Bike registration planning changed
by Joseph Abell and Rick Scharf

A quickly-called meeting Monday between Security Director Arthur Pears and the hall presidents, John Machon, resulted in a change of plans for bicycle registration set for Wednesday after-noon.

Students wishing to register their bikes will now be charged $1 for registration with the Computer Card national bicycle registration, then $1 in type of registration with Notre Dame Security only had been announced earlier in the week.

Pears said the change of plans came after the clearing up of some confusion between "H"s office and the dean of students.

"The idea was that we would have to register the students and (Machon) and I felt that Computer Card could be a better job than we could," Pears said.

He said he also thought the students should have some kind of identification for his bike in addition to a sticker on the bike itself. Computer Card provides for registration carrier for the bicycle owner that is identical to one placed in the security department files.

He said this identification card would be ideal for proving ownership of a bicycle, especially in light of a South Bend city ordinance prohibiting the operation of unregistered bikes. Pears said that the registration that with Computer Card would fulfill all the local legal requirements. Usually, a South Bend resident must go to a fire station and obtain a registration and license for his bike. Pears said that either registration, Pears added.

Another consideration in the change was the cost of registration, said Chris Singleton, a senior in charge of the registration procedure.

He said that the charges to place all vital information of registration on the bike in the university's computer was prohibitive. The $1 charge for Computer Card will go directly to the national organization.

Pears also noted that to take advantage of the bicycle registration to be held between 2:30 and 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday in LaFortune Student Center and 5 to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday in dining halls. He said bike thefts have plagued the campus during the summer and added that 19 bikes had already been reported stolen since classes began.

He said that through the registration would not deter a determined thief, it would serve as an aid in locating an owner when his bike is recovered.

Singleton echoed his sentiments in his hope that more than the estimated one per cent of last year's owners who registered would turn out this year.

"The students have to realize the need for this registration," he said. "They also have to recognize that right now this is strictly a volunteer project and support it as such, especially since many large universities have gone to a mandatory registration.

There are more bikes on campus this year than ever before, he continued, reporting that more than that more bicycles were stolen during the first week than during the same period in 1972.

Most of the thefts occurred during the day, he added.

He expressed optimism for the registration's success, saying that he hoped that "there should be this much interest from owners of bikes."

Singleton asked for the assistance of the hall presidents in urging students to register their bikes with the campus security office. The fee is $1.00, and the registration is valid for five years anywhere in the country.

"The greatest problem presently facing the security office," said Singleton, "is that of stolen bicycles, for there are approximately 1800 bikes on campus.

Besides the issue of better support, Singleton also pointed out that there is a city ordinance forbidding the use of unregistered bicycles within the city limits.

The HPC also unanimously agreed to invite the SmC hall presidents to attend HPC meetings. The St. Mary's representatives will not be allowed to vote on HPC issues but "their opinions will be welcome," said Singleton.

Although most of the matters discussed at our meetings do not concern the girls at St. Mary's," said Singleton, "I am sure they will participate in our An Totem celebration and should be given an opportunity to express their viewpoints."

Carney '73 swings tonight
by Tony Prossie

Carney's first in a three-stage orientation package sponsored by Student Government, will begin at 4 p.m. this afternoon on the South Quad.

The event, begun as an improvement in freshman orientation, is now intended as a campus-wide move to bring students and faculty together," said Jim Roe, administrative assistant.

Father Theodore Heasburgh, university president, and Student Body President Dennis Etienne will speak at 6:15.

Six games, including pie throwing, basketball shooting, football passing, and ring toss, will begin the activities. A surprise kissing booth is also planned.

Several cancellations have delayed final arrangements for musicians, said the Carney's chairman Daniel Schipp. The emblems will be primarily in folk music, with performances beginning at 5:30. Groups and soloists, including former Hall Presidents' Council Chairman Butch Ward, will be featured.

Both Notre Dame's Jazz and Marching Bands were originally scheduled and later canceled.

Names of groups to replace the ND bands are not yet available.

