Vol. VIII, No. 44

serving the notre dame - st. mary's community

Friday, November 9, 1973

THE OBSERVER

School to open August 28
Classes will resume prior to Labor Day

Staff Reporter
by Terry Keeney

Notre Dame and St. Mary's will begin classes for the 1974-75 fall semester on Wednesday, August 28, informed university sources revealed yesterday.

Administration officials were reluctant to comment on the proposed calendar until after its formal release scheduled for next Friday, November 16. But University Registrar, Richard Sullivan, who refused to release the calendar nonetheless, explained the rationale for the pre-Labor Day start.

"From the academic point of view we had to lengthen the fall semester to guarantee that we had the required number of class days, said Sullivan.

Sullivan observed that, if the University wanted to continue the practice of ending the fall semester before Christmas, an earlier start was necessary.

Sr. John Miriam Jones, assistant to the provost, did not know the specifics of the new schedule. "I'm sure we're going to start in August, but I don't know the date," she said.

For the past four years, the fall semester has ended before Christmas. During this time, classes could not start before Labor Day because of a trailer show, according to Sr. John Miriam.

The Midwest Mobile, Modular and Recreational Vehicle Show, each Labor Day weekend occupied much of the campus. "When they're here the whole campus is congermmed," said Sr. John Miriam.

The university contract with the mobile vehicle show expired this year, enabling the university to start before Labor Day.

Dean of Administration Leo Corbaci refused to comment on the new schedule until its release next week. Corbaci, whose office is responsible for compiling the schedule, said, "I'd prefer to keep the hush up agreement."

Frederick Crosson, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, said he has received no official word of the new calendar.

"I gather from the newspapers and the Tribune that the calendar that has been established. But I haven't been given a schedule," Crosson said.

Dr. William Hickey, vice-president for academic affairs at St. Mary's emphasized that the calendar would apply to both Notre Dame and St. Mary's.

"There is every intention on the part of both schools to have a common calendar," he said.

Corbaci: "...prefers to keep the hush up agreement."

Sullivan: refused to release calendar

Hickey contended that there has been no "firm, final decision" about the new calendar. But he countered, "There is a definite leaning toward a particular calendar. It may very well be a calendar that begins before Labor Day."

The Law School will remain unaffected by the schedule change. Law registration will begin August 22, compared with the August 23 registration date this semester.

Fr. Ferdinand Brown, associate provost, and Richard Cookin, director of information services, refused to comment about the proposed calendar.

University Provost James Burtchael and Assistant Provost William Burke were unavailable for comment.

Israel, Egypt agree to pact averting war

By United Press International

In a dramatic breakthrough for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's personal diplomacy, U.S. officials said Thursday Israel and Egypt had agreed to a five-point pact averting a new war in the Middle East.

The settlement of the immediate military situation, according an earlier broadcast by the Israeli government radio, includes:

- Lifting of the blockade of the Egyptian Third Army and Suez City to bring in supplies to beleaguered troops.
- Prompt exchange of prisoners of war.
- Lifting of the blockade of Elat, Israel's gateway to Red Sea.
- Egyptian and Israeli commanders to discuss establishing a cease-fire lines.
- Future negotiations between Arabs and Israelis for a final settlement.

Official announcement of the agreement will be made simultaneously in Washington, Cairo, and Tel Aviv Friday. The officials said they first must communicate complete details of the breakthrough to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

Kissinger, buoyant from a new diplomatic victory behind him and speaking of permanent peace in the Middle East, arrived in Saudi Arabia Thursday for talks on peace and oil.

They said the sides might open direct negotiations for a permanent settlement before the end of the year. It would be the first time for the Arabs and Israelis to sit down together at the peace table.

"We are perhaps for the first time at the opening of a true peace settlement between us and the Arabs," said Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said of the agreement. "Perhaps, too, the world of diplomacy will come together in time at the opening of a true peace settlement before the end of the year. It would be the first time for the Arabs and Israelis to sit down together at the peace table."

"We are perhaps for the first time at the opening of a true peace settlement between us and the Arabs," said Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said of the agreement. "Perhaps, too, the world of diplomacy will come together in time at the opening of a true peace settlement before the end of the year. It would be the first time for the Arabs and Israelis to sit down together at the peace table."

Egypt reacted by saying that, contrary to reports, Egypt had not agreed to lift the blockade of Bab el Mandeb strait, the southern gateway to the Red Sea.

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, however, listed Bab el Mandeb among the elements on which steps are being taken to pave the way for an Arab-Israeli peace conference.

Word of the agreement first came from Israeli government radio and Israeli newspapers said the plan calls for Israel eventually to pull back its troops from Egypt and the Suez Canal and for Cairo to withdraw its 2nd and 3rd armies from the east bank of the canal. They said peace talks reportedly would begin within two months.

Israeli sources said Prime Minister Golda Meir's government accepted the peace plan Thursday following final talks with Joseph J. Sisco, assistant secretary of state for near eastern affairs.
McGovern to speak Sunday

Senator George S. McGovern of South Dakota, defeated Democratic presidential candididate in 1972, will discuss contemporary politics at a public talk in Stepan Center at 8 p.m., Sunday, November 11. McGovern’s talk is sponsored by the Student Bar Association of the Law School and the Student Union Academic Commission. Charles Nau, lecturer chairman of the Bar Association, was a member of the 1970 McGovern Commission on Party Reform.

Sandy’s talk will be McGovern’s third Notre Dame appearance in recent years. He debated the morality of the Vietnam war with Senator Gail McGee of Wyoming at a 1967 symposium and was a speaker at a Brademas-Harkey rally in 1970. He is a candidate for re-election South Dakota next year.

McGovern’s talk is part of the Robert F. Kennedy Lecture Series on the campus. Other noted figures speaking at previous lectures include Frank MKanskiwicz, manager of the Kennedy campaign, and Charles Evers, outspoken black politician.

ND student suspects in attempted assault

by Tony Trucco Staff Reporter

Two Notre Dame students are suspects, according to ND Security, in an attempted assault on a St. Mary’s junior last Thursday. Security Director Anthony Kovatch says his office is waiting for a positive identification of one of the two men before filling out formal complaint.

The girl was approached between the St. Mary’s library and science buildings around 9 p.m. by a man who came up to her, exposed himself, and put his arms around her. Kovatch said, “She resisted him and escaped unharmed.”

“We picked up the first suspect Friday,” he continued. “The girl had given us a good ID, but she couldn’t positively identify the man we brought in.” Security police then found the second suspect, he said.

