Hutcheson quits; merger blamed

by Ann Conway
St. Mary's Editor

Dr. Richard Hutcheson has resigned as Chairman of the Saint Mary's Philosophy Department effective this June. Chairman since coming to Saint Mary's two years ago, Dr. Hutcheson said that Saint Mary's and Saint Dame's are the reason he resigned: "I guess it's not really complex. It seemed obvious to me that no one in this department had tenure. I felt that when merger came, this department would be the first to go," he said.

Dr. Hutcheson came to Saint Mary's because he was interested in teaching at a small college and not a university. He had decided that even if he had been able to get a job at Saint Mary's, he would not be interested.

This department is uncertain. By the end of the year, there will be no separate Philosophy Department. As of Spring, any freshman or sophomore interested in a Philosophy major will be sent to Notre Dame. As for the merger itself, Dr. Hutcheson is opposed to it. He believes that there is a definite difference in educational practices and attitudes in a liberal arts college as opposed to a university.

He said that "Saint Mary's couldn't exist without going coed with Notre Dame for several reasons. First, schools are "across the street" and draw their students from the same constituencies. Secondly, Saint Mary's doesn't have a strong enough faculty and administration to define itself as a separate institution. Hutcheson said. All of this leads to a lack of "nexus d'orgue" among the students of the college, according to Dr. Hutcheson.

Dr. Hutcheson felt that the lack of a president hurried the merger proceedings. It might have come slowly under McGrath he said, but Saint Mary's would have had a better chance of remaining a national rational for merger. "Without strong leadership, this wasn't possible," he concluded.

Asked if he felt that other philosophy department, Miss Weber, C.S.C. will remain on the faculty. Dr. Hutcheson will go to Claremont where he will remain.

The two other members of the Philosophy Department, Miss Weber, C.S.C. will remain on the faculty. Dr. Hutcheson will go to Claremont. Providence, New York to initiate a Philosophy program at that college on the fall.

Brion announces April 14 or 15 release of course evaluations

by Greg Runowski

The Scholastic plans to release its course evaluation booklet on April 15 or 14 before registration, Scholastic editor Steve Brion announced last night.

The evaluation is intended to provide the students with information about each course's organization, presentation, and worth to the students.

The booklet is concerned with Art, English, History, Science, Philosophy, and others. Each course's organization, presentation, and worth to the students is included in the booklet.

The booklet contains information about each course's organization, presentation, and worth to the students. Each course's organization, presentation, and worth to the students is included in the booklet.

Brion said, "but more money and personnel would be needed to implement an expansion."

The booklet's information in turn will encourage the students to participate in the future activities.

"Giving up luxuries is only part of it," said Brion. The important things to generate an active feeling of community and earn throughout the campus and the campus community.

Brion emphasized that the Refugee Aid Program has no "formal contact" with any other organizations.

500 join Refugee Aid Program

by Ed Lacey

Refugee Aid Program spokesman Tom Gies said Monday that more than 500 students have registered their support for what he called a "response to human suffering."

The program, which lasts from April 4 (the anniversary of Martin Luther King's assassination) to May 4 (the date of the Kent State killings), is aimed at relieving the sufferings of the Quang Ngai refugees in South Vietnam. Gies stated that the program consisted in giving up luxuries to raise money for the villagers, writing letters to alumni, and expanding understanding of the community.

Gies went on to say that those who can't contribute their money can help by writing letters to alumni, and by working on future activities.

"Sign up will again be held at Saint Mary's tomorrow night," Gies pointed out that this is not an elitist movement. All are invited to participate in the program, not just limited to those who sign up. Gies felt that response to the program would be favorable.

Rules disparity cited as merger obstacle

by Jerry Lukas

The chief problem of the coming merger between Saint Mary's and Notre Dame May lie in the different rules and regulations of the two schools, St. Mary's Student Body Vice President Missy Underman said Monday during a Student Affairs Committee meeting.

Miss Underman said that there will be no problem in merging aspects such as security, psychological, and dining halls. She said that the problem may lie in the rules and regulations of the two in institutions.

Two of the problems cited by Miss Underman were the community government system employed by St. Mary's and not by Notre Dame and the fact that Notre Dame has rectors in the dining halls while St. Mary's has student advisors. Other problems were the differences in the rules and regulations of the two institutions.

Sister M. Immaculata Driscoll, dean of students commented further on the meeting saying the concept of community government would not be involved in the merger of services. She stressed her concern that this concept might be lost in the unification of Notre Dame and St. Mary's.

She noted that the committees and forums of the two institutions may be lost in the unification of Notre Dame and St. Mary's.

