Kunstler says govt. is stifling protest

by Jerry Lutkus

Dedicating the evening to deposed draft resister David Dury, Senior Fellow, Mr. Kunstler accused the government of attempting to “intimidate and terrorize” the anti-war movement. Kunstler stressed that the “Law is being used to chill and intimidate the people” and that if the trial of William Calley is set to proceed, it will put him under “so-called house arrest” if he is convicted.

The Senior Fellow detailed the background elements of the Harrisburg conspiracy case involving the Berrigan brothers. Kunstler is one of the co-counsel in the trial. He felt all of the actions carried out in indicting the people involved and setting the scene of the trial were part of a government plot. He added that the reason behind the plotting of a conspiracy operation is that the trials prior to the Berrigan’s have not been intimidating enough. He said the “backfired.” So, he reasoned, another conspiracy case was in order.

Kunstler spoke Friday evening in a standing room only in Stipan Center. Kunstler outlined the government’s scheming in assembling their indictments. He said that the government “carefully selected” this time. They didn’t want people way left of center or stock prototypes because these have failed.

So, instead, the government chose “slightly tarnished nuts and priests who would generate enough fear being also mysterious people to the Protestant world that they would be ideal defendants,” Kunstler said. He claimed that the government’s reasoning was that people would be amazed that nuns and priests could do this, thereby spreading fear and intimidation among more people.

Kunstler then explained how the government indicted six people while naming 13 as co-conspirators. The indictments were only six, he claimed, because of “logical” problems. After outlining the assembling of the six people to be indicted, Kunstler commented on the location of the trial. He used the trial of Benjamin Spock as an example of his theory. “Conspiracy trials can be brought in any place that there is a jury,” said Kunstler. Spock’s trial was set in Boston, he said, before a jury that was largely Irish Catholic and notoriously patriarch. Kunstler explained that the government did this because they thought that this Irish Catholic jury would “enjoy soaking it to Protestants and Jews.” He noted further that he was asked the kind of jury that was drawn and exactly the verdict that was decided. On the Chicago 7 trial, Kunstler said that Chicago was picked for the conspiracy trial, not because anything happened there, that was one of the overt acts places. But the overt acts occurred all over the place - Cleveland, San Diego, New York.”

The lawyer felt that the case was held in Chicago because it was there that opponents of the war were gathered by a beach where one of Mayor Daley’s judges would surely sit. With that, he noted, the trial could be held in

Continued on page 8

Sen. Don Patrick

L. Frankln Devine, Dillon Hall senator, ten made the motion for a full senate meeting and he led the committee for constitutional revision. A unanimous voice count passed the motion. A ballot was taken to elect the nominated stay senators. Those elected and their committees are, Fred Giuffre, academic affairs; T. C. Tresan, human affairs; Jim Clark, student union; Don Patrick, student affairs; and Bob Sauber, constitutional revision. Bob Sauber was accepted at today’s meeting. Brett and elected five stay senators. Those elected and their committees are, Tom Mcgrath, public relations; Dave Thrasher was retained as a co-ordinating director; Bill Wilka, human relations; Steve Longenbaugh, human affairs; Bob Higgins, hall life; Dave Tushar, Student Union co-ordinator; Bill Wilka, Student Senate, the Vice-President for Student Affairs, and the Student Senate, the Vice-President for

Continued on page 8

Kunstler discusses trials of Calley and the Berrigans

Civil Liberties lawyer William Kunstler struck out at the conviction of William Calley saying “He was a stand in for other defendants” released Calley and put him under “so-called house arrest”. He also expressed his hope that the Calley verdict will have a “profound effect on the American people to make the anti-war movement stronger.”

When questioned about the Berrigan case, the lawyer responded that the trial is set for October in “a place very carefully selected by the government.” He termed the site, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, “a place designed to insure convictions.”

The defense of the Berrigans and the other 11 conspirators is being conducted by Ramsey Clark, Leonard Bednza, Paul O’Dwyer, and others. He said that the prima work on the motions is being done by the Center for Constitutional Rights.

Kunstler said that it is all in the pre-trial state, but that doesn’t mean he has any faith in the judicial process as a method of determining whether the Berrigans and company are guilty or not. Kunstler felt that the two major “blasts” by the government on the Berrigan case were meant to “saturate” the Harrisburg area to make impartiality impossible.

