Compromise constitution passed

by Jim Eder
Staff Reporter

The Hall Presidents Council last night overwelmingly approved a compromise constitution presented by Paul Tobin, spokesman for the special, five-member constitutional committee appointed by the HPC last week.

This new constitution, Tobin explained, provides for a Student Association Forum comprised of a Student Association Chairman (appointed by the members of the Forum), a Student Association Administrative Director (selected by the student body), the individual hall presidents, and one representative for every 300 off-campus students.

According to the new constitution, the Student Association Chairman would: (1) serve as chief executive officer and official spokesman for the Forum, (2) serve as chairman of all meetings of the Forum, (3) appoint the Judicial Board, representatives to the university-wide committees, and members of the Forum, (4) appoint a co-ordinator to manage the finances of the Student Association, and (5) with approval of two-thirds of the Forum members, the Student Association Administrative Director would appoint an administrative officer of the Student Association and appoint administrative assistants and other persons necessary for the efficient operation of student services.

When asked how the new constitution would affect the present role of the HPC, Tobin said, "The hall presidents will still be primarily concerned with hall life matters; only now they will be in a position to control the student government budget and appointments."

The only provision of the new constitution over which controversy appeared was the appointment of the Student Association Chairman.

Jim Magnotta, president of Radin Hall, argued that the Chairman should be elected by the student body. "The students need someone to look up to," she reasoned. "They also need a single person at whom they can focus their problems."

Sue Anderson, one of the four Walsh Hall executive board members, pointed out that the Forum would probably function more smoothly with a chairman appointed by and from its own members. "A person who has been active as a hall president and knows how the HPC operates will be more efficient chairman than someone who comes in cold," she said.

Con Bieniek, vice-president of Morrissey Hall, explained that the Forum would actually be more representative of the student body if its spokesmen were appointed rather than elected.

He reasoned that "a chairman appointed by the hall presidents, each of whom represents the opinions of the people in his own hall, would better represent the entire student body than a winner of a general election expressing his own opinions."

In a five-town hall presidents present at last night's meeting did not approve the new constitution after all the arguments were aired. Commenting on this display of solidarity, HPC chairman Fred Baranowski said, "I think we are ready to accept the responsibilities of student government and still remain the most representative body on campus."

The new constitution will be presented before the individual hall councils this week for ratification.

"Pending approval of this constitution," said Baranowski, "the election for Student Association Administrative Director and appointment of the Student Association Chairman will be held as soon as possible."

Potok highlights Soph Literary Festival

Speaking before an overflow audience in the Library Auditorium last night, novelist Norman Potok related his commitment as a rebel who writes about rebels. Potok's speech, entitled "Rebellion and Authority: The Jew and Modern Literature," was part of the Sophomore Literary Festival.

Beginning his talk by saying, "My tradition warms me against locking myself away from people," Potok, a Jewish rabbi-teacher in the ancient classic tradition, said of the tension in his life between the Jewish tradition and the tradition of literature.

The explanation of the Jewish tradition, said Potok, has always been on scholarship, rather than on creation, dealing with esthetics. He said works of the imagination play no significant role in the tradition. "In the whole history of Western art, only one vessel is available and that is the Crucifixion," said Potok. "The total people has always been the art form of the Jews, he said. Potok spent much of his talk on his break with the Jewish tradition.

Potok said his life gea, a novelist is alien to the tradition he is committed to teach. "You can explain the when and the what and the where of a commitment of this kind," he said. "You cannot explain the why."

Potok began to make his commitment to literature, he said, in his Jewish public high school. At that time he read F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby. Potok talked about Flaubert, Lewis, Joyce. Mann as "the opening shot in modern American literature." Potok talked about Faulkner, Lewis, Joyce, Maugham. "These were my teachers. These great writers were rebels, but for me it meant a great deal that they were rebels with compassion...that they were rebels with a cause."

"They are not so distant from the tradition into which I was born."

Literature as Eyesight

These writers became part of Potok's eyesight, he said. "We are all of us trapped inside our own vision of things. We must look at reality from inside ourselves."

