Chet Huntley, 62, dies from cancer

BIG SKY, Mont. (UPI)—For 14 years, daily news and entertainment inspired by the American viewers heard the nightly television newscasts signed off as "Good night. David. Good night, Chet." Chet Huntley, who was one half of NBC's Huntley-Brinkley Report, died Wednesday at the age of 62, at his home in Big Sky, Mont. He had been two months after undergoing surgery for abandonment of his cancer.

Huntley and David Brinkley formed what became television's most famous nightly team in 1956. Huntley had been a newspaper and television reporter before he became a broadcast journalist. During his 30-year radio and television career he was known as a calm, rational newscaster, a man able to deliver the news with an "offending" voice, become recognized as "the noise, the clarion for attention..." in Huntley's own words. "I'm not running away from things, I'm running away to them."

On the night of July 31, 1970, Huntley became "good night" for the last time amid tributes from his colleagues and an accolade from his chief competitor, Walter Cronkite, who said on his CBS show that evening "A giant leaves the stage."

After his retirement from broadcasting, Huntley often was mentioned in the possibility of returning to public office and was a subject of speculation for a potential candidate for the U.S. Senate. However, Huntley always maintained no interest in politics. Huntley was born in Cardston, Mont., Dec. 16, 1910, the son of a railroad engineer who took his family to his family to a railroad town located near Willow Creek, Logan, Big Timber, Morris, Whitehall and Bozeman. He attended Montana State College in Bozeman, the University of Chicago in Seattle and the University of Washington in Seattle, where he received his B.A. degree in 1934. He began his career as a reporter for the Seattle Star and shortly afterward turned to the writing of news reports on the radio station.

He worked for stations in Spokane, Wash., Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles before joining CBS in Los Angeles in 1953. In 1955 he shifted to ABC and five years his feeling almost 50 years, he was named senior vice president of ABC in New York. Within a year he was named president.

He was named president of the National Association of Broadcasters Distinctive Service Award, the first double recipient of the honor. Memorial services were scheduled for Sunday at Big Sky and on Tuesday at the NBC Studios in New York.

"I'm really looking forward to living off-campus. It's a chance to take on the added responsibility of helping to set a new more personal environment. "I'm a Flanner sophomore, added.

Junior Mike Henke found convenience a big factor in choosing a house. "All the utilities are paid for in the base rent, it is furnished, and it's close to campus," Henke said.

Shilts stated the Off-Campus Housing Office will help students having difficulty arranging off-campus housing by supply lists of available units and lending advice on the safety and quality of housing in certain areas of the city.

Shilts voiced his concern that some students might unknowingly choose housing in high-crime areas or be caught in leasing leases. "There are some people who simply don't know the city too well, and we're willing to sit down, talk to them and give them advice," Shilts noted.

Students interested in exploring the possibilities of off-campus living are reminded that lists of housing units and other information are available in the Housing Office in Room 315 Administration Building.

The flow off-campus has been orderly and fairly large," Shilts said. From all the indications we've received so far, the flow off-campus has been orderly and fairly large."
THE HOMECOMING

Harold Pinter’s disturbing, bizarre comedy
Mar. 26, 27, 28, 29, 30 at 8:30 pm
Washington Hall (Notre Dame)

NOW RENTING
one and two bedroom
furnished apartments

Featuring:
+ SWIMMING POOL
+ COMMUNITY BUILDING
+ 2 BATHS IN THE 2 BEDROOM

CAMPUS APARTMENTS

+ AIR CONDITIONING
+ DISHWASHER
+ RANGE
+ REFRIGERATOR
+ GARBAGE DISPOSAL
+ TENNIS COURT
+ LOCATION: 3 BLOCKS FROM CAMPUS!

APARTMENTS WITH THE STUDENT IN MIND

call 232-5653 for rental information or visit crestwood management company 3012 east elson road, south bend

men’s hair styling

Whatever the style it’s at 255-8600

CHR master stylists

HAIR CARE FOR MEN

TOWN & COUNTRY MINI MALL—MISHAWAKA, IND. 46544
Calvin faces Brademas in primary

by Tom Kruczek
Staff Reporter

Counting on the "average working man's vote," Dr. Helen Calvin, physician for the University of Notre Dame and newly announced candidate for John Brademas' congressional seat, pledged to bring that office "back to the people." (Staff photo by Bill Rahner)

Dr. Calvin, who has been active in political circles for a number of years, with one of her most recent interests the election of George Wallace to the White House in 1976, Her seconding speeches for Wallace in the Miami Democratic National Convention. It was through Wallace that Dr. Calvin first came into public spotlight when she led the former governor of Alabama to a campaign victory in the third district 1972 presidential primary. The university physician declared her candidacy Tuesday for the third district primary, which includes the counties of LaPorte, St. Joe, and Elkart.

"He (Brademas) has been in office for 16 years since 1958," Dr. Calvin observed, and has not had an opponent in the primary since his first victory in 1958. The big point of our campaign will be to bring the representation back to the people. Brademas goes off during congressional recesses and does not report back to the people. He goes elsewhere.

"He is also, according to a survey, one of the highest traveled congressmen," she continued. I intend to bring the office back to the people here. It is going to be my attempt to bring the government back to the people and represent them when they need help. It will be my attempt to bring the government back to the people and away from Washington."
Black arts festival is scheduled

by Pat Flynn
Staff Reporter

Beginning Wednesday, March 27 and continuing through Sunday, March 31, the Council for Black Student Organization will sponsor the Black Arts Festival Week. The time for the occasion will be "Black Perspectives in Transition."

Three events were noted by spokesmen for the Council as being of particular importance.

Saturday March 30 at 8:30 p.m., jazz musician Gary Bartz will give a concert at Stepan Center. Bartz is a celebrated black talent whose themes attempt to connect African folk music with his own experience as a black in Baltimore where he was born and in Harlem where he has worked as a musician.

At 2 p.m., Sunday, Federal Representative Charles W. Diggs, from thirteenth district in Michigan, will speak in the Library Auditorium. Congressman Diggs is a seasoned and active member of the House of Representatives. "Journey into Blackness" to be held Sunday night in the Library Auditorium is an orchestra chorus and dance performance covering black history from tribal Africa through slavery and into the present. Voice Inc., the six man six woman company doing the performance has been touring the United States for four years, attempting to tell through their art the history of black America, and its desires and demands for the future.

Cassell Lawson, director of Minority Student Affairs at Notre Dame, stated that the "purpose of the festival is to provide some kind of cultural and intellectual atmosphere that can create an awareness and appreciation for black art, black culture, and the black experience itself in the total Notre Dame community. "I see the festival as a type of mechanism through which we can look intellectually at the whole question of blackness, and through which the total Notre Dame community can share