Freshman Orientation weekend was the first of three events planned by Co-chairmen Daniel Schipp and David Caruso. Following by Activities Night last Friday, the annual program was expanded to include a third step sponsored by Student Government that would attract upperclassmen.

"This has been a total Student Government project," Schipp noted. ""If Mike Gesinger (student body vice-president) and just about everyone else here has helped out."

While glancing through the latest issue of Nutshell, it seems that one can't help but see the phrase, "I wish I had a back pocket full of辐射 beans that that's altogether the case here at ND. The Ombudsman Service is beginning its sixth year of serving the ND community and this year more than ever it hopes to prove itself able to handle any and all questions that come its way. However, even this is not enough.

It takes more than just answering questions to make an Ombudsman Service responsive and effective. It requires the ability to seek out solutions to problems which at times seem to defy all laws of reason. It requires individual concern on the part of each member of the Ombudsman to do his or her job and to do it week-in and week-out, to the best of their ability. This and more is what makes an effective Ombudsman Service an everyday reality.

The Service's hours for this fall are 9:30 to 5:00 weekdays and from 6 to 9:00 in the evening on Sundays. So the next time you have a question, problem, or complaint and you can't wait for Action Express, give the Ombudsman a call at 7638.
Allende suicide climaxes revolt

by Roberto Mason

SANTIAGO, CHILE (UPI) - The Chilean armed forcesVisibility President Salvador Allende Tuesday "to remove the yoke of Marxism from the shoulders of the people," the presidential palace said Allende committed suicide as troops, tanks and planes stormed the palace.

Juan Enrique Lira, chief photographer for the newspaper El Mercurio, said Allende had taken his own life. "He shot himself in the mouth with a machine gun," Lira said.

The military refused to confirm the suicide and said a communique on Allende's fate would be issued Wednesday.

It was the first military intervention in 41 years in Chile, long one of Latin America's most stable democracies but thrown into chaos by weeks of strikes and mass demonstrations against Allende's Marxist coalition government.

Jet bombers, tanks, armored cars, jeeps equipped with machine guns and howitzers blasted the 150-year-old La Moneda palace in downtown Santiago.

Allende's fate was not immediately clear. The president, who took office three years ago as the world's first freely-elected Marxist chief executive, earlier had declared he would fight till they take us out of La Moneda.

He had been in the siege been abandoned by the palace guards and cordoned off by military aides who surrendered before the bombardment started. He had asked for a five-minute truce to arrange surrender, but his request has been refused because of the active sniping going on in the neighborhood of the palace.

The military decision to attack followed a strong attack on the palace came after Allende refused to step down and called the people to support him. The armed forces commanders said they were acting to remove the "yoke of Communism" from Chile and to halt the country's plunge into national chaos.

Allende's residence also had been bombed during the day because guards had opened fire on jet aircraft attacking the palace.

The heads of the armed forces did not wait for Allende to surrender. Immediately after starting the attack on the palace they proclaimed themselves as a "new government," declared martial law, established a curfew and forbade civilians to carry guns.

A military communique warned that any resistance to the coup would be crushed by force. To drive home the point, the military leaders blew up transmitters serving radio stations which had been supporting Allende and cordoned headquarters of the Chilean Communist Party which had declared its support of Allende.

Meetings of groups of people who missed the deadline with regard of their addresses and phone numbers as printed in the preliminary University Directory, were urged to stay at home.

The Observer reported Wednesday, September 12, 1973
Register Bikes

Registering a bicycle is a real pain, but what hurts even more is to come out of your hall in the morning and find your bike gone. Not only does it hurt, it costs. If you do not have your bike registered, even if security or students recover it, it cannot be returned to you, unless you can produce the serial numbers for it.

For a dollar, it's a pretty cheap way to make where important and timely, to say expenditures prepared by yourself and by Butch Barrett or Browning. Might I point out to the examiners that I could in no sense, then, recollect any specific knowledge of the intelligence provided in the regular classes of September 10 through 12.