"We model through our own eyes. Things don't happen to us with structure. We impose structure on reality."

The Jewish mind cannot grasp the meaning of the words. "The world is without meaning," said Potok. "No matter how black the tragedy, the Jewish mind will never say the world is intrinsically meaningless."

"I believe even the work of Samuel Beckett is not without meaning."

Potok related some of his experiences as a chaplain in the Korean War as they helped develop his own understanding of literature. "A great work of art is incredible each time you read it," he said.

"The Promise and My Name is Asher Lev," Potok closed by saying. "There is no small thing he told himself, myself fulfilled as a writer and as a teacher."

Corruption in Student Union?

Story on page 3
Ashberry and Rexroth to speak today in Lib Aud

by Steve Magdowski

John Ashbery and Kenneth Rexroth continue the Sophomore Library Festival today in the Library Auditorium. Ashbery, noted poet and dramatist, will read from his poetry at 3:30 p.m. and Rexroth, widely published poet, critic, and translator, will read from his poetry at 8:00 p.m.

The poems of Ashbery, who also reads his poetry yesterday afternoon, have been called "so original as to sometimes consider untranslatable." His work has been one of the main channels for the employment of French surrealism poetry in prose American literature.

Rally planned today in honor of blacks

by Jeanne Murphy

Today marks the fifth anniversary of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in Remembering Dr. King, and the American Law Students Association is sponsoring a rally today at noon in the Law School, Room 109.

James T. Burchell, and several black faculty members and students.

According to Tom McGill, chairman of the Notre Dame chapter of BALSA, "this day will honor those black heroes who made the supreme sacrifice in the 'war at home' against racism and the official degradation of minority people.

McGill hopes that this occasion will be used by all to reaffirm the mutual commitment to "liberty and justice for all people."
Social Commission ticket manager Kevin Rybarczyk, newly-instated Student Union president, has been accused of nepotism as well as payback with corruption and deceit.

In a three-point statement, Krull accused Rybarczyk of swaggering in to the Student Union office with facts during interviews for the post, nepotism in his appointments, and attempting a takeover of the social commission.

In explaining the allegations, Krull stated that Rybarczyk withheld information regarding his status as a student next year. Krull also alleged that Rybarczyk repeatedly stated that he is a first semester senior and will be graduating in December. Furthermore, he is registered with the placement bureau and has taken job interviews.

In response to this charge, Rybarczyk denied that he will graduate stating that “I can’t graduate” and if so “provisions have been made for my replacement. I assumed that everyone in Student Union was aware of my status.”

In regards to the allegations of nepotism in Rybarczyk’s appointments, Krull charges that Rybarczyk recruited friends for key positions.

Five candidates eligible in Class Fellow election

by Tom Mirabito

Elections for Notre Dame Senior Class Fellow are scheduled for this Thursday with five candidates in the running.

The candidates are Notre Dame’s Dr. Robert Ackerman, and former WRBR listeners who have form a format, and certain members of the Notre Dame Band. Army Colonel Victor Herbert, Dr. Robert Ackerman is assistant director of student activities at Notre Dame. He worked previously in the Dean of Students office.

The Ackerman has a lot to “organize student activities. I hope so,” Hunt said.

Naval Captain Jeremy Denton was the spokesman for the first IRBC re-appearance by the Viet Nam. He was one of the officers who traveled to the country by the North Vietnamese and according to Hunt is being considered for promotion to Rear Admiral.

Father Robert Griffith is rector of Keenan Hall and the author of a book titled “Letters to a Young Adult” collection of short stories and essays, much of which appeared in past issues of the Observer.

Bust said, “If Fr. Griffith is elected, Darby O’Gill will also make an appearance.”

Mr. Edward Hanrahan is the senior Class Fellow this year.

The fifth nominee is Colonel Victor Herveit, the world’s most famous soldier. He recently wrote a book, Soldier, which concerns itself with shocking practices in the United States Army. Herbert recently appeared on the Dick Cavett Show and engages in heated discussion with U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater (R.-Arizona).

