Day espouses new anarchy
by Ann Conway

In her lecture, "A Nonviolent Life," given last night at Carroll Hall at SMC, Dorothy Day, co-founder and editor of the Catholic Worker advocated voluntary poverty as the foundation of a new social order.

The position of the Catholic Worker, according to Miss Day, is one of pacifism and anarchy. "We're not thinking in terms of bomb-throwing." In general, the Catholic Worker's anarchy position is standing in a token of a new social order of working from the bottom up (the individualist approach) instead of from the present system of government programs.

The new revolution which Miss Day advocated last night was the rejection of the things of this life. "Voluntary poverty" is a new revolution position. "Voluntary poverty" is inconsistent with social reform.

Espousing the Communist philosophy, she said she was impressed by a person approximately 10 years ago, Miss Day turned to Catholicism because "It was the Church of the people." It was then that she met Peter Maurin who "brought simple anarchistic point of view to me and laid down a program of action." The business of turning to the state for welfare was foreign to Maurin and he espoused a system of social service. His program of action basically consisted of: publishing a paper to spread the ideas of voluntary poverty, starting houses of hospitality where works of charity would be performed, and movement toward decentralization, a movement toward the land. Together, he and Miss Day started the Catholic Worker movement in 1933.

WASHINGTON (UPI) In a stunning reversal of sentiment the Senate voted 52 to 41 yesterday to halt development of the giant supersonic transport plane (SST) cornerstone of the United States' bid to maintain its superiority in world aviation.

The Senate's vote last year to continue development of the SST was 58 to 22. Thursday's vote did not preclude the possibility however that funds still might be appropriated for the 1,800 mile per hour craft in the current fiscal year.

The House already has approved the $290 million appropriation. The dispute now will have to be resolved in a House-Senate Conference Committee which could recommend total partial or no financing at all.

The vote crossed party and sectional lines. Republicans and Democrats, Northerners and Southerners voted on both sides of the issue.

Fifteen senators who voted for continued development a year ago switched to opposition this time. The wide margin was not expected by even the most hopeful of SST opponents. Further development of the plane was opposed by a growing number of senators who contended its advantages were outweighed by negative potential environmental and the needs of other more urgent domestic problems.

The opponents won despite concessions voted Wednesday that would have prohibited all commercial SST flights over U.S. territory and required the American SST to meet new noise control standards for domestic airports.

Supporters argued that without uninterrupted SST development, the United States risked losing a long held competitive edge over other countries in the development of Anglo French and Russian versions of the supersonic passenger plane.

SUSC functions defined: projects fill campus void

by Art Ferranti

The Student Union Social Commission is headed by senior Jim Porst. Under this direction this year the SUSC has tried to expand the entertainment available through the "events" of the ND SMC communities. Such activities as the opening of the Rathskeller in the basement of LaFortune with free coffee, the "Over the Hill" free concerts in the hallway of LaFortune every Wednesday night, and the minor concerts at Stepan have been initiated this year under Porst's supervision.

Jim Porst

Porst assumes responsibility for every event the Social Commission sponsors. He is an executive staff of nine members which head various committees. Pat McAdam is the permanent commissioner. He and Porst oversee all the groups that work together in all but one activity - the booking of the groups and such. Booking is the biggest problem the commission has to face. Porst categorized the two types of groups he has to face. There are those which are already booked through next semester such as Chicago, the Band, and Joe Lockrund, and those who will put off making commitments, such as Santana and the Jefferson Airplane.

It all boils down to this: when there is a great demand for a product, one vendor cannot satisfy it. Some go out of business. Porst has traveled to many states and knows all the vendors. He knows the vendors; he knows what they demand. And so, he slaks back home and dies, old and embittered at the old drawing board and published his famous book. Moll Flanders (or as it is generally known as) and the world came to realize what a jolly, riot! It's called "the dismal science" only because that's the name of the book. Mr. Ricardo, curiously enough, wasn't trying to invent economics. He was trying to invent plankton, but as you know of such activities as the Technical part of the groups and performance and has to provide such items as complete sound systems. The special projects co-ordinator and his staff complete the physical resources for the bookings.

The other committees are those of ticket machines, promotions, booking, Collegiate Jazz Festival, and Mardi Gras. The Commission loses money on the Rathskeller, Stepan Concerts and "Over the Hill" has the losses are more than made up for through the main events at the ACC and festivities such as Mardi Gras and the Collegiate Jazz Festival. In order to provide more activities of relaxation and entertainment the Commission is willing to take this financial loss.

