Hesburgh delivers annual address to faculty members

by Paul Colgan
Staff Reporter

During Rev. Theodore Hesburgh's annual address to the faculty yesterday, he reinforced the idea that $300,000 of surplus budget funds be used for "faculty renumerations." The first 30 faculty members would receive $10,000 each, with the remainder being distributed amongst 90 faculty members over the next two years.

Fr. Hesburgh's "State of the University Message," as one observer described it, was delivered in Washington Hall to approximately 200 faculty members yesterday afternoon. He spoke on the topics of faculty salaries, teaching workloads, women faculty and students, and the Carnegie Commission report on higher education.

The $300,000 would be set aside for faculty salaries, which would be increased by $10,000 per faculty member. The extra money will mean an approximate salary increase of 3 per cent for faculty members in addition to the budgeted 3 per cent increase. Fr. Hesburgh stated that the idea was only a plan and was subject to approval by the Board of Trustees.

The other alternative listed by Fr. Hesburgh would give money to the faculty. The universities will have to maintain this base increase over a period of years. The bonus could not be guaranteed every year.

Fr. Hesburgh also mentioned that increased teaching loads are possible. "Some people will be teaching more," he said.

Fr. Hesburgh welcomed the new faculty members, especially the women. He noted that the number of female faculty had increased from 48 to 66 in the last years or from 6.6 per cent to 9.5 per cent.

"Bear with us and be frank with us," Fr. Hesburgh told the women. "Put our endeavor into a broader perspective.

The new women students were also praised. "The incoming wave of women students has opened the way to greater participation of women in the admissions office," he said.

Fr. Hesburgh said the faculty. Male applications were dropping off but the new influx of women applicants prevented any enrollment drops, according to Hesburgh.

Reports on Carnegie Commission

The major portion of Fr. Hesburgh's speech was devoted to the report of the Carnegie Commission of which he was a member. It took six years to make, cost over $6 million and examined 28 institutions.

The report went through three major crises over the years according to Fr. Hesburgh. They were a political crisis of the student revolutions, the financial crisis of failing colleges, and the enrollment growth and drop back.

"The points of the report are of concern for every college," Fr. Hesburgh noted. They are included below along with Fr. Hesburgh's comments on their relevance to Notre Dame.

Drastic changes in 20 years

Clarification of purpose. Colleges have grown, multiplied, and changed drastically in the last 20 years. Fr. Hesburgh observed. The tensions and shaky finances that have been brought on a need "for a recreation of a sense of purpose." Notre Dame will survive because "we are a special kind of university. We know our goals and purposes while we don't nursermaid students, we are concerned about them."

Inspired teaching by faculty. The student crisis of the 60's makes this high priority. The Carnegie Commission found that students felt the faculty didn't care about them. Fr. Hesburgh noted that during the Cambodian crisis of 1970, faculty members stayed all night on campus talking to students. He felt this was "good" and showed that the faculty cared. "It is important to keep up this tradition. It is part of our soul," he said.

University governance. Fr. Hesburgh here noted that the new academic handbook drawn up last spring helped clarify the "rights and responsibilities of the faculty and administration of the university." He also commended the Student Affairs office for their work in rewriting the student handbook.

(UPI)—Prime Minister Golda Meir said Tuesday Israel does not intend to pull its troops back to what she termed the nonexistent cease-fire lines of Oct. 22. But she added Israel has no intention of remaining permanently on the west bank of the Suez Canal, where it holds a 625-square-mile bulge inside Egypt.

Mrs. Meir said Israel hopes to present uneasy cease fire will be a first step toward “a true peace between ourselves and the neighboring states.”

She said she told President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Washington that any pullback of Israeli forces would be in the context of redeploying forces on both sides to achieve more stable cease-fire lines.

Withdrawal to the Oct. 22 lines was ordered by the U.N. Security Council as part of the cease-fire agreement and Egypt has made it a key point in any Middle East settlement.

PEKING (UPI)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger reviewed his sixth visit to Peking Tuesday with a declaration that “friendship with China is one constant factor of American foreign policy.”

In a news conference after 11 hours of talks with Premier Chou En-lai and Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Kissinger said, “The progress we have made in our relationship will continue in years ahead whatever happens in the future and whatever the administration in Washington.”

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Legislation putting the nation on year-round daylight saving time for the next two years was approved by the House and Senate Commerce Committees Tuesday, less than a week after President Nixon proposed the move to save energy.

