Israelis complete first stage of Mid-east withdrawal

by United Press International

Israel lifted its siege of Suez City and the Egyptian third army Monday, completing the first stage of its withdrawal from the West Bank of the Suez Canal.

Some 600 blue-helmeted U.N. troops carrying automatic rifles temporarily moved into vacated positions in preparation for handing them over to Egypt.

The Israeli withdrawal from about three-quarters of a 560-square-mile area was engineered by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, all Israeli forces are to be withdrawn from the canal's West Bank by Feb. 21. By March 5, Egyptian forces are to be in control of both banks of the waterway, which has been closed since the 1967 war.

"Then we pulled the flag down, folded it up and, with a last salute, we said a nice goodbye and packed up," said the Israeli radio. Under the disengagement agreement engineered by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, all Israeli forces are to be withdrawn from the canal's West Bank by Feb. 21. By March 5, Egyptian forces are to be in control of both banks of the waterway, which has been closed since the 1967 war. In return for the Israeli pullback into the Sinai 13 miles east of the waterway, Egypt is to hand its forces along the canal's east bank and pull all surface-to-air missiles out of the desert.

Microfilm center moved

by Gregg Bangs
Staff Reporter

"I should hope that the first immediate result of moving the Microfilm Room is a vastly improved degree of service," commented Dr. George Sereiko, Director of Public Services of the ND Library, on the recent transfer of the Library's microfilm resources.

During the Christmas break, all of the microfilm resources were shifted from a classroom-sized facility on the second floor to an area formerly occupied by tables and seats that was set aside for studying. This area is also located on the second floor.

"The old facility was always crowded," according to Sereiko, "but since this new room is three times the size of the old one, we hope that the overcrowding situation will be alleviated."

To complement the new facilities, there have been two other additions to the Microfilm Center. The most important of these is implementing of Brother Francisco Drury C.S.C., who will become the first full-time microfilm attendant in the University's history. Brother Drury's main responsibility will be the actual running of the room. However, he will also be on hand to teach people how to operate the microfilm machines.

"This," states Dr. Sereiko, "is not as trivial a task as it may seem, for there are many people on this campus who have never learned how to operate a microfilm machine. And since the microfilm readers are always coming out in different styles, Brother Drury will probably end up teaching people who thought they knew how to use the readers, too."

The center will now be open from 8:00 am to 10:00 pm, Mondays through Fridays. The other addition to the Microfilm Resource Center is the acquisition of four new microfilm readers. To go along with the new readers, the University is also obtaining a huge collection of microfiche known as microrice.

The microrice deals with the culture of primitive people and will build up the micro-text section up to sixty titles that Sereiko would like to continue to add on to the sixty titles that the University already has in the microfilm collection, Dr. Sereiko hopes that with the addition of the new microfilm collection, the new microfilm readers, and the full time attendant, both students and faculty will use the newly located Microfilm Center to its fullest extent.

Miami (UPI) - More than a million Cubans chanting "Viva Brezhnev, Viva Brezhnev" welcomed Leonid I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, to Havana Monday afternoon, according to Cuban radio monitored here. En route to Cuba, flying just off the U.S. Atlantic Coast, Brezhnev wired greetings to the people of the United States and expressed confidence relations between the United States and the Soviet Union "will be developing further."

Washington (UPI) - President Nixon asked Congress Monday for $13.6 billion in veterans benefits during the next fiscal year, including increases in GI bill payments and higher pensions to offset the climbing cost of living. He asked for an 8 per cent increase in schooling benefits and for cost of living adjustments in VA pension payments which now go to 1 million veterans and 1.3 million survivors of veterans.

Washington (UPI) - Herbert L. "Bart" Porter, who told the Senate Watergate Committee he had kept quiet for fear he would be accused of "Not being a team player" pleaded guilty Monday to one count of lying to the FBI about the scandal. U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant let Porter, the former scheduling director of the Committee for the Reelection of the President, go free without bond and postponed sentencing until the court gets a probation report.