A loss on a Stepan Center concert may set the Commission back up to $1,000. Porst announced that for the upcoming Rare Earth concert in Stepan there will be no chairs in order to allow students and patrons to bring blankets and there will be a better sound system than that at the Pacific Gas and Electric concert. The reaction to this concert by the students will determine the future of such concerts in Stepan. If it is well received we shall see more of such activities.

As of now all the contracts, construction deadlines, raffle packets and groups have been completed for Mardi Gras and the CJF. Porst will announce the various groups at a later date. There will be three concerts in the ACC in the spring. They are on February 5 for Mardi Gras, April 3, and May 1.

The student body president described how the student body elects chooses the director of the student union administration. The president has within a week, the heads of the various commissions. Each commissioner then picks his own staff of members, one of which will get a position of authority in the SMC. He has been initiated this year under the beginning of each school year. Openings are made known throughout the year through the SUSC and one may apply by the recommendations of an existing member. There are approximately 100 students involved in the SUSC.

Pursley declines invitation

by Jerry Lutkus

Jim Metzger and Missy Underman, Co-Chairmen of the Student Union Academic Commission, revealed yesterday that Bishop Leo A. Pursley has turned down an offer to address the student body of Notre Dame-St. Mary's.

After the favor over the Ti Grace Atkinson lecture had died down, the Academic Commission forwarded an invitation to Bishop Pursley and Monsignor James Conroy to present their views to the students directly. About this Metzger commented, "If someone attacks you through the press or mail, you ought to bring that man before those he attacks to explain his position.

SUAC did not immediately receive a reply, so it followed up the invitation with a telegram asking for one. The members had offered the bishop a choice of ten speaking dates, and gave him this reason for the invitation: "Your comments...reveal a certain concept of the Catholic University" which we assure you has not been sufficiently encouraged here. In light of this, and in the trustful vitality of our Open Speakers Policy, we should like to extend an invitation to statement of November 8th I tried to say briefly and simply what I thought and what I felt obliged to publish. Under existing circumstances as revealed in your letter, I see no point in any rational discourse." The bishop has "such a different view of the University." Metzger stated. "I imagine we're just going to have to accept his criticism and leave it at that."

Advent: capitalistic life as it presently exists"

She agrees with Marx's concept that "Capitalism has within it the seeds of its own destruction." But she sees in the Church and the Catholic Worker movement the regeneration of society in the new social order. The Commune Miss Day stated, "Is a place where the worker and the scholar come together and the worker becomes the scholar and the scholar becomes the worker." She admits the presence of tensions between the generations but states that "We all manage with the sense of sharing and poverty. The old bring experience the young the desire to learn and I think the communities work out that way. Generations need each other."

Speaking on war, Miss Day condemned it stating that Christ commanded men to do works of mercy, and take a personalized approach. "Instead of feeding people, you are defoliating their fields. War is in direct opposition to the works of mercy." The study of history is the history of revolution just as we are living in a nuclear era, however, we are also living in a nonviolent era.

Noble words from a man whose newspapers were most famous for their frequent violations of that trust which he eloquently expounded. Yet any newspaper, in order to maintain respect, must uphold that obligation.

The honor and obligation

"The press has had great honor and equally great obligation imposed upon it by the Constitution in the interests, of course, of full and accurate public information. It is the high duty of this press to observe that distinction, that sacred trust on all occasions. It is its duty to print the truth, ALL the truth and nothing but the truth as news." — W. R. Hearst, June 13, 1941.

In order to accomplish these aims, a new constitution was created. The new constitution was created. The main focus of student government should be on the halls and it is with this in mind that the new constitution was created. The proposed president council would greatly strengthen the bond between student government and the halls.

The New Constitution and the Senate

The following is the fourth in a series of columns on the proposed new constitution. Ms. Krashna is Student Body President.

Last year in our campaign, Mark and I talked about a need to restructure "if student government is to be effective, its aims and attitudes must be changed. It must cease to function above the students and begin to function among them, in the halls where the student community has its base." To accomplish this desire an emphasis must be oriented toward providing the individual with an opportunity to make his feelings heard. To change the past emphasis of government, a need to restructure is essential.

A "Student Forum" was proposed last year which would hopefully fulfill this need. As designed, it would have been comprised of hall presidents, elected off-campus representatives and the student body president and vice president. This forum would have hopefully assumed all the powers now held by the student senate. But, we feel that this is lacking as both a representative and workable organization. A complete restructuring process must take place which will allow for the students to best voice their opinion and also allow for such legislative process as budget allotments, election organization, and impeachment. These three areas of influence are all which still remain in the senate. And we feel that we can offer a viable and more representative alternatives. The need to change is great and must be accomplished immediately.

