zero Population Growth, told that the goal of the organization is to stabilize the growth rate. Pointing out that a small but affluent group can create more waste than a larger impoverished class, he called for something to be done now on a voluntary basis before conditions of overcrowding and pollution approach calamity and the state must intervene in the area of birth control. He said that he regarded abortion not as a way to control population, but as a backup to other methods of contraception.

"Morality," said Dr. Paulson, "comes to be a relative matter. The right of the fetus to be born must be balanced against its right to be born into a family that wants it and is able to provide it with certain material goods. Unwanted children turn out to have more moral and psychological problems than a comparable child born into a welcoming family." In the short rebuttal after the talks and the questions and answers that followed, a number of points were touched upon. With the exception of Fr. Sheedy, the panel seemed to agree with the abortion law in New York which allows legal abortions to anyone.

They agreed that this should be easily available to the underprivileged.

Russ lecture

Alexandre Benignsen, Russian political scientist and currently Director of higher education at the University of Paris, will speak in the Architecture Auditorium tonight at 8:00 p.m.

Benignsen who is co-sponsored by the Student Union Academic Commission, and the Program of Soviet and East European Studies has written five books on Russia and its people. His subject will be "The Non-Russian Peoples of the Soviet Union." Admission is free.

Fonda arrested for assault

(UPI) - Film star Jane Fonda was arrested Tuesday after she allegedly kicked and slapped a policeman and screamed "get out of here, you pig."

Miss Fonda was taken to the Cuyahoga County jail on a warrant, signed by U.S. Commissioner Clifford E. Bruce charging her with smuggling and assault.

It was reported vials of pills were found in her luggage when she arrived by plane at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport.

Patrolman Robert Piper, who assisted airport customs agent Richard Matuszak in the arrest, said Miss Fonda slapped him in the face and kicked him.

The actress was represented by Mark Lane, Boston attorney who wrote "Rush to Judgment!", which was severely critical of the investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Lane said Miss Fonda was on a tour of colleges and universities in the U.S. and Canada to speak against the war in Indochina.

"Because of this she is harassed by the authorities," she said. "Her arrest was an act of terror, an act of violence ... this is the Nixon-Agnew terror."

Lane said Miss Fonda had asked Matuszak if she could go to the ladies room.

"This big, burly federal agent wouldn't allow it, so she put up a fuss," Lane said.

Miss Fonda spoke at Fanshaw College in London, Ont., Monday night. There is only repression and prison for anyone trying to do anything in America," Miss Fonda said at Fanshaw. "The government must be replaced."

The actress was arrested last March with a group of Indians who attempted to take over an Army post on Puget Sound.

Won't you help?

If you have a car, and would like to drive underprivileged South Bend children to and from the Georgia Tech game on Sat., Nov. 14, come to a short meeting tonight at 8:30 in the amphitheater of LaFortune Student Center. If you would just like to be a monitor for the children during the game, come tonite also. We need your help!

Need a home?

You probably haven't considered buying a home while you're in school. But this weekend, we can sell students needing off-campus housing a home for as low as $3,895. It's a mobile home — fully furnished, complete with major appliances. No more money down the drain. No more people upstairs. You'll have a new and comfortable home, privacy, and most important, an investment ... all for monthly payments that are probably lower than what you're now paying for rent?

Sound too good? Come see us this weekend during our open house. You'll be surprised.

Greenbrook Estates

Mayflower and Sample

South Bend

Mobile Home Sales and Lot Rentals

*Student Billing Card

With this card, a dorm resident may make long distance calls with the privacy of the dorm room phone and get an individual bill once a month. And even take advantage of Direct Distance Dialing ... the faster, easier way to call long distance. Your Student Billing Card is waiting (if you haven't already picked it up) at the Indiana Bell Business Office. Just ask.
The Budget

The academic year is a good percentage over with now, and still the budget has not been passed. Most organizations have been forced to operate on budgets that have not been passed, spending money, which they essentially anticipate but do not have. Some of those organizations, frankly, are in for a rude awakening, and will be in for a raider memorandum if the Senate itself tries to balance the budget and end Student Government’s financially embarrassing debt to the University.

This tragedy is enacted every year. The late budget puts a lot of organizations on the spot, and when the budget requests finally do reach the Senate, a lot of unnecessary ill will is caused by the conflict between desperate organizations and day or Senate.

The Observer believes that a lot of this ill will could be circumvented. The Observer believes that a number of simple procedural modifications could wipe out the November disaster.