The time change—clocks would be set one hour later than the present standard time—would be mandatory for all states unless the President approved an exemption. The theory was that people would be awake during more daylight hours and asleep during more hours of darkness, thus reducing electricity consumption.

Hesburgh’s amnesty stand

Faculty reactions vary

by Ken Bradford Staff Reporter

Notre Dame faculty members reacted with varying degrees of approval to Father Theodore Hesburgh’s statement on amnesty as given in a letter appearing in yesterday’s Observer.

The letter, which was drafted primarily by the American Civil Liberties Union, was signed by forty-nine American civic leaders. The letter called for “an unconditional amnesty, pardon, or fair restitution for all men who are charged with, may be charged with, or have been convicted of offenses arising out of their refusal to participate in the military action in Southeast Asia, or for offenses against military law while doing so.”

Copies of the letter have been sent to executive and congressional leaders in the government as well as to various publications throughout the country.

Father William Toohey, Director of Campus Ministry, gave strong support to the letter.

“You tend to look at the people who made this statement and say, ‘Whatever all these people are supporting must be good,’” Father Toohey said, emphasizing the “versatility of the personalities signing the letter.”

“In so many things contributing so much to a growing catastrophe in this nation, this gesture is certainly a reaching out for the healing we so desperately need,” Fr. Toohey stated.

“A drink of good wine is nice at any time but when you’re dying of thirst, it’s like a healing balm,” Toohey added.

Father Robert Griffin, Assistant Director of Campus Ministry, called the letter a “nonsensical statement.”

“The war has been exposed as a crime against humanity and it is unjust to punish those who refused to take part in it,” Fr. Griffin observed.

Stanley Hauerwas, a Theology Professor, remarked that the letter was “well done” and that he “strongly agrees with the statement.”

Hesburgh delivers annual speech

-Academic independence. This applied mostly to state supported schools vis-a-vis state and federal authoriies, according to Fr. Hesburgh. Notre Dame's private problem is vis-a-vis the Catholic Church. We are not the Catholic Church. We have a special kind of institution requiring special understanding," he said.

"Ours is an enlightened task" that needs input from all sides, Justice. Fr. Hesburgh explained that this referred to opening up access for minorities and the poor to the university to aid their upward mobility. He also noted that the university currently has a $3 million endowment set aside exclusively for scholarships. This is important, Fr. Hesburgh said, because "we have to bring here (on scholarship) you need the creativity, honesty, honor or individual responsibility or justice or equity or love of family or country."

-Government financial support to private institutions. The percentage of students in private schools is decreasing along with the amount of government support money, Fr. Hesburgh noted. Some private grant programs were not even funded. The Carnegie Commission said that private institutions would have to get money from outside sources, according to Fr. Hesburgh. Inflation was the problem noted by Fr. Hesburgh.

-Student participation in the decision-making processes. Fr. Hesburgh said that the problem facing Notre Dame because students are new on many university councils. "It's hard to see a committee they're not on," he said.

-Renovation of liberal education. "We have really gutted education," Fr. Hesburgh said. "What went wrong when college educations led us into Vietnam...and Watergate?" The students got lots of information. They didn't get the values. He noted that these doctors and lawyers seemed to lack "the personal ability to reflect on honesty, honor or individual responsibility or justice or equity or love of family or country."

-"The New York Times" felt they had to call Notre Dame (last Christmas) to get an article on values. Fr. Hesburgh told the faculty, "We have something special to give the students. We are not existing to fill kids with information or to give them skills." Leadership, The Carnegie Commission found that the student revolutions indicated the lack of leadership in American colleges, according to Fr. Hesburgh. "We have a great need for creative leadership," he said. As an example of creative leadership Fr. Hesburgh pointed out the establishment of the non-violence program. He felt it provided "an equilibrium that pulled us through Cambodia" without violence.

-The normal tension between faculty and administration is "healthy" according to Fr. Hesburgh. "It keeps us honest." He also noted that each should be free of unnecessary restraintsto "so that they can do what they know best." Fr. Hesburgh commented that the financial problems were restricting the creativity of the university. "The flexible money is drying up into survival money," he said. "We'll try to get money in there for creativity," he said. He noted that this would make a tight budget that could never sacrifice in some places.