In order to accomplish these aims, a new constitution has been written which calls for the dissolution of the student senate while creating a new body — The President's Council. This organization would include the hall and off-campus representatives and be chaired by the student body president. Taking the HPC as a base, their areas of responsibility would be extended to include budgeting matters, powers of impeachment, and control over election procedures. In addition to increasing the credibility of the HPC by providing it with suitable credentials, a student general assembly would be held periodically each year to provide all students, of all segments of interest to voice their opinions either as suggestions, proposals or formal.

Upon the recommendation from either the President's Council or this general assembly, student government, through the individual cabinet commissions would study the recommendations and take the necessary steps to implement the principles involved. An opportunity would be given to the author of the proposal to chair a committee, if he so desires, as a member of one of the cabinet commissions. This provides both an opportunity for all students to express their opinions and then to participate in student government.

The make-up of this new structure would be as follows: the student body president would head the government organization followed by the student body vice president. Then the cabinet and the student union sharing a somewhat equal position. Under these elements would follow a financial committee and an election committee. At the bottom or as you may wish the top of this organization would be the president's council. All of these divisions would in reality be accountable to the student body through the general assembly.

To explain these further:

— the voice of the student body president, the student body vice president and student union would remain the same basically.

— the student government cabinet would become more involved with student originated resolutions as the recipient of all ideas. The commissions would remain flexible enough to take under their control any committee resulting from any individual's recommendation.

— the financial committee would be composed of the student body president, student body vice president, student body treasurer, student union director, student union assistant director, vice president of student affairs, one professor of the business college, three president council members, off-campus president council representative. This committee would make all initial recommendations and changes in all budgets to be revised. This committee would in turn pass its initial findings in to the president's council which would pass the final decision making power.

The election committee would be composed of the student body president, student body vice president, executive coordinator of the student government, three president's council members (as elected by that body), and one student life council member. This committee would be authorized to make all recommendations concerning election procedures and dates except in class elections.

Student government is attempting this restructuring in the hopes of avoiding a dilution of its efficiency in the future. The main focus of student government should be on the halls and it is with this in mind that the new constitution was created. The proposed president council would greatly strengthen the bond between student government and the halls.

At the same time student government will be streamlined with the elimination of the purposeless student senate. This streamlining will cut the bureaucracy and make your student government a more efficient organization.

The quality of an album stands in inverse proportion to the amount of time spent waiting for it, the amount of hype that comes with it before the fact, and the relief with which the package is opened. Now this might be my fruit and it might be his, but Stephen Stills has failed to do it.

It is what we asked Al Kooper, Paul McCartney, Neil Young, and the rest of the package is opened. Now this might be my fruit and it might be his, but Stephen Stills has failed to do it.

I'm not sure how much of the hype that surrounds the album is due to the kind of music that comes along only once in every few years, something that really says something grand and large, reaffirms our faith in the three-thousand year-old tradition of great songwriting, and in other words, gives us the ultimate, but at least three or four months.

So much of the hype, Superman wonder virtuoso, king of the lightning voice and tasteful guitar, and he should be more interested in the rest of them, and he shouldn't, and he didn't, just like all the rest of them did.

The album is nice, but hardly up to our expectations, which, at the busy season of the book, mean that he is so fine, and it doesn't, and he didn't, just like all the rest of them did.

The album's first band is the one you hear on the radio, "Love the One You're With," a very nice, steel-drum song, quite nice and sure to be a commercial success. And then, in the case of disappointment, I try to figure out what's wrong with the album. And then, in the case of the album that is still so good, but I don't think he knows exactly what it is that makes it so good.

For one thing, in this cut (and in many of the others) he tries to get just a little too far out. And then, in the case of the album that is still so good, but I don't think he knows exactly what it is that makes it so good.

The Irish Eye

On the Tuesday before Thanksgiving, Notre Dame's campus was rapidly losing its 7,000-person pop to the highways existing November 18. It will be the biggest and most powerful team. The usual number of people tromping through the snow on the South Quad were gone. The North Dining Hall looked almost barren. Notre Dame's largest non-classroom building.

There was one place on campus where things were a bit more the same. In the phone office of Roger Valdersi, located on the second floor in the Convo, people were buzzing around trying to pretend he wasn't in anticipation of the call. Shari Brown, Valderi's secretary (who also happens to be Mrs. Joe Theismann as of tomorrow) sat nervously out stalking around the Convo trying to pretend he wasn't yet. It should be announced soon." A few chuckles went through the scene of the big announcement.

The planned time of announcement would be 7:00 p.m.