Obviously, the Senate, or whatever body ends up considering the budget, must be elected earlier in the year. This year, the Senate was elected a full month after school had opened. President Knafsha did not call a meeting until late October. The Senate begins considering the budget today, November fourth. By this time, many organizations have already spent amounts of money approaching their budget requests.

More importantly, however, the Finance Committee must be ready to make recommendations as soon as the school year starts. That means that members must consider the budget over the vacation, and in the last months of the previous semester. That way, the organizations should have their requests in, not at the beginning of the school year, but by May 1 of the previous year.

Most organizations change hands April 1. New organization heads should have a month to consider their budget means, and under the new proposal they would have that month. But now, the new organization should be able to submit a budget request and a justification for that request to the Finance Committee.

By the same token, there is no reason to believe that the Senate Finance Committee would need more than the month of May to thrash out the budget requests and present something to the Senate. If the Senate takes its customary two weeks or so to determine the budget, a budget should be ready by late September, rather than middle November.

The problem has grown to be sufficiently dangerous, now, and it’s time to act.

LETTERS

Tech Tickets

Editor:

I was deeply disturbed by your editorial in Friday’s copy of The Observer. It concerned the so-called ticket crisis existing for the Georgia Tech football game. The time has come, I think, to discuss the problem of student ticket passes anyway.

First, let me say that I am neutral concerning the idea which would allow South Bend kids to attend the game. By neutral I mean that I am not willing to give up my ticket. The present way in which the tickets are distributed is a partial solution. The ones he can not use, I urge him to give back and get a refund. What the Left wants is indisputable: unity - as long as it is a unity on their terms and no one else’s. The argument that the Nixon administration is ripping the nation apart in rhetorical pretense, a shoddy and hypocritical pose which tries only to conceal the deficiencies of their positions on real issues.

The latest war-chant of the Left is that THE NIXON ADMINISTRATION IS DIVIDING THE NATION! Nixon and Agnew are "ripping the nation apart" in their divisive posture toward demagoguery" says Bill Mitchell in last week’s Scholastic with not a little demagoguery in the saying of it.

It really is difficult to take such arguments seriously. After all, the very people who make the accusation have nothing at all against "ripping the nation apart" if it happens to concern a policy they favor. The anti-war and black power people have accomplished the dividing of the nation more fully than anyone would have believed possible ten years ago. Their own words and actions demonstrate incontrovertibly that "division" is not what they really object to. It is the particular policies themselves that are the focus of the objection, not the division they cause.

The critics contend that the present administration is appealing to interest groups rather than aiming at the common good of the nation. Translated into clearer language this reads "Mr. Nixon, quit trying to get the votes of all those people who agree with you and disagree with us, since we’re the ones who know what’s best for our country." It’s as if the administration were forbidden to point out to various groups what benefits they may expect from the policies that President Nixon regards as best serving the common good. (An example of appealing to interest groups to the detriment of the common good is available—but it’s not Nixon. It is the Democratic Congress which has added billions of dollars to this year’s budget in order to please different interests, even though this significantly hurts the fight against inflation which clearly constitutes the overriding economic need of the country at the present time.) Anything the President does is bound to alienate some—in fact, many people, and to that extent is bound to cause division.

Was the nation less divided in 1962 or 1966, when Kennedy and Johnson had been in office for two years? Who is it that the Left contends will not divide the country? George McGovern? Ted Kennedy? Jane Fonda? C’mon fellows, give us a break.

Why all this fuss about "unity" and "divisiveness"? Because it enables these carping critics who are essentially unsatisfied with everything but themselves to assume a statesmanlike pose with the righteous indignation of a patriot who abhors factional leaders (the very thing for which they call Agnew an "outrageous and obscene person"). We would never do that. We seek only national unity.

What the Left wants is in deed unity—as long as it is a unity on their terms and no one else’s. The argument that the Nixon administration is ripping the nation apart in rhetorical pretense, a shoddy and hypocritical pose which tries only to conceal the deficiencies of their positions on real issues.

Chris Wolfe
By T. C. Treanor
The Setting: On Stage at Washington Hall, surrounded by Ouiji Boards, Tarot Cards, candles, mystics, and a Ghost Gun (a sort of supernatural Elephant Gun.)
Washington Hall is Notre Dame's haunted hall. It is haunted by the Ghost of Frank Devine, who was, in reality because I t is haunted by the Host. The Host is my soul that he was, came back here to pre-

Scene I
L. Franklin Devine: Well, here we are in Washington Hall.
Rabble: Snap out the Ouiji Board!
L. Franklin Devine: ...for WSND, and this is Frank Devine...
Rabble: Get a pin for the Ouiji Board!
L. Franklin Devine: ...for WSND, the voice of the Fighting Irish, and we're here at Washington Hall.