PNV offers S.B. centers program

by Tom Russo

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Basil O'Leary, administrator of the Program in Non-Violence (PNV), met with Cassie Lawson, director of Off-Campus Student Activities, to discuss some practical aspects of one of the Program's current projects. Plans call for interested PNV students to work in several of the federally-supported community centers situated in South Bend's "poverty pockets".

"We want to provide opportunities for practical applications of concepts studied and discussed in the classroom," said Dr. O'Leary. To this end he and a nucleus of approximately eight students will meet Thursday with Dean Johnson, head of Notre Bend's ACTION, a federally funded, city- and county-supported project which operates the five neighborhood centers.

"Dear Jesus, real, genuine, open," advised Mr. Lawson, who is coordinating PNV with the city agency. "I would be skeptical of forcing your values upon the people in the community. They are up to date more than ever before on community issues such as education, housing, even international affairs."

Mr. Lawson, also Minority Student Advisor, knows from experience expressing the plight of South Bend's poverty pockets as he has been active in community affairs for several years.

"We expect about 30 students to participate," commented Dr. O'Leary. "Although they have only nebulous ideas as to what role they intend to play (classes, movies, or perhaps "rap sessions") the volunteers have definite ideas as to how they would like to do it."

"The idea," stated Mr. Lawson, "is to learn from each other. Notre Dame wants to participate in community affairs. We can do a lot just by being there."

Hitch-hiking taking toll on passengers

by Andy Swansfield

"Hitch-hiking," a common means of transportation for many Notre Dame students, "could prove to be dangerous," says ND Security Officer John Mitchell.

Last Saturday night, two separate incidents of armed robbery occurred between the Morris Inn and Angela Boulevard. One incident involved an ND student who hitched a ride around 10:00 pm Saturday. He was robbed of $19.00 and forced out of the car before it reached the traffic light at Notre Dame Ave. and Angela. The second robbery occurred about ten minutes later. This time the student was robbed of $19.00, whipped, and again forced out of the car before reaching the intersection of Notre Dame Ave. and Angela.

Both armed robberies were reportedly committed by the same persons, even though they occurred separately. Two males drove a light blue-green Mustang on both occasions. The first time they wore red ski masks and the second time they wore nothing to conceal their faces.

Pears realizes that hitch-hiking is commonplace, "but asks that students be extremely careful when hitch-hiking."

In other incidents on campus, two thermal windows were broken in the Memorial Library. This also occurred on Saturday evening. One was cracked by the high winds that caused other damage in the area and forced a wind warning to be issued. The other appears to have been struck by a golf cart. Though they were merely cracked, both windows will have to be replaced at considerable cost.

A homemade luggage rack was reported missing from a car in the D2 parking lot somewhere between 1:00 pm on Friday and 3:00 on Saturday.

GOP representatives push for April 30 impeachment deadline in committee

WASHINGTON UPI - Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee decided Monday to push for an April 30 cut-off in the White House court case against President Nixon.

The GOP members plan to offer an amendment to a House rules motion to require Nixon to step down that day. If Nixon does not cooperate with the committee or if he authorized illegal acts, even if he didn't know about them, the committee would direct the House to impeach him.

The GOP members also have a plan to require Nixon to submit "plumber" White House news leaks. They would proceed against Nixon with the same urgency as they would proceed in a White House court case against President Truman.

Whether or not they offer the White House court case against Nixon, Republicans say they will offer their cut-off proposal to the House. The GOP members have two demands: that Nixon resign by April 30 and that he step down immediately when he is indicted.

The Dillon Affair
Epilogue

The clarification of last semester's Dillon Hall Incident brings some questions to mind:

Rehabilitative Discipline—Since John Macheca took over the Dean of Students office, he has dedicated himself to a program of "Rehabilitative Discipline." It seems questionable that a one semester suspension to the Dillon Hall student that allows him to leave the sobering influence of this university for the free life of a state school offers any true rehabilitation.

Telling All—Throughout his short tenure, Macheca has stood stonily for the integrity and confidentiality of his office, yet the Dillon Hall student told all to him, he turned around and used the information to see that the student got punished.

