Academic Council polled concerning new calendar

by Howard Wood and Claude Devaney

In a survey of 35 members of the Academic Council, The Observer found that twelve members of the new 74-75 academic calendar presented by Provost James Burtchell, CSC. A recall vote would entail reconsideration of the new calendar.

The survey also revealed that seven members had "had no objection to a recall vote." Six new members stated that they would have to hear new arguments before making a decision on the matter. Seven members had no comment.

The 12 members that object are returning members on the Council. They were on the Council in December 1972 that voted to give the Administration the right to draw up a new calendar.

Dr. Robert Gordon, vice president for academic calendar presented by Provost James Burtchell, CSC. A recall vote would entail reconsideration of the new calendar. The seven members of last year's Council that do not object to a recall vote offered their comments. Fr. Jerome Wilson, vice president for student affairs, stated, "I accept all things Fr. Burtchell enunciated, but if there was a recall I would take careful consideration and think it over very seriously before I change my vote.

Six of the ten new members of the Academic Council interviewed said the could not make a decision until he heard the arguments presented.

These are the results of the survey.

M em bers not in favor of the calendar:

Dr. Robert Gordon
Professor Le Corbaci
Dr. Edward Waddman

Powell explains CPA criteria

by Terry Keeney

Staff Reporter

Dr. Ray Powell, chairman of the department of accounting, denied any impropriety in using university grade point averages to determine entrance in the CPA coaching class.

"I know of nothing in University annals which in the way of academic regulations prevents a chairman—alternately a Department or the University—from setting a standard for entry into a course or program," Powell explained in an interview over the weekend.

Powell admitted that of the 167 senior accounting majors only those with GPA above 2.75 were eligible for the 105 course cards. To Powell, the equatable way to distribute the course cards was the CPA criteria.

"Giving the existing faculty availability and facing the problems," said Powell, "it was my professional judgment that this was as equitable as any method."

Powell pointed out that a week of consultation with senior accounting majors could not produce a more efficient method.

GPA confidentiality

Powell denied that he had violated the confidentiality of the GPA by releasing a listing of all accounting majors in order from high to low. He insisted that he preserved the confidentiality.

"I don't see how we met the other evening; the student ranking I am making available to them in the enrollment process is confidential; they were not to remove it from the room," Powell said.

Powell noted that those enrolled in the CPA coaching course were required to give the listing of their point averages to a professor as proof of their enrollment. Only one student failed to return the GPA listing, Powell claimed.

"One student violated the confidence," charged Powell.

Black's threaten to boycott Bowl

by Gary Allitetta
Staff Reporter

This year's Sugar Bowl has become the center of controversy for a group of New Orleans' blacks. According to Dr. Guy Gipson, a black educator in the city, if the Mid-Winter Sports Association which runs the Sugar Bowl does not meet his group's demands, there will be an "all out boycott" of the bowl games by blacks.

Clancy Du Bos, a staff writer for the New Orleans Times Picayune, defined the Association as the group which sponsors all the Sugar Bowl activities such as the sporting contests, parades, and other events. Gipson asserted that the committee, which is comprised of 27 whites, had been planning all of the activities with no consideration for blacks.

Du Bos said that in November, the Association created an advisory board of 23 new members, six of whom were black. On Nov. 19, all of the blacks chosen refused the position, saying that the board had no purpose and that their positions were only titular.

As an offshoot of the event, the six blacks, who represent the fields of education, finance, media, business, and government, formed their own organization, Gipson, who also chairs an NAACP chapter in the Mid-Winter Sports Association, became the spokesperson for the group and outlined their demands as follows:

1) make some blacks members of the Mid-Winter Sports Association executive committee, with no preselection periods; 2) employ blacks in the office of the Association; 3) hire blacks to sell and collect tickets at the Sugar Bowl game.

Gipson added that if the demands are not met, his group will take action to discourage fans from attending the game. He said, "When we talk about direct action, we talk about all kinds of demonstrations."

Gipson called on all black participants in the Sugar Bowl, including players, coaches, queens, and band members, as well as fans and townspeople, to boycott the New Orleans classic.

Another controversy arose about the selection of the Sugar Bowl queen and her four members. Customarily said Du Bos, area colleges nominate a girl, and the Sugar Bowl committee chooses the queen.

This year, six girls were nominated, three blacks and three whites. One of the white girls was chosen as queen, and the other two as first and third attendants. Two of the blacks were chosen as second and fourth attendants.

