Concerning lottery Mulcahy clarifies off-campus issues

by R. Thomas Thurs
Staff Reporter

Expressing a hope of clarifying the many issues raised by the off-campus lottery, Director of Campus Residence and Student Affairs, Fr. John M. Mulcahy voiced his regrets concerning resulting student anxiety.

The lottery, revealed last Friday, February 1, is “the only way we have of dealing fairly with those students who wish to stay on campus while planning to move off campus that the room deposit will not be forfeited. The security room deposit must be paid by the students; otherwise, we must suspect something,” said Schwartz. He then gave credit to the University for its efforts to combat cheating.

Disadvantage for students

Mulcahy admitted the disadvantage placed on students who wait to April 16 to sign off-campus leases, but saw no other solution to the problem.

“Our idea is to publish the lottery as early as possible and hold over picks as late as possible to give students plenty of time to research off-campus housing and ensure the sincerity of those who wish to remain on campus,” said Mulcahy. He continued, “I don’t want students saying they want to stay on campus while planning to move off campus.”

Two questions clarified

Two points at which Mulcahy wanted clarification in particular concerned the $50 security deposit and future female enrollment.

The $50, which is to be paid next week, is a before-freshman year and remains with the University until a student moves off campus.

Mulcahy assured the students who are forced off campus that the room deposit will not be forfeited. The preregistration fee, however, must be paid.

Mulcahy urged the University not to increase female enrollment. He speculated that the greatest deficit has come in the amount of raffle tickets sold.

He explained that his office is under a great deal of pressure juggling the three major factors affecting the lottery: Mulcahy continued, “We must consider first, those students who will move off voluntarily; second, the anxiety which the students experience as a result of the lottery; and third, the fact that on-campus room availability improves with time.”

The April 16 date for publication of a waiting list is to give students time to research off-campus housing and ensure the sincerity of those who wish to remain on campus, said Mulcahy. He continued, “I don’t want students saying they want to stay on campus while planning to move off anyway.”

Security force to combat increased cheating level

by James Rosini
Staff Reporter

The security force at Mardi Gras has been tripled to deal with cheating, said Mardi Gras Director Steve Boy. The microphone has ranged from players cheating to dealers overpaying their friends.

“We are now at a maximum security level,” explained Boy and the lie added, “it’s been worse than other years!”

When asked to account for the increase in cheating, Boy said, “Obviously we can’t run this place like a Las Vegas casino. Otherwise we would have people strung around constantly. There must be a median between the business and social end of the event,” Boy added.

Too many people have looked upon Mardi Gras as a profit-making activity, according to Boy. Boy would like to see more people enjoy the carnival as a social activity.

A. J. Schwartz, the Student Director of Security at Mardi Gras, had this to say about the security problems: “We have hired four dressed and three undercover St. Joseph County police officers to patrol the carnival. They have been successful in the amount of raffle tickets sold. “It has been worse than other years!”

When asked to account for the increase in cheating, Boy said, “Obviously we can’t run this place like a Las Vegas casino. Otherwise we would have people stropped around constantly. There must be a median between the business and social end of the event,” Boy added.

“The University has given the committee the option to prosecute cheaters as a university violation,” Schwartz warned. There will be 25 students along with the professional security staff that will be patrolling constantly.

“We have lost sight of our goals,” said Boy. “Students are for getting that the money is used for student-oriented volunteer groups and charities such as the St. Marita Day Care Center and the ND-SMC Council for the Retarded.”

Friday and Saturday night there will be live music at Mardi Gras and Boy again added that students might buy their raffle tickets there. “If we don’t make a minimum of $5,000, Mardi Gras will be defunct!” said Boy. “The only way we can make that money is to sell four to five thousand more tickets!”

Both young and old have a chance to win at the Mardi Gras. Even if you lose, the money is for charity. There is only three more days left of Mardi Gras: Friday 7-12, Saturday 5-12, and Sunday 1-4. (Staff photo by Zenon Bidzinski)
NEW YORK (UPI)— Trucks loaded with food headed to the nation's big cities Thursday even before drivers voted on a tentative agreement between the government and truckers to end the strike that led to scarce buying by worried housewives. Supermarket chains reported some foods such as chicken and meat were already scarce in several areas.