Hunt told how these men were selected from the approximately thirty people who were nominated.

“One of the nominated these were the only five that responded positively to the letter sent out by the Senior Class Fellow committee, asking if they could be on campus at this time and that could do it for a nominal fee,” said Hunt.

Hunt added that other people who had been nominated such as Rose Kennedy, John Chancellor, Howard K. Smith, and Henry Kissingner could not make it to Notre Dame.

“The rest of the nominees simply did not respond to our letter,” Hunt said. He stressed that a big turnout is necessary at the voting to elect their senior Class Fellow award could be given.

The election is Thursday in the halls and at the Off-Campus office from 6:30 to 8:30. Only seniors are eligible to vote.” Hunt concluded.

Arrested at Nickie’s

18 students are convicted, others given continuances.

Raymond and Soild felt that a phone call to the local station manager or a letter to the Booth Broadcasting headquarters in Detroit would be effective.

WRBR station manager Bob Boggef could be reached at 234-1111 or at WRBR, 1129 N. Hickory Rd. South Bend, Indiana.

Booth Broadcasting can be contacted by writing to Mr. W. Viney Westman, 2360 Blvd Blvd., Detroit, Michigan 48206.

Any questions about the protest should be directed to Steve Raymond or John Solld who was only available on that station.

Robert Ackerman has done a lot to promote this type of radio station,” Raymond wrote. “I am sure that the station will continue to do so.”

SU director accused of corruption

by Tom Bundy

Social Commission ticket manager Kevin Rybarczyk, newly-instated Student Union president, has been accused of corruption.

In a three-point statement, Krull accused Rybarczyk of swaggering in to the Student Union office with facts during interviews for the post, nepotism in his appointments, and attempting a takeover of the social commission.

In explaining the allegations, Krull stated that Rybarczyk withheld information regarding his status as a student next year. Krull also alleged that Rybarczyk repeatedly stated that he is a first semester senior and will be graduating in December. Furthermore, he is registered with the placement bureau and has taken job interviews.

In response to this charge, Rybarczyk denied that he will graduate stating that “I can’t graduate” and if so “provisions have been made for my replacement. I assumed that everyone in Student Union was aware of my status.”

In regards to the allegations of nepotism in Rybarczyk’s appointments, Krull charges that Rybarczyk recruited friends for key positions.

Rybarczyk replied, “I feel that these men are qualified for their positions and each has done a fine job for me so far.”

Rybarczyk’s third charge is that Rybarczyk has attempted a takeover of Social Commission. As evidence, he refers to recent appointments within the Social Commission being made by Rybarczyk rather than by the new Social Commissioner, Mary Anne Gillespie.

In conclusion, Krull stated, “I think that enough new people will come to work in the individual commissions to offset the ‘caste’ that seemingly exists there now.”

Rybarczyk refused to comment further on the allegations, stating, “I don’t feel there are any charges to be answered, but I am happy that I’m getting kickbacks that make me create opportunities for those new people to be involved.”
The Senior Fellow

In the past two years, Daniel Berrigan and William Kunstler have been awarded the Notre Dame Senior Fellow Award for their elections to this honor was indicative of something very prevalent at Notre Dame.

The Senior Fellow over these past two years has served as the last stronghold of the university in the home. Thus, the selection of two "radical" figures was to in an accomplishment...giving heed to the words of Notre Dame, really is a liberal, progressive university in some areas.

In an April third letter to the New York Times, Glory in a material sense has never come Griff's way. All he's ever done is say Mass for the winos and street people of New York. He's brought Christ into the lives of little children at his ur-

Rabble Rumble

Editor:

In an April third letter entitled "Wounded Column," George Steven Swan (La w II) points out which Mr. Swan made were "Wounded Column," George Knee." While divulging these points of error within the article relating to the 1966 massacre, he comments that the article was stimulating and that rather than bore the readers with further details concerning other paragraphs, he would close by thanking The Observer for the most stimulating column.