“This is our first problem with a Notre Dame man,” he noted. “The first incident (an attempted assault in early September) did not involve a Notre Dame student.” A South Bend resident is being held in that case.

The girl described her assailant as a “white male, 5’10”, 160 pounds, with long black hair tied back with a headband, and wore wire-rimmed dark glasses. He had a mustache and beard and wore an army fatigue jacket and blue jeans. “The man was from 18 to 21 years old, Kovatch said, and escaped on a yellow 10-speed bicycle.

“She ran back to Madilova hall,” he continued, “and called her roommate. The roommate called us, and Security was there in a few seconds. Both girls that have problems would call right away like that, so security could do much more.”

He added that plans are being considered for a front gate at St. Mary’s to regulate incoming traffic at night. An additional road to provide one way routes in both directions is also a possibility, he said.

“We’ve been fortunate,” commented Dean of Students Kathleen Mulaney, “in that no one has been hurt. Both girls (referring also to the September incident) kept their cool and handled their situations very well. We urge girls, if anything like this should happen to them, to get in touch with security right away. They’ll be treated con-

(continued on page 4)
Jazz at Nine
Alternate reno plans suggested

by R. Thomas Thues
Staff Reporter

The LaFortune Renovation Committee met yesterday to discuss problems concerning the proposed Irish Pub construction. At the meeting Vice President of Student Affairs Phillip Faccenda suggested a redirection of the committee's efforts. Although the Board of Trustees rejected the first bid of $244,000 for Pub construction they suggested an alternate plan which would include renovation of the Hoynes Building (Psychology Department), the mail, and the possible

Pitt agenda includes parties.

by Tracy Prosciolo
Staff Reporter

Parties and a football game are on the weekend agenda for Irish fans going to Pittsburgh today. Pitt Club President Bob Brennan said approximately 120 Notre Dame and St. Mary's students will leave this afternoon on busses rented by the club.

A pre-game party, featuring music, dancing and special guests, is planned for this evening in the Grand Ballroom of the William Penn Hotel in downtown Pittsburgh. The party is for all ND fans in town, and is not restricted to club members, Brennan said. Another party will take place in the hotel after the game as well. The hotel clerk will have information on the location, he added.

"We're confident the trip will be a success," Brennan commented, "and we guarantee Pittsburgh Irish that Pittsburgh harbors the staunchest ND fans, even when they play Pitt."

The club and local fans will especially be cheering their man, Tom Clements, who "moved from the Golden Triangle to play under the Golden Dame," be said.

New experiences await you in the ancient cellars beneath the Pier. We built the Pier in the old brewery on Center Street. Now we've turned it's ancient cellars into shops. What better place? Its walls have weathered the creaks and groans and joys of life since 1858. It's an intimate and earthy place to browse and shop. The old cellars, beneath the Pier.

The committee work has been primarily in the development of the philosophy of the building, but added, "I still feel that the Pub should be in there."

The committee will suspend planning until the officers meet again next week.

Faccenda suggests redirection of committee's efforts.

by Joseph LaFlare
Staff Reporter

Maureen Lathers resigned from the Board of Commissioners last month. Since then, no one has been elected to replace her.

"I felt that the work needed to do a good job just took up too much of my time," Lathers said. She felt that someone else with more time could do a better job.

According to Dennis Etienne, Student Body President, "I had a replacement in mind, but the Board of Commissioners decided to nominate some more people and give the decision some more consideration."

The Board of Commissioners has been very busy with SLC meetings lately, and have not yet had the opportunity to decide on a new member yet. According to Etienne, a new member should be elected next week or sometime in the near future.

New experiences await you in the ancient cellars beneath the Pier.
In the Nineteenth Century Malthus developed his theory that population increases at a faster rate than its means of subsistence. In 1973, the population is still increasing and we are faced with a problem similar to Malthus' theory. The population is growing, and we are faced with it is too late?

The state of Indiana was a pioneer in taking steps to relieve the problem pragmatically and realistically by developing a regional center program administered by Indiana University Medical School using the facilities of various neighboring universities.

Increase and Distribute

In 1967, Governor Edgar Whitcomb commissioned the "Indiana Plan" which was to increase the number of graduates from the Indiana University School of Medicine in as short a time as possible without a major capital expenses or the building of additional educational facilities. The plan established seven regional centers for medical education for first-year students.

Even though the centers have a cooperative agreement with the respective universities' facilities, these schools are not connected administratively or academically with the program.

The regional centers are located all over Indiana, thus spreading the medical opportunities to all residents. Centers are in South Bend at Notre Dame, Bloomington, Lafayette, Muncie, Terre Haute, Evansville, and Gary.

The Notre Dame center is in the basement of the Wenanger-Kirch building.

Thomas A. Troeger, M.D., director of the Notre Dame center, claims that the goal of the regional program is to increase the number of doctors in Indiana and to improve the distribution of the physicians in the entire state. He believes the plan can increase the number of doctors in Indiana by one-third without delay and without spending $50 million to build a new state medical school.

The seven regional centers are "advantageous" in that they afford small class sizes with a future minimum of twenty-four in a class said, Dr. Troeger. Importantly, they have increased the total number in the I.U. Med School freshman class by thirty percent.

This year's freshman class totals 38 versus the 250 freshman three years ago. Fourteen first-year students are located at the South Bend center at Notre Dame.

In previous years, there have been at least two to three Notre Dame graduates in the school, according to Troeger, but this year there is only one.

This program enables the students to have easy access to instructors. It also gives students an opportunity to attend classes close to home. Through the plan, medical students have more immediate contact with physicians and patients by doing clinical work in surrounding communities.

Senior "elective year"

A pilot program began seven years ago with two students in the center at Notre Dame and two at Purdue to see if other educational institutions other than the Med School in Indianapolis could provide the basic sciences which freshman med students study, said Troeger.

Courses in the freshman year include biochemistry, microbiology, anatomy, and physiology. Pathology and pharmacology are offered first-semester sophomore years.

Microbiology and biochemistry are taught by Notre Dame professors and the other courses are instructed by IU faculty with offices at Notre Dame. There are only two other full-time faculty members besides Troeger, Jerry Critz and Jack O'Malley, both Ph.D.'s. O'Malley is also associate director for the program at Notre Dame.

Only freshman are located at the regional centers. During sophomore and junior years, students merge at the main school in Indianapolis. Troeger hopes to enroll a sophomore class at the Notre Dame center by 1975.

Senior year is an "elective year" in which students can select their school location. They choose from a curriculum of 480 courses rotating in clinical procedures through the fifty-six community hospitals in Indiana, as well as in 18 physician's offices.

