Kersten seeks provost to fill post

by Don Russe
Executive Editor

At this point Kersten announced the creation of the Office of Student Provost which "shall be filled by decision of the ad hoc search committee, consisting of H-Man and myself, which has been expressly formed for this purpose."

The Student Provost will receive "carte blanche authority to assume the powers invested in me by the Prime Mover's Mover," according to Kersten. All executive decrees will be made from the office while Kersten will concern himself with "such glamorous functions as presenting the flag at football games, escorting Miss America on campus and meeting with the Board of Trustees.

Kersten said he could not resign the SBP to seek "higher, more appropriate honors."

"There is indeed a deeper reason which made me desire to quit for I am now forced to admit that between July 28, 1958 and December of 1958, I was subject to a repetitive, compulsive bedwetting problem which forced me on three occasions to purchase a new mattress. And though I was able to overcome this problem with the help of a team of psychiatrists using shock-therapy at the age of 16, I was nevertheless, responsible for my lack of close friends in this critical period of childhood---a factor which directly induced me to seek the office of Student Body President.

After the election he considered this no more than a mere physical affliction, "much as most of you look upon the frilled cube steak in the dining hall," Kersten said.

Eventually he realized the problem was "a sign from the Father that I was no longer pure and was not fit to continue to reign as Prime Mover."

Resolved to accept the Father's will, and backed by the April first resignation of Ed Gray, spokesman for Vice President retroactive uncandidate the Cat, Kersten planned to resign after the SLC elections.

Relations with SMC

Fr. Burtchaell said that no merger talks with Saint Mary's are currently under way, and that SMC does not appear to be leaning toward any such unification.

Saint Mary's students took 30,000 hours at Notre Dame classes through the Co-Exchange Program during the 1971-72 academic year. This amounted to more than one-third of the total SMC credit hours and a million-dollar Notre Dame contribution to SMC in teaching load, the Provost reported.

Finances

Concerning University finances, Burtchaell said that Notre Dame has functioned only two years in the red, 1969 and 1970. Last year's profit at this point has been bettered, and that the budget for the next three years is favorably projected. Deficit years, he said, should be a thing of the past.

Death Knell

The fate of the Fieldhouse was also a topic of discussion.

Fr. Burtchaell cited the dilapidated condition of the building and the infeasability of renovation. He was rather emphatic in his view of the Fieldhouse, "it will either be torn down or it will self-destruct."

The meeting concluded with questions on Student Government.

Fr. Burtchaell believes the current mood of apathy is normal. He added with some admitted facetiousness, "a little apathy toward the Student Government is healthy."

Washington - The Senate reversed itself and rejected, by a 45-42 vote, an end-the-war amendment that it had adopted three months ago. The vote marked the final collapse of the anti-war movement in the Senate and left the administration firmly in command of the war issue in Congress. The Senate went on to approve, by a 56-41 vote, the Foreign Aid Authorization Bill.

Washington - Henry A. Kissinger met privately in Paris with North Vietnamese representatives, and the White House announced that the talks would be extended into a second day. Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House Press Secretary, declined "to say whether the extension of the private talks means that progress is being made toward a settlement of the Vietnam War."

Washington - The House Agriculture Committee approved a bill that would partially compensate farmers in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas who sold their early wheat at low prices because they were unaware of the magnitude of Soviet wheat purchases that were to send prices soaring. The vote on the bill, sponsored by Graham Purrall, a Texas Democrat, was 21 to 19.

Washington - Presidents of nine building and construction unions representing over 1 7 million workers endorsed President Nixon for re-election, stating that they found "the positions and policies of the candidate of the democratic party wholly unacceptable." Eight of the construction Union Presidents declined to join in the endorsement although invited to do so.

Chess registration con't.

Registration continues today for the first Observer chess tournament. All registration is conducted at the news desk in the Observer office on third floor of LaFortune Student Center. The tournament is open to all students and faculty of Notre Dame and St. Mary's. There is a $1.00 registration fee that enables contestants to play for the cash prize and trophy awarded to the first place winner. The fee can be waived by those not interested in competing for the prize money.

The tournament begins on October 2 at 7:00 and continues through Sunday night October 8. The tournament will be an eight round Swiss match with rounds every eighth Monday through Saturday. Two final rounds will be played Sunday.

The first round pairings will be published in the Observer Monday afternoon. Boards and sets are being provided by the chess club, through contestants are asked to bring their own in case a scarcity develops.

The tournament is co-sponsored by the Observer and the Chess Club. Tournaments directors are members of the Chess Club.

A L Council makes appointments

by Jim Early
Observer Staff Reporter

The Arts and Letters College Student Advisory Council made its final decision on the appointment of four students to fill seats on the College Council last Thursday.

The forty-five member College Council consists of deans of the college, department deans, elected faculty members, and five student representatives. It meets periodically to discuss new programs proposed for the college or to reassess older programs and matters of academics.

The newly appointed College Council interviewed sixteen students.

The students had submitted statements expressing their personal interest in the College Council. Four students and Prof. Walker Niegoski, faculty College Council member, interviewed the eight finalists, reducing their number for discussion to four.