"Notre Dame halls are more autonomous than the residence halls at St. Mary's," according to Sister Immaculata. She used as an example, the fact that Notre Dame halls have their own judicial systems while the judicial process is campus-wide. Sister Immaculata said that there is "really a need for a lot of good thinking and planning" about the merger. She also commented that the Student Union merger between the schools would help student attitudes and social life, but she cautioned that this "is only the very, very beginning."

G S U starts special health insurance program for grads
by Milt Jones

The Graduate Student Union has formulated the first graduate student health program in the United States. The program was drawn up by the Insurance Committee of the GSU specifically for N.D. grad students.

According to Bill Lorimer, chairman of the Insurance Committee, "the main features of the plan are no medical exam, specifically for N.D. grad students. The program was formulated by the Insurance Committee, 'the main features of the plan are no medical exam, specifically for N.D. grad students. The program was drawn up by the Insurance Committee.

The program is operated by the insurance company," Lorimer said. He added that "members can choose the hospital and doctor of their choice, and all members and their dependents are eligible."

"This health insurance plan is the first graduate student health program to be set up by grad students in the United States," Lorimer stated. He also commented that the program is being operated in conjunction with a Missouri University at Columbia, Miami of Ohio, and Michigan State University. "Missouri has approved the program, but are not yet soliciting members," Lorimer said. He added that "Miami of Ohio and Michigan State have okayed the program and are soliciting members from about 10,000 students."

According to Lorimer, anyone interested in the health insurance plan should call the Association Plans at 288-3344 or Bill Lorimer at 254-2745.

A question if we can do it on our own after this year," Brion said. An issue demands four to five days of concentrated work to complete.

An innovation this year is that the courses will be listed by professor, not by course number as in the past. It is designed to alleviate the difficulty created when one professor instructs a number of courses.

There will be more rejoicing in heaven if one sinner returns to the flock, then if one hundred holy men remain faithful, Christ once said.

It is doubtful that the celestial spaces echoed with hallelujahs Monday after the Student Life Council completed its meeting but the critics of that body did find enough for some small ironic smiles.

In response to a motion by Student Body President John Barkett to reduce the membership of the council by half, the SLC mandated the Steering Committee to study the internal effectiveness of the body.

Having a committee study a proposal is the oldest cop-out in the democratic world. More proposals have died a forgotten death on some dusty shelf than there are locusts in a plague.

That the SLC would admit that there is something wrong with it, something wrong with its effectiveness is a beginning, however miniscule. It seems that the members of that much maligned body are slowly awakening to the realization that they have wasted an entire year pondering about.

If the SLC is not to descend to the level of the Student Senate, which is more dead than alive, or the Blue Circle, which is dead, then it must handle this study with greater efficiency and dispatch than it handled the issue of, say, sophomore cars.

If the SLC is to be a lot of innocent people killed as well. Washington was more than half of that magnitude; a lot of them will be there for a reconsideration. I thought we were going to help them.

I remember the first Harvey would say, "Those people who positively support the Establishment must expect suffering even if they are basically oppressed Third World Peoples." Hell, it still doesn't make me feel better.

I had talked about it before with Zabrinsky. "Revolution isn't a party. It is a frame. If you want to make a change in the world you must fight and fight to win. So it is either Project Nimbus and victory, or nothing but four years of President Agnew."

I, tic, tic...I placed up at the clock on the wall. It was circular in shape like the world. On its face, three arms raced around in circles. All three ended up in the same place where they started. The only difference was that some took longer than others to get back in the same space. Some rushed to go nowhere, some took their time.

And me and my "Yips": we hated each other but the price of perfection. Goodness of the people, this country would be Utopia. Then Chicago, demonstrations, a couple of sit-ins, and together with the basic power the Establishment must expect suffering even if they are basically oppressed Third World Peoples."

"What if it doesn't work? You've never tested."

"But I've done that. What more is there left to do? Don't worry: it'll work."

"What if it doesn't work?" I asked myself. Tic, tic, tic... Men had to be killed if the revolution was to succeed. I heard that a long time ago. It was not the killing but the method that annoyed me. Must it be this way? It wasn't only a matter of killing Spira, there was going to be a lot of innocent people killed as well. Washington was more than half of that magnitude; a lot of them will be there for a reconsideration. I thought we were going to help them.

It is impossible to describe Zabrinsky. He was only slightly tall, not portly. He was a man with a broad face and piercing eyes. His hair was almost always cut close to the head. His voice was deep and resonant. He had a way of speaking that made him seem even more important than he actually was.

He was a man of great intelligence and a keen observer of the world around him. He had a sharp mind and could be a fierce critic of those he disagreed with. He was also a man of great compassion and he often helped those less fortunate than himself.