Helping internship recruitment

During the freshman year, the students take part in what Troeger calls "Saturday Clinical Correlation Courses." These sessions are meeting with private practitioners in which students watch and question a doctor in the hospital and sometimes in his office to bring together what the student has seen and what he has learned in class.

Troeger claims that freshmen think whatever they learn in the classroom is applicable to the bedside. "The conferences help to correlate the material between class and practice. I think this is stimulating to the student," Troeger suggested.

Applications to the school are reviewed by one committee at the Indianapolis campus whether the student is attending a regional center or the main campus. Requirements are the same at any other medical school. Each student is permitted to select program preference and campus site. Once accepted, ninety-five percent receive their first campus choice which the remaining five percent are located at their second choice, Troeger said. He also stated that very few out-of-state students are accepted.

Besides increasing the freshman class enrollment and distributing the doctors throughout the state, the EU plan has been successful in improving recruitment for residency and internship at community hospitals. In fact, this system has been so successful, that forty other states have initiated similar programs, according to Dr. Steven Beering, associate dean and director of the statewide program.

get out of the cold...

Ride the Off-Campus Shuttle

only

10¢

The Loving Cup

From one beer lover to another

THE STROH PREMIER COMPANY, DETROIT, MICHIGAN 48226

TEAL  DOLBY*  DAYS!

SAVE $100.00

SOUND MASTERS
421 Hickory Rd.
Scottsdale Mall
Deja Vu

Here we go again!

The Observer has discovered that on Nov. 16, the University will release their calendar for the 1974-75 school year and it’s nearly the same schedule that students have been fighting against for three years now.

It’s kind of incredible because we’ve been here before.

The Past Repeats

Wednesday, March 8, 1972 - "1972-73 schedule starts classes early" blared The Observer headlines. The university explained that the semester was too short and that more class days were needed. Further they claimed that the early start was necessitated by a mid-semester break. The final justification offered was that it followed the trend being established by other Indiana schools. The article admitted that student response was negative.

Thursday, March 9, 1972 -- "Students try to change the new calendar" was the headline on the second day lead about the calendar in The Observer.

Friday’s issued revealed in an Observer poll that 79 percent of the students were not in favor of the calendar. On March 14, we published that over 3400 students had signed petitions disfavoring the opening.

Two years ago considerable student pressure forced the issue and caused a change. And students are now faced with the glaring fact that such pressure must be duplicated.

Jerry Lutkus

The Male Role

Editor:

In all the talk about abortion, I have yet to hear any discussion, much less a solution, which takes into account the man’s responsibility as impregnator. Why are men in government, education, religion always talking in terms of controlling the woman when the simplest solution rests with themselves and with the young boys who so vigorously oppose abortion.

It seems to me the easiest way to eliminate abortion is to control the impregnator. NOT the woman already impregnated.

One method comes to mind. A man would engage in sexual intercourse with a woman only when the woman wanted a baby. He could continue sexual relations with her if she was convinced that he would fulfill completely his responsibilities as father, from the birth of the child to his-her independent adulthood.

Otherwise, she could discontinue sexual contact with him and take care of the baby herself, as many women are forced to do anyway.

The benefits of this system are immediately apparent. Since there would be no unwanted pregnancies, there would be no abortions; "Phantom fatherhood" would be impossible; men would be cared for and loved by both parents; unwed motherhood could be cared for and by choice and welfare motherhood would be by choice (probably due to the limited skills of the mother) and society could refer to its own problems as both the "non-be-evil" forms of motherhood.

Under a system of controlling the impregnator, men would be involved more directly and personally in the fight against abortion. It would give them an opportunity to make a real physical pro-life commitment by sacrificing any self indulgent pursuit of sexual pleasure in order to share, with women, in the greater good of sexual responsibility.

Therefore, I propose that the Right to Life Movement begin to give even the recognition they deserve to their own role in the abortion.

Jerry Lutkus

THE OBSERVER
AN INDEPENDENT STUDENT NEWSPAPER

Art Ferranti
Executive Editor

Jerry Lutkus
Editor-in-Chief

Dan Barrett
Executive Editor

Lee Gentile
Business Manager

News: 283-1715
Editorials: 283-8641
Business: 933-7471

Friday, November 9, 1973

Deja Vu

Here we go again!

The Observer has discovered that on Nov. 16, the University will release their calendar for the 1974-75 school year and it’s nearly the same schedule that students have been fighting against for three years now.

It’s kind of incredible because we’ve been here before.

The Past Repeats

Wednesday, March 8, 1972 - "1972-73 schedule starts classes early" blared The Observer headlines. The university explained that the semester was too short and that more class days were needed. Further they claimed that the early start was necessitated by a mid-semester break. The final justification offered was that it followed the trend being established by other Indiana schools. The article admitted that student response was negative.

Thursday, March 9, 1972 -- "Students try to change the new calendar" was the headline on the second day lead about the calendar in The Observer.

Friday’s issued revealed in an Observer poll that 79 percent of the students were not in favor of the calendar. On March 14, we published that over 3400 students had signed petitions disfavoring the opening.

Two years ago considerable student pressure forced the issue and caused a change. And students are now faced with the glaring fact that such pressure must be duplicated.

Jerry Lutkus

The Male Role

Editor:

In all the talk about abortion, I have yet to hear any discussion, much less a solution, which takes into account the man’s responsibility as impregnator. Why are men in government, education, religion always talking in terms of controlling the woman when the simplest solution rests with themselves and with the young boys who so vigorously oppose abortion.

It seems to me the easiest way to eliminate abortion is to control the impregnator. NOT the woman already impregnated.

One method comes to mind. A man would engage in sexual intercourse with a woman only when the woman wanted a baby. He could continue sexual relations with her if she was convinced that he would fulfill completely his responsibilities as father, from the birth of the child to his-her independent adulthood.

Otherwise, she could discontinue sexual contact with him and take care of the baby herself, as many women are forced to do anyway.

The benefits of this system are immediately apparent. Since there would be no unwanted pregnancies, there would be no abortions; "Phantom fatherhood" would be impossible; men would be cared for and loved by both parents; unwed motherhood could be cared for and by choice and welfare motherhood would be by choice (probably due to the limited skills of the mother) and society could refer to its own problems as both the "non-be-evil" forms of motherhood.

Under a system of controlling the impregnator, men would be involved more directly and personally in the fight against abortion. It would give them an opportunity to make a real physical pro-life commitment by sacrificing any self indulgent pursuit of sexual pleasure in order to share, with women, in the greater good of sexual responsibility.