Houston (UPI) — Apparently in better shape when they left earth 12 weeks ago, the Sky lab 3 astronauts Thursday shut down their space station.

When the Board of Regents decided on the social future of the SMC community. "There have been no security problems with the current open house on Sunday between 1-5," said Anthony Kovatch, director of SMC security. When asked what he thought about the new proposed hours including Friday and Saturday, he said, "I think St. Mary's is ready for it and the girls are ready for it as long as they follow the rules and regulations and maintain a respect for the other's privacy. The responsibility will lie on the girls' shoulders to keep up the integrity of the school. If it turns out that they can't handle it then it should be taken away from them," he concluded.

As far as the students' opinions go, Mary Francis Burt, hall director of Holy Cross, said, "there is a half-and-half reaction toward the new open house. The girls do like the hours during the weekend. They are glad that there aren't hours during the week." When asked if there would be a tendency to abuse the new hours, Burt said, "The same people who abuse them now will abuse them if passed. But for the most part, it will create a natural and relaxed atmosphere, which will be beneficial to the girls."

SBP runoff election to be held in March

Primary Feb. 27

by Mike Rizzo
Staff Reporter

The Student Government election primary will be held on February 27 and the final runoff vote on March 4, according to Student Body Vice President Mike Geisinger.

Prospective candidates may pick up petitions for signatures from the Student Government office next Monday, February 11. They must be returned by February 21, at 5:00 p.m.

To prevent the complications which have derailed last year’s primary election the Board of Commissioners set a campaign spending limit of twenty-five dollars, required 175 signatures from presidential candidates, and outlawed the use of blank ballots in the final voting.

The Board rejected the opinion of allowing students to set a higher limit, because that could become more of a mandate to spend rather than an allowance for candidates, said Geisinger.

While each presidential candidate must obtain 175 signatures and I.D. numbers, the representation on the life council must have fifty signatures to be included in the February 27 primary. The council must have only 100 signatures to be included in the March 1 runoff.

This year the two leading candidates in the primary will move on to the runoff election provided that their combined electorate equals at least fifty percent of the total. If they together cannot muster half the total vote, then candidates will be added in order until the candidates in the run-off have fifty percent of the total. If no one garners fifty percent of the run-off vote, a final vote will be held on the following Monday March 4.

Since no write-in or blank ballots will be allowed this year the possibility of a third vote is slim, stated Jerry Samaniego, the chairman of the executive board of the election committee. The voting could end with the primary.

Samaniego, also Senior Class President, has formed a committee of twenty-two, one person from each dorm and one from each campus, for the supervision of the election efforts. This new body places Samaniego in charge of reviewing election committee regulation infractions including the fifty-dollar expenditure limit.

His basic duty will be to investigate infractions and refer major violations to the Board for action.

The Student Government presidential ticket will be chosen campus-wide and one member of the Student Life Council will be elected from each of the six campus and off-campus districts.

Any Notre Dame undergraduate may run for these positions. The 1974-1975 officers assume office on April 1. Balloting on respective days will be from 11:30 to 1:00 and from 5:00 to 6:30 in the dorms. Off-campus students will vote in the off-campus office from 11:00 to 4:00.

The election of senior class fellow will occur at the same time on a separate ballot.

In addition to the expense limit, Samaniego will be watching for such infractions of the election rules as posters on windows, trees, doors, overlarge signs, or posters with adhesive backing.

InPIRG members hear director explain purpose and goals

Mark Frael Staff Reporter

The Indiana Public Interest Research Group (InPIRG) held a preliminary meeting Thursday night in the Student Government Offices in LaFortune Center.

Fritz Wiecking, executive director of InPIRG, explained InPIRG's goals, and its establishment at Notre Dame to an audience of over twenty.

The purpose of InPIRG is to articulate and pursue, through the courts, and other legal means, the concerns of students and other individuals who have issues of general public interest.