The Senior Fellow said he has found a “shrouded feeling” on the college campuses of this country. He claims that the country feels that the students have “learned the way” and that there is no one in a new era,” he stated. But he quickly qualified that by adding, “I think that this was written in April and May.”

He asserted his belief in mass confrontation to end the war in Vietnam right now. For the democratic cause in Washington on April 24, Kunstler hopes for a “mass outpouring and mass civil disobedience and confrontation.” It is his hope that these demonstrations will help end the war now.

Kunstler expressed his aver- sion to physical violence, but added that he doesn’t share that belief about disruption. When asked about the situation in Israel, Kunstler did not comment except to say that he was not so sure about the solution in a little charitable thinking by both sides. He said that he had heard of a group of people who had been talking about “saturating” the Harrisburg area.

Returning to the question of confrontation politics, Kunstler said Cal in his belief it is only when the other types of politics are failing or when they are not quick enough. He used the President’s release of Calley as an example of this. He said that the President released him because he was afraid of a massive outpouring by the people.”

The lawyer stated that if this country became involved in a revolution, all his beliefs on abstention from physical violence would not be enough because there will be blood. He doubts that there is not a change in the war, in racism, in the basic causes of dissent, that there will be a revolution.

Vol. V. No. 104

The Observer

Serving the Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s College Community

Monday, April 5, 1971

SLC to be reduced if proposal is passed

by Don Roane

The Student Life Council membership will be reduced from twenty-four to twelve members next year if a proposal by Student Body President John Barkett and SBVP Orlando Rodrigues is accepted at today’s meeting.

Under the new plan, the SLC would be composed of one ex-officio member and three elected representatives of each group. The ex-officio members will be the Chairman of the Student Affairs Committee of the Faculty Senate, the Vice-President for Student Affairs, and the Student Body President.

The method of elections of members would remain the same. The referendum process would be reduced. Barkett also suggests that the three administration and faculty members with two year terms would remain on the Council, while the three students would be elected.

Barkett and Rodrigues support their proposal with the following argument: “It has been our experience that a small body is always easier to work with, more productive, and easier to get together.”

“Furthermore,” said Barkett, “we believe a smaller body will be more exposed and forced into better communication with the student representatives." We also believe the Student Life Council procedures will be less formal and therefore more effective. We don’t feel reducing the number per se is the solution to improving the Student Life Council, however, we do feel it is a needed change to make improvement a greater possibility.”

Continued on page 8

Senator elects stay senators

The Student Senate passed all cabinet nominations submitted by Student Body President John Barkett and elected five stay senators for next year. The fifth stay senator (formerly there were four) will be in charge of revising the constitution. In his first official act in office, Barkett convened the meeting at 7:05 p.m. and almost immediately the appointments were passed by a majority voice count. There were a few negative ac-

Continued on page 8

KKuntler speaks of the Constitutional

Continued on page 8

KKuntler speaks of the Constitutional

Continued on page 8

KKuntler speaks of the Constitutional

Continued on page 8

KKuntler speaks of the Constitutional

Continued on page 8

KKuntler speaks of the Constitutional
Henry Rothblatt supports Calley position

by Tom Bohnholdt

Henry Rothblatt, the defense attorney for the Duffy, Vanossa and Green Beret case, stated that the United States should not hold individual soldiers responsible for atrocities if they were following orders, as long as the Armed Forces fail to give the soldier sufficient training as to what is expected of him in those circumstances. Together with a plug for his new book, "Court Martial," this was the main point of the lecture he gave in the Engineering Auditorium sponsored by a group of Notre Dame Law students, Friday.

Rothblatt said that he wrote "Court Martial," because he was not allowed to reveal anything about the Green Beret case due to security reasons. Therefore he decided to write a fictional story about a military trial. He denied any similarity between any of the characters in the story and the Green Beret case, especially between the book's sexy, naive attorney and Rothblatt himself.

Rothblatt then explained the approach he had used in both the Duffy and Vanossa case. Both those cases involved the shooting of an ARVN soldier, whom the Americans had captured as a Vietcong soldier. Under the orders of Lt. Duffy, Sgt. Vanossa shot the Vietnamese. Lt. Duffy had previously received an order from his superior, asking, "Has the prisoner tried to escape yet?"