In all fairness, some of the points which Mr. Swan made were correct. The site of the Wounded Knee massacre was not a Sioux village. A cavalry test camp on Wounded Knee Creek; thus Wounded Knee was not the site of Big Foot. Not Big Foot's band was the lead to the camp under a cavalry escort to which he had surrendered the same day. Mr. Swan's final point, however, were made with little qualification. For instance, while it was true that Sitting Bull was assassinated by another Sioux Indian and not by cavalry, it should have been stated that these Indians (Lawrence Head and Sergeant Red Tomahawk, both Indian police) were at the time of the assassination in the service of Indian Agent Colonel William F. Dray, Commander of Fort Yates. Their job had been to arrest and remove Sitting Bull from Standing Rock. Indians were used to avoid the trouble that might be caused by a forced arrest by soldiers. Unfortunately, a guest arrest was not made.

The second point which should have been qualified, concerned the statement that Big Foot did not move his band to Wounded Knee because he had heard of the death of Sitting Bull. The statement is partially true; for the fact of the matter is that Big Foot was moving his band due to the assignment of Sitting Bull, only it wasn't to Wounded Knee. labelled "Pine Ridge to seek the protection of Ledbetter from the soldiers.

In pointing out these seemingly trivial facts, it was not my intention to degrade Mr. Swan because of his carelessness in relating to the reader errors which he perceived in the article "Wounded Knee." On the other hand, it was my intention to override the sarcasm which permeated Mr. Swan's column. His discovery of five errors in a single paragraph and his insinuation of errors in other paragraphs seems to imply doubt as to the credibility and worth of the article. On the contrary, the history of this massacre is quite relevant to what has happened and is happening at Wounded Knee today. It is unfortunate that one must make mockery of an attempt to relate those historical facts, that one must be destructive instead of constructive in his criticism.

In closing, allow me to recommend the reading of Dee Brown's Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee for a deeper understanding of the Indian situation.

Jack Kemen

The Senior Fellow

In the past two years, Daniel Berrigan and William Kunstler have been awarded the Notre Dame Senior Fellow Award for their elections to this honor was indicative of something very prevalent at Notre Dame.

The Senior Fellow over these past two years has served as the last stronghold of the university in the home. Thus, the selection of two "radical" figures was to in an accomplishment...giving heed to the words of Notre Dame, really is a liberal, progressive university in some areas.

In an April third letter to the New York Times, Glory in a material sense has never come Griff's way. All he's ever done is say Mass for the winos and street people of New York. He's brought Christ into the lives of little children at his ur-

Rabble Rumble

Editor:

In an April third letter entitled "Wounded Column," George Steven Swan (Law II) points out which Mr. Swan made were "Wounded Column," George Knee." While divulging these points of error within the article relating to the 1966 massacre, he comments that the article was stimulating and that rather than bore the readers with further details concerning other paragraphs, he would close by thanking The Observer for the most stimulating column.

In all fairness, some of the points which Mr. Swan made were correct. The site of the Wounded Knee massacre was not a Sioux village. A cavalry test camp on Wounded Knee Creek; thus Wounded Knee was not the site of Big Foot. Not Big Foot's band was the lead to the camp under a cavalry escort to which he had surrendered the same day. Mr. Swan's final point, however, were made with little qualification. For instance, while it was true that Sitting Bull was assassinated by another Sioux Indian and not by cavalry, it should have been stated that these Indians (Lawrence Head and Sergeant Red Tomahawk, both Indian police) were at the time of the assassination in the service of Indian Agent Colonel William F. Dray, Commander of Fort Yates. Their job had been to arrest and remove Sitting Bull from Standing Rock. Indians were used to avoid the trouble that might be caused by a forced arrest by soldiers. Unfortunately, a guest arrest was not made.

The second point which should have been qualified, concerned the statement that Big Foot did not move his band to Wounded Knee because he had heard of the death of Sitting Bull. The statement is partially true; for the fact of the matter is that Big Foot was moving his band due to the assignment of Sitting Bull, only it wasn't to Wounded Knee. labelled "Pine Ridge to seek the protection of Ledbetter from the soldiers.