One of the blacks refused the position, saying that it was a世代 game - not kill it," she said.

Dr. Johnson accepted the position, saying she would hold it unless she found that it was given to her because she was black. She stated, "After careful consideration of all the facts...I've decided there is no sufficient reason at this point to withdraw participation in the Sugar Bowl court."

Johnson felt that the actions of the selection committee were fair and above reproach. "It is my understanding that blacks can contribute significantly to the Sugar Bowl game - not kill it," she said. "There has been no comment about the situation from city officials in New Orleans as yet. Du Bos feels that the police are "trying to cool it," for taking an action on the very serious latest problem would only encourage its eruption.
Israel—The Israeli military command reported nine incidents on the tense Egyptian and Syrian cease-fire lines Saturday and said guerrillas fired on Israeli troops near the Lebanese border.

A military spokesman claimed forces from Egypt's 2nd Army opened fire on Israeli troops four times during the day east of Lake Timas and southeast of Ismila. He said units from Egypt's 3rd Army opened fire in four other incidents in the Small Bitter Lake area.

WASHINGTON—President Nixon plans to set up a new federal agency reporting directly to him to manage the fuel crisis, administration and congressional sources said Saturday.

An administration source said the agency, to be named the Federal Energy Administration and headed by Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, would be announced by Simon on Monday.

WASHINGTON—Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said the administration will fall short of its goal of a balanced budget this fiscal year by about $5 billion. No decision has been made, he added, as to whether to try again to balance the budget in fiscal 1975.

SMC Commissions denounce calendar

by Peggy Frericks
Staff Reporter

The Hall Life Commission and the Student Affairs Commission at St. Mary's issued a joint statement last night denouncing the new calendar.

The statement supported the HPC's stance on the calendar.

According to Ann Smith of the Student Affairs Commission, "The commissions' objections against the new calendar are two-fold. The pre-Labor Day start will interfere with the summer jobs of many students. The commissions argued that the ten day break at the end of October is impractical. It would be too expensive for many students to go home during this break and again at Thanksgiving. It would also break up the continuity of courses. The commissions will be channelling their dissatisfaction through the Academic Commission."

Sorin resident stricken, listed in critical condition

by Melissa Byrne

Joseph Furlong, a Notre Dame sophomore and resident of Sorin Hall, was admitted to St. Joseph Hospital on Friday morning, Nov. 30, after suffering an aneurysm (an imperfect blood vessel which burst in the brain).

Furlong is still in critical condition. He is now breathing on his own and his heartbeat is good. "He gains consciousness for a little longer period each day," said Fr. Richard Zang, rector of Sorin Hall. "He is still in the intensive care unit at the hospital."

Furlong went to the Notre Dame Infirmary on Friday morning where he was under treatment for a sore throat. He was at the infirmary when he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Furlong's parents flew to South Bend from their home in Pelham, New York, late Friday evening.

"There has been widespread concern for Joe on campus," said Zang. "The Furlong family has been very pleased with the concern they've seen by everyone here at Notre Dame."

Furlong offered a mass on Friday for Furlong's recovery. "About all we can do now is pray for Joe," said Tom Forrest, Furlong's roommate.

CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVE NEEDED

We custom make commemorative & personalized plaques that lend themselves to setting through an imaginative perspective. We can promote to other individuals and groups such as fraternities, cheerleaders, high schools, etc. Our reps achieve best results coordinating their efforts with their own. The person that we see would be able to manage other sales people at some future date. Your reps should include the year you will graduate and the amount of time each week that you can devote. Also include your thoughts on how a commemorative plaque could best be promoted on your campus should Notre Dame win the Sugar Bowl.

New reality therapy is stressed

by Mary Kay Baron
Staff Reporter

I am me
I am happy to be me because being me is good!

Only I can be me,
So assist me in Opening my I's.

"We need to be accepted as an individual, genuinely, before we can work for a goal. Our own self-worth supercedes our working toward a career ...."

Ideas such as these evolved from Saturday's all-day "Success---Failure in an Identity Society" workshop, held in Carroll Hall Saint Mary's College. Coordinated by Sister Maria C. McDermott, the workshop was the first of a 3 consecutive week series lecture program offered to all school personnel who have contacts with children in school on any level. The workshop is open also to those who want to improve their knowledge of and implementation of good interpersonal relationships.