Rothblatt tried to show that in both cases the soldiers were doing what they were instructed as being right by their training and previous experience in Vietnam. As an example, Rothblatt told of an incident that had happened to Sgt. Vanossa before the shooting. A Vietcong sampan was ambushed and sinking; Sgt. Vanossa jumped into the river, rescued two women and carried them both back to headquarters for possible interrogation. According to Rothblatt, the sergeant was reprimanded by the officer at headquarters who supposedly said, "What are you doing bringing them here? It's bodies that we want."

Rothblatt attributed this to a "body count" philosophy, which he described as, "How many gooks did you kill?" Under the pressures of this method, Rothblatt tried to show the jury the lack of responsibility on the parts of Lt. Duffy and Sgt. Vanossa.

In Lt. Duffy's case, the jury came in with a verdict of guilty of murder. Rothblatt then asked for an immediate sentence of life imprisonment. Upon recon­ counselling by Rothblatt, the verdict to involuntary man­ slaughter.

Rothblatt said that he revised his defense for Sgt. Vanossa, "to give the jury something they can sink their teeth into—a straight McNorton Defense." By this, Rothblatt meant that he tried to show that Sgt. Vanossa was not responsible for his actions since, under the circumstances, Sgt. Vanossa was "unable to distinguish right from wrong".

Dr. Roellig to speak on depletion of minerals

Rev. Lucius Walker, Jr. will speak in the Engineering Auditorium at 8 p.m. Rev. Walker is the Executive Director of the Interreligious Foundation for Community Organization (IFCO) and has served as executive director of the Northeast Neighborhood House in Milwaukee for seven years.

Rev. Walker received his Master of Science degree in social work in 1963 from the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee and became known as articulate champion of the rights of the poor and disen­ franchised of that city. He placed special emphasis on community organization by having the residents focus on specific problems, such as education and housing.

Since Rev. Walker joined IFCO the organization has more than doubled as it concentrated on stimulating involvement of religious groups in creative new approaches geared to self­ determining efforts of the poverty stricken.

A resident of Demarest, N.J., Rev. Walker is married and has five children.

Rev. Lucius Walker, Jr.

Dr. Harold F. Roellig will speak on the rapidly diminishing mineral supply tonight in the Engineering Auditorium at 8 p.m. as part of the environmental series of the ND-SMC Academic Commission. Dr. Roellig is a professor of earth sciences at Adelphi University, Garden City, N.Y.

Dr. Roellig believes the twentieth century will be remembered as an "exceedingly wasteful century which went through 60 to 65 per cent of the world's stock and left nothing for future generations." He also foresees the rationing of many minerals in the next few cen­ turies, because we are "dissipating these minerals over the Earth in an unrecoverable fashion."

Dr. Roellig sees no way the United States will meet the present demands for minerals. He believes the United States will run out of its major minerals in the next three decades. He also says the United States is not utilizing all the minerals that are in its soil. He suggests a "SACRILEGE" tax on wasteful consumption.

The BUDMEN are coming

The first malt liquor good enough to be called BUDWEISER.

PIZZA HUT no. 2

Edison Rd.

Tuesday night

Now

ROLL "FOR ADULTS"

Available in 12 FL OZ.

NOW thru April 6.

IN COLOR SINTHIA
CAN SHE COPE WITH WHAT SHE'S ABOUT TO DISCOVER?

FOR ADULTS

SACRILEGE

The BUDMEN are coming

Pizza Hut no. 2

Thursday night
Ombudsman urges caution

Ombudsman Paul Dziedzic announced yesterday that he is "Checking out" an ad that appeared in the Observer on March 31 concerning Summer Yachting Positions. The ad read in part: "The ticket office is also at trying to get tickets to more of the events held in South Bend."

SMC announces interviews for cabinet, judicial posts

By Paul O'Connor

SMC student body vice-president announced today that interviews for seven judicial board seats and four cabinet posts will be held today and Tuesday in the student government offices, Holy Cross Hall.

Despite an upcoming week of conflicting interests, due to Senior-class room picks and the four day Easter break, the final decisions should be made known by Wednesday.

The Judicial board has an opening for one senior chairman and six other members. They may be from any of the three returning classes. An eighth member of the board will be chosen from the incoming freshman class in September.

Jeselnick wins in close BP runoff

President-elect Jeselnick takes over from Junior Tim Feeley who surrenders the reins of leadership after the Easter break. During the campaign, Jeselnick, an English major from St. Marys, Pa., stressed his past contributions to the hall and his promise to "keep the room clean." he says, "should be sometime next week.