In pointing out these seemingly trivial facts, it was not my intention to degrade Mr. Swan because of his carelessness in relating to the reader errors which he perceived in the article "Wounded Knee." On the other hand, it was my intention to override the sarcasm which permeated Mr. Swan's column. His discovery of five errors in a single paragraph and his insinuation of errors in other paragraphs seems to imply doubt as to the credibility and worth of the article. On the contrary, the history of this massacre is quite relevant to what has happened and is happening at Wounded Knee today. It is unfortunate that one must make mockery of an attempt to relate those historical facts, that one must be destructive instead of constructive in his criticism.

In closing, allow me to recommend the reading of Dee Brown's Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee for a deeper understanding of the Indian situation.

Jack Kemen

The Senior Fellow

In the past two years, Daniel Berrigan and William Kunstler have been awarded the Notre Dame Senior Fellow Award for their elections to this honor was indicative of something very prevalent at Notre Dame.

The Senior Fellow over these past two years has served as the last stronghold of the university in the home. Thus, the selection of two "radical" figures was to in an accomplishment...giving heed to the words of Notre Dame, really is a liberal, progressive university in some areas.

In an April third letter to the New York Times, Glory in a material sense has never come Griff's way. All he's ever done is say Mass for the winos and street people of New York. He's brought Christ into the lives of little children at his ur-

Rabble Rumble

Editor:

In an April third letter entitled "Wounded Column," George Steven Swan (Law II) points out which Mr. Swan made were "Wounded Column," George Knee." While divulging these points of error within the article relating to the 1966 massacre, he comments that the article was stimulating and that rather than bore the readers with further details concerning other paragraphs, he would close by thanking The Observer for the most stimulating column.

In all fairness, some of the points which Mr. Swan made were correct. The site of the Wounded Knee massacre was not a Sioux village. A cavalry test camp on Wounded Knee Creek; thus Wounded Knee was not the site of Big Foot. Not Big Foot's band was the lead to the camp under a cavalry escort to which he had surrendered the same day. Mr. Swan's final point, however, were made with little qualification. For instance, while it was true that Sitting Bull was assassinated by another Sioux Indian and not by cavalry, it should have been stated that these Indians (Lawrence Head and Sergeant Red Tomahawk, both Indian police) were at the time of the assassination in the service of Indian Agent Colonel William F. Dray, Commander of Fort Yates. Their job had been to arrest and remove Sitting Bull from Standing Rock. Indians were used to avoid the trouble that might be caused by a forced arrest by soldiers. Unfortunately, a guest arrest was not made.

The second point which should have been qualified, concerned the statement that Big Foot did not move his band to Wounded Knee because he had heard of the death of Sitting Bull. The statement is partially true; for the fact of the matter is that Big Foot was moving his band due to the assignment of Sitting Bull, only it wasn't to Wounded Knee. labelled "Pine Ridge to seek the protection of Ledbetter from the soldiers.

In pointing out these seemingly trivial facts, it was not my intention to degrade Mr. Swan because of his carelessness in relating to the reader errors which he perceived in the article "Wounded Knee." On the other hand, it was my intention to override the sarcasm which permeated Mr. Swan's column. His discovery of five errors in a single paragraph and his insinuation of errors in other paragraphs seems to imply doubt as to the credibility and worth of the article. On the contrary, the history of this massacre is quite relevant to what has happened and is happening at Wounded Knee today. It is unfortunate that one must make mockery of an attempt to relate those historical facts, that one must be destructive instead of constructive in his criticism.

In closing, allow me to recommend the reading of Dee Brown's Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee for a deeper understanding of the Indian situation.

Jack Kemen
a campus cookbook

maria gallagher

Wednesday, April 1, 1972

The observer has recently compiled a list of private recipes of several campus personalities which may prove helpful to the off-campus student, the curious gourmet, or just fun reading.

Edward H. Messbarger, General Soup (junior) (Child gave Dean Homan a “90” for this prize-winning recipe.)