Scene II, outside.
L. Franklin Devine: ...and I'm here for WSND at Washington Hall...
Rabble: What's it say? What's it say?
L. Franklin Devine: ...and we're here on the stage of Washington Hall...

Rabble: Lose? Are you a cryptogram?
L. Franklin Devine: Is it a cryptogram?
L. Franklin Devine: Remaining Rabble: Why don't you ask

Scene III
L. Franklin Devine: We're going to look for the ghost, trying to find it if really exists...
Chris: It can't be just any old pin, it's got to be the pin that came with it.
L. Franklin Devine: ...of course, if he doesn't exist, we got no trouble, heh, heh...

Rabble: I've got a safety pin.
L. Franklin Devine: With me, I've got George T., who's responsible for this whole show tonight.

Rabble: What happened? What happened?
L. Franklin Devine: I know what the last two letters will be:
Ouiji Board: B-A... L. Franklin Devine: Here we are at Washington Hall, and I'm Frank Devine... Chris: I think it's a hostile spirit! L. Franklin Devine: We're going to be working!

Scene IV, outside.
Chris H.: I hope you wouldn't mind if I went home? Lois: Do you speak Greek? L. Franklin Devine: What would happen?

Ah, to be 10 years old again. To believe in ghosts again. Ah, the bliss of ignorance.

Second City, okay
By Frank Devine

Did you ever have such a good time that you really didn't want to talk about it? Where group being seven or eight years old and coming home from Swiss Family Robinson or Son of Flubber and having your folks ask how was the movie? You'd mumble something like "Aughhh, it was okay." Not because you didn't like it, but because it was so much fun. And besides how do you retell the good feelings you got when you laughed too hard or when Gabby and Chuck threw the flattened popcorn boxes at the screen and the usher came down the aisle with his flashlight but walked by you and shined it over the other way? So you just mutter that the show was okay and hope that they don't pursue it.

The Second City Touring Company was here Saturday night with a Revue called "Cooler by the Lake". In fact, it was those good times that was so much fun that you hesitate to talk about it. Five years and two girls, added by a piano player, an upright, and six ice cream parlor chairs made us laugh Saturday night not only laugh, but laugh at ourselves, an event all too rare during the past few months.

The Second City Company is one of the centers of genuine theatrical creativity in America today. This brand of improvisational theater revue at first appears almost like any other seviies of revue sketches, but there seems to be a owned importance. While most black-out sketches strive after some point in order to make the audience laugh, it seemed that the Second City made us laugh in order to make some point. The revue is aimed at a particular audience, young, educated and middle class. Many of the laughs were "in" things. Stories which would have sailed right by non-members of the group. The audience was drawn into the action by this sense of belonging. The home sketch sometimes almost became an egotist actor, responding as a suburban PTA when the situation called for it.

Although there were the Nixon and Agnew sketches, the brunt of most of the sketches were the members of the audience - the products of the suburban middle class, and we laughed at ourselves.

The members of the cast were all extraordinarily talented. This isn't all surprising when you consider some of the Second City alumni, Alan Alda, Barbara Harris, Jack Burns and Avery Schirber among a myriad of others. The cast's names hastily mumbled during the curtain call may be a familiar in a few years as Mike Nichols, Elaine May or Shelly Ber-
The execution of plans being developed by the Student Union may dissolve the Hamms Campus Store Monopoly. The union proposals include a discount campus store and a record co-op, both of which will hopefully be open next semester.

The purpose of the projects, according to Rob Browning, Social Services Commissioner, and Bob Polk, Student Union Manager, is to sell, at discount prices, the articles needed by all students, thereby making it possible for the students to avoid paying the higher prices asked by the campus bookstore and by local merchants. The lower prices in the Student Union Store would be possible because the Union is not anticipating any profit from sales; the only cost added to wholesale prices will be to cover the wages of the store workers.

Plans for these facilities began last summer, when the Associate Director of the Student Union contacted several major companies, requesting information regarding wholesale prices and policies. In September, a representative from the Colgate-Palmolive Company arrived on campus to confer with Student Union officials and since then, planning has moved forward rapidly. The plans are not yet finalized, and although the Union hopes to have the store in operation when the second semester begins, no absolute opening date has been set.

The store is to be open four hours a day, in the Fiesta Lounge of LaFortune. Toothpaste and other toilet articles will be sold, as well as class notebooks. Other merchandise may be added, depending on student response and other factors such as space, manpower, and bookkeeping facilities.