Therefore, I propose that the Right to Life Movement begin to give even the recognition they deserve to their own role in the abortion.

Jerry Lutkus
Letters To A Lonely God
the assurances of ponies reverend robert griffin

What the memory of the dead Cathy was to Heathcliff, what the loss of Milton’s parents was to young Napoleon, the death of the pony that probably never existed. The pony was a gift promised me by my grandparents who ordered me on a sick bed on which (it was supposed) I lay dying; since I was only five years old, my family did not feel I had quite out-lived my usefulness.

Grandfather lost over the pale little boy, crock-raped and pneumoniac. “Mate,” he said in it was captain’s voice with which he had argued against the wind and the wave for the safety of his ship. “Mate, when you’re hale and hearty, there’ll be a sweet young Shetland for you to ride as your very own, if only you get well as soon as I can.”

I wouldn’t want it thought that I swapped the glitter of celestial kingdoms for the promise of a pony ride; because pony rides or not, I had no intention of dying at the age of five.

But I opened one eye and looked at him as though the assurances of ponies was all I needed to hear.

“All right,” I said. From that moment on, with a dishonesty like a Yankee trader’s, I began to get better, as though I had done some horse-trading that coaxed me back from the brink of eternity. It was a lie.

But my grandfather was one of the great liars in the world. In that lie, you see, there was truth, I was too young to be dishonest with him. I wish a God had been too old to be dishonest with me now.

I was seven days later, he gave me the sad news. My pony, he said, had died of sea-sickness out there on the ocean, and if I were honest with him, I could pretend was a pony I was riding, named Misty. On Saturday mornings, I would hitch myself up to a broomstick, which I pretended was a pony I was riding, named after Tom Mix’s horse, Tony. On Saturday afternoon, I would ride to the movies, where he would wait faithfully for me, curled outside a neighborhood theater where I went with the other kids to see the chase adventures of our great western hero, Hopalong Cassidy. At night, I would lie down in green pastures at the foot of my bed, where I could hear him, during sleep, making neigh, neigh noises to nut-brown fillies he met in dreams of his own. I suppose, as I grew bigger, I must have substituted horses for ponies; but in the intensity of my imagination, horses and ponies became interchangeable. Looking back, every animal, including Rin-Tin-Tin, was to me, just a different shape of Shetland.

I thought so much about ponies as a child that, after a while, I began to believe that I actually did own a pony, stabled on a farm where only close friends, like the Robinson twins, could visit him. Once, a photographer leading a lovely little brown Shetland, and he only cost two hundred dollars. His name was Misty, from the name of the lovely ways children share fantasies with one another.

“There he is. There’s my pony.” Those other children would believe me, though they had similar pictures of themselves astriding the very same photographer’s beast. But I spoke so lovingly of my pet, they wanted to believe in him too, which is one of the lovely ways children share fantasies with one another.

By the summer of 1964, ten years after being ordained as a priest, I was a great distance in time-away from my fantasy life, in the saddle with a pony named Tony, but by this time, I had other fictions I was living with. I had become involved in the life of a Boston family with three children whose father was not bothering them. (For those who remember, this was the family of the Thousand Dollar Christmas). I wanted to think of a real neat thing to do for those children named Chris, Frankie, and Loren. Would you believe I bought them a pony? He wasn’t much of a pony. He wasn’t Shetland, and he only cost two hundred dollars. He was white, and his eyes seemed blue, and his name was Misty. He stayed on a pony farm outside the city, and on Saturdays, I would bring the children there so that they could ride. One of the most beautiful sights I have ever seen was young Frankie, a golden-haired child on a streak of white, galloping that pony like a ranch master across the green, New England countryside. I felt like a provident father who has given his son one of the essential experiences of life.

But, of course, essential experiences have to be paid for, and it is not easy to board an unproven-eyed brumby who was always in excess of my lunch money for him. In winter, when the children were prevented by snow from riding, I was tempted to get a camera and go around the neighborhoods of Boston, taking pictures, for a price, induced by Misty’s unwillingness to starve himself to death during January.

After a year, in the summer of 1965, I packed the children and their pony off to a summer camp in Maine, where they enjoyed each other until September, when finally Misty was turned over to other owners. That story, when it is told, will be called The Two Thousand Dollar Summer. I don’t think either of the world, or my superiors who are the guardians of my vow of poverty, are ready for that story now.

Despite the financial burden of pony-keeping, I have never regretted the gift of Misty to Chris, Loren, and Frankie— even during the winter, when the children never saw him, they knew that somewhere, munching oats, was a pony that belonged to them. I wonder what the difference would have been, in my childhood, if I had known there was a pony that belonged to me? In the end, I had neither a pony nor children that were my very own: but their need was even greater, for they really never had a father.

Maybe ponies are what you give children who do not have fathers who love them. Maybe my grandfather realized I didn’t need my promised Shetland, because he had a father, and a grandfather, who loved me very much.

I hope my grandfather had some such thought as that. It would make it easier to forgive him as a Yankee trader whose story haunted the mind of a child with the ghost of a pony that never found rest in the sea.

crosby and nash - the virtues of friendship

David Crosby on Graham Nash: “Now Crosby and Nash, just the two of them, with a voice that is a duet—a type—Graham Nash is one of the most highly evolved people on this planet. He is my teacher and he’s certainly the finest cat I have ever met and I am forever in his debt and I know. Excuse me for usin’ that word, because it is. He is one of those very rare people, he is just an incredible human being! And don’t just trust me. Ask anybody that knows him and they will say that he is one of the major joys in their lives.

“Wylie (Graham Nash) and I are a great combination. That’s mostly because of Willie.”

Typical example of Willie (Crosby is referring to the trip from San Francisco to San Diego that he and Nash went on) There he is. Steps on the boat in Fort Lauderdale, “We’re going to San Diego, and that’s a little under 5000 miles, right? And by the time we got to San Diego the cat was standing three-hour watch. Scared. So intelligently that all of us looked upon it as a good time to go to sleep. It was Willie’s watch, ‘cause he had it covered.”

When asked how he thinks Graham sees him, “Well, I hope he sees me as a loyal friend. ‘Cause I am, man. I think he’s one of the most highly evolved beings I ever encountered. The man that I’m the one to say anything and I don’t know what he thinks of me. They (the members of Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young) don’t tell me that they play with me, you know, and I can’t ask very much more than that.”

still together

That was in 1970, just as Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young were reaching the peak of their popularity. Crosby and Nash had done one album together and completed a successful tour without threatening a permanent split. All of this is not so easily accomplished as it looks. For they are each capable of some remarkable tributes to the virtue of friendship that Crosby and Nash are together, and remain together, through all this. Crosby has so much a brash extrovert, a self-proclaimed energy hog. If Nash is more calculating, calm, and generally more reflective. He admires and respects each other, they have an incredible ability to express themselves. They work well together, not because of their basic similarity, but because they are always ready to starve himself to death during January.