Ingredients:
- 35 litres Hlg
- 3/4 pint of beef
- 4 grams NaCl

Note:
Good onions with mortor and pestle, set aside. Pour other ingredients into a 35 litre casserole, stir in flour and cook for 5 hours on low heat over a burner. If it thickens, you gooded. Serve cold leaves a bad taste in your mouth and may give you an ulcer.

Fr. Griffin’s Filet of Sole

Pour one Little Prince until what’s left looks entirely different from what you started with. Divide into individual servings. Some people prefer this dish on Ice.

Ingredients:
- 2 tbsp of beef (or bull)
- several chickens
- some hot potates
- sour groges

Simmer in lukewarm water for five years, then throw everything out.

Art Peary’s Crismmst Qual du Lie (A closely guarded recipe)

Ingredients:
- several old crabs
- sour water
- bitterns
- hot water

Bring hot water to a boil, let off steam for several days. Add crabs, sour cream—serve with butter and tallow comments.

For Tom’s Theological Stew—by heavy meals

Ingredients:
- peas
- corn
- hot water
- flour
- troubled water
- salt

Sieve magdzinski

Recipe:
- From the hot dog expert...Blend one Chicago accent, one pair white socks, a dash of trivia, and a pinch of profundity. Cover and cook until it stops making noise.
- Hope you’re not too hungry.

Kevin’s Chicken a la King

Take regular recipe for chicken a la king and serve pommously. Garnish with Italian bouquet.
- Ron appetite!

Student Union Proudly Presents

Baked Nebraska

Monday, April 18 at 6:00 P.M.

Tickets: $5.50 and 3.00

on sale now at S. U. Ticket Office and ACC Ticket Office

the observer

5

Maria Gallagher

It seems a little odd that I should write about graduation, since I wasn’t graduated until May of 1974, but it’s been on my mind quite a bit lately. I have come to the conclusion that far from being one of the happiest days of my life, as I had previously thought, I finish my “career” at Notre Dame will be one of the saddest.

I’m not a big cheerleader for the “Notre Dame spirit” or the “Notre Dame community.” I think it is in overdrive. But I will agree there is something different about Notre Dame. Maybe I’ll know what it is after I leave, but whatever it is, I’m going to miss it.

“this place”

I’m sure not everyone reading this is going to miss Notre Dame. I know many people have a bad taste in their mouth and may give you an ulcer.

“that place”

There were many times I was disgusted with “Notre Dame Man” who could only face that same loneliness by getting pitifully drunk (or stoned), thereby losing the respect I had built up for him from the Saturday night before. I was in one of the overseas programs and the pressure, for me at least, was unbearable. I’m no genius and I worked like a fool to get the grades, but I was just going to leave. In that intervening year, and in returning to a co-ed university as a junior instead of a freshman, something is changed. Whether it is me or du lac, I don’t know.

content or community?

As for Notre Dame, it is co-ed and is quite a shift in atmosphere to go to a girl’s dorm for me. I’m not going to miss “Notre Dame,” “this place,” because “this place” is just a group of friends. That’s not bitterness, just a fact of life.

a little longer

And so, rather than look forward to graduation in May of 1974, I’m wishing, like many others who at one time have hated Notre Dame, that it could all last a little longer.

THE ARTHUR J. SCHMITT

Challenges in Science Meetings of the College of Science

THE COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND ITS STUDENT SCIENCE COUNCIL

present

Roland W. Chamblee, M.D.

Recently Returned From Providing Medical Care To The People of Uganda

speaking

HEALTH CARE FOR THE PEOPLE OF THE WORLD!

Wednesday, April 4, 1973

8:00 P.M.