"The PIRG's explainedWiecking, "is inspired by Ralph Nader, and I think they can provide answers to some of the problems of its country."

Just like any independent citizen's organization, two things are necessary to make it work: stability and money. On the campus, money is collected through a voluntary fee assessment of every student, usually about a $1.25 per person. The chief advantage of this system is its ubiquity. If the funding is universal, no one person or interest can "buy off" the group.

The organization's goals is assured by a full-time media director, the courts, and other legal means, the concerns of students and organized groups.

"The PIRG's explained Wiecking, "is inspired by Ralph Nader, and I think they can provide answers to some of the problems of its country."

The organization will work on both local and statewide levels in such areas as environmental preservation, consumer protection, race and sex discrimination, and tenant landlord relations. The reason for a statewide group, Wiecking said, is "if you want to get a real team leaders from building around a reservoir in Bloomington, you've got to fight their battles when their money comes from."

The local projects InPIRG has started include fighting Indiana Bell to block rate increases, investigation of comparative prices for groceries, student books, and consumer fraud in pharmaceutical commodities.

"The PIRG's movement is growing all across the country," said Wiecking, "current twenty states have some type of organization, and others are forming. It's catching fire."

Two years ago, InPIRG attempted to establish itself here and to per se the assessment involved. The largest amount of the $1.25 fee was "assessment."

"To establish this group on campus, another petition campaign must be started to collect enough signatures are collected, the Student Government will then be presented to the Administration or Board of Trustees for ratification."

Wiecking concluded, "the basic issue is people are not turned on to this because they think these are problems they can't do anything about. InPIRG offers a new method and a means for effective action."

Vatican revises old rules; makes penance communal

The Vatican today revised the rules for the Roman Catholic sacrament of penance to make it more communal and more of a reconciliation than a "confession."

A new "Ordinatio Pastoralitiae" (Penance) issued with the approval of Pope Paul VI by the Sacred Congregation for Divine Worship does not eliminate the traditional private confession and absolution.

But it does permit individual confession and absolution to be "inserted into a communal celebration in which the faithful listen to the word of God, admit their sinfulness and invoke the mercy of the Lord."

It also says that "in very special circumstances, general absolution may be given at the discretion of the bishops with the individual confession of sins being postponed to a future time."

Vatican sources said many bishops were expected to interpret this new authority liberally.

The new rules said the term "confession" places too much emphasis on the accusation of sins and "does not convey all the richness of meaning with this Sacrament has in the life of the Church."

The form of private confession remains the same but is enriched by a reading of a text of Sacred Scripture.

Senator Bayh - Indiana's junior senator

by Ann McCarr
Wire Editor

Senator Birch Bayh rose from his seat and turned to shake hands with an audience. The tapping of a question and answer session with Mayor, Dick Lugar.

downtown Plymouth, where Bayh had finished talking to the women from the Right to Life foundation and the lady in the purple hat with the plume. He shook hands with the gray-haired man in the muddy overalls and turned to us.

It was easy to see the phrases 'youth' vote and 'press—be nice to them' click in the politician's mind as Bayh hustled across the studio. His smile and firm handshake reaffirmed his sincerity, however.

Observer Insight

A Politician's Handshake

Walking over to his aide's car, Bayh spotted a woman walking in a parked car on the opposite side of the street. Dodging oncoming traffic, Bayh set off across the street and shook hands with the friendly voter. Moments later he was in the car, the interview underway.

Meeting the Constituents

It had already been a long day for the junior senator. The morning had been spent in downtown Plymouth, where Bayh had answered calls on an early radio show. After a quick lunch with the senior citizens of the South Bend Model Cities hot lunch program, he had come to WSBT.

The next stop was Notre Dame, where Bayh planned to chat informally with students here, signaling the end of interview. The senator wanted to speak informally with the students here, interested in their concerns and positive strategies for the upcoming campaign. No press questions would be allowed.

We asked him quacy of another popular concern he had mentioned, the health of the political process. He smiled almost poignantly.

"This hurts," said Bayh.