The new Advisory Council chose the four students, who are Dan Kogovsek, Michael Wahoske, Rose McLean, and John McLaughlin.

Neil Rosini, president of the Arts and Letters Student Advisory Council, occupies the fifth seat on the College Council, ex officio.

Rosini said the Council looks for "creative, energetic people who had a firm sense of the meaning and significance of a liberal education for them...people who would and could convey that idea to others."

The University Directory should be in the student's hands in three weeks according to Bob Alden of the Student Services Commission.

Beginning with the names of students, their telephone numbers and addresses, the directory also gives the colleges and home addresses of students, plus a calendar of the school year and maps of the ND and SMC campuses.

Anyone wishing to add information to the directory should contact Alden at 7797. Until the directory comes out, the number to call for directory assistance is 7638.

Today the Council meets to examine the report of the committee that studied the Program on Non-Violence. It will also discuss the 1-2-1 division of the 4-year Bachelor of Arts program, which is a reshuffling of the Arts and Letters student program.

According to this program, a student, after completing his freshman year, would spend his sophomore and junior years within a major, as is presently practiced, or in one of a selection of fields of concentration. The latter would place emphasis on a "human," pursued and developed through a consultation of courses offered by the different departments. Some examples for each cross-disciplined themes are American Civilization, Science, Technology and Society, and Concepts and Problems in International Community.

The student's senior year would be reserved for integration, further concentration, or a creative project.

Apart from the College Council, the Arts and Letters Student Advisory Council meets with the dean periodically and does research in certain areas of the college procedure. Some proposals which has been brought up by the members of this council are ways of improving sophomore counseling, means of increasing student-faculty relations, and examining the role of requirements within the college. The Council has conducted an extensive study of other schools which employ more liberal grading procedures such as plus-failing.

Provost endorsement

Rumor has it that the middle name of Rev. Observer Associate Editor Edward T. Ellis, S.C.S. is Tungstead. We think this more than qualifies him for the position of "Student Provost" in the Court of the Bubble Gum King. At his birthday party at Nickie's Monday night, E. Tungstead was surrounded by tongues afire, that could be quenched only by draughts of Strôh's, the nectar of the Gods.

It is rumored further that the venerable cleric forsook his home last summer to wander for forty days and forty nights in the great Philadelphia desert, where he was sanctified and ate ice cream.

Moreover, while listening to the music of the spheres, it has been revealed that Tungstead (we hear), that the Bowel Mover is but a fifth-rate Anti-Christ, who ought to defecate or get off the pot.

When confronted with these rumors, Ellis has refused to confirm or deny, saying: "It wouldn't help anyone to know.

Ultimately, however, we propose the name of E. Tungstead, Ellis, S.C.S. for the office of Student Provost.
You can lose Ravi Shankar in a crowd. I did. When I first walked into Stapleton's lounge yesterday, I couldn't find him. Perhaps I didn't recognize him without his omnipresent sitar, for no one ever pictures Ravi Shankar without his sitar, the instrument which he made famous and vogue in the Western world.

Shankar, have sometimes created an impact in the minds of Westerners, who were apparently committed to such fads or superflous interests. Perhaps I didn't recognize him without his sitar, for no one ever pictures Ravi Shankar without his sitar, the instrument which he made famous and vogue in the Western world.

Some serious individuals have achieved the stage of a "good student," but he didn't get the necessary training because he didn't have the time to devote to it. A combination of deep appreciation, time, talent, training, and effort are all required to become a skilled practitioner of the sitar, and of the Indian music in general.

While he "loves" Western classical music, Shankar feels that Western music has no influence whatsoever on him, since his music is deeply rooted in Indian culture and character of its own. Shankar believes that to fully appreciate the Tala, as its bases, and from these the music is free to improvise. A Raga is difficult to explain to a Western listener, because it is neither a scale nor a mode. It is, however, a scientific, precise, subtle, and aesthetic melodic form with its own peculiar ascending and descending movement which consists of either a full octave, or a series of six of five notes. It is the subtle difference in the order of notes, and of its structures, that gives the Raga its characteristic sound. Shankar has said: "There are some seven "Raga"s, and some scale patterns, on which Ragas are based.

"Tala" is the second important factor in Indian music. These are rhythmical cycles ranging from three to one hundred eight beats. (E.g. a bar of ten beats may be divided as 3-4, 2-5, 3-5, 2-3.) Within the frameworks of the fixed beats the drummers playing them can improvise in the same extent as the main artist. Shankar believes that to fully appreciate the intricacies of Eastern music, an extremely intellectual approach is necessary. As an example, he cited his most famous pupil, George Harrison. Harrison, he said, was a "good student," but he didn't get the necessary training because he didn't have the time to devote to it. A combination of deep appreciation, time, talent, training, and effort are all required to become a skilled practitioner of the sitar, and of the Indian music in general.

As my Guru used to say," Shankar smiled, "it takes more than one lifetime..."

Students voice abundant praise for proposed LaFortune hours

By John Calligan

Last Friday the suggestion to open the Student Center for 24 hours every day was made in an Observer editorial. In a follow-up of that editorial, the Observer asked several students their opinions on this subject.