Center for Continuing Education

University of Notre Dame
Meet Your Major is planned

The Student Advisory Council of the College of Arts and Letters, in cooperation with the Deans' office and under the chairmanship of Arts and Letters senator Larry Johnson, is again sponsoring the annual "Meet Your Major" program. Designated to aid students in their investigation of the various major fields of study offered by the college, the program will consist of individual presentations by the various departments scheduled throughout the evenings of April 8-12, Sunday through Thursday. The format of each presentation will be simple. Each department, as a rule, will make a presentation outlining its particular characteristics, requirements, special programs, graduate school possibilities, etc. Faculty members and student-majors from each department will be on hand to answer questions. Printed information about major areas of study will be available at the meetings, in addition to brochures describing departmental programs which can be found in many of the departmental offices. All majors are represented in the evening presentations; except for the General Program, which students generally enter before their sophomore year. Those sophomores now interested in enlisting the General Program are asked to see the chairman individually. The Black Studies Program will also give a presentation, while the Area Studies and Urban Studies Programs will be covered in the Government Department presentation. The Education and Speech and Drama Departments located at St. Mary's will also participate.

Following "Meet Your Major" is the schedule of the Area Program. Time conflicts have been avoided and meetings have been arranged so that it is not likely that many students will have to leave early or arrive late to a meeting in which he might be interested.

---

Senior Service Party invites you to spend your Senior year with Harnisch - pres.

Giroliani - V. Pres.
Kirby - Sec.
Walsh - Treas.

---

Job market optimistic

by Iver Peterson

New York—The job outlook for this June's college and university graduates is the best in four years in most fields, the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education reported Tuesday.

The Commission's 350-page report, "Graduates and Jobs: Adjustment to a New Labor Market Situation," notes that newly-graduated engineers, scientists with specialties related to engineering, and persons trained in health care will be in greatest demand this spring. On the negative side, persons with degrees in education and new Ph.D's will continue to have the least saleable skills owing to stagnant enrollments and a surplus of persons in their fields.

After a copious review of the job market for college graduates from 1960 to 1970, the Commission concludes that a college degree, unless otherwise noted, requires post-secondary degree. Between now and 1980, the report states, about one-third of the 9.8 million men and women who graduate from college by then will take office from college-educated people leaving the labor market. About one-half of the remaining quarter will find positions in "upgraded" jobs vacated by non-college persons, and the remaining group will have to accept positions that do not lend themselves to such upgrading," and which will not make full use of their talents.

This situation may improve in the 1970's, the Commission found, as the rate of increase of college graduates slows down still more. But Ph.D's would still be disincented (see page 7).

---

White Sox Opening Day Trip

Tuesday, April 10

$10 Payment must be made this week

Monday - Friday 12-5

Ticket Office - 2nd floor La Fortune

A few reservations still are taken.

---
Stallworth proposes class fund-raising projects

by Mary Janca

Proposing that each class set up a fund-raising project which will provide the students with an opportunity to see that the college cannot supply now because of a money shortage, Monica Lutkus, assistant features editor, is running her candidacy for Student Affairs Commissioner. If she could set up a system where students could get their project started and back off, and say, "Our class did this, they would feel a sense of accomplishment," Student Government would mean something to Stallworth because they would affect them personally, she adds.

Fund-raising projects could include anything from movies, dances, and hay rides, she continued.

A particular student who could be met through these proposals would be Stallworth's brother, a senior in accounting. While being a frequentposter of the health services, so that testing for mononucleosis might be conducted on campus, added funds might also provide an ambulance facility for students who need immediate tran-

Other fields that will remain in demand are certain types of professional training and law. The Commission reports. It says, however, that the rapid expansion of law school enrollments in recent years makes the value of a law degree hard to predict for very far in the future. The major recommendation of the Commission's study urges that institutions of higher learning and governmental agencies concerned with educational policy refrain from taking panic measures because some graduates are unable to find work.

"Specifically, the Commission urges efforts be made to restrict undergraded opportunities to enroll in college, or to receive student aid," the report went on.

"Assuming that students traditionally adjust rapidly to changing manpower demands, the Commission also went on record as opposing "opportunistic washing" as unimmed to America's diversified and decentralized economy. This general recommendation appears to be in response to policy measures by the Nixon administration which attempted to attune post-secondary education more directly to the needs of the business market and economic demands.