But, of course, essential experiences have to be paid for, and it is not easy to board an unproven-eyed brumby who was always in excess of my lunch money for him. In winter, when the children were prevented by snow from riding, I was tempted to get a camera and go around the neighborhoods of Boston, taking pictures, for a price, induced by Misty’s unwillingness to starve himself to death during January.

After a year, in the summer of 1965, I packed the children and their pony off to a summer camp in Maine, where they enjoyed each other until September, when finally Misty was turned over to other owners. That story, when it is told, will be called The Two Thousand Dollar Summer. I don’t think either of the world, or my superiors who are the guardians of my vow of poverty, are ready for that story now.

With the coming of the lifestyle of Crosby and Nash, and the economics of pony-keeping, I have never regretted the gift of Misty to Chris, Loren, and Frankie— even during the winter, when the children never saw him, they knew that somewhere, munching oats, was a pony that belonged to them. I wonder what the difference would have been, in my childhood, if I had known there was a pony that belonged to me? In the end, I had neither a pony nor children that were my very own: but their need was even greater, for they really never had a father.

Maybe ponies are what you give children who do not have fathers who love them. Maybe my grandfather realized I didn’t need my promised Shetland, because he had a father, and a grandfather, who loved me very much.

I hope my grandfather had some such thought as that. It would make it easier to forgive him as a Yankee trader whose story haunted the mind of a child with the ghost of a pony that never found rest in the sea.

watch two musicians play and know that they enjoy what they are doing, and the chance to do it. One possibility is that they will be playing some of the songs from the album they have digitally recorded, Nash and Young have just completed in Neil Young’s home studio.

Also on the bill Saturday night is Linda Ronstadt. She is not only known to play large halls, preferring to entertain in clubs surrounding her home and nearby places. Her beautiful, clear voice and pleasant countenance are sure to be an enjoyable lead-in to the main attraction.
Solzhenitsyn persevered seeker of truth

by Judy Haaroshert
Staff Reporter

"What does it take to be free in the face of political power ac­ carried to Solzhenitsyn's teaching?" asked Dr. Vera Dunham, professor of Slavic Eastern Languages at Wayne
State University, in St. Mary's
Lecture Series Wednesday evening.
Dunham's speech, "Alexander Solzhenitsyn" was part of a lecture series sponsored by the Humanistic Studies Department.
Dunham is a native of Moscow, came to the United States in 1940 and began teaching at University of Iowa in 1949. She has done research on the Soviet Union and has published numerous articles and a book entitled The Big Deal.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn is 56 years old. He is Soviet through and through," began Dunham. In 1946 Solzhenitsyn qualified and spent eight years in a concentration camp and eight months in Siberian eclipse. He won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1970, after having written The Day of Ivan Denisovich, First Circle and Cancer Ward.

"In the Soviet country," Dunham explained, "Solzhenitsyn is gagged and persecuted, but he resists to leve his country. At home he is a seeker of truth, abroad he is a reporter. He is a talented writer that we do not know what to do with."

Dunham stated, "Solzhenitsyn's freedom is not detachment, not acquiescence, but the courage to ask the question in this catastrophic age of curs. She re-iterated this point through several examples in Solzhenitsyn's works. "Most of his work is autobiographical. Many stories could have been about himself, but they are not. They are about Everyone," Dunham said.

One such example is Matrona's
House a short story Solzhenitsyn wrote in 1963. "If I lost my memory and got to choose one story to remember, that is the story I would choose," Dunham claimed. Matrona is a woman who gets herself and her own work dig potatoes.

Dunham found another example in a speaker in the Flea Circle, who said, "The writer is a teacher to other people. A great writer is a teacher in the second government in his country. For that reason no regime has loved great writers, only minor ones." Dunham said that this parallels Solzhenitsyn's own situation.

Ever since the Revolution, the Soviet Government has controlled the Soviet writer in several ways," Dunham said. "It has suppressed him, persecuted him and destroyed him while givning him non-literary tasks, turning him into a servant of political power.
But it has never ignored him,"
Dunham added.

"I am gathering shreds that show
Solzhenitsyn's concern for that sense of self which leads to spiritual freedom," said Dunham.
She said that man can still look at life optimistically, with the will to survive and a freedom from fear, he will continue to struggle and thereby set himself free.
Dunham concluded, "A person who has taken everything from is no longer in your power, he is free
all over again."

The Colonial
Pancake House

"Enjoy a snack or dinner"
35 Varieties of Pancakes
Chicken - Steak - Sandwiches

Your Host
Bob Edwards '50

U.S. 31 (Dixie way) North
(Across from Holiday Inn)

KNIIGHTS OF COLUMBUS
Presents
FRIDAY SATURDAY

THE ROMA welcomes
ND & SMC students!
your host
Frank Anastasio

★ PIZZA ★ LIQUOR ★ ITALIAN FOOD ★
Happy hours 4-7 daily
Dancing to the sophisticated
Big Band music of the

Proceeds Go To CORVILLA

Steve McQueen is the head Reiver.

Steve McQueen is the head Reiver.

Steve McQueen is the head Reiver.

Steve McQueen is the head Reiver.
Friday, November 9, 1973

WHO ARE WE?

We are a relatively young organization which is the result of our hobby developing into a business enterprise.

While still hobbyists we were plagued by a recurring conflict. We had to pay the high price at audio salons or get a good price we had to mail order to the coastal discounters and then take our chances that the equipment never needed repair.

WHAT ARE WE TRYING TO ACCOMPLISH?

Our goal is to combine the business efficiency of the low overhead, high volume wholesale warehouses with the professional guidance and services of the plush audio salons, allowing us to be directly competitive with the lowest prices in the country.

HOW ARE WE GOING TO DO IT?

From our experience we can recommend the best products from a performance and service standpoint thus cutting down the high cost of returned merchandise and repairs. By combining this with super-low prices and large sales promotions we hope to create enough excitement to double the volume normally possible in a store of our size and overhead.

ARE WE MAKING PROGRESS?

Only you can answer that question — so if you haven't shopped for audio components lately come on down to meet us, chat about the newest products, and see what you think of our prices.