Now, and let me nip this in the bud before the beats come around, there might appear to be an argum entative point in favor of the notion that I should have allowed myself the liberty of reading and studying the class notes on one of my more studious compulsory. This was an option I decided at an early point in time not to exercise. I might point out that I consider the class notes of each student to be private property and confidential, and the impropriety of utilizing these notes far overshadows the necessity of presenting such notes during any petty examination. If I was to view the class notes in question before point in time, I might state at the outset, professor, that I appear at this Notre Dame examination while under considerable mental duress, without recourse to counsel, and with too little time to formulate a viable defense. It remains my firm and continuing belief that these examinations will be a testing of students' academic abilities. Nonetheless, I do intend to answer fully and completely all questions put to me at this point in time.

I notice that your first question deals with the relationship of Robert Browning to Elizabeth Barrett. Might I point out to the examiners that I am not perhaps the best witness to deal with the interpersonal relationships of these two alleged individuals? In point of fact, I do not recollect any meetings or conversations, telephone or otherwise, with either Barrett or Browning.

I disagree violently with the operating premise of your next question, as I do with the professor's assertion in his own statement, and I quote, "... building on class discussions of September 10 and 11." Well, and I believe the record will bear me out on this, that at point in time I was not present, that is to say absent from class. I could in no sense, then, recollect any specific knowledge of the illness to which I alluded is merely an ongoing process which is neither more or less visible at any specific point in time. This illness point was just something we threw on the stoop to see if the cat would pick it up, but the cat stayed on the fence, and I welcome the opportunity to clarify the record.

That concludes my answers for the examination questions. I would, however, like to make a final statement. I would propose that these examinations be discontinued, so that we can all me, ve onto something more important, such as frisbee-tossing, and attaining the seat nearest the window in a classroom. I believe it would be most expedient, therefore, to the entire question of grading procedure, especially in the context of the registrar's office, where it belongs. Really, what's your game plan in all of this? For all I know, you could be losing your pockets with Mexican money. I mean, is this your idea of protective reaction?

Pure Prairie League, a talented but unfortunately little-known country-rock band, will give a free concert this Saturday evening at 8:00 p.m. at Stepan Center, sponsored by the Student Union. The group consists of Craig Fuller, who's the chief songwriter and performs on guitar, bass, and vocals, George Ed Powell on guitar and vocals, and William Frank Hinds on drums. They have been together approximately three years and in that time have put together two albums with a third presently in the works. Their music is easily identifiable with the fine brand of music exemplified by Poco, the Eagles, etc., during the past few years.

Bustin' Out

Their latest album, entitled Bustin' Out is a pleasant blend of soft countryish ballads, a little rock, and some just plain good-time music. All of the material on this album, with the exception of "Jazzman," is composed by the group.

Soft stuff

The album is predominated by the soft stuff. "Jazzman" (previously recorded by Tom Rush on Wrong End of the Rainbow) is a pretty country tune featuring some nice steel and acoustic guitar work. "Angel," one of seven Craig Fuller compositions, is posed by the group.

One problem

The only apparent problem this group has is that their overall sound is quite similar to other contemporary groups in this field—the Eagles, Poco, the new dentists Brynthead and (in the harmonicas) Americas for example. One song, "Early Morning River," could easily be the product of the latter. "Tequila Sunset." However, the age of both the group and this album would make any similarities between themselves and some of the aforementioned bands (the Eagles) purely coincidental.

So, if one enjoys good, original country-rock, in the Poco-Eagles genre, then its free Saturday night at Stepan. But if one doesn't like this sort of thing, it would be better to stay away and let country-rock enthusiasts have their night.

Don't trust your local disc jockey when it comes to reviewing Cat Stevens albums. He's liable to tell you gross untruths, as did one in South Bend (who shall remain nameless) who scooped me that "Firecat," the Cat's latent, was "gimmicky and disappointing."

Instead, he continues the fine progression begun in Mona Bone Jakon. His music seems to mature with every album. Musically, "Firecat" is far more innovative than any of his previous offerings. The unique rhythm patterns which always made Cat's songs distinctive are a high point, especially in the Foreigner Suite. Comparisons are usually disputable, but in this case the intensity that rhythm lends to his music is reminiscent of Bola Bartak's earthy, primeval stuff.