University Arts Council is budgeted to receive less than it asked because of the uncertain future of the old-fieldhouse, suggested Weber.

The requests of the Student Desk Information Center and the Student Inmates organization were turned over to the Marli Grace Charity Chest.

One of the more controversial allocations involved the American Society. Their request was cut to $4300 because, at least partly, according to Weber, it was marked by the record co-op as "not specified." One of the doubtful requests included "emergency needs."

On the other hand, MECHA was the only organization to be suggested for a greater increase over their requested budget. The increase was due to the plans of making the organization into a regional clearinghouse to provide information to Mexican Americans, said Weber.

The requests of St. Edward's and Stanford Halls were turned down. The Academic Affairs Commission faces a cut of $2000.

With available funds totalling $54,000, the debt this year will be about $11,000, unless more cuts are made by the Senate. This deficit compares favorably with the debt last year of $29,000 and the year before's $56,000.

At the meeting tonight in LaFortune Amphitheatre, beginning at 7 p.m., the Senate will be given an overview of each group's activities and needs. The senators will be given an opportunity to make their priorities and question a representative from each group.

University Arts Council
How to come back by really trying

by Joe Passiatore

Sports Writer

Once upon a time, has anyone any movie producer could have dreamt up a young man striving for the American athletic career, seems just on the verge of attaining it and then is struck down by adversity. Naturally, the hero in the movie is always able to somehow recover from his unfortunate fate and climb the long ladder back to the summit of his profession. In real life are capable of coming back after such an unfavorable turn of events? People with this kind of dedication, fortitude, and self-confidence are simply not all that easy to find nowadays. This is why athletes like Greg Marx seem to command a special respect from their fans, from their coaches, and perhaps most significantly, from their fellow athletes.

For Greg, who, before his duties at right defensive tackle with every bit of the vigor a Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the disappointment of being redshirted, of doing, of deteriorating, in his memory. He recalls with starting quickness his Fractured right knee. "It happened on Sunday, September 15, 1974, during the season's opening game against Northwestern." Greg admits that he didn't know how to react to the whole situation, "I had just been trying to make the team. I had no idea what was going to happen to Notre Dame's defensive line last year. It had been thrown into some "policy of containment" for a more aggressive pass rush, by saying, "Against teams where we have a lot of blitzes because we expected them to throw. Whereas against most teams, you try and stop the run and force the pass, with Navy we tried to stop their passing game and make them run because of the weakness of their running attack."

Marx added that because of the well balanced attack posed by all of the remaining teams on Notre Dame's schedule, the defense would probably have to pick up the pieces of containment as well. Finally, the subject of an un-decipherable game schedule.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?" Suddenly became interesting between great athletic contests between great athletic teams. Instead, he rushes to say, "I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

Bob Nozar
Ohio State U.

UP Poll
NEW YORK (UPI) - The United Press International top ranked major college football teams with first place votes in parentheses. Also 35 of 35 coaches participated in the balloting.

Team
Points

1. Texas (18) 6-0 321
2. Nebraska (2) 7-0-1 239
3. Ohio State (7) 6-0 289
4. Nebraska (2) 7-0-1 239
5. Stanford 6-0 288
6. Michigan 7-0 271
7. Arkansas 6-1 268
8. Arizona State 7-0 262
9. UCLA 5-3 251
10. TCU 5-3 241
11. Arizona St. 6-0 234
12. Iowa 6-1 230
13. Mississippi St. 5-1 225
14. San Diego St. 7-0 220
15. Ohio State 6-0 217
16. UCLA 5-3 210
17. TCU 4-3 207
18. TCU 5-3 202
19. Iowa 6-1 197
20. Michigan 7-0 195
21. Penn State 7-0 194
22. Stanford 6-0 193
23. Penn State 6-0 188
24. Mississippi St. 5-1 183
25. Utah 6-1 178
26. Arizona 7-0 177
27. Texas 6-0 175
28. Kansas 7-0 174
29. Michigan St. 7-0 173
30. Kansas 6-0 172
31. Kansas St. 6-0 169
32. Arkansas 6-1 166
33. Alabama 6-0 164
34. Penn State 7-0 163
35. Washington 7-0 162

The ohserve-

Page 7

by Jim Eggert
Ohio State Lantern- Sports Editor

Eggert's note: The following article appeared in the OHIO STATE LANTERN a week ago last Friday. Mr. Eggert was attempting to explain why the Ohio State Buckeyes did not have to play Notre Dame. Mr. Eggert's note also appeared in tomorrow's OBERVER. The following week the voice of the Crowd column appeared in rebuttal to Eggert's opinion in the LANTERN. Eggert then wrote a retraction to Mr. Eggert's column in response to the retraction.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?"