SAVE UP TO 70% ON MANY MODELS OF PHONO CARTRIDGES FROM FAMOUS BRANDS LIKE:
- SHURE
- PICKERING
- GRADO
- STANTON
- OTHERS

IF YOU HAVEN'T REPLACED YOUR CARTRIDGE IN 2 YRS. YOU COULD NOW BE DAMAGING YOUR RECORDS

SAVE UP TO 50% OFF LIST ON MANY MODELS OF STEREO HEADPHONES IN ALL PRICE RANGES FROM FAMOUS BRANDS LIKE:
- KOSST
- PIONEER
- SCINTREX
- OTHERS

ODDS "N" ENDS WHILE THEY LAST 30-50% OFF

RECEIVERS
- SOME ONE OF A KIND
- SOME FLOOR MODELS
- SOME DENTED OR SCRATCHED
- SOME DISCONTINUED
- BUT MOST WARRANTED AS NEW AND PRICED AT THE DEALER COST!

RECORDERS
- MARANTZ 4415 *400 * 325
- MARANTZ 4430 *600 * 499
- MARANTZ 2440 *300 * 230
- MARANTZ 4100 *500 * 349
- MARANTZ 2100 *200 * 159
- MARANTZ 4060 *250 * 200
- PIONEER TX-500A *120 * 85
- PIONEER 100's *120 * 85

SPEAKERS
- MARANTZ 4060 *250 * 200
- PIONEER TX-500A *120 * 85
- PIONEER 100's *120 * 85

And MANY MORE

The Audio Specialists
310 North Michigan, South Bend, Indiana 46601
12-8 Weekdays 12-5 Saturdays Phone 232-1611
3,000 tickets remain left for Air Force game by John DeCourcy Staff Reporter

There is a good chance that the Notre Dame Air Force football game will not be sold out, according to N.D. ticket Manager Don Bourfard. "If it isn't, it will be the first time Notre Dame Stadium hasn't been sold out since the 1964 Notre Dame-Army game," Bourfard said. There is still a chance that the game could sell out, and our main hope is that the weather is good on the day of the game," he continued.

There are still 3,000 general admission tickets left, and the student tickets are being converted to general admission tickets at a slow pace. As of November 8, with freshmen still turning in tickets, 1,000 student tickets are outstanding. Bourfard said that some of the students probably haven't exchanged their tickets because they don't know what their Thanksgiving plans are at the moment.

Students may still bring their regular season tickets or their receipts from ticket exchange program, to the ticket office and obtain general admission tickets, up to the day before the game, Bourfard added.

Both hockey games against Mock Market

The annual Notre Dame mock stock market is now underway in the lobby of the Hayes-Healy building. The mock market, sponsored by the Finance Club, gives students an opportunity to play the market with no risk of loss.

The Mock Stock Market will run for six weeks from November 5 to December 16. Hours are Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until noon, and in the afternoon from 1:00 until 3:30. The midwest's most complete needlepoint shop

OPENING TONIGHT

THE ATTIC

219-1/2 N. Michigan Ave.

LIVE MUSIC
PETE SNAKE 9-1

16oz. BEER
50¢!!

OPEN WED. FRI. & SAT.

GREAT FOOD MIXED DRINKS

BY THE PITCHER
Tequila Sunrise Rum & Coke
64-oz. 4.25

FINANCING AVAILABLE
"If we don't have it, we'll get it!"

OPEN Mon., Tues., Thurs., 9-6 Wed., Fri., Sat., 9-9
CALL 233-5145

Smile, God Loves You" DERMSHEM MOTORS

"Tell your friend to buy his car here and if he does, we'll give you $35!!"

Special: '68 Camaro 3 sp. Vinyl Top $1295

SUNDAY MASSES

5:15 p.m. Sat. 9:30 a.m. Sun. 10:45 a.m. Sun. 12:15 p.m. Sun.

BYZANTINE RITE - HOLY CROSS 6:30 p.m.

Schoolhouse Too
In the Brewery 100 Center Complex Mishawaka, Ind. Phone - 239-8181 in support of 27th amendment

by Mary Jane Anderson Staff Reporter

Mrs. Betty Jones, assistant director of Indiana's Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, urged women to unite in support of the 27th Amendment, in a lecture last night in Carroll Hall.

"Women, urged women to unite in support of the 27th Amendment, in a lecture last night in Carroll Hall.

Mrs. Jones began by saying that in Indiana, women are the minority of 52 per cent of the majority and 52 per cent of the United States. However, women are the majority of the candidates when it comes to making appointments to fill vacant spaces in the government.

"The 27th Amendment is the most important amendment of all, because it is the only amendment that is written in the Constitution for women," she said.

She went on that some of the Equal Rights and Female Equal Rights organizations were trying to get women to support the amendment.

First, opponents and oppressors use divide and conquer tactics as in civil rights movements, but, and then is victory for women and small groups are almost helpless.

Second, all women are being accused of trying to de-masculinate the male. Thus, when women receive equal rights and pay, they are alienating their male counterparts.

Third, while a few years ago she saw blacks daring blacks to pledge allegiance to the flag, she now sees women daring women. Reciting the phrase "with liberty and justice for all," she asked the audience, "who is all?" She then questioned whether women were really considered people.

Fourth, society by using another divide and conquer tactic is infiltrating the second largest minority, women of Spanish heritage. When he reading these women to thinking that they have their own cause.

But that is not the case, Jones declared. "Women must 'sacrifice their efforts.' They should not let themselves be divided. They should collect.

(continued on page 11)

Bandit takes women hostages, $200,000 cash; killed in getaway

By WILLIAM STRACENER ATLANTA (UPI) - A bandit cornered in a bank with four women and got $200,000 in cash late Thursday, then died in a getaway car.

At least one officer was shot in the gun battle that erupted under the drive-in carport of the Spring Street Branch of the First National Bank, three hours after the unidentified gunman walked in to rob it.

The bandit took four women employees as hostages when police surprised him during the robbery. He held up the women in a back room of the bank and demanded $200,000, there was only $50,000 in the bank — and a getaway car.

FBI agents brought him the money at dusk but it was not until about 7:30 p.m., after a small car had been driven up near the drive-in windows for privacy, that the gunman made his final move.

All light went out inside the bank, and, a few minutes later, the back door near the drive-in windows opened.

According to officer G. M. Corbin, the first to appear were two of the women, who were not with the bandit's crouched behind them. The other two women walked behind the gunman, a black man in his late 20s.

The bandit looked up, according to Corbin, and saw a police sniper in the darkness. He dropped to his knees, fired a shot over the head of the women and yelled, "If you shoot I'll blow her head off."