The budget problems also make tenure decisions difficult. The need for new people everywhere keep a flow of new ideas. "That's the problem," Fr. Hesburgh explained. "This creates a tension between tenured and younger faculty," he said. "We have really gutted leadership," he said. As an example, Prof. Richard Lammana replied, "I was disturbed by his comments on teaching load. "He ought to come out and say what he means.""

The Observer in yesterday's Observer incorrectly stated that the Mary Ellen Carter ticket defeated the Sue Egan ticket in the SMC Freshman Class Officer primaries. The Egan ticket actually won by gaining 105 votes to 65 votes for the Carter ticket.

The Steaks for Thanksgiving Dinner

Steaks for Thanksgiving Dinner students over $9,750

by Martha Lampkin, The Observer

Five thousand pounds of U.S.D.A. choice strip loins, 1,800 pounds of potatoes, 600 pounds of frozen peas and carrots, 36 heads of lettuce, 600 dozen rolls, 550 pies, 120 bottles of cranberry juice, 600 gallons of milk will fill more than 5,000 stomachs this Thursday in both ND dining halls for the annual Pre-Thanksgiving Dinner.

"This year's special effort is enough to supply dinner for one person for sixteen years. And the cost of the meal alone ($9.75) could pay for two and a half years of tuition at Notre Dame or St. Mary's with plenty left over for a summer trip to Europe. Each is the price of supplying one meal for Notre Dame residents. Steaks, however, is a more expensive entree than most. To produce the 3,010 ten ounce steaks needed for the meal, 5,000 pounds of U.S.D.A. choice strip loins were purchased for $1.75 per pound. Each steak is worth approximately $1.22, whereas an individual serving of roast beef costs a little over a third of this price. (For the cost of an entire roast beef meal for 5,000 you could buy a new Pinto and afford enough gas to get you to the bowl game and back during semester break.) Why steak for Thanksgiving? According to Food Services Director Edmund Price, it is simply to break away from the traditional turkey and dressing routine. This year poses new problems for the Food Service Staff because of the Notre Dame-Air Force game on Thanksgiving Day.

The more personalized buffet meal usually served on Thanksgiving Day for students remaining on campus can't possibly accommodate the larger crowd that the game will bring to the dining halls. Therefore, a meal similar to the students' usual Pre-Thanksgiving meal will be served to the football crowd, and the special steak meal will be served to those remaining. The menu for tomorrow's steak meal consists of:

- Cran apple juice
- Cheese and crackers
- Grilled strip steak
- Roasted potatoes
- Buttered peas with tiny onions
- Relish plate
- Apricot cheese mold
- Mixed greens with Geno dressing
- Vienna rolls
- Butter and honey pecan crunch pumpkin pie
- Lime sherbet
- Coffee, tea, milk, and cold beverages.

Today your section leader will hopefully present you with a survey concerning the new academic calendar which will be officially announced Friday. Fill out the survey completely and honestly and take pains to return it to your hall government members as quickly as possible because the results of the poll will determine what action the student representatives on the Academic Council will take.

If the poll shows that the students are indifferent about the new calendar, or that possibly they are in favor of it, the representatives will let it pass. But, as is more likely, if the students, should voice their overwhelming disfavor of the calendar, they will attempt to recall the question in the council for reconsideration.

And it is a question which deserves reconsideration. In the secrecy of the council - a legislated secrecy - the question of the calendar can come to question, be considered and passed with the campus media, students and many faculty in the dark over what is going on there. And it seems only fair to reconsider the question with a better idea of what the students and faculty - the people who have to live by the calendar - think about its implementation.

As Academic Council rep John Mazza said Monday, it would be clearly irresponsible on the part of the administration not to reconsider the issue if the students are not in favor of it...especially if it's shown that the students are overwhelmingly against it.

But this is all jumping the gun because if the survey shows that the students are not against the calendar then it would be senseless to call for a reconsideration. If past years are used as examples, however, students should show by the end of this week that they clearly don't want the calendar.

Nonetheless, the question is clearly in the hands of the students right now. Fill out the survey and return it. That's all you really have to do and if you comply you'll be giving your representatives on the council their best possible ammunition... the solid backing of the student body.

The Best Choice

The recommendation of the HPC Committee to use the gym behind Holy Cross Hall as a "Party House" is a good suggestion. Hopefully it will be implemented as quickly as possible.

The facility is large enough to hold the big parties and isolated enough so as not to bother students with noise and the party atmosphere. It is a good choice.