REPORT ON THE OBSERVER

Mary Egan
Staff Reporter

The Observer will publish an experimental Saturday magazine, the "Observer," beginning May 19. No other student publications are currently scheduled in the Observer. The Saturday magazine is hoped to "fill the existing void," according to Observer Editor-in-Chief, Jerry Ellin.

The magazine, will carry the kind of material that is easier to handle in a more manageable format, and Ellin says, "This includes no depth news, news features, photos, essays and fiction." He explained.

The "Observer" is "by no means meant to be in competition with the "Scholastic,"' Lutkus stressed. It is "planning the difference between the two magazines," Lutkus said. The "Scholastic" addresses a topic and builds itself around, that the "Observer" will look at a variety of topics, the "Observer" will be distributed at the dining halls and various drop off spots at Notre Dame and St. Mary's on a weekly basis.

The idea of a magazine was presented by a group of students to T. C. Trimor, then Observer Executive Editor. The proposal to the Observer Assistant Features Editor, will be the Assistant Editor of the Observer.

The magazine will be published every Tuesday, the same day the Observer is published.
The distance medley team will attempt to keep up the pace it set on February 19 when it won the ACC meet. Mike McNeil will be back on the Cinder track. Several injuries and lack of depth are the two main reasons the Irish spent the spring on the sidelines with sprained and field injuries. But, the Irish still have tremendous depth and are exceptionally strong with ambitions for national honors.

Jim Donaldson

The Irish Eye

Hockey's best: 70-73

Notre Dame's senior hockey fans have had a unique opportunity during the last four years — that of watching the Irish ice program grow from small-time status to one of the country's best.

Under the direction of "Lefty" Smith, the 1972-73 Irish captured the Midwest Intercollegiate Hockey League championship and are poised to make a run at the NCAA Cross Country Final. "I'm quite happy with the way we're working extremely hard," he said. "If we can keep our拼川率 last year's third-place finish, we'll be in the open-to-renote mix this year." Dan Dineen and Jeff Eschner.

Notre Dame's hockey team will be represented by former student-athletes among the class of hard-core club hockey players with no doubt also include him to compete in the Kitty's annual tournament and Dan Upal, who are both recovering from injuries.

Girl fencers go 3-2

Notre Dame provided the women's program with practice matches, including a 5-2 victory over Ohio State on February 25th, to help them achieve a 3-2 record to the NCAA coach's day.

Tennessee trip faces ND golfers

Notre Dame's veteran golf team travels to Knoxville, Tenn. next week to participate in the major College Invitational. The invitational, hosted by the University of Tennessee, will be played at the Fox Den Country Club on April 12-15. The team will also compete in the fourth annual tournament at Ohio State the week before the NCAA Invitational. The team is currently ranked 17th in the nation and 14th in the ACC. The team hopes to improve its performance in the ACC, which it finished third in last year.

Notre Dame's golfers will be expected to continue their winning streak, as the team prepares for the NCAA Championship on April 26-28. The team hopes to achieve a top 20 finish in the tournament and to receive an invitation to the NCAA Championship.

Booters open

Notre Dame's soccer team will be relying on a returning crew of veteran players this spring, as the team looks to improve last year's 5-4-2 mark.

The Irish booters came on strong after a slow start last fall, won their last eight games of the season, and this spring are looking to extend their unbeaten streak.

Coach Arno Zone has slated three games for his club during the spring months, and the possibility exists that more will be arranged before the school year resumes. This weekend, the booters will travel to Cincinnati to play their first two games of the spring season.

Friday night's opponent will be the Comets, a semi-pro outfit, and Saturday's game will be against the University of Cincinnati. On April 4th, the Irish will be at home to take on the Yankees in their home opener. Rival.

Booters open

Notre Dame's booters preceded their season by elective changes which replaced the entire backline of the soccer team. Both Bobby and Mike Fitzgerald were chosen as co-captains. Tom Pohlman, a man of many last year's club, was the recipient of the Most Valuable Player award.