Approximately 90 people attended the workshop. Dr. Thomas McGuinness, director of research and development, Educator Training Center Institute for Reality Therapy, Los Angeles, California led discussions about "involvement in An Identity Society," and conducted demonstrations of group dynamics and role playing.

According to Dr. McGuinness, reality therapy is a reaction to traditional forms of therapy, a common sense approach to helping people, whether they be children or adults, to become more responsible for themselves their learning and behavior.

"It's a set procedure for helping people help each other, built upon the primary foundation of caring, or becoming involved in a warm personal way," stated the reality therapist.

To Dr. McGuinness, an ideal learning situation would be one in which "a child's emplacement should insure some degree of success in that activity. A learning activity should create a place where the student can't fail and a place where you never run out of alternatives for the kids to develop a success-identity for success filled activities," said Dr. McGuinness.

Explaining the need for programs such as these, Sister Maria stated, "I think that people who work with other people must understand the importance of the individual in an identity society, such as we are living in where your role—who you are—is more important than your goal."

The identity concepts of this new reality therapy maintain that our priorities have changed. A major cultural shift has occurred from the pre-war II Survival Society to the Post-War World II Identity Society.

Dr. McGuinness contends that students today are searching for an identity or a role before a goal. They feel the internal pressures of "what I want to do" rather than the external pressures of school and parents. Today, students are more concerned with the internal locus of control, they want to know the rationale, and the concept of personal growth and change precedes, to maintain the status quo (It's always done that way) principle.

Some of the conditions which produced this change in priorities are the era of affluence, political ideologies, and the television and advertising industries, said Dr. McGuinness while the TV promises to solve all problems in 28 minutes, the advertisement replace the "real" sell with the "role" sell.

Dr. McGuinness concluded that society has become established in which a person needs to know who he is before he decides what he is to become. Personal worth, caring about each other and interdependence in a changing society are key components of the new trend.

Other topics and guest speakers for the remaining two workshops in the series are: "Reality Therapy" demonstrated by Beth Crofoot, Institute of Reality In- ternalized or externalized" which will be presented by Sister Maria Concepta McDermott of Saint Mary's.

Some Class, Ice Fans

Friday night after the lackadaisical hockey team’s loss to a slow Denver team, a frustrated fan hurled an empty glass bottle in the direction of the Denver bench, nearly missing a player. No frustration, not even the terrible performance of ND’s “star-studded” team, justifies that criminal act. Yet, no usher grabbed the assailant and no person in the section around him turned him over to the authorities.

If the bottle had found its mark, a player could have been seriously injured and the bottle-throwing act could have been considered an assault—a criminal offense. Yet, the student who heaved the litter that is generally thrown on the ice and the abuse that is given to the officials. And incidents like this one merely serve to make the situation worse.

What Happened?

One year ago, the move to renovate LaFortune Student Center began in earnest. After a year of work, a final model, a philosophy and a complete renovation plan was completed. But since then, the renovation schemes have been sufficiently squelched. What happened to them?

Losing Faith

Editor:
Regarding the piece by Father McNally in today’s Observer in which he discusses the facts of Professor Vasoli (Decreasing Mass Attendance, Diminishing Importance of Theology, Fewer Religious on Campus—and the generally recognized fact of the waning of Catholicism on this campus). Father McNally evidences a sign of either stupidity, blindness, dishonesty, or naivete. As a fellow priest and one who has been on this campus for 35 years I hope the word “naivete” applies in this instance—which is defined in the Thorndike-Barnhart Dictionary, 1972 edition, as “simplicity, as in a small child”. As a matter of fact it appears to the undersigned that Fr. McNally’s final sentence “despite its flaws, Notre Dame is a good place to be...” is an echo of another statement allegedly made by another USC priest a few years ago: “What better place for a man to lose his faith, than at Notre Dame?”