Polar Bearings

Wonder Bread Affair

Dear Greg,

Do you ever stop and think about what you are doing? In a seemingly inappropriate place are you ever confronted with a situation that triggers a reverse of though and emotion?

It is in a condition of growth, I guess, that our personal realities are constantly in a state of flux. I've accepted that. It didn't change an unexpected and rapid change that scares me. Among all these vicissitudes there must be some stabilizing factor, some underlying truth of a pragmatic natural.

Our country is faced with the biggest political scandal in our history. Investigations are uncovering deceptions which reach into the Sixties when we have to live a double life, and the triumph of all that is good. And so the government is not the place to look for stability.

Does a slight measure of stoicism exist anywhere? I've tried to find it in music, art, literature, education, television, even the Church. It has eluded me. Even Elvis Presley spoiled his image and got a divorce. As a last ditch effort I turn to basic of all elements food, the bread of life, the eternal necessity. And then to the most common of these...Wonder Bread.

The Ultimate Delusion!

The Federal Trade Commission ruled recently that good old Wonder Bread has been lying to us for over a decade. Yes, but true, Wonder Bread does not build strong bodies twelve ways.

Another tenant of idealistic youth shut down! Who can we trust?

Peace and Love,

Camarry

Dear Camarry,

Fortunately, man does not live by bread alone, but God knows I believed in Wonder Bread. I ate it plain and I ate it toasted; I ate it with blueberry jelly and I ate it with cinnamon; I rolled it into compact balls of sweet Wonder dough and I tackled Wonder Bread bags to my wall; and I waited for the twelve great developments of physique that would lead me in legendary achievement in the hallowed field of athletic endeavor.

Instead, I grew tall and skinny and weak and I watch the proceedings from the sidelines and I dreamed a lot. For that I've always hated that brat who grew so well under the TV magic of Wonder Bread. Still, I never questioned the stuff. I thought it was some deficiency in my chemistry, or more likely, just plain bad luck.

Now the F.T.C. comes along, like great iconoclasts in bureaucratic clothing, to tell us that Wonder Bread, the largest selling white bread in the country, has been falsely advertised for the past decade as an extraordinary food that will cause children to grow. Another white lie. It has been a lying a long cry of redemptive joy from the long oppressed ovens of the cracked wheat and pumpernickel.

But...let us not rush to judgment. As you have noted, this is not a time of easy faith. The walls are crumbling around us. We do not know where the next fragment of truth will emerge from the masonry of our convoluted reality. Infact, about the Wonder Bread Affair, I hear it rumoured, especially around the corridors of the Federal Trade Commission. It has eluded me. Even Elvis Presley spoiled his image and got a divorce. As a last ditch effort I turn to basic of all elements food, the bread of life, the eternal necessity. And then to the most common of these...Wonder Bread.

Several minutes. McGovern came to wave at the front of the stage once, twice, and three times. Then he sat down, hoping the applause would stop. It didn’t. Finally, he rose to wave again, a little bit embarrassed this time, but grateful also.

Latter Chuck Nau would tell McGovern that there hadn’t been a reception like his since Bobby Kennedy came in 1968. Webster would comment that he had never seen that kind of sustained applause, not even during the campaign.

After a period of questions and answers, McGovern stood at the front of the stage for nearly a half hour shaking hands, signing autographs. At one point, a girl handed him her new saddle shoe to autograph. “This is real grass roots support,” he joked.

Rhynbackzky to vacate office in December

by Rick Scharf
Staff Reporter

Despite Student Union Director Jim Rybarczyk's denials last year, he will graduate in December and vacate his position, it was learned yesterday.

Shortly after receiving the post last April, Kevin Kull charged that Rybarczyk withheld information concerning his graduation status from the committee selecting the Student Union Director. In the April 4, 1973 Observer, Rybarczyk denied that he was going to graduate in December, only that "the possibility existed" that he should.

Rybarczyk further denied the charge in the April 5, 1973 Observer. Although the Observer reported that Rybarczyk was registered with the Placement Bureau as a December graduate, in an Observer interview yesterday Rybarczyk stated that he "knew it last April" when asked about his December graduation plans. "I did not make a definite decision until over the summer," he added. "It will be economically better for me to graduate now, and applications are now being taken for a new director."

Interviews to fill the position of Student Union Director began Tuesday afternoon under the direction of Student Government and the Student Union.