"I thought that because of the Saturday Night Massacre (the events in which Nixon Fired Hucksheen, Cox and Richardson from his cabinet), we would earn not to tolerate a president who thought he was more powerful than the law," Bayh commented seriously. "Apparently Mr. Nixon and Mr. Ford have not learned this lesson," Bayh paused briefly to regather his thoughts. "He won't let Jaworski have the same information Cox wanted. If the president let this information out, we'd have had this over several months ago."

A short time later Bayh talked politics with a small group of the students. He shared their concerns, respected their opinions and suggested discussions for his campaign. He spoke of the time of the nation and the need to challenge ourselves and our system to prevent stagnancy of thought and action.

Dear Editor,

Well, here it is, Mardi Gras time again when all the male ducks pour out of the library for the first time all year. The number of new faces is astounding! Especially the number of new faces on busload upon busload of college girls from all over the Midwest. Here they are, these lovely young ladies come anticipating a memorable weekend of fun and frolics beneath the Dome.

That’s fine. But what about the in-resident female ducks who have also been anticipating a pleasant break from the same old routine? It might be nice if we could meet a few of the "Notre Dame Men" we heard so much about but seldom hear so much about but seldom see. For one short week, we could break from the same old routine? It would not take many migrants. So, being liberal minded, I would like to suggest the following.

Bus Stop Waiting

On a college campus where men outnumber women 8 to 1 there is going to be an enthusiastic response towards all women that can be bussed in. There is certainly no reason to bus men in. It's simple. The condition of the pasture was a hell of a lot better that you expect to have all of us to satisfaction? You must feel yourself insecure or else you feel that the men on campus aren't good enough for you. At any rate maybe we should honor your request.

Sincerely,
This weekend, the St. Mary’s Board of Regents is meeting to decide on a number of important issues. Among these issues are a salary increase for the faculty, improvement of recreational facilities, and the renovation of the science hall and library.

However, the issue of most immediate concern to the student body at this time is parietals. The parietal proposal expresses the desire of the students to have extended meal visitation hours on weekends. The weekend policy of 7:00 p.m.-midnight Friday, noon to midnight Saturday, and noon to 10:00 p.m. Sunday, is not just a proposal that was hastily put together.

Indeed, it appears we have. Security at the Stepan affair has been tripled in an effort to stamp out the rash of cheating. There is little that can be done gradually and carefully by St. Mary’s Planning Process, but must realize that a dormitory is more than a place to sleep, but a home which includes all parts of human life, including social interaction.

—Pattie Cooney

The proper channels, except this last one.

The students have been waiting on this issue for almost a year. It was first tabled in May, due to controversy over a letter sent to parents, from persons opposed to the proposal. The board decided it could not come to a decision in such an emotional atmosphere. The second time it was tabled in October, due to the addition of twelve new board members, who felt inadequately prepared to vote on the issue.

The time has clearly arrived for the Board to act on the parietals issue and their action should be a positive one. The board proposal should be passed. The board must realize that a dormitory is more than a place to sleep, but a home which includes all parts of human life, including social interaction.

—Pattie Cooney

Security at the Stepan affair has been tripled in an effort to stamp out the rash of cheating. There is little that can be said to soften the impact of such a move needed at an event dedicated to raising money for the underprivileged. It would be a disgrace anywhere. This weekend Mardi Gras will make a last ditch attempt at survival. Those who attend and spend whatever funds they are people grateful for their generosity. Those who cheat can return home —Pattie Cooney

Those who cheat can return home knowing that there are people in pain who have indeed been cheated. Perhaps if those needy people were standing on the other side of the booth, the money wouldn’t mean so much.

Save Mardi Gras. And the people who need it.

About poetry he was never wrong. His eye, ear and mind were amazingly attuned to the whole history of the English tongue, to say nothing of other languages, and like Ezra Pound, he attempted to demonstrate in his writing the compression of history which each reader and writer of a language should feel.