As the gunman, apparently panicked, continued to scream, a sniper saw an opening and squeezed off a shot. It apparently struck the gunman according to Doug Smith, a spokesman for the FBI.

He jerked away from his ring of hostages, firing his own weapon, which rolled clear of the shrieking women, police opened fire on man, losing an estimated 40 shots before the bandit's body rolled to a stop in the driveway.

In the melee, the getaway car apparently was pushed. It came careening down the ramp of the drive-in windows, rattled across Spring Street and smashed into a parked car. Inside it was the $200,000 the FBI had given the gunman.

The money, in two snowy bills, was inside the car, according to N.D. ticket Manager Elmer Adams or whether he was struck by a ricochet in the fusillade that killed the bandit.

Wisconsin, to be played on November 16 and 17, at the ACC have already been sold out, 3,200 season tickets, including 1,100 student tickets, have been sold, thus leaving only 1,300 single game tickets for each game.

The 1,200 tickets for the weekend series against Wisconsin went on sale November 7 and were bought immediately. Most of the tickets went to Notre Dame students, while a few went to Wisconsin students who drove down to buy the tickets, according to the ticket manager.
Committee collects historical data on ND

by Virginia McGowan
Staff Reporter

A Committee on the History of the University of Notre Dame has been collecting historical data to be published for Notre Dame's 150th anniversary in 1995. This has been appointed by the Office of Provost under the direction of Fr. James Burtchell.

Richard Conklin, Director of Information Services, "The formation of this Committee had become very necessary for a university of our stature. There was a kind of gap left between the Cavanagh years and the Hesburgh years, from 1946 to 1973. Almost everything has happened to the university since then."

Conklin labeled the Committee as a "self-contained cleaning-out" for the written and oral sources which will eventually be used as background material by the as-yet-unknown person commissioned to write Notre Dame's sesquicentennial history.

The last official history of Notre Dame was compiled by Fr. Hope, a professor of philosophy and former Notre Dame student. This history covered the first 100 years of Notre Dame (1842-1942). Since that time there have been several studies, but none under the specific direction of the University.

The whole focus of the new Committee will be to collect source documents, view these facts and provide a framework for the writer, stressed Conklin, but it will not interpret or impart one point of view upon the proposed history. At present, the Committee's source materials are primarily located in the University Archives, the Memorial Library, the Catholic University Archives, the Notre Dame News Archives, and the Notre Dame Collections involving University history. Although the Committee intends to draw upon these two collections, it also plans to make a more concentrated effort in discovering new unpatrolled areas of information.

Committee member Dr. Thomas Scherlethe, assistant professor of American Studies, hopes to not only collect historical and institutional materials but also the diaries, journals and correspondences of students and faculty in the 20's and 30's, which would provide a more three-dimensional view of university life.

Dr. Scherlethe, who also teaches the seminar "History of Notre Dame," believes consideration may be paid to his students' research projects, which might explore more student insights.

To Fr. Thomas Blount, university archivist and Committe chairman, "The historical knowledge compiled by the Committee will help us to understand the Notre Dame of today and guide us in the decision making of the future. It's good to know our background simply for the sake of knowing our own university."

Blount sees the Committee continuing until the history is completed in 1992. "I envision a very readable and scholarly book about the University, perhaps one or two volumes," says Blount.

"The kind of growth rate since the end of World War II made it imperative to have a study of the Committee at this time," believes Dr. Scherlethe. "We don't want to break the referendum, but this is a long time away but actually it is not.

The Committee invites any individual who might know of any sources of data or collections of materials to contact the following Committee members: David Croskey Scherlethe, Conklin, Frank Clark, and Michael Beutner, the Memorial Library's microfilm staff. The Committee is open to the public for the Holy Cross Fathers' book sale and "Living with A.F. Figueroa," professor of history; Dr. Philip Gleeson, associate professor of history; Dr. Vincent Lanni, associate professor of education, and Dr. George Sereiko, assistant director of libraries.

SMC Food Service has lettuce shortage

by Melissa Byrnes
Staff Reporter

"I am sure there will be lettuce shortages and I am anticipating some problems in obtaining UFW lettuce," said SMC Food Service Director of Nutrition Services, Mr. Price.

SMC students voted Wednesday evening to change SMC dining hall policies involving lettuce. The change involves buying lettuce picket by picket from the United Farm Workers, rather than Teamster Union Lettuce picket by picket.

As a result of the vote, if no UFW lettuce is available, no lettuce will be served in the SMC dining hall.

"I spoke to Mr. Price, director of Notre Dame Food Service, and he was beginning to have some problems in obtaining lettuce," commented Caswells.

UFW lettuce has been served in Notre Dame dining halls since a referendum similar to SMC's was passed last spring.

Price commented, "We can't get lettuce now. It's a wonder this hasn't happened before." Our suppliers have bent over backwards to supply us with UFW lettuce in the past few months. "They've been going all the way out to the west coast," said Price.

The referendum said we could not get United Farm Worker lettuce the students would do without lettuce. So if the students want to break the referendum, then they'll have lettuce," said Price.

The SMC Food Service has not ordered any lettuce since the referendum passed. "However, we'll soon be calling in orders. We'll know the situation better later this week," said Caswells.

Jones speaks on black women

(continued from page 14)

Jones was interested in the economic aspect, the equal pay act leaves out equal rights, but only 10 years have passed before it. "If we don't act now they'll be as bad as the black women working in the United States are being paid equally as a male would employed on the same job, she emphasized.

Jones ended by thanking those who attended. "Our generation is a different breed. They've been going all the way out to the west coast," said Price.

SMC COFFEEHOUSE

-Frank D'Ambra + David Shaheen + Tom Faught

SUNDAYS-MONDAY 8-10 AM

FRI. NIGHT 9:30 - 1:30 MUNCHIES

n our dame concerts - Student Union presents

David Crosby and Graham Nash

Special Guest: Linda Ronstadt

tomorrow night

Tickets are $5.50, 4.50, 3.00 on sale now at Student Union Ticket Office and ACC Ticket Office.

GOOD SEATS ARE STILL AVAILABLE

CLASSIFIED ADS

WANTED

One roommate ND apt. 3rd semester. Call John 332-1532.

HOUSEPARENTS married couple preferably without children to live in Girls Group Home. Room and board monthly. For information call Nancy at 332-1566.

WIVES WITH smashing husband, cute GI, looking for a good time and something to do. Call 222-5678.