The Judicial Board—How can a University discipline system operate when its Judicial Board does not know what it can and cannot decide upon. Their ignorance of their powers resulted in a true injustice being done to the student in question. (Flying back and forth to Massachusetts). Also, the delay in appointing the Judicial Board until late into last semester is a mistake that the University should not allow ever to happen again. Their appointments should be prompt.

Macheca has been painted by many as the bad guy in the case but some blame seems to fall on all the people involved. The complicated and antiquated judicial proceedings of the campus must bear the brunt of the blame though. They need to be changed.

All the other incidents surrounding the case seem to be unfortunate, but predictable occurrences. It's a tradition on this campus to operate on the simple motto that you're dumb enough to get caught, you deserve what ever you get. The student really didn't use his head and resolutely, he paid for it.

In the case of the Provost, he exercised a right of the University that is clearly outlined in our room contracts. Legally, the University as a private institution can enter rooms no matter how much the students complain. The Student Affairs office has been adamant that rooms will only be entered under extreme conditions and that, with the exception of the Dillon case, the rector will be present. Only one other room has been entered this year.

The entire incident was unfortunate. Hopefully, it will spur some changes in the University judicial procedures and some answers to our questions.

Extend the Break

The Spring Break for this semester ends with classes resuming on a Monday. With the gasoline shortage and the closing of all gas stations on Sunday, it will be impossible for most students to return on Sunday prior to the opening of classes.

Throughout the calendar crisis, the Provost insisted that the purpose of a break is to get students away from the campus and if the gasoline shortage forced students to come back a day early, it would in effect thwart the Provost's intent. The University has yet to address this issue and it is clear that they have an obligation to it. The perfect way to handle the situation is to move the opening of classes back to Tuesday. (A holiday in celebration of the passing of the new calendar or even the long-awaited vacation for the national championship.) This would give students who have long distances to drive back to campus a chance to make it back without unnecessarily killing themselves.

Enrollment to stabilize at 6600

Encourage best students to apply

by Al Rutherford

This is the fourth in a series of articles by The Observer examining in depth each area considered by the Committee on University Priorities.

The subcommittee deals with the section on enrollment, with comments from Director of Admissions John T. Goldrick.

The Task Force on Enrollment, when it met back in the fall of 1972, addressed itself to two sets of problems: those concerned with encouraging the best students to apply to Notre Dame, and to come if accepted; and those concerned with maintaining a well-satisfied student body which would be its own recruiting advertisement.

The members of the task force researched and recommended in each of the following areas: Population, Recruitment, Admissions, Housing and Environment.

Subsequently, the task force was formed to treat each of these areas.

Population

Notre Dame now enrolls 6796 full-time students of which 818 or 12 per cent are women. The freshman class of as of October, 1973, contained 1786 students. But future classes have to be between 1600 and 1800 boys so that if the student population of 6600, recommended by the Committee on University Priorities, is to be reached.

But before any conclusions were reached, the subcommittee realized that certain assumptions had to be made. As a guideline for those assumptions included that there will be no recommendations for new construction, that any changes in physical facilities in the academic area will be for modernization, and that without new construction, the upperclassmen in "on-campus" students is 5000 (or 5400 if two buildings are remodeled).

One of the goals set forth by the subcommittee was to reduce the current attrition rate of 19.3 per cent. According to Leo Corbaci, Dean of Admissions and a member of the task force, at least one-third of the attrition rate is due to financial costs. "Our biggest goal is to increase financial aid to meet the rising costs of tuition, room and board," commented Corbaci. "As financial aid decreases, our attrition rate is increasing."

Another of the goals was to stabilize the student population at 6600. "But to attain this goal," explained Corbaci, "we also have to consider whether 6600 students are sufficient enough to cover the costs which are always increasing.

Corbaci continued, "Hopefully, in a year we will attain the goal of 6600. About 1700 students will be graduating this year with only about 80 returning for a fifth or sixth year. With a freshman class projected between 1625 and 1650 and the normal attrition rate, the goal of 6600 is reachable."