W.B. Auden was a rare poet if only because he wrote during our time, his mastery of the spoken word will continue to set him apart from contemporaries and occupational descendants. Notre Dame is particularly privileged to have two of Auden's close friends and associates, John Hollander and Stephen Spender, as opening speakers of the 1974 Sophomore Literature Festival. Their program Sunday, beginning with their own readings in the afternoon, will also contain as close as possible of his poetry in the evening. The inclusion of this feature makes this year's festival one of special significance, as Auden himself had been scheduled to appear at the Festival. His death September 28th gave the world much to mourn. There is a special grief in the United States, which was graced by his added voice for over thirty years.

Auden's command of poetry extended to the light and serious, and achieved unparalleled results in both fields. Whether charging home to his audience with a well-chosen limerick, or stirring one's emotions charged minutes of life in language that is eternally compelling. Auden's poetry contains much of the music, color, economy and directness which one seldom finds together in any poetry. His oft-quoted line from "In Memory of W.B. Yeats" ("poetry makes nothing happen") might seem a lie to someone who has just happened without poetry's aid, and that only ignorance of which the poets speak.

The nature of Cole's show can be best summed up by a quote from Weur Karter: "Nancy Cole showed how Stein's language studies used repetition to approach completeness. With rich nuances of mime and gesture, a speaker with a startling ability to differentiate and characterize, she transformed herself in the wink of an eye into Stein, Picasso, Malliée, typical American women, lovers in a novella and even simple children."
New nuclear strategy increases war risk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new U.S. "counterforce" nuclear targeting strategy could increase the risks of limited nuclear war, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Thursday.

But Schlesinger added he hopes that the actual effect will be the opposite — to deter the Soviet Union from even small-scale attacks by increasing Moscow's uncertainty as to how the U.S. would actually respond.

Testifying on the 1975 defense budget before the House Armed Services Committee, Schlesinger put a $100 million price tag on the new target system. Most of the money will go into improved computers and control for existing missiles, he said. Schlesinger added, "But at the same time we believe that we will be increasing the deterrence to smaller scale attacks."

Later he added "the existence of a deterrent will hopefully prevent any outbreak of a conflict of this (small) order."

Schlesinger denied, under questioning by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., that his new counterforce strategy is the same as a counterforce strategy conceived in the 1960's — a means to wipe out an enemy's nuclear forces in a first strike.

"That sort of thing, the capability to dig out the other side's (missiles) HOVs, would represent instability," he said.

"But we are not in a position to attain a capability to wipe out the Soviet Union's second strike capability, nor can they do it to us," he added.

Nevertheless, he said, money is needed to improve the accuracy of U.S. missiles and make their warheads bigger because the U.S. must maintain parity with the Russians.

Giving exact figures for the first time, he said if the Russians deploy four of the new ICBMs (Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles) they are working on, they will achieve a "throw weight of total missile payload of 10 to 12 million pounds —five to six times the total for the U.S. Intermediate Missiles."

ST. GEORGE'S, GRENADA (UPI) - A 38 day-old general strike upstaged independence celebrations for the tiny Caribbean spice island of Grenada Thursday, and a prominent opponent of Prime Minister Eric Gairy was arrested shortly before actual independence.

Gairy, in an independence reception, said his police had uncovered evidence that the leftist New Jewel Movement, led by Maurice I. Bishop, was "planning something for today," presumably an armed insurrection.

Bishop's home was raided by 70 policemen late Wednesday night—just after telex communications were cut off between the island and the U.S. Embassy in Bridgetown, Barbados.

"Telescopic equipment, microphones and camping equipment were found in his garden. He had in his possession a detailed plan of his place. They were planning something for today," Gairy said.

As Kissinger toasted the pact it was signed.

Campus briefs... Processing innovation

The newest innovation of the United States Postal Service - AREA MAIL PROCESSING - is now in operation at Notre Dame Post Office.

"The program is intended to speed the ultimate delivery of the mail. People are growing impatient over mail delays," Nishan McDonald, Notre Dame Postal Service Manager, said.

The system, which uses computerized machinery, will be able to sort mail into the 277 areas quickly and accurately. The new system will replace entirely the present hand sorting method, which is time-consuming and error-prone.

Mail will be delivered directly to the dormitories, eliminating the need for students to visit the post office to retrieve their mail.