Zabrinsky's power held us together, made us work together. We hated each other but the price of perfection. Goodness of the people, this country would be Utopia. of women and children—and are imposed upon the archetypal sacrifice of innocence, as when soldiers break apart in battle or when the heron's legs in the dust of the Fallen Leader. It is the contemporary tragedy that makes us feel that mankind is forever keeping the death-watch at Calvary, and Easter can't come until the last body has been taken down from the final cross on the green hillside of the world.

The latest in the rollcall of Notre Dame drew our attention to our still unattained hopes this year is that of a young man I didn't even know: Tim McGarry. In lines written on the death of Keats, Shelley's verses were:

I weep for Adonis—be he
O, weep for Adonis! though our tears
Pour not the front which binds so dear a
And Keats was immortal in the age of his friend. For Tim, there is neither verse, nor immortality, nor even the gift of tears, at least from me, but his steadfastness to weep for one another. At least, they do not weep more than once, and I have already paid Tim McGarry the tribute of tears.

It happened on the day that the Soil Chemical arrest was made. I was wandering back to Keenan from the bookstore, dressed in my finest muff, when a student rushed up to say, "The cops are at the administration building!" I could hear the looting, unwittingly supported by the overturned police clubs, advancing upon a bunch of flower-bearing kids, all humming "Notre Dame, Our Mother." It looked to me like the Conrad Hilton scene in the summer of '68. I can see by your coat, my friend, you're about the business.

The wall against which we wished still looms tall and massive but the man who has discovered its weakness. Each of its bricks mysteriously bears a name, and our name rests there as surely as anyone else's. We stare dumbfounded at the sight of our name blocking its face. Those who still stand guard are looking for no other. There have been over six million deaths since, and eight million children are being born. The sun is setting on napalm, twenty million under the monolith of racial elitism, and finally the One under the weight of the cross. Our impotence and frustration is so immense, so complex, so we feel ashamed.

Hopefully, the guilty-liberal-syndrome worker is a victim of our grief and we cannot be neutral. We cannot afford to waste the kindness and the compassion of our ancestors. However, simple reflection on the abhorrent situation of millions of people, the suffering of the wars from the very heart of the world, is a step towards the One. If you smile at me, I will understand. If you weep for Adonis! though our tears pour not the front which binds so dear a do not necessarily mean leaving school or burning draft cards, although it may for some. Creative resistance at bottom is none of these, but rather it is a declaration of our freedom as human beings to commit ourselves to other human beings. To cut off from the wall, the son's d'etat is no longer for those who make it up. But rather for its own destruction. So it is to throw ourselves into the struggle, not as a marcher or flag-bearer, but as free individual who no longer needs the comfort of numbers to survive. To do so is to join the revolution.

Creative resistance can make a difference, removing our brick can make it easier. It does seem rather absurd to attempt to beat down a wall which draws its life from the air. But it is a wall against which we wish to push. And I see by your coat, my friend, you're about the business.

"If you smile at me, I will understand. Every body does everywhere in the same language. I can see by your coat, my friend, you're from the other side: There's just one thing I got to know, Can you tell me please—Who won? Say can I have some of your purple carrots?" Yes, I've been eating them six or seven weeks now.

In Tim Kendall's statement printed yesterday, the seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth sentences of the 11th paragraph and the first sentence of the 12th paragraph were supposed to read as follows:

I'm sure you know the way it's supposed to be. I'm sure you know the way it's supposed to be. I'm sure you know the way it's supposed to be. You can ask me please—Who won? Say can I have some of your purple carrots? Yes, I've been eating them six or seven weeks now.

In the light of the Observation that miracles are impossible, the world is a place of reality and of people who are reduced to the status of mere commodities. Every person is a product of society, and society is the product of the world. Every person is a commodity in the market of society, and society is the market of the world. Every person is a means to the end of society, and society is the end of the world.

One cannot but feel that the observation that miracles are impossible is a reflection of the world of society and of the world of people. One cannot but feel that the observation that miracles are impossible is a reflection of the world of society and of the world of people. One cannot but feel that the observation that miracles are impossible is a reflection of the world of society and of the world of people.

I'm sure you know the way it's supposed to be. I'm sure you know the way it's supposed to be. I'm sure you know the way it's supposed to be. You can ask me please—Who won? Say can I have some of your purple carrots? Yes, I've been eating them six or seven weeks now.

Student Affairs Committee meets

The next order of business was approval of the procedural manual for the Community Relations Board. This is "kind of a judicial system for the rights of the students and due process on a student to faculty level," said Sr. Immaculata.