The interviews will be conducted by the SBP and SBVP Student Commissioners, the four class presidents, four hall presidents and the off-campus representative.

If you are interested in finding out more about the Paulist priestly challenge, write to:

Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P.
Vocation Director
Paulist Fathers
Room 111
415 West 59th Street
New York, N.Y. 10019

The New Tiffany Setting

Over 100 years ago we invented "The Tiffany Setting" for engagement rings - which has been standard ever since. Now, in addition, we have always been the "New Tiffany Setting" designed by Donald Clifton. Rings at all prices.

Tiffany & Co.
170 N. Michigan Avenue
Chicago, Ill.
Telephone: (312) 944-7500, ZIP: 60611
Design Copyrighted 1871, T & Co.
Dream of No Limits

Martin Luther King is dead these three years now, and where once his bold voice spoke there is nothing but eerie and wavy silence. Dr. King had a dream, but it has mostly turned to sleep now, and men are saying that the dream is as dead as he is.

The dream King had was one of true equality and true brotherhood, but mostly it was a dream compressed in the three words that were at once the battle cry and most treasured phrase of the Civil Rights movement, we shall overcome. For King did overcome the dichotomy in his own and every man's soul; the dichotomy between each man's love for himself and that obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming devotion to the advancement of that most peculiar race, man, can do to that race and do to himself.

The dream King had was a stringent dream, built on a sort of self-sacrifice that few men could take up. A few did. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming devotion to the advancement of that most peculiar race, man, can do to that race and do to himself.

The dream King had was a stringent dream, built on a sort of self-sacrifice that few men could take up. A few did. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.

The most fitting monument to Martin Luther King would be for the people of this planet to pick up the dream again-to pledge themselves once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before the human animal. The first part will be difficult for blacks and whites to once more to overcoming the obstacles nature and man has placed before them; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming obligation each man has to devote himself to making the world better and more whole. Dr. King overcame the dichotomy by choosing the latter; his life and death were monuments to what all-consuming sacrifice that few men could take up. Medger Evers did. Viola Liuzzo did. King did. But the vast majority of men, when robbed of King's beacon voice, have found the dream too heavy a burden to carry, and have set it down.
Mike Lenehan

Without a doubt, the best concert of the year.

Editor's note: In my introductory columns I had promised to eliminate all concert reviews—"post mortems" I called them. Now that talking about yesterday's concert did as much good as talking about the quality of the local weather or food. The concert provided a most unexpected storm of controversy—what we had really liked to do. So, after many hours of meditation, through long and sometimes violent debates too detailed to present here, I have decided to reverse my original decision, and with much pleasure present the following to you.

HowtruewouldeitherI said the Winter Consort defines musical classification? Yeah well, then maybe if I start somewhere else I can get back to that later.

People who listen to music and think about it a lot have a lot of problems that ordinary regular people probably don't even realize. I mean, they worry about things, like does Eric Clapton get along with Duane Allman, or will Van Morrison ever play the Village Gaslight again now that he's a star, or does the full-color picture on Jerry Jeff Walker's last album mean that he's famous too?

Take Saturday night, for example. Now Gordon Lightfoot is a guy who's been around for a long time. All of a sudden, he's got a hit, in America, with violence and everything! God, I could just see it... "AND NOW, SUGAR AND GENTLEMEN, DIRECT FROM A RECORD BREAKING ENGAGEMENT AT THE CPA, THE CHAOTIC CANADIAN HIMSELF, GORDON LILLLIIMIGHTLIGHTFUT..." as he runs up onto the stage in a gold sequined jacket, shakes hands with the first violin player, nods cordially but condescendingly to the twelve man brass section, grunts out a funky "one-two-three-four-five-six" and swings a foot-stomping version of "The Theme from Love Story".

Ridiculous, I know, but they got Tom Rush, didn't they? Think what about James Taylor's mirror jacket? Because, you see, a beak, a horn, a God, a folk singer, is supposed to wear a buckskin jacket and sit in a pile of hay on a railroad flat car strumming his box and singing songs about the Panama Limited or the time he hitches a ride to Frisco, and seven hours, and then was the last time he was in a railroad flat car with strings?

But, if you were there (and not too many people were—the record for earliest exodus to the bus was set at this concert—first song), you know that my fears were groundless. Gordon Lightfoot, with a bassist and a guitarist player, played a very nice set of very nice songs. He moved quite easily from the gutsy, lamenting traditional things like the Canadian Farmer (modem folk tunes, like Kristofferson's "Me and Bobby McGee" (as Lightfoot did it good—print—Joplin, bless her name), no doubt, the bell out of that song!), to Lightfoot's own kind of folkly but mostly pop-style tunes.