Heath calls for vote on coal miners strike

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) - Prime Minister Edward Heath, gambling his political future against that of his embattled nation, Thursday called for new elections Feb. 28 and asked coal miners to call off a scheduled weekend strike which industry leaders said could wreck Britain's economy.

"There are some people involved in the mining dispute who have made it clear that what they want is to bring down this government—not just this government but any government," Heath told the nation on television. "They have made it clear they want to bring down the whole democratic way of life."

Heath said: "You are forced to death with them and the disruption they cause."

Truckers vote to continue strike

By United Press International

An agreement announced by the federal government to end the independent truckers strike would be put on hold Friday, according to weekend meetings across the country Thursday.

The agreement was endorsed by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, which has 100,000 members and whose president, Paul Fischer, is the key negotiator in the Washington talks.

But the agreement was "a good offer, as good as we can get," and Leonard Fleit, an attorney for some owner-operators, said chances for a continuation of the strike were "remote."

But truckers at meetings in Kansas City, Kan., Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz., Hudson, Wis., and Orlando, Fla., voted overwhelmingly to remain on strike because the agreement did not roll back diesel fuel prices or lift 55-mph speed limits.

"Are you guys going back to work?" asked Ken Solomon of Coates, Minn., at a meeting held in a truck stop near Chicago.

"No," the drivers roared.

The eight-day strike, sparked by violence, has taken two lives and resulted in shortages and curbs in which nearly 100,000 persons were laid off in the industrialized nation.

National Guardmen patrolled the highways in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and West Virginia.

In Indiana Thursday, driver Paul Harpole, 30, of Belleview, Ill., told police he was beaten by four men on the western side of Chicago. Another driver reported his truck was broken on from a passing car.

The agreement was also rejected by speakers at United Truckers of America group, Independent Drivers of America Ltd., Overdrive Magazine and Roadmaster Magazine, both truckers who worked with Sokol of northeastern Ohio, Mississippi, Georgia, East and West Texas, and Florida.

President Nixon and officials of the western industrial states badly hit by the strike had expressed hope the agreement would lead to an end of the round-the-clock talks in Washington in which Nixon took a personal hand, would end the strike by this weekend.

Industrial and agricultural plant closings attributed directly to the truckers strike was pushing up the number of Americans thrown out work toward the 160,000 mark.

Trucks loaded with food destined to the nation's big cities Thursday even before drivers voted on a tentative agreement between the government and truckers to end a strike that had led to scarce buying of worried housewives.

Supercarriers reported some foods such as chicken and meat were already scarce in several areas. Fresh supplies were on their way to the major northern population centers, but it was not certain how much food was on its way or what would happen if the drivers rejected the Washington agreement.

Although the agreement held hope of reopening food pipelines, some food industry officials said higher freight rates allows retailers and mean consumers would pay more for groceries.

A spokesman for Allied's survey said most food trucks began deliveries direct to stores immediately after the tentative agreement was announced.

"The trucks are making direct shipment to the stores without state police escorts or traveling in convoys, and we are within 30 hours of trucks leaving from Florida for Michigan." Allied senior vice president Charles Martin said.

He said that "we would have reached a critical period by the weekend."

A spokesman at the Pennsylvania State Farmers Market in Florida, the nation's largest winter produce terminal, said that some drivers who had been afraid to go on the highways during the height of the strike were moving out. But, he said, the number was fewer than usual.

Pennsylvania Lt. Gov. Kline said National Guard troops would no longer be used to help deliver food. Although Guardsmen escorted four milk trucks from the Pennsylvania line near Cumberland, Md., to Altoona and Johnstown, Pa., where milk supplies were "very low."

President's lawyers to discuss Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Nixon has instructed his chief Watergate lawyer to offer to meet with the leaders of the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry, Chairman Peter W. Rodino disclosed Thursday.

Rodino said he and Rep. Edward Huntington of Michigan, the committee's senior Republican, intend to meet separately with the top committee lawyers - special counsel John Dean, Undersecretary James B. St. Clair and Albert E. Jenner - to seek a meeting with the White House lawyer.