Below are the figures as of October, 1973:

The subcommittee recommended that the enrollment be stabilized at 6600 and that the quality of the student body be maintained.

5th year 64-2 (66)
6th year 12-0 (12)
Full-time total 5980-816 (6796)

Other recommendations by the subcommittee included:

- That undergraduate enrollment be stabilized at 6600
- That the proportion of women and of members of disadvantaged ethnic groups enrolled at the University be increased.
- That advanced programs concentrate upon improving students' skills in specific areas.
- That the university maintain the College of Engineering and Science at a level sufficient to insure a first-rate faculty and curriculum.
- That all other things being equal, special admissions consideration be continued for relatives of Notre Dame alumni and benefactors as well as for children of University faculty.

That a substantial increase be made in the funds available to the COUP committee and their recommendations were as follows:

- That the university continue to attract enterprises and industries to Notre Dame.
- That the university continue to attract the top 50 per cent of high school seniors to Notre Dame.

"One way to retain the quality of our school is to increase the number of students who have national awards such as National Merit. But it is necessary to have some students who are out of the ordinary. We want to be competitive in New York and Los Angeles," Goldrick stated.

One of the goals set forth by the subcommittee was to increase the number of students who are out of the ordinary. "What we want to do is to be competitive in New York and Los Angeles," Goldrick stated. "What we want to do is to have a teaching faculty that is competitive in New York and Los Angeles."

"We want to be competitive in New York and Los Angeles," Goldrick stated. "What we want to do is to have a teaching faculty that is competitive in New York and Los Angeles."

The subcommittee commented that the Admissions Office staff be increased to ten professional positions. One of the coordinators would be responsible for admitting students from specific ethnic groups. Minority enrollment now totals 334 students or 4.9 per cent of the total student body. The minority groups are Afro American, Spanish American, Oriental American and Indian. The coordinator's job would be to increase minority ethnicity enrollment at Notre Dame.

"We want to be competitive in New York and Los Angeles," Goldrick stated. "What we want to do is to have a teaching faculty that is competitive in New York and Los Angeles."

The Enrolment task force submitted all of its findings to the COUP committee and their recommendations were as follows:

- That undergraduate enrollment be stabilized at 6600
- That the proportion of women and of members of disadvantaged ethnic groups enrolled at the University be increased.
- That advanced programs concentrate upon improving students' skills in specific areas.
- That the university maintain the College of Engineering and Science at a level sufficient to insure a first-rate faculty and curriculum.

"One way to retain the quality of our school is to increase the number of students who have national awards such as National Merit. But it is necessary to have some students who are out of the ordinary. We want to be competitive in New York and Los Angeles," Goldrick stated.

Dan Saracino, assistant director of admissions, commented that the admissions office needed funds if it is to succeed in keeping pace with other universities. We have to be able to bring in a core of students. Also, financial aid of having to have been increased to assure a variety of students."

The subcommittee also reported their findings and recommendations on housing and environment, but these are not included in this study of admissions.

Khmer Rouge tightens grip around Phnom Penh

by Lynn C. Newland

Phnom Penh (UPI)—Signs scattered throughout this sprawling capital suggest the English and Khmer that rebel forces should "Go Home" and declare, "We Want Peace."

But the insurgents have not gone away. They are more distant now than it was when the first shot of the Cambodian was fired nearly 16 years ago.

In fact, the current military offensive launched by insurgent forces may pose the most serious threat ever faced by Cambodian President Lon Nol's government.

As one Western diplomat described the situation, "The Khmer Rouge Communist insurgents have only total military victory in mind. They have maximal war aims, and they have an effective, organized army to carry out their aims. This is certainly true of military testing." Thus far, the Cambodian army, navy and air force, with a combined total of 240,000 men, have failed to win any significant battle of the insurgents—offensive—offensive attack and only over a short period of time.

The dry season in Cambodia continues, and as the diplomatic, remarked that, "The fighting is over, and the fighting is over, and the fighting is over, and the fighting is over."