Mike Overstreet says that it would be a good idea. It is somewhat difficult to make up a study schedule and you wanted to have a late meeting organization, it would be a good idea to open the place. I live off campus and come here a lot to study and talk to people.

Dan Clifford "I think that it is a really good idea. It is quieter than the library. I come here to study because it is open at least on weekends all night."

Planner Resident "I think that it is a good idea. It is possible to open it seven days a week, then it should be open at least on weekends all night."

Till Everett "The hours of the Student Center definitely should be increased, especially on weekends. I live off campus and come here to study and get more work done."

Frank Forbrother "Yes, it should be open 24 hours every day, I like to come here to study and get some coffee."

Cynthia Booth "I think that it is a good idea. I live at St. Mary's, but have all my classes over here at Notre Dame. I like to come here to study and get some coffee."

Fred Gorch "I think that it is a good idea. I occasionally come here to study and get something to eat at the Huddle."

Patrick Forther "If it could possibly happen, it would be great. I don't think that it is possible. I live on-campus and come here to study without any disturbances."

John Paul Jeffrey "I think that it would be a great idea to open it for 24 hours every day, I come here about three times a week to play pool and study."

Tom Hurley "It's a good idea because it would be a good place to study. Right now, there is no place to study after one a.m. except the dorms. For me, it is not easy to study in my room because my roommate goes to bed at 11 p.m. every night."

Dillon Resident "I like to come to the Student Center every day to study and get a snack. It is open all night, it would be a good place to study for an exam."

Rabin Resident "I go to the Student Center to study because it is a quiet place than the library and I would like to open it longer because it is such a good place to study and talk with friends."

Interviews with several others produced similar results.

Every student interviewed agreed that the Student Center should be open for 24 hours every day. Off-campus students particularly expressed preference for the idea. They like to go to the lounges to study and meet and talk with their friends.

A lot thought that the Huddle should be open all night so that it would be possible for a person to take a break from his all night studying and get a bite to eat.

Also mentioned, was the possibility of increased vandalism unless security guards were posted throughout the building.

In most dorms, the lounges and study rooms are now occupied by students, who have to use them as their living quarters. Many believe that the students are in need of some place where they could go to study, get a snack, or just meet their friends and talk, whenever they got the urge to.

Complete text of Kersten's address

My dear friends, I have come to you tonight to withdraw and resign from the office of Student Body President. I have felt increasingly that this role is not the best fit for me and that it would be better for both the Student Body and myself if I were to resign.

I have reached this decision after much thought and consideration. It has not been an easy decision to make, as I have come to value my time and experiences at the University of Notre Dame. However, I believe that this is the right choice for me.

The role of Student Body President is one of great responsibility and honor, but it is also one that requires a tremendous amount of time and energy. I have found that my current commitments and interests are not aligning with the demands of the position.

I believe that this decision is in the best interests of the University and the Student Body. I am confident that the University will continue to thrive under the leadership of a new President.

I want to express my gratitude to all of you for your support and encouragement throughout my time as President. I have enjoyed working with you and be grateful for the opportunity to serve the University.

I wish you all the best in your endeavors and encourage you to support the University in any way you can.

Thank you for your understanding.
Versatile Clements leads offense

By Vic Durr

VERSATILITY is perhaps the best word to use when talking about Tom Clements, Notre Dame’s senior quarterback. A six-foot-four-inch, 212-pound sophomore from the Philadelphia area was a member of the state cross-country and basketball teams and was also picked as a member of Pennsylvania’s Big-33 Football Team, and was also picked as a member of the University of Pennsylvania’s All-American basketball team, but only one of those honors can be considered a true indicator of his services.

Clements is a student of the game. He was heavily recruited during his last year at Canevin, but only Texas and Penn State showed serious interest for his services. Currently, Clements is considering both Notre Dame and Northeastern, and also the University of Pennsylvania.

Last season, the freshman signal caller, Clements rushed for 375 yards and passed for 256 more. He completed 38 of 86 passes for 731 yards and four touchdowns, and led the Irish to a 2-2 season. Spring practice saw him run hard, but his performances have not been as dominant as they were then. “No,” said Clements, “I really didn’t expect to be the number one quarterback to start. In practice I just wanted to do a job. Of course, you think you’d like to start—and my goal was to start, so I was anxious to do well during the spring. During the fall I just wanted to continue what I was doing during the spring.”

Clements’ fall has not only continued what he’d been doing during April and May—but improved. He has improved to the point where he is frequently compared with another senior quarterback—Joe Theismann. “Theismann was tremendous,” said Clements, “but comparisons with him don’t really bother me—or I don’t try to perfect myself after anyone when I just do what comes natural.”

“In high school,” he continued, “we didn’t pass a lot, so I really didn’t do too well this year. This year, our offense has a much better opportunity to pass.”

Clements, who didn’t have to do too much in last year’s 37-0 romp over Northwestern, saw both good and bad in his initial performances for the ND varsity. “Don’t think I’ve passed as well as I can,” he said, “but I got the nervousness out of me—and so did the other new starters. I’m sure we’ll get better as the season goes along.”