The position of director will be filled by an underclassman who will assume the post until April '73. The person chosen will be a co-director of the Student Union with the present Assistant Director and Botheholder until April '73 when he then becomes the director.

"The best thing to do is select a co-director," said Rybarczyk, "since all the office holders will be graduating, and there will be no one qualified to fill the spots. Botheholder has the necessary background to teach the person picked to be his co-director, and this will insure a smooth flow in January after I have left, and a smooth transition in April when the rest of the present group steps down." Rybarczyk also pointed out that it will be easier for the person chosen to pick the '74-'75 staff in April since he will be aware of the people who are dependable and how the Student Union operates.

The decision to select a co-director to fill the director's position was made by the Board of Directors of the Student Union last week. "This action must be approved by the Board of Commissioners before it is official, but there should be no problem in getting their approval," Rybarczyk noted.

Other changes in the Student Union include the resignations of Ken Natala as Academic Commissioner and Ken Muth as Associate Director. Natala's resignation, effective immediately, is due to his graduation in December. The position of Academic Commissioner has been filled by Andy Bury. Ken Muth, a graduate student, resigned because the Board of Commissioners determined that it was not proper for him to serve in an undergraduate organization. His duties are being assumed by Pete Botheholder, Assistant Director of the Student Union.

game to provide food for needy

Notre Dame students will sponsor an annual Benefit Basketball game, matching the Number One Irish squad against a team of outstanding freshmen, at 5 p.m. Saturday, November 17, in the arena of the Athletic and Convocation Center.

The proceeds of the game will be used by students to purchase food for the needy families in the South Bend area in advance of Thanksgiving Day. Tickets for the event are fifty cents for those of high school age and above, and twenty-five cents for children. Parking lot attendants, ushers and other personnel are contributing their services so that a maximum number of food baskets might be purchased.

Champions of the National Invitational Tournament in Madison Square Garden until the final second last season, the Notre Dame varsity squad returns intact for another shot at the national championship. Performing in this exhibition contest will be the NIT's Barth collection on display

A collection of pictures and literary works of the famed theologian Karl Barth (1886-1968) will open today in the Rare Book and Special Collection area of the Department of Theology and is sponsored by the Pro Helvetia Foundation of Zurich, Switzerland.

Champions of the National Invitational Tournament in Madison Square Garden until the final second last season, the Notre Dame varsity squad returns intact for another shot at the national championship. Performing in this exhibition contest will be the NIT's Barth collection on display

A collection of pictures and literary works of the famed theologian Karl Barth (1886-1968) will open today in the Rare Book and Special Collection area of the Memorial Library. The display has been arranged by the Department of Theology and is open to the public during the five-day showing.

Rev. John H. Yoder, director of the Program for the Nonviolent Resistance and Conflict and visiting associate professor of theology, completed arrangements for the display in consultation with the Pro-Helvetia Foundation of Zurich, Switzerland.
Bill requires allocation of petrol

By WILLIAM C. CLAYTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House overwhelmingly approved Tuesday a bill to require the President to allocate shrinking supplies of crude oil and petroleum products.

The Senate, which was holding off until the House acted on the House-Senate conference version, had been expected for the day before the House vote, but is expected to give the bill final passage this week.

The House and Senate passed differing versions of the bill, but in conference committees most of the House portions were kept. The conference version passed the House Tuesday 34 to 16.

It would require mandatory allocation of crude oil, residual (heavy) fuel oil, and every refined petroleum product.

The bill is intended to make sure the neediest users get the petroleum products they need despite the energy pinch. The allocation system would have to be drawn up within 15 days after final enactment of the law, and would run through February of 1975.

The allocation differs from consumer rationing of, say, gasoline, in that allocation is a requirement to producers and suppliers that they furnish certain amounts to certain consumers, and customer rationing prevents the individual consumer from buying more than a given amount. In some cases, the effect is the same.

President Nixon has the power, under the Economic Stabilization Act, to require allocations of fuels that are in short supply. But the bill the House approved would force that action on him.

So far, the administration has put into effect the mandatory allocation of propane gas used largely for drying crops and livestock, and time, and the "middle distillate" petroleum products — chiefly diesel oil, jet fuel and home heating oil.

The comprehensive allocation bill requires the President to allocate the base price and, price, and costs of oil and products go up, they can be passed on, dollar for dollar, to the ultimate consumer.