"The Khmer Rouge Communist insurgents have only total military victory in mind. They have maximal war aims, and they have an effective, organized army to carry out their aims. This is certainly true of military testing," thus far, the Cambodian army, navy and air force, with a combined total of 240,000 men, have failed to win any significant battle of the insurgents—offensive—offensive attack and only over a short period of time.

"Squeezing the arteries," the diplomatic, remarked, "never really worked, so they've given up on that and are now trying more direct assaults on the capital."

The strategy change has proved successful, as insurgent forces are closer to Phnom Penh today than they were at any time in the past. The circle around the capital becomes more and more constricted.

On the northwest, insurgent forces are as close as four miles from the capital and only two miles northwest of Phnom Penh. On the southwest, a large rebel force have moved within two miles of Chacron Mon, the presidential palace on the southern edges of the capital, before being pushed back by government troops.

On the south, insurgent forces have long maintained control of large chunks of territory east of the Mekong River.

The insurgents also have increased their rocket attacks on the capital in an attempt to panic the city's refugee-swollen population of two million people.

President Lon Nol has remained nearly aloof to the deteriorating situation. He has sought only two broadcasts to the nation since the offensive began in November.

In one broadcast, he urged the citizens to dig trenches and build rocket shelters against attacks on the capital by the insurgents. In a second address, the president said that his current military campaign would be decided in the future of Cambodia.

The key to the situation could be the government of, and only two miles from the capital by cutting the five major

Third year of program

Students to help S.B. poor complete taxes

by Terry Keeney
Staff Reporter

For the third consecutive year a group of business and law students are conducting a program to aid low-income persons in South Bend to complete their income tax forms. The group, led by ND members of the National Alliance of Concerned Business Students, needs undergraduate volunteers to staff their program beginning in a week and ending April 14.

"What we're looking for is someone with a business background," said Mike Carey, a graduate business student with the N.A.C.B.S. Yet Carey emphasized that a business background, though helpful, was not necessary.

The purpose of the program is to save low income families money that they might unnecessarily have spent in taxes. Carey pointed out that many persons are unaware of deductions they can make. For example he cited that individuals who work in uniform may deduct the laundry costs for their uniforms.

Student volunteers under the guidance of Certified Public Accountants will advise individuals of possible ways to save money. Carey is hopeful that the program can save the average individual $10 to $25.

"At least we can save him the cost of going down to somebody like H. and R. Block," Carey observed.

In conjunction with community agencies such as the Model Cities program, "action centers" will be established throughout the city to handle the tax returns.

"We're hoping to double that figure of persons helped again," Carey explained. "The more people we get to come in, the more this will become a well-established activity."

Professor Kenneth Milani of the accounting department will conduct a training session in tax law for all volunteers Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. in room 106 of the Law School. All students regardless of major are invited.

Mardi Gras promised best ever

by Clyde Iverson
Staff Reporter

Enlightened by Black Jack and minstrel costumes, and plenty of music, all integrated in spirit of the Middle-Earth, this year's Mardi Gras promises to be the best ever.

It all starts this January 31, Thursday night at 9 p.m. in the majestically LaPorte Students Center with the Irish Mardi Gras' first costume ball. Tickets are $3.75 a couple and $2.00 for singles and are on sale in both dining halls.

J.R.R. Tolkien's "Master Of the Middle-Earth" will serve as the theme of this year's event. Although costumes reflecting this story of dragons and demons are not required, they are strongly suggested. Explained Jan Wallman, co-ordinator of the '74 Mardi Gras Committee, "We haven't required that students wear a costume, but it is a costume party and we hope that as many people as possible contribute to the spirit of the occasion."

Although the costume ball will have its share of excitement the main event doesn't begin until the Carnival atmosphere is creating plenty of black jack and pin wigs and envelops Stephen, Center and hopefully the Notre Dame student body.

Stephen Boy, general chairman of this year's Mardi Gras, sees the carnival as serving a two-fold purpose, "Traditionally this time of year has been known for its lack of excitement, with Mardi Gras we have hoped to change that, also, the charities here at Notre Dame, such as CILA, Manasa, Neighborhood Study Program, St. Maria's School and other have been in need of additional financial support, we hope to provide some of that support."