And, unless he loses his voice or doesn't show up at all, I don't think there's much more to be said about Lightfoot or about any other folkie's folkie. Most of what makes folk music what it is, it is a kind of basic, breathing vitality that comes out of and touches a people, railroads and animals, and chikers and coyotes, not exactly a physically exciting but maybe an emotion that's stirring part that makes you want to go out and get some leather boots and read "On the Road" again. The principles, the singers, aren't all that important, or they're important only to the people that brought them into the world, or to a few better than somebody who doesn't do so good but does it all the same.

Now then, back to Winter Consort. They deftly musical classification. Their stuff was a superb mix of classical, jazz, blues, sometimes too chaotic to be classical, and sometimes too mellow for jazz, blues in there, just in case some turkey got to make in some some sort of pretentious and the most in­} ventive music I've heard in a long time. Along with the other members of the group, (David Darling, cello, Glenn Moore, bass, Collin Walcott, percussion, and Ralph Towner, guitar—all of whom showed an outstanding individual musicianship), Winter and McCandless took the audience through a whole range of musical expression, from the beautifully lyrical and classical feeling "Jacarou", to David Darling's frightening "Requiem". In a time where Grand Funk Railroad is making plans to play Shea Stadium and every rock band sounds pretty much like the one before it, it was a pleasure to see this ingeniously-organized group play a suite of 16th, 18th and 20th century music, play it seriously and (I assume, anyway), getting paid for it. It's the kind of band that makes you think maybe things aren't so bad after all.

Unfortunately, the audience seemed to be one of the smallest of the year, and, although I was surprised by its receptivity and good manners (especially in the case of the Winter Consort), some friends from Chicago who haven't lived with the usual Notre Dame fans thought they were nothing short of boorish. Darling's "Requiem", a pretty serious lament for a friend gone in Vietnam, managed to draw a hearty laugh, and there was an un­} precedented amount of noise during the first and from the better part of the crowd, which probably didn't realize that the two acts were billed equally.

All in all, though, this was without a doubt the best concert of the year. I imagine it might have been a financial failure, but I hope the Social Commission people were as pleased with it as I was. More failures like this we could use.

Peter Collins

South Bend, Ind.

Monday, March 15, 1971, waiting for the Rum Village bus homeward bound. Waiting at the bus stop on Washington near Michigan. Waiting from 3:30 to 4:10 and from 5:35 to 6:10, according to the big landmark clock on the corner—American Bank & Trust clock. A cloudy windy day and 40 degrees. Buses come by, but not mine. Sometimes I think to people or thing to talk to no conclusion today. It just happens. Here comes a little man with a green fedora and a red feather in its brim. Collar of dark trench coat turned to the wind. Bulbous nose. Leaning against the Bank Building I see an old lady leaning next to me. For ten minutes her right hand never leaves the blow on her woolen coat collar. It's cold for the old today.

Loud sirens and two blue police cars, other vehicles deferring, fly southward by. People stare. A girl, face berouged and with wind blows away from Sharon a sales receipt important to her. She stomps it in a puddle beyond. More sirens and a fire truck roaring the other way. Sharon's bus comes and is ready to go, she departs, seems to give way to another vehicle, deferring, fly southward by. What was the baby, asks Scraggly. We really born. What was the baby, asks Scraggly. We really born. Chubby's had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum. Chubby had some trouble with dope. Was just got paroled a year ago. Her mom and step-dad were recently divorced. Then he went crazy and is now in an asylum.
HOUSING
Faculty member needs a three or four bedroom rental house. Owner must be present at least four weekends a month. Contact Mrs. Debra Lang at 720-2678.

For rent: 1 - 2 bedroom townhouse in University District.

For rent: 2 bedroom, 2 bath, furnished townhouse available. Includes heat, hot water, electricity, and full basement. Owner: 233-3802.

WALLET FOUND—Owner must claim. (Office)

TRAVEL
A trip to Europe this summer? Fly in a jet chartered by the NATIONAL UNION OF STUDENTS and SAVE! Appointments available for round trip bets. London & N.Y. this summer. More than 40 destinations available. In-THE-CLASSROOM STUDENTS ACADEMIQUE SOCIETY. For information write: Vic Horrell, P.O. Box 892, Cocoa Beach, Florida, 32931.