That provision takes over to that extent the work of the Cost of Living Council.

The report by the conference committee report, which gives legislative intent, said the allocation system should consider the need for independent oil operating businesses.

The action came as Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield accused Congress of waiting too long to send Congress emergency energy legislation, but predicted the Senate would waste no time in passing the bill he did submit.

Gulf fifth corporation guilty of illegal campaign contributions

By JAMES HILDRETH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge fined Gulf Oil Corp. $5,000 Tuesday after it pleaded guilty to making $125,000 in illegal campaign contributions for President Nixon and two Democratic presidential hopefuls last year.

The government charged Ashland Oil Inc. with making an illegal $100,000 contribution to Nixon’s re-election campaign on April 3, 1972, four days before the new campaign finance disclosure law went into effect.

Gulf was the fifth major corporation to plead guilty to an illegal political contribution, and the first to acknowledge any to Democratic candidates.

Of the $125,000 it admitted making, $15,000 went to Rep. Wilbur Milliken D-Ark., and $10,000 to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

District Court in Callettsburg, Ky., late in the day against Ashland, one of the first corporations to admit publicly an illegal campaign contributions.

The suit was filed technically against Ashland Petroleum, an Ashland subsidiary, and Orin E. Atkin, chairman of the Ashland Oil board of directors.

Ashland is subject to a maximum penalty of $5,000, and Atkin to a maximum fine of $1,000 and a year in prison.

Gulf and one of its vice presidents got the maximum fine under a federal law which prohibits national banks, copartnerships or labor unions from making campaign contributions, either directly or indirectly, and forbids anyone from receiving them.

Visions of a Sugar Bowl appearance against Alabama have been tantalizing many of those associated with Notre Dame’s football program since last Saturday’s 31-10 victory over the Pitt Panthers, but yesterday the Irish received the same settling news they’ve been receiving every Monday for the past three weeks.

No change in the top seven in either of the nation’s major college football polls.

There were two shakeups in the top ten this week, but both involved lower echelon teams in the rating surveys compiled by United Press International and Associated Press. Nebraska, a 27-26 victor over Iowa State last weekend, moved from 11th in tenth in both polls, and Southern Cal, a 27-10 winner over Oregon State this week, moved from 12th to ninth in both ratings.

Wisconsin moved Illinois, 21-4, to hang onto fourth place in the voting, and ND’s 31-10 conquest of explosive Pittsburgh left the Irish in charge of the fifth rung for another week, at least.

Wisconsin tops hockey voting

Wisconsin’s powerful Badgers, undefeated and untied through the first six games of the 1973 ice hockey season, held undisputed possession of the number one position in this week’s college hockey poll. Published by radio station WMPS in Hancock, Mich., the Big Red, 6-0 on the season, received nine out of 10 possible points on the vote, and 15 of 20 possible points on the season.

Listed behind the top-ranked Badgers were Michigan Tech (4-1-1), Michigan State (4-0-0), and Cornell (6-0-0).

Notre Dame, last week’s number two team, dropped a pair of games to Michigan State last weekend and dropped to fifth place in the poll with a 1-0-1 mark.

Following the Irish were St. Louis (3-0-0), Boston University and Boston College (both 2-0-0), Denver (2-2), and Harvard (0-0).

The fifth-place Irish will get a chance to improve their status this weekend, playing host to Wisconsin for a two-game, home-opener series at the ACC ice rink.

The standings:

1. Wisconsin (5) 6-0-0
2. Michigan Tech (3) 6-1-1
3. Michigan State (2) 5-0-2
4. Cornell 6-0-0
5. Notre Dame (3) 4-1-2
6. St. Louis 3-0-0
7. Boston U. 6-0-0
8. Boston College 5-0-2
9. Denver 3-0-0

Gridiron polls: the same old story

Coach John McKay’s club is listed number ten in UPI voting, also. But beyond the Cornhuskers and the Trojans, things remained exactly the same from last week’s voting.

Ohio State, 35-4 winners over Michigan State, is in firm possession of the top spot with Alabama (1-0 last weekend) second and Oklahoma (31-3 victor over Missouri) third.

Michigan moved Illinois, 21-4, to hang onto fourth place in the voting, and ND’s 31-10 conquest of explosive Pittsburgh left the Irish in charge of the fifth rung for another week, at least.