He manipulates them to create almost quirkily quick shifts of mood, but with such skill that they are credible. "Ya can't dance to it." they'd say on American Bandstand, but you can't stay still, either.

Foreign flirtations

Cat has dabbled in his native Greek music, but in "Foreigner" he flirts with several modes. He borrows the best themes from past songs and takes up where they left off, developing them just a bit farther. (Listen for the snatches of "Sad Lisa" toward the end of the suite.) "100 I Dream" from side 2 has country and western overtones. The album was recorded in Jamaica, and that country's influence is pervasive. You could almost basso nova to "Later." Somehow this rolling pot disc retain a fair amount of consistency but it's hard to say where, except that none of the new songs could have appeared on his earlier LP's.

In "Foreigner," Cat also seems slightly to modify his treatment of a theme. Whereas in past albums his rhythm were expressed in staccato bursts of energy, they are most continuous in the Foreigner Suite. Cat has said that the suite was not a preplanned opus; it was written in fragments but he considers it one song. Lyrically, it is extremely fragmented, and the music serves an important role in drawing the disjoint elements together. It makes easy listening, but a reading of the lyrics leaves one with overall disappointment. They are highly subjective, a Joycean excursion with an occasional clever turn, but would hardly qualify as literary or even comprehensible. The music can stand alone and, in many cases, the instrumental interludes are the best part of the album. Cat should brush up on his poetry, though.

More instruments

On "Foreigner," Cat also departs from the blues in that he incorporates more instruments. The choral backup appears again along with some new musicians. Jan Roussel's string arrangements are outstanding. Cat also produced the album himself, in addition to doing the writing and cooperating with the arranging.

It's too bad the suite leads off the album—because it is so impressive that it eclipses everything afterward. Side 2 could almost be termed filler alongside the suite, although the songs really do grow on you if you keep listening.

In "The Hurt," am radio's "best of album" choice, Cat reverts back to the old rhythmic form punctuated with frequent pauses. It's very similar to "Silo." Lyrically, it's the best song on the album—which, again indicates the high edge quality of the writing, since it's nothing great. The introduction of "How Many Times" is a rolleér—slow and easy piano sets you up for Brook Benton, and Cat even does a fair thickness imitation of him. As far as words go, however, it's all been said before.

Rock audition

Cat Stevens with a razor pedal? Sounds unlikely, but "Later" could be Cat's audition for a rock group. It's an interesting piece, with some unexpected shifts of theme, mood, instruments, and rhythm, and the violin accompaniment takes the hard edge off it. All in all, the album is well done, but steel yourself for a departure from the Fesner and the Firecat and Tea for the Tillerman under- entertainment. Disablers won't like the new embellishments, but the sincere listener will recognize them as growth rather than gimmicks.

Dugan describes AAUP role

by Jeanne Murphy
Staff Reporter

"The AAUP is a defender of individuals; academic members have the ability to speak out on delicate matters, and doing this in such a way that they are free from repercussions of the administration," said economics professor Dennis Dugan. As chairman of the local AAUP he emphasized that the organization has a fine tradition of defending academic freedom.

During the summer months the AAUP organized its executive committee and discussed important issues, ranging from the purposes of the AAUP to equal rights of faculty members, said Dugan.

Frisbee fly-off contest at carney tonight

by Mary Kay Baron
Staff Reporter

Notre Dame's first official Frisbee Champ will be determined tonight at the Carnival '73's "Frisbee Fly-Off Contest." It will begin at 5 p.m. near the WBBR frisbee booth, located east of the flagpole on the South Quad. Sponsored by WBBR-FM in conjunction with the Notre Dame Student Government, the frisbee booth will be full of free frisbees. The Individual Events Competition will lead-off the night's activities with the M.T.A. (most time aloft). Distance and Accuracy Contests. Individual events champs are to be named before Father Hesburgh addresses the student body. Following his speech, activities will resume and the God's Frisbee Contest will make its debut.