She noted that the board would be used for a case of a student objecting to a faculty member or his policies. "It would deal with academic problems where there is a rights violation," she said.

The board would meet in be-weekly sessions whether there are cases before them or not. Sr. Immaculata said that this is the case so that they might develop a philosophy and an awareness of the cases that might be brought before them.

The manual was passed unanimously by the committee even though they did not have a quorum.

The final business of the meeting was a proposal by committeewman Ginny Yuzcuro who, if endorsed by the Student Affairs Committee, would express their disgust at the verdict in the case of Lieutenant William Colley. Some debate, largely to determine if the body had any power to endorse such a measure, the motion was tabled to be brought before the board in its next meeting and possibly before the next Student Assembly.

Soledad trial disrupted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) A melee broke out in a courtroom yesterday during an appearance by the "Soledad brothers," freedom was demanded in the bloody Marin County kidnapping and shootout last summer.

The outburst was touched off by George Jackson, 29, one of the three convicts charged with killing a guard at Soledad Prison, when he slapped a sheriff's deputy. The struggle broke out after officers grabbed a Black Panther newspaper from his hand.

Jackson's younger brother, Jonathan, 17, was one of the four persons that died last Aug. 7 in a shootout outside the Marin Courthouse in San Rafael. Black militant Angela Davis and San Quentin convict Burchell Magee were charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in the death of a judge. George Jackson was being led from the courtroom behind two co-defendants when he punched a San Francisco sheriff's deputy. The prisoner was immediately jumped by three other guards who wrestled him to the floor.

Golfers off this weekend

Rev. Clarences Durbin, coach of the University of Notre Dame golf team, was associated with his first losing team at LaCrosse when last year's season ended. The losing record was a result of some uninspired performances in the major tournaments. Notre Dame participates in two of the 1971 Notre Dame golf team indicates that the year is of experiencing two consecutive losing seasons are remote. This year's starting lineup is comprised of three seniors and three sophomores. The year of experience and enthusiasm.

"This should be the finest season that the Irish will play twice, each game is worth four points. The wife of the head coach will assign all the points for each game, the loser, under the WCHA's new playoff plan. During the past season, the WCHA standings were determined on a basis of winning percentage.

Under the WCHA's newly-approved schedule, the top eight of the Association's 11 teams qualify for the playoffs. Then, on the Tuesday after Thanksgiving, the final weekend of regular season play, the top four teams will host the first round of the post-season playoff plan. The team that scores the most goals in any single game will be declared the winner.

The four winners then meet on Friday and Saturday with the teams again paired according to their regular season standing. The two highest-ranked team[s] will be the home team[s]. The two lower-ranked team[s] will be the visiting team[s]. The two highest-ranked team[s] will be the home team[s]. The two lower-ranked team[s] will be the visiting team[s].

"Last year's team lost because we had a lot of seniors who weren't overly concerned with winning," spied coach Durbin, "but this year with everyone wanting to win and the seniors pushing pretty well, we could have a pretty good team.

Bob Bettaglia is captain of the team and 5'8" tall with John Dunn and Denny Conroy, both 5'11" seniors and three sophomores. Bob Brown and John Ricci are both 6'6" with experience of more than one team. Durbin stated that the question of this year's team by squad by saying, "The boys have that about a year ago and the players are not bad, but when you travel around and play on different 7,000 yard courses their scores tend to fluctuate."

The team recently participated in a couple of practice matches with Ashland and Alexandra College on a spring break trip down in Georgia and Alabama. It was the first action the Irish lineups had since last fall and as a result its game was meaningless. The team had been playing all winter. Coach Durbin explained the purpose of the trip, "We just wanted to get our boys back on course after being away all semester. They are now ready and well physically." The team will meet Thursday, April 7.

The season starts for real when Notre Dame journeys to Ohio State this Friday and Saturday. The Irish high school, involving sixteen schools.

On Basketball

If Jim Brogan can break even, so can I. I'll be the first to admit that I will be a graduate student here next year. This puts me in the position of taking orders from a guy who works at half my experience. Anyhow, the first column I wrote way back when I was the boss man on page 1 concerned John Dee. This one does also. There has certainly been enough debate on our basketball coach to rival the S.F. fight. But one element in the Dee story has been the season since the end of the year.

As stated last week in breaking back and Audin Carr and Carr of Notre Dame's home game. Most of the games were played at Notre Dame. The students had a pretty good team in the fall, and the experienced the contest.

The point system that the Association decided on to determine league standings next year works this way: Each team will play a total of 20 games. If Notre Dame plays an opponent four times during the year then each game will be worth four points. The wife of the head coach will assign all the points for each game, the loser, under the WCHA's new playoff plan.