Dylan and the Dome

Editor:
It causes me great pain to know that even a small part of the magnitude and greatness such as Bob Dylan can hold second fiddle to the great sport that has been erected here in our little community. The opportunity to have here an artist that has been called by some one of the great lyricists and songwriters of the twentieth century, and then to throw this opportunity to the winds, because of a basketball game, seems to me to be both revealing of where the collective head of this community is at, and a disregarding of the feelings of those here at the University who feel there are other things that exist in this world besides athletic games, competitive sports, jocks, sneakers, and state sock sports. Reactions I received from those around me were that the idea “what did you expect, this is Notre Dame...” I don’t want to believe that this is typically Notre Dame, or that the most important thing about going to college here is what sport you play, who your favorite team is, or how you can work your studying around Dandy Don’s. Hilarious Howard’s, and Fabulous Frank’s Monday night football extravaganzas. I would like to believe when we are given the opportunity to see one see one as great as Dylan, and yes, even witness all the his history when we see him, that we won’t be deprived of that rare opportunity because of something with as little significance as a basketball game. I daresay, you would have noticed an ACC fanned to the rafters with cheering, admiring people, rather than a perhaps two-thirds full arena with an occasionally cheering crowd. Everyone knows that ND fans only cheer when the team is doing well, and greatness such as Bob Dylan hasn’t been a little more consideration of the entire student community, rather than for the people who need to watch games to fill up our lives, and who don’t care or having to be so damn perfect. They really lost this time, and they lost badly.

Sincerely,
Patrick Dillon

All good things must come to an end, so too with this paper, and hence this column since Friday will be The Observer's last issue for the semester. Hopefully, we will all be back in January. Anyhow, the networks have loaded up on movies and Christmas specials in the coming weeks and after this week's programs are reviewed, I shall note the highlights up to the end of December since that is when my advance works have loaded up on movies and too with this paper, and hence this column.

The specials coming up in future weeks include Bing Crosby and Bob Hope shows next Sunday on ABC, an Andy Williams special premiering on the thirteenth and the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" unveils a new drama called "The Borrowers" on the fortieth. G. E. Theater presentation as yet unannounced will occupy the CBS Tuesday movie slot Dec. 18 and the Rockefellerers are examined Dec. 26 on CBS. I do not have the listings for future ABC offerings since channel 28 has been having trouble with their mailing system.

There are a few good movies scheduled for the coming weeks (again, I wish I had the ABC schedules because their Sunday night specials, and different meaning. And December 29 premieres "Sweet Charity" with Shirley MacClaine and Ricardo Montalban. This box office bomb is usually worth the watching). On Monday, Dec. 10, key West premieres Steve Boyd and Woody Strode star as a pair of Floridian private-eyes in a pilot that did not sell for this season. NBC also unveils "Hostel" that following Saturday. Based on the Arthur Hailey (Airport) novel, this movie has the usual mash of soapy plots and a suspenseful ending with Rod Taylor, Catherine Spaak, Karl Malden, and Michael Rennie heading an all-star cast. Enter black lawyer Freeman who is running from the law and the drama is set up. The film follows the development of their relationship until Christmas Eve when the outside world breaks in with devastating results due to the impending birth of Miss Duke's baby. For a made-for-TV film, it is far above the average fare and good viewing.

Research meeting slated

The Notre Dame branch of the Indiana Public Interest Research Group (InPIRG) will hold a reorganizational meeting for all interested students on Monday night, Dec. 3, at 6:30 p.m. in the Fiesta Lounge of LaFortune Student Center.

The InPIRG meeting will feature Mr. Mark Biddle, director of InPIRG at Indiana University at Bloomington. Biddle will describe the nationwide InPIRG organization and suggest ways that Notre Dame can reorganize their InPIRG branch.

ND gives over $44,000 to United Way campaign

A total of $44,511.70 in gifts or about two percent more than the assigned goal of $43,780, was received from Notre Dame by the last day of the 1973 drive.

The greatest share of campus gifts, totaling $27,963.00, came from 359 faculty members who gave an average gift of $82.45. Gifts varied widely in size with many under $50. A three times that “average gift.” Participation varied widely among the various categories of faculty. By colleges, the number of faculty and the percent participation were: Engineering 77 percent of 85, Business Administration 70 percent of 46, Law 59 percent of 22, Science 54 percent of 133, and Letters 49 percent of 254. In the non-college faculty, 18 percent of 237 participated.

The next largest share of the total came from 144 administration members who contributed an average gift of $82.45. As a per cent of the administration participated in the drive. A total of $6,650.81 came from 660 staff members who gave an average gift of $10.19 and their numbers represented 31.5 per cent of the total staff. $523.99 in special gifts was also received. All told 264 students contributed $1,159.43, for an average gift of $5.88. Student volunteers also raised an additional $248.56 for the United Way by selling shamrocks at the Michigan State and Southern California football games.

As the late gifts come in, some of the per cent participation in the faculty and staff categories is lower than anticipated, but the final figures are expected, and the financial figures probably will not be widely different from those given above.