James B. Clard.

Rodino declined to characterize the significance of the President's initiative - his first formal communication with the impeachment inquiry. But Huntington said he was "pleased...hopeful."

First meeting is still uncertain whether Nixon will cooperate with its inquiry and honor its requests or subpoenas or resist them.

The meeting between St. Clair and the top committee lawyers should provide an answer. Rodino said no date or place had been set for their talks.

Two top GOP officials - Vice President Gerald R. Ford and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes - told reporters at separate news conferences Thursday that Nixon would be justified in withholding information if the House committee seeks irrelevant material.

Ford said Nixon could refuse to comply if the committee "goes off in 10 different directions."

Rodino agreed, saying "there's nothing in the law or resolution that compels the President to answer a subpoena that asks for irrelevant material."

Letter received from kidnappers

By ROBERT STRAND

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) - A letter Alleged to be by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army Thursday claimed responsibility for the kidnapping of 19-year-old Patricia Hearst, granddaughter of the late newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst.

The letter said the girl was unharmed.

It was received by radio station KGO, which said it was turned over to the Hearst family.

With the letter was a credit card bearing the name of the kidnapper's fiancé, Paul Fischel, said Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

Paul Fischer, news director of the radio station, said he was "virtually certain" the credit card was authentic.

He said he was turned the letter over to the victim's parents and "it's up to them what they want to do with it."

Fischel said the letter was written by the kidnapper, and indicates further communications will be made. It did not mention ransom, he said.

The letter gave general political reasons for the kidnapping of a conservative publisher's daughter, Fischer said.

In addition to stating that Miss Hearst was unharmed, the letter said she was being held captive.

Fischel said he has received previous communications from the Symbionese Liberation Army, and that one seemed to be like the others. He confirmed of its authenticity, he said.

Irish entertain Blue Devils

But whether it's a physical battle or not, tomorrow's game will be highly charged. There's no doubt about that in anyone's mind. When club with 999 career victories meets a 17-game losing streak it has never lost to, something has to give. Or at least admit defeat.

And the Irish coaches are hoping that, when Saturday's contest is over, Duke's drive to 1000 wins will still be where it is now: at 999 and 17. And this is an important development. This team still believes in itself. And this is important. And this is clearly infectious. The Irish are clearly a team that, when Saturday's contest is over, will be feverish against Bam A and calm, quiet against UCLA, and they should be that way tomorrow.

By Pat Flynn Staff Reporter

"To deal with the problem that defies objectivity in a non-biased fashion, we've decided to restate the theme of the Tuesday night lecture given by Professor Howard Dooley on "Germany and Israeli relations after the Yom Kippur War." The lecture was held in the Carrol Auditorium of Madeleva Hall, Saint Mary's College.

Professor Dooley emphasized that for the United States, Middle East relations are primarily a "geo-political" issue. The recent war changed many of the stereotyped views of traditional approaches to Arab relations. Syria and Egypt's military successes in the recent war surpassed even those (including the Arabs), Dooley suggested.

Arab oil diplomacy has put economic pressure behind the Arab side of the Middle East conflict. The Arab states are acutely aware that the war were the first bipartisan conferences between the nations since the 1973 war. The results of these conferences were more often resulting in rapidly forming, marking the first Israeli military pull-back in twenty years, Dooley added.

Professor Dooley also emphasized the direct historical precedent of the current issue in American Politics, which fuels strong emotion ties with questions of possible compromising factors. Factors such as the geographical position of the Arab states and possible oil reserves, the largest oil fields containing ninety percent of the world's proven oil reserves, the political pressure exerted by the American Jewish minority and the Israeli lobbyist and Israeli's military significance for the United States. As a check upon both Russian and Arab power in the Middle East.

Dooley also reviewed the historical and cultural roots of the conflict. While he held the entire Middle East as a colony, Britain promised the Palestinian lands both to the Palestinian Arabs and to Jewish colonists. Both sides can document legal claims to the territory that is now Israel. Attempts at establishing justice for the Jewish race have caused an injustice to be done to the Arabs. Zionist nationalism and Arab nationalism also lead to conflict.