Everyone is encouraged to participate since there will be no losers and great prizes. For the God's Frisbee teams, students must organize to compete in groups consisting of between 2 and 8 players. Yesterday's Observer may be consulted for the rules and more detailed information.

The individual events champ and the winning God's Frisbee Team will receive official Notre Dame Frisbee Team shirts (if plans are made). Winners and great prizes. For the God's Frisbee teams, students must organize to compete in groups consisting of between 2 and 8 players. Yesterday's Observer may be consulted for the rules and more detailed information.

Food service feedback:

South Dining Hall faster

by Paul Young
Staff Reporter

An overwhelming majority of students' comments concerning dining improvements made at the South Dining Hall, it was learned in an Observer survey. Food Service Director Edmund T. Price is pleased with the new system and hasn't yet found a dissatisfied student. He attributes these improvements to good planning and the new scramble system.

The scramble system employed in the South Dining Hall has been used successfully at other institutions all over the world. Here at Notre Dame it has opened two additional serving lines to students as well as rem­ving all serving lines from the dining room, thereby considerably cutting down on the noise in his area.

The system seems to be working, according to Price. Last Friday at noon a young lady was timed from the moment she entered the dining hall, passed through the scramble area and reached her seat. The entire process took only five minutes on of the busiest days of the week at the South Dining Hall.

Last year an equivalent test under the old system would have lasted ten to fifteen minutes. Therein lies the main advantage of the new system. The system has also reduced the noise level in the newly air conditioned dining hall.

Register your car
Traffic tickets multiply

by David Kominetzki
Staff Reporter

With more than 10,000 traffic tickets issued last year by Notre Dame Security, Dave Grimme, Campus Judicial Board coordinator, warns students:

"Register your car, and read the traffic regulations manual. Cars without registration stickers parked in university lots are fined $20. A $50 fine is assessed for parking on university property without permission.

In addition to paying the fine the owner then has to pay the registration fee to legally park his car on campus.

A car owner is fined $10 for parking a registered car in the wrong lot."

"For instance," Grimme said, "I would cost a student $10 for parking overnight in the St. Patrick Center.

If a car has received five tickets for parking on campus in one day, it is removed from campus without the owner being notified. The most frequent violation is just not registering a car, especially with off-campus students. And the off-campus student only pays $10 for his registration. Compared to the $25 for the on-campus student," Grimme said.

"Also, a student who lends his car out to someone else is still responsible for where it is parked.

"The best advice I can give is that a student register his car, and then make sure he is familiar with the campus traffic regulations," Grimme said.

Grimme said the education security will tell students what the manual says, not what someone else, even a security guard, interprets it to say.

With more than 3,000 cars registered with security, and with the memories of more than $30,000 in traffic fines paid to Students Accountants, Grimme hopes that everyone is sufficiently warmed to follow the campus traffic regulations.

Activities triumph were represented Monday night, compared to 60 in last year.

Our organization, Neighborhood Student Help Program, enjoyed greater success this year. Last year only 30 students signed to tutor South Bend grade school children.

"This year we signed about 200 people for our tutoring program," said Mary Ann McCarth, coordinator of Neighborhood Student Help.

Michael D. Grandin, director of CILA, and Luc McCulloagh of Headstart, were again present with student response. Both attributed Activity Triumphant success to organization and good location in LaFortune Ball Room.

Notre Dame Rowing Club had 90 sign-ups a great increase from last year. "Since approximately 30 girls signed up, we are considering a girl's crew," said Frank Longbouy of the Rowing Club.

Bicycle registration

This information will then be filed in Computer Card's national computer with terminals in most cities in addition to the Notre Dame security files. The biggest advantage in this, Pears noted, was that the registration would be cross-referenced by serial number, manufacturer and owner's name.

The student will receive an identification card to keep with him and a sticker to place on the bike's frame.

Singleton said that if someone does know the serial number or cannot find it, he should bring the bike itself to the booths. If there is no serial number on the bike, he said that metal decals would be available to help stamp a number on the bike.

The Computer Card registration would be in effect for five years, he added.