WALLET FOUND—Owner must claim. (Home)

For rent: Four bedroom rental house. Owner must be present at least four weekends a month. Contact Mrs. Debra Lang at 720-2678.

College Students with car needed to demonstrate technicolor photo and movie equipment - insurance $500 a week top men make $300 working evenings 5-9. Call College sales office 289-3602 for appointment.

For rent: Newly formed Waterbeo Enterprises, Inc. leather - Owned, operated and staffed by graduate students. Two girl jocks need hitchhiking ride. Orders call Tom at 282-2250.

For rent: Newly formed Waterbeo Enterprises, Inc. leather - Owned, operated and staffed by graduate students. Two girl jocks need hitchhiking ride. Orders call Tom at 282-2250.

AUTOMOTIVE

GIFTS & CLOTHES

AUTOMOTIVE

For rent: Newly formed Waterbeo Enterprises, Inc. leather - Owned, operated and staffed by graduate students. Two girl jocks need hitchhiking ride. Orders call Tom at 282-2250.

AUTOMOTIVE

For rent: Newly formed Waterbeo Enterprises, Inc. leather - Owned, operated and staffed by graduate students. Two girl jocks need hitchhiking ride. Orders call Tom at 282-2250.

AUTOMOTIVE
Nixon on bench for opening day

NEW YORK UPI - Smugly certifying that the National League baseball playoffs were a "joke," Commissioner Bert Blyleven yesterday declared, "I think the outlook is very favorable."

THE OBSERVER

Page 7

Stuck men down Ashland

by Joe Passitore

The Notre Dame lacrosse club coasted to a 10-5 decision over inexperiencec Ashland college of Ohio on Saturday. The Irish sticksman displayed equal inventiveness and spirit in the closing minutes, with a goal by Ed Hoban, four goals; Dave Kennedy, two goals; and John Moran and Jim Bingler, one goal apiece.

Jim Donaldson

The Irish Eye

Spring Football

The temperature was in the low 40s last Saturday and a brisk wind was blowing across the private field, where numerous hundred chilled souls had congregated to watch coach Ara Parseghian direct his football squad in their first scrimmage of the Spring.

It was a mixed crowd that surveyed the action on the gridiron. Pretty girls, their cheeks flush from the cold, jumped back, and into the crowd after an end sweep. Little boys watched wide-eyed as their heroes knocked heads just a few feet away.

The number one offense was able to move the ball well on the ground this year I used four different sets of midfielders and each did a satisfactory job," stated O'Leary. "Jerry Kramer had to be taken out after the first quarter - he's been sick all week, but I thought Jim Reilly did very well against them played lacrosse in high school."

Rowers win

The Notre Dame crew club won a commendable race against the Irish varsity, which Americans will be ready to produce the league playoffs, after the last outs there were competitive runs for jet flights to the sites of Monday and Tuesday inaugural, the first of 1946 contests which will be played to eliminate 30 of 24 teams and produce the league playoffs, after which Americans will be ready for the World Series between the league champions, slated to begin Oct 5.

As is customary, the baseball commissioner predicts "baseball's greatest year.

OBSEVER BUSINESS STAFF

Needs people for Advertising Layout:

★ Paid position $$$
★ Afternoon - Early Evening Work

Call 7471, 8661.

Ask for Bill Baurerle or leave a message

WANT $$$?
A JOB FOR THIS SEMESTER
AND NEXT
IF YOU CAN TYPE
WE WANT YOUR HANDS!!

CALL OR LEAVE MESSAGE
SCOTT BRALEY
7471, 8661
Kuntsler on dissent

Continued from page 1
Kuntsler expressed wonderment at the fact that after the indictments, Douglas was taken out of Lewisham and hasn't been seen since.

In explaining the conspiracy statutes, Kuntsler commented, "In California, conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor is a felony. Committing that misdemeanor is a misdemeanor." He also noted that it "has an aura of secret meetings with candles blinking on a table." He went further by saying that a conviction for a felony is a felony, but a misdemeanor is a misdemeanor.

Kuntsler then talked of the resultant terrorizing and the implication that all of this is causing in the country. He said that "the country is quiet, quite like the quiet prior to the fall of the Wall in Europe." He added that the country is becoming more repressive. Many of the things that have happened in the last year, Kuntsler said, are frightening.