"I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

"Bob Nozar, Ohio State U.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?"

"I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

"Bob Nozar, Ohio State U.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?"

"I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

"Bob Nozar, Ohio State U.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?"

"I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

"Bob Nozar, Ohio State U.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?"

"I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

"Bob Nozar, Ohio State U.

"I thought about guys like Kevin Hardy or Alan Page, the kind of dedication, fortitude, and never need the excuse that I possibly will continue to look at Notre Dame. But Mr. Parseghian, sir, what makes you think your team has any more of a right to play Ohio State than any other major college power?"

"I'd like to challenge them. (Ohio State)."

"Bob Nozar, Ohio State U.
The Democrats had registered a net gain of only two seats, but were expected to add as many as 11 more. The Democrats made major gains in the statehouses all over the nation. Democrats beat incumbent Republicans in Florida, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Ohio, Minnesota, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

In Florida, Republican Governor Claudie Kirk fell to Reuben Askew, a Democrat. In Pennsylvania, Notre Dame graduate Thomas Broderick, a Democrat, lost to Milton Shapp. Broderick was at least partly the victim of a tax increase enacted under former Governor Raymond Shafer, a Republican. However, in Ohio, Notre Dame graduate John Gilligan, a Democrat, swept to a large victory over Republican John Cloud. Cloud was the victim of a financial scandal that involved members of his ticket.

In Arkansas, Republican incumbent Governor Winthrop Rockefeller was also a victim of the Democratic surge. The GOP also lost the statehouse in Minnesota, where Wendell Anderson beat Douglas Head. In Maryland, where Agnew fought hard to hold his seat for the GOP fold, Governor Marvin Mandel, a Democrat, won easily over his Republican foe, C. Starey.

Budget reduction reviewed by HPC

A series of plans were discussed for appealing the Hall Presidents' budget cut at Monday night's meeting of the Hall Presidents' Council.

Earlier this year, the University Finance Committee reduced the HPC's budget from $2000 to $1500. John Barkett, president of the HPC, said he did not know why the cut was made but added that a number of other organizations' budgets were also reduced. One solution suggested was to assess all halls for a charge of 50. However, it was rejected in favor of a motion that the hall presidents go individually to the Student Senate to request more money. Buzz Imhoff, president of the Student Senate, commented that funding requests should be made by the entire council, feeling that the council should have a more powerful effect than the individual hall presidents. Imhoff's suggestion was tabled, however, by Barkett.

Fritz Hoefer, newly appointed executive coordinator of the HPC, stressed the importance of receiving the additional financial aid. He said that of the $2000 appropriated to the HPC last year, nearly all of it went for An Toasional weekend, entirely run by the HPC. He emphasized the difficulty of operating an An Toasional with a $1500 cut in the budget.

Weekend set for parents

Plans for the upcoming Parents' Weekend have been finalized under the direction of Chairman Greg Caruso. The weekend schedule includes the Pitt game, a catered dinner, and the Sergio Mendez concert.

Parent's Weekend, officially known as the Sophomore Parent's Weekend, was created by former V.P. for Student Affairs Charles McCaughan, to give the Sophomore class another activity of its own. The Senior class has the Senior Fellows Award and the Senior Bar; the Junior class has Junior Parent's Weekend, while the Sophomore class has only the Sophomore Literary Festival in the spring.

At the present time, 1600 are planning to attend the Saturday night dinner catered by the Thanderbird Restaurant of Mitsuwaka at Step Center. Father Hesburgh will attend the dinner and address the guests. A concert featuring Sergio Mendez and Brazil '66 will follow at the ACC at 8:30 P.M.

Caruso emphasized that much work has gone into the preparation for the weekend and so far it is running smoothly. Over the summer, postcards were sent out to parents with information on football, concert and dinner tickets. The Ticket Office made 14,000 tickets available for the Notre Dame-Pittsburg game on November 7, and 735 motel rooms were made available.

The reservation of football tickets is a departure from past policy, because this game is reserved only for parents of students. Formerly, tickets for all home games were made available to contributing alumni.

Sergio Mendez and Brazil '66 were chosen for the concert because they are a group that "appeal to both the old and the young." Steve Palucca, Sophomore Class President, said he was satisfied with the plans for the weekend, as was Caruso. For the first year, he said, "I hope it sets a good precedent."