Senior class plans trip to Miami game

by Judy Raschert
Staff Reporter

The Notre Dame-Miami football game will highlight this year's Senior Class Trip to Miami, Florida, said Jerry Samson, Senior Class President. November 29-December 2, the trip is open to all Notre Dame and St. Mary's students at a cost of $160, with an option to pay $125 to Disneyworld for $25.

The four-day trip is limited to 160 students on a first come, first served basis. Details: Samson, all transportation and the game ticket are included in the total price. A $25 non-refundable deposit is being collected at the Notre Dame Travel Bureau and is due by Friday, September 29. Under the present itinerary, buses will depart from the Circle after classes on Thursday, November 29, for Chicago, where students will catch a direct flight to Miami. Accommodations will be provided at the Twelve Caesars a beach front hotel in Miami. A party is slated to celebrate the first day arrival.

Friday may be spent on the beach or at Disneyworld. The $25 Disney World fee includes transportation and the game ticket for parking on university property. In addition to paying the fine the owner then has to pay the registration fee to legally park his car on campus.

Linemen, ends fall maladies

by John Finan

-Success in any athletic event depends on a great deal on the ability to adapt to adversity. The kind of adversity which usually separates the good teams from the bad is spelled injuries.

Last season, Notre Dame's fortunes suddenly took a turn for the worse one October afternoon when frosh tackle sensation Steve Nejaus tore up his knee. What followed could have qualified for a full chapter in Ripley's Believe it or Not. Injury after injury depleted the Irish defense from four until, on January 1st, Notre Dame had lost three games, the most ever under Ara Parseghian.

Now that kind of nightmarish adversity is spreading across the surname list, and wrecking havoc in line coaches Wally Moore and Brian Boyle's plans for a successful 1973 season.

Meanwhile, receiver coach Mike Stock has problems, though less serious, of his own. It is spelled consistency, and the lack of it among his reserve receivers is beginning to be a worry.

The line trouble started all on September 1st. The Irish were going through a routine scrimmage, when suddenly tri-captain Frank Hatfield, Notre Dame's All-America pick at guard, fell to the ground screaming in pain. The diagnosis, as you well know, was torn ligaments.

"These injuries have hurt," Boyle reminisces. "You hate to see anyone hurt, especially your key seniors.""The line situation for the opening 10 days hinges against Northwestern, and in an emergency, either Moore or Boyle might have to line up in front of end-tackle.

A pair of juniors continue to mass the tackle spots on the line, but Boyle sees a weakness in his tackling strength with the injuries to Bauer and Quehl.

Senior Dennis Luzzi (6-3, 252) and goalie John O'Donnell (6-1, 235) have the kids who want to do the job but who have the problem of Pomarico's absenteeism.

"Our main goal," said coach Digger Phelps, "is to establish a big-time tennis program at St. Mary's University Tennis Center. The Notre Dame sailing club in Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum the day this week from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

"It's a good way to develop your game," Digger explained. "We've had success with the insertion of senior Mark Brenneman to be replacing the departed Dave Dres.

"Last spring, we didn't know about Brenneman," Moore said. "He was coming off a back injury last season."

"Well, Mark has come along strong in both the spring and pre-season," Moore went on.

Senior Joe Alvarado (6-1, 229) will back up Brenneman and handle the deep snaps on kick situations for the Irish. Juniors Andy Rehan (6-1, 234) and Jack O'Donnell (6-1, 232) and freshmen Vince Klee (6-4, 230) and John McCarthy (6-3, 230) are waiting in the middle.

Receiver coach Mike Stock has 13 catches for 369 yards and 4 touchdowns in two season with Kevin O'Shea (6-4, 181), punter Brian's son, as brother and the leading receiver for the 1972 junior varsity (28-26-2). Stock foresees all three seeing action this season.

As season train the offensive and receivers have their problems, Notre Dame still will field a first-rate backfield. Coaches Boyle, Moore, and Stock are not that concerned, yet. In the words of Boyle, "We have the kids who want to do the job better than we've, we'll have a good team."