WANTED

RIDE WANTED: Need ride to Bowling Green, Ohio home. Call Rick 332-3645.

FOR SALE

MEERSCHAUM PIPES! Exceptional values, personalized service. Catalog. PMU 784 Oak Street, Gettysburg, Md. 19901.

Turquoise Jewelry from the Southwest. Great for unique Kinsh gifts. Call 3874 or drop by 309 Pangborn.

'64 Mustang, 4 speed. $3000 OR BEST OFFER NICK 1470.

12 string Harmony. Good condition. 95$ or best offer. 8272.

34.55 tiix for Crosby Nash concert. Good seats. will deliver for best. CANDY 9204 after 7.

Fischer Skis 200 cm. Reinforced. 322-0160 after 5.

3 floor seats for Crosby Nash concert. 4511.

RENT

All private 3 rooms up for inquiring students. All utilities. Near Memorial hospital. Rent $120 to renter for asking parents to list weight, height, and explosion to end from wheelchairs. Etc. 322-6000.

NOTICES

California City, Calif. missing signups travel agency Nov. 9-27 (continued from page 14)
The University of Pittsburgh has seen a major change in football this season. Coach Johnny Majors, that man who brought Iowa State football into the national spotlight five years ago, there is hoping to work similar miracles for his new ensemble.

The Panthers have not posted a winning record since 1963, when they started 6-3. Last year their overall record is just 2-8-2, including the worst in the school's history, 1-9. (For Majors to make a respectable come-out of Pitt seemed to be just that—a miracle.

Yet "remarkable" is a mild term to describe the Panthers' performances this year. They're currently 5-2, and are still at the top of the terminal variety. Taylor and Tulane, Pitt's victory list includes victories over Northwestern, West Virginia, Boston College, Navy, and Syracuse, and a 7-7 tie with Georgia.

Majors is determined to finish even better.

"Our players are not going to learn how to lose," he said. "We certainly didn't come here to lose."

Meanwhile, Pitt's offense has made steady progress, particularly in the passing game.

Tom is still hanging in there, fighting very hard for his life. He is still in intensive care, in the hospital. As a freshman on the Navy football team he played tight end in each of his first three games, did a fine job, and showed great potential.

Frank Pomarico

Captain's Corner

Fourth and long

Our Notre Dame 44, Navy 7. Seven down and four to go for an undefeated season. As a freshman in the Army, I've had a good win. I've never had the whole school was emotionally down from the USC game.

Well, all that's over and our next challenge is Pitt—and our game with Northwestern, West Virginia.

Getting back to the Navy game, though, I've got to say it was great to win. However the game I was presented with some very disheartening news—Tom Harper's setbacks we see how small our own troubles really are.

"We've come a long way, further than I anticipated," said Majors. "Our players are learning that anything can happen. A win over Notre Dame would certainly be icing on our cake.

"We're going to go out there and play with reckless abandon," he continued. "And we're going to have some fun. There's no sense for us to be uptight about it. We've got to go out there with confidence, because we've never had a big ball game yet I didn't think I could win.

Despite the strength of Pittsburg's defensive unit, Majors will have his work cut out for him if he's going to stop the fifth ranked Irish.

Outscoring their opponents 235-41, Notre Dame has 3226 yards total offense against 1146 for the opposition. Quarterback Tom Clements is pacing at 24 per cent and has an excellent receiver in split end Pete Demerle (20-296 yards). Backs Wayne Bolkoc, Art Best, Eric Perton, and Al Hunter have proven difficult to stop for all seven teams the Irish have defeated thus far this season.

Notre Dame's defense is the best in the nation, yielding only 41 points for an average of 5.3 points per game and 54 yards per game. Freshman back Luther Bradley has been included in the top 10 in the last three, and with Mike Townsend, who last year led the nation with 100 yards, and if he gives the Irish a strong secondary

An even stronger defense against the run is led by Junior linebacker Greg Collins, freshman defensive end Ross Browner, and senior linebacker Gary Potempa.

"Defensively," noted Pitt scout Bob Leahy, "Notre Dame can replace its starters more adequately. They line up in that order, and have yet to be beaten.

"And they have the people capable of doing that. Luther Bradley is one of the most impressive freshmen I've ever seen, and quarterback Tom Clements is very, very similar instyle to our own, and just waiting to call his own number in key situations.

In this long rivalry between Pittsburgh and Notre Dame, the Irish hold a commanding 27-11-1 margin. Rather, we must reach the same plateau for each game. But we're going to go at it on the line and beat them mentally. On Saturday evening, though, we ready for them mentally, and we won 6-5.

Tom is still in the hospital on this Monday-Tuesday basketball trip to Notre Dame. This was evident in football this season, and it should be evident in basketball, and we won 6-5.

However, in Mark Kronholm, we have the best goaltender in the nation. In three seasons of action at Michigan State's Ice Arena, we have won 6-5.

We know this weekend the Spartans will be ready for us. This will be our opening series in the WCHA. This means it will provide extra incentive for their team. Their rivalry with us is also one of the longest and bitterest in college athletics. Michigan State is always prepared for the Fighting Irish. This was evident in football this season, and it should be no different tonight and tomorrow evening.

Michigan State is a physical team. They'll try to forecheck us into making mistakes. In order to do well this weekend against them, we'll have to beat them physically, and not mentally. On Saturday evening, though, we're ready for them militarily, and we won 6-5.

Steve Curry

Captain's Corner

Preparedness

Notre Dame plays 34 games during the regular season. Last weekend we played the first two, winning and tying at Michigan Tech. Our major concern for that series was to be physically ready. Each weekend from now on, however, we must make sure we are ready both physically and mentally. Those teams which are ready both physically and mentally do well in the WCHA.

We do not afford to reach an emotional peak for any given series. Rather, we must reach the same plateau for each game. To prove this point, last season we traveled to East Lansing on October 24 in a 1-0 victory, which is the climax of the entire series. However, in Mark Kronholm, we have the best goaltender in the nation. He's been one of our best players for three years, and he's sure to be a leader this season. His name is Mark Kronholm.

In this long rivalry between Michigan State and Notre Dame, their opening series in the WCHA. This means it will provide extra incentive for their team. Their rivalry with us is also one of the longest and bitterest in college athletics. Midwest State is always prepared for the Fighting Irish. This was evident in football this season, and it should be no different tonight and tomorrow evening.

Michigan State is a physical team. They'll try to forecheck us into making mistakes. In order to do well this weekend against them, we'll have to beat them physically, and not mentally. On Saturday evening, though, we're ready for them militarily, and we won 6-5.

Steve Curry