Boy's goal is a contribution of $10,000 to the various campus charities. "If we can reach this goal, I think the '74 Mardi Gras will be an overwhelming success," said Boy.

But Boy added that reaching that goal will be difficult. "So far the sale of raffle tickets, one of our major sources of income, has been disappointing. But we hope that will change this week. Also, it is hard to predict how much money we will receive from the costume party and the gambling booths."

But of course, how much money can be generated from the various activities depends directly on the enthusiasm of the Irish and if the number of students working on the construction of the booths is any indication of that enthusiasm the commission should come very close to realizing their goal.

The construction is going great," observed Boy. "One look at the progress we have made would show how enthusiastic and dedicated these people are." Boy claimed that he and his staff have been working 60 to 70 hours a week in the preparations. "Of course, we can always use additional help, and everyone is welcome."

"We're giving away a 1974 Chevrolet Impala, and all the money you can win at the booths," stressed Boy, "plus contributions to the campus charities. So come on, have a good time, and spend your money."

Regina nominations open for president and v.p.

Patti Kamens, SMC election committee chair person, has announced that nominations are now open for the offices of president and vice president of Regina Hall. While presidential nominations can come from either North or South, only North residents are eligible for the vice-presidential post.

In addition to these positions, nominations are also needed to fill three positions on Student Assembly. On representative each is needed from LeMans, Holy Cross and McCombians Halls.

All nominations will be open from 8:00 a.m. Jan. 28 through midnight February 4. Elections will take place on Thursday, Feb. 6. Those interested may submit their names to Ed Howarth, Box 940 LeMans or call 5704.
St. Mary's art department joins NASA

The department of art at Saint Mary's College has been elected to membership in the National Association of Schools of Art (NASA) becoming the first Catholic college or university and one of the few women's schools to be so recognized.

George Callar, president of Pratt Institute, College of Art and former president of Mary's College, has been elected to one of the few women's schools to have an official advisor. Dr. Edward L. Hurley, president of Saint Mary's College of the membership appointed the Board of Directors of art schools, college and university which accredits programs in art.

New York offers Urban Fellowship to apply for a city government fellowship and spend the academic year, from September 1974 to June, working with a City agency four days a week and participating in seminars on the fifth day. Seminars are conducted by professors from all areas of the City government and also by interested persons living in the New York City area.

The program is organized and financed by the New York City Urban Service Center organized by Mary Pat Sullivan.

For community needs

SMC service center organized

Realizing the need for a more totally involved community, a group of students at Saint Mary's College organized a new Student Service and Information Center.

Patti Kampsen, director of the center, is an Urban Fellow who has come to Saint Mary's College to learn more about urban fellowship programs in art. The criteria for the award state that these are pursued, and the award is given upon the judgment of this success is "the excellence of the creative work produced by students" which the organization believes "the best determinant of the adequacy of the studio and laboratory studies."

The National Association also considered the number of students "who should evidence not only creative ability and educational skill, but also a commitment to the world of art, and an awareness of the new forces working in the academic world at large."

102 students are currently majoring in art, and more than 600 of the College's 5000 students are enrolled in art courses.

In addition to evaluating the students and their work, the National Association also considered the qualifications of the faculty, their background, "ability to communicate knowledge and insights effectively, and the validity of a teacher's qualifications to teach a studio subject and the teacher's involvement as a practicing artist."

The staff of the center will be trained to handle problems in the areas required. Training will be provided by the counselor, who will develop a file on each student, and by volunteers with a background in the arts, who will take a seminar in listening skills, and in personal and group counseling.

The center will be a community phone and walk in center. All calls will be handled solely by students from both campuses. Calls will be received in strict confidence.

The first training session will be held in the Student Center January 5-7, 7:00 pm, in the Regina Auditorium. Anyone interested in working for the center should attend the training session or contact Patti Kampsen at 794.