Eliminations open SMC's tennis season

by Mindie Bright

A woman's tennis tournament will cap an October meeting at St. Mary's to determine the 12 members of the SMC tennis team.

Initial registration was held Saturday night at Stapleton Lounge, and last year's co-captains, Linda Cornner and Measerman Koman, reported a heavy turnout for the affirmative.

Tourney applications will be accepted until Monday morning, and anyone interested in participating should contact on (415) or student coach Jean Manigault (272-246).

The tournament will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday at the St. Mary's courts, and practices will be held every day this week from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Frosh Ned Band and Ed Brown are the team's other coaches, and they have planned a full year of competition which includes tournaments with schools in Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan. Practices on indoor courts in Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum.

Her main goal," said coach Digger Phelps, "is to establish a big-time tennis program at St. Mary's University Tennis Center. The Irish Sailors meet every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon.

"Last spring, we didn't know about Brenneman," Moore said. "He was coming off a back injury last season."

"Well, Mark has come along strong in both the spring and pre-season," Moore went on.

Senior Joe Alvarado (6-1, 229) will back up Brenneman and handle the deep snaps on kick situations for the Irish. Juniors Andy Rehan (6-1, 234) and Jack O'Donnell (6-1, 232) and freshmen Vince Klee (6-4, 230) and John McCarthy (6-3, 230) are waiting in the middle.

Receiver coach Mike Stock has 13 catches for 369 yards and 4 touchdowns in two season with Kevin O'Shea (6-4, 181), punter Brian's son, as brother and the leading receiver for the 1972 junior varsity (28-26-2). Stock foresees all three seeing action this season.

As season train the offensive and receivers have their problems, Notre Dame still will field a first-rate backfield. Coaches Boyle, Moore, and Stock are not that concerned, yet. In the words of Boyle, "We have the kids who want to do the job better than we've, we'll have a good team."

Notre Dame Stadium one week from Saturday

Ticketmaster Don Bouffard has announced that tickets will be sold in advance and at 8:00 at the door. In other words, the sellout is expected. So far there, you're in there. Early Notre Dame odds (as set by Fin the Irishman) rate this game a 2-1 favorite over the annual ND-SMC As a Toolgate game.

-Success in any athletic event depends on a great deal on the ability to adapt to adversity. The kind of adversity which usually separates the good teams from the bad is spelled injuries.

Last season, Notre Dame's fortunes suddenly took a turn for the worse one October afternoon when frosh tackle sensation Steve Nejaus tore up his knee. What followed could have qualified for a full chapter in Ripley's Believe it or Not. Injury after injury depleted the Irish defense from four until, on January 1st, Notre Dame had lost three games, the most ever under Ara Parseghian.

Now that kind of nightmarish adversity is spreading across the surname list, and wrecking havoc in line coaches Wally Moore and Brian Boyle's plans for a successful 1973 season.

Meanwhile, receiver coach Mike Stock has problems, though less serious, of his own. It is spelled consistency, and the lack of it among his reserve receivers is beginning to be a worry.

The line trouble started all on September 1st. The Irish were going through a routine scrimmage, when suddenly tri-captain Frank Hatfield, Notre Dame's All-America pick at guard, fell to the ground screaming in pain. The diagnosis, as you well know, was torn ligaments.

"These injuries have hurt," Boyle reminisces. "You hate to see anyone hurt, especially your key seniors.""The line situation for the opening 10 days hinges against Northwestern, and in an emergency, either Moore or Boyle might have to line up in front of end-tackle.

A pair of juniors continue to mass the tackle spots on the line, but Boyle sees a weakness in his tackling strength with the injuries to Bauer and Quehl.

Senior Dennis Luzzi (6-3, 252) and goalie John O'Donnell (6-1, 235) have the kids who want to do the job but who have the problem of Pomarico's absenteeism.

"Our main goal," said coach Digger Phelps, "is to establish a big-time tennis program at St. Mary's University Tennis Center. The Notre Dame sailing club in Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum the day this week from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

"It's a good way to develop your game," Digger explained. "We've had success with the insertion of senior Mark Brenneman to be replacing the departed Dave Dres.