There is finally a conflict arising out of what Dooley called Israeli genocide paranoia vs. Arab racism. For the Israeli, memories of the gas-chambers of World War II are still clearly in mind. As a result Arab threats of driving Israel into the sea are taken seriously and responded to with extreme aggression.

On the other hand, Arab culture, with its ethno-political emphasis on honor before the peer group, is embarrassingly Israel's military and economic successes amidst their relative failures. As a result they also react with aggression.

Despite the complexity of the problems he outlined, Dooley looked at the present situation hopefully. Through Sadat's oil diplomacy and military campaign of last fall the "big jock" in Arab-Israel relations has been broken. Further, Mr. Henry Kissinger's success in reaching an interim peace settlement could possibly provide a stable base from which more permanent settlements could be reached.

Finally tying it all together, Dooley espoused five necessary conditions for a lasting peace in the Middle East; the creation of a single nation in the Middle East area, as a homeland for the Palestinian Arab strong territorial defense for Israel, the formalization of a specific written treaty defining the United States commitment to Israeli militarily, and the end of the "greater Israel dream"—Israel's hope of becoming a stronger world industrial and military force through the acquisition of Arab territory in their military campaigns.

Peron slams leftist group

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—President Juan D. Peron virtually read the left wing Peronist Youth Organization JP out of his divided party Thursday in a speech before right-wing youth leaders.

Baron also recognized the existence of "shortcomings" in his 17 week old government and promised a gradual purge of some "rightists."

The leaders of the JP were not invited to Thursday's meeting with 61 rightist youth leaders. Last week the JP leadership boycotted a similar meeting because they said, the other representatives "do not represent anybody."

The leftist JP is known as the "Proletariat Youth of the Revolutionary Tendency" and the rightists is known as the Peronist youth of the Argentine Republic. JPR

Baron said: "I don't know what they are attempting, those who belong to the so-called 'tendency.' I prefer a few leaders, but good ones."

Duke's dominance threatens ND

By Vic Durr
Sports Editor

Quickly, now. Look at a copy of Notre Dame's 1973-74 basketball schedule and point out the one opponent that the Fighting Irish have never been able to defeat. UCLA? Of course not, and a poor choice. Marquette? No. How about South Carolina? Wrong again. Ohio State, Indiana, Fordham? Still off the mark. Which team, then, hasn't Notre Dame been able to handle?

How about tomorrow's opponent, the Duke Blue Devils?

The Blue Devils and the Fighting Irish have met 10 times in the Atlantic Coast Conference schedule, and, in each of their brief interleague series—a series which began back in 1965—but Duke has made the most of it when the two teams have met.

The Blue Devils have won every one of their five meetings with the Irish—the most recent decision coming last year, when Duke defeated Notre Dame 100-94, in the Cameron Indoor Stadium.

Notre Dame and Duke will play Game Six of their series tomorrow at two in the ACC, and the Blue Devils, an 8-9 team coming into the contest, will be looking for more than a sixth consecutive win against the Irish with whom the two teams go up for the opening tap. They'll be looking for more than an upset victory over the nation's third-ranked college basketball team.

All season long, coach Nellie McCracken has scratched, that Notre Dame has been clawing its way through a demanding Atlantic Coast Conference schedule. To win Duke, McCracken's team will have to come from out of, well, the Irish defense has had problems.

If you're thinking about having a quiet weekend, don't plan on it. Duke's 999-college basketball victory is the nation's number-three team.

Redding was the No. 1 choice in the January action because of various injuries, returned to solidify the new number-one Irish line, freshmen Clark Hamilton and Alex Pirrus ready for the Spartans. The trio had an excellent series in North Dakota. Walsh from Harvard's backyard to show the Irish where they had been lax.

Brian Walsh, who had missed two games because of injuries, returned because of various injuries, returned to solidify the new number-one Irish line, freshmen Clark Hamilton and Alex Pirrus ready for the Spartans. The trio had an excellent series in North Dakota. Walsh from Harvard's backyard to show the Irish where they had been lax.

For the Spartans, a double edge.