Kuntsler brought a message from the Berrigan brothers. They said that "the light must continue. People must not be afraid. They must follow their conscience about the war, short of physical violence." The movement must not die." The Senior Fellow expressed his hope that this spring would not be a silent spring. He said that the beginning of the demonstrations would be on April 5, at noon, in New York City. It would occur on the spot where the hardhats "bludgeoned" peaceful demonstrators.

Kuntsler then expressed his concern over the William Calley verdict. He said that Calley was a scapegoat, a stand-in who was intended to soothe our guilt, "the guilt of the country." He said we must ask ourselves why William Calley ever occurred. He said that Calley occurred because we are taking part in a "mammoth activity." "We have set the foundation, we set the stage for the deaths that took place at My Lai and at others. It is our responsibility." Kuntsler stressed that "We must end that war by whatever means necessary. And we must do it now!" "I would like to adopt it as a conclusion to this night, one of the most meaningful and truly happy of my life," Kuntsler said as he began to read a quote by Daniel Berrigan from the Calvary trial. "The truth rules. Christ is not forsaken, in a time of death, some men resist it, those who work heartily for those changes that will help end an era of dissent and embrace the truth, that such men overcome death. Their lives are bathed in the light of the Resurrection, the truth has set them free. In the jaws of death they proclaim their love of brethren, we think of such men in the world, in our Nation, in the Church, and the stone in our breast is dissolved and we take heart once more."

Butler and Rodrigue do not feel that there would be a lack of adequate representation in the reduced Council, nor would there be a breakup of continuity in the turnover.

In seeking approval of the measure, Butler and Rodrigue have spoken to members of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees. It did not make the agenda of the next meeting, but all others approached were in favor of the idea, according to Barkett.

If the SLC reduces the reduction proposal, the new student government is offering an alternative. "If the Council does not agree with our proposal," says Barkett, "we see the only viable alternative to be standing and special committee work and fewer SLC meetings - perhaps two or three a semester. This implies research and extensive discussion before leaving the Committee level, adequate study of committee reports before each meeting and hopefully, less discussion, more topics, and quicker decisions at each meeting."

In their opinion, Barkett added, this could happen with twelve members as easily as twenty four. He said the Student Government Research and Development Commission can always be an aid in this regard. The Student Senate approved Barkett's proposal last night.

Because we appreciate your business we are going to do you a favor!

With this ad we'll give you 10% off on any easter gift you choose.

THE OBSERVER
Monday, April 5, 1971
St. Mary's & Notre Dame students eligible for Student Teaching
during the 1st semester 1971 -72
should come and apply in room 320, Madeleva.

Application deadline - Friday, April

In Person! Abe Saperstein's Fabulous HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS

"Sunday, April 11 3:30 p.m.
ACC
NO and SMC Discounts
$4-No discount
$3-Purchase for $2 (Limit 2)
$2-No discount
General Admissions-$1.50
Purchased day of game, only.
Must present ID Card
For Discount at ACC

THE OBSERVER BUSINESS OFFICE are accepting applications for the position of Business Manager for the academic year 1971-72.
All applications may be obtained from the Observer office.

AUSTIN, TEX: Vernon Holt (R) meets with two of his children as they prepare for their every other day treatment on a dialysis machine. Three of the Holt's ten children have already died from the effects of a rare kidney disease that now afflicts Paula, (L) and Gary, (C). The Holt's have been advised that their supply of equipment which is almost completely non-Catholic. Finally, the district which is almost completely Catholic, and black people. The government felt that this would result in an outpouring of support for the defendants.

The next day, the conspirators justified the government's move as a "mammoth activity." "We have set the foundation, we set the stage for the deaths that took place at My Lai and at others. It is our responsibility." Kuntsler stressed that "We must end that war by whatever means necessary. And we must do it now!" "I would like to adopt it as a conclusion to this night, one of the most meaningful and truly happy of my life," Kuntsler said as he began to read a quote by Daniel Berrigan from the Calvary trial. "The truth rules. Christ is not forsaken, in a time of death, some men resist it, those who work heartily for those changes that will help end an era of dissent and embrace the truth, that such men overcome death. Their lives are bathed in the light of the Resurrection, the truth has set them free. In the jaws of death they proclaim their love of brethren, we think of such men in the world, in our Nation, in the Church, and the stone in our breast is dissolved and we take heart once more."