Train tickets

The Student Union has announced the following regulations regarding the sale and distribution of tickets for The Notre Dame Football Special. The Student Union sponsored $130 Sugar Bowl Train Trip package goes on sale this evening at 7:00 pm in the Fiesta Lounge of the Student Union.

Sales are on a first come, first serve basis. This travel package is offered to Notre Dame and St. Mary’s Students Only.

A Student I.D. must be shown at the time of purchase.

A $35.00 non-refundable deposit is required for the purchase of each ticket (checks may be made payable to the University of Notre Dame Student Government Fund). The Balance of the purchase payment must be paid by Mon. Dec. 10 and may be made during the Student Union’s regular Ticket Office hours.

A maximum of 5 tickets may be picked up by one student. So long as there is a student I.D. and deposit for every ticket being purchased.

A limit of 100 places will be available Monday evening. However, there exists a possibility of additional places becoming available. People are asked to come early to the Student Union’s regular Ticket Office.

The train leaves Notre Dame Tuesday, Dec. 4 at 5:00 pm. The return trip will leave New Orleans at 10:00 am and will arrive in South Bend Saturday morning, Dec. 8.

Several changes have been made to the usual travel arrangements.

1. The trip is extended to a 7-day stay and an additional flight on Sunday, Dec. 9.
2. The trip includes air transportation and hotel accommodations. Train transportation cannot be purchased separately from the air travel packages. Please see the Student Union Ticket Office for more information.

Irish open impressively, defeat Valparaiso 112-62

by Peggy Lawler

Digger Phelps’ Irish got off to a good start Saturday afternoon, defeating Valparaiso University from Valparaiso, Indiana 112-62, before a capacity crowd of 11,341. For the first time in Phelps’ career as Notre Dame’s head coach, his team won the season opener. And that wasn’t the only first the cagers earned on Saturday. They set a program record of 100 points for Digger, and won by the widest margin of victory in almost twenty years. But perhaps the most meaningful statistic for the Irish in looking ahead to the season is the fact that every member of the squad who dressed, scored.

Freshman Adrian Dantley led the team scoring with 16 points, and was also tops in the rebounding category, with nine. Junior co-captain John Shumate tallied 15, while guards Gary Brakow and Dwight Clay each had 14 points.

But perhaps the most meaningful statistic for the Irish in looking ahead to the season is the fact that every member of the squad who dressed, scored.

For the Crusaders, guard John Semmelback was the high point man, with 17, and Jeff Holmes and Mark Kazmer each tallied 13.

"We had hoped to make a better showing, but the full court man-to-man pressure was too hard to stop," explained Purden. "We tried to set up plays, but they just didn’t work."

Accuracy seemed to be a problem for Valpo, as only Semmelback and Kazner shot over the 50 mark, for the team percentage of just .349. The Irish, on the other hand, shot an excellent .563 from the floor, including .500 or better from ten players.

The Irish were never in trouble, as they went ahead 9-4 in the early second half. It was only a matter of how large the Irish margin would be.

Icers split with Denver

Due to space limitations in today’s edition, the Observer was unable to print the series story on Notre Dame-Denver. It will appear, instead, in tomorrow’s paper.

The Irish and Pioneers split the series, Denver winning 64-63 Friday night and the Irish taking an overtime victory, 4-3-3, yesterday afternoon.

Ara Parseghian—Three times before he had been on the verge of such a feat entering Miami Saturday night in the Orange Bowl was particularly sweet for satisfyingly so since almost a year before, the Orange Bowl had been disaster," said the head coach. "I said the next day (after Nebraska. He promised he would be back, and he'd show people how potentially dangerous opponent.

He's a dedicated coach. Ara started this season on January 2. His goal was then and is now to complete a perfect season and win a national championship. With this win, he's a step closer to go that goal. If Ara is to accomplish such a feat, no one will be able to say he didn't work hard for it. He has worked and has every detail planned in advance. Practices are timed to the minute, and no one even knows how many hours Parseghian spends watching films. He starts his day at 5:30 the moment he gets up after a sleepless night at night.

As he toyed with the Miami game, and as the reporters gathered about, he never showed the slightest bit of doubt that this is the team he wants to be. He certainly has made the Irish fans very happy. As he spoke, the team started here, after we were left out of the Orange Bowl, we cam e back, and hell if we didn't show 'em." (Photo by Joe Raymond).