The Irish host fifth-ranked Warriors

by Greg Cargan

The last time Marquette and Notre Dame got together, the Irish ended up going home with a 34-16 defeat after being ahead at the half, 17-16. This time around, the Irish must give their best shot at stopping the Warriors, who are coming off a win at the hands of South Carolina and are in line for another top-5 ranking.

John Fineran

Notre Dame got together, the Irish were ready to return the favor once again. McGuire and his team had been preparing for a month and a half when the Warriors visited the ACC. Their latest effort produced a victory against Long Beach State in the opening game of the season and a 60-36 in Columbus.

With the exception of Long Beach State, South Carolina, and Notre Dame, the schedule of the Warriors can hardly be considered strenuous. Still, they have a chance to shake up the rankings.

The Irish meanwhile hope to rebound from last weekend’s loss to top-ranked UCLA and will go with the usual starting lineup of Dan Frazier, John Shumate, Gary Broak and Goose. Notre Dame is shooting for the win, and hopefully, won’t have to worry about a “white-knuckler.”

Dwight Clay hit the game-winner against Marquette last year with a last second jumper. Hopefully, his heroics won’t be needed tonight for the Irish to host fifth-ranked Marquette.

An exclusive interview

Interviewer: Sir, would you please identify yourself.
Interviewee: My name is Richard M. Nixon.
Interviewer: What is your present occupation?
Interviewee: I am President of the United States.
Interviewer: Who brought about this proceedings of impeachment?
Interviewee: My Vice-President then, Gerald Ford, is an American.

Interviewer: Would you please answer why you knew Parseghian.

Interviewee: Well, my Vice-President then, Gerald Ford, is an American.

Interviewer: And what class of persons was that?

Interviewee: Northerners, specifically citizens of the great State of Indiana.

Interviewer: Who brought about this proceedings of impeachment?

Interviewee: No, it was John Brademas, a representative from Northern Indiana.

Interviewer: Can you reconstruct your impeachment?

Interviewee: Well, it started on New Year’s Eve. I placed a long-distance call from my San Clemente estate to New Orleans, specifically Tulane Stadium. I was attempting to get in touch with Paul Bryant, the head coach of Alabama, to wish him and his team luck against Notre Dame’s football team, which resides in Congressman Brademas’ district. Unfortunately, my phone call never got through to Bear. I wish it had.

Interviewer: Well, what are your qualifications for the Irish?

Interviewee: Well, when I missed connections, Bear tried to return my call. Unfortunately, he made connections with my former Vice-president, Lyndon B. Johnson, and I suggested Alabama use a quarterback throwback play. The quarterback would hand the ball off to the halfback and would head uphill for a pass from the halfback.

Interviewer: Alabama used the play, sir. Then your impeachment came about because Brademas believed you had consulted with this unqualified person.

Interviewer: Actually, no. Sporio got the play from Frank Sinatra. I was going to use Backman, a tackle-trap pass from the endzone that I thought Ara Parseghian would use.

Interviewee: It is not quite clear, sir, to the readers of this interview, what were the circumstances.

Interviewer: Well, as you remember, Notre Dame used the play late in their game against Michigan.

Interviewee: How did you know Parseghian would call that particular play?

Interviewer: Well, it’s a long story. When I was young, I wanted to play football at Notre Dame. I was inspired by Ronald Reagan’s portrayal of George Gipp in the movies. However, the school wouldn’t give me another chance. So I went to Whitter College. I was forced to change my name to Nixon. I thought I would get to be President, I would make Notre Dame pay. So, therefore, I had the CFA buy his office while they dug the basement of the office, too. Fortunately, we were impeached.

Interviewee: Well, part of the reason Brademas also found out that I didn’t tell Parseghian to congratulate him. Instead, I called Bob Schenbecher.

Interviewer: Why Bob? His team didn’t even go to a bowl game.

Interviewee: Well, my Vice-President then, Gerald Ford, is an alumnus of Michigan.

Interviewer: I see. Well, now we know of your impeachment. Thank you for your time.

Interviewee: You’re welcome. Can you tell me where the hockey and basketball offices are? I have to install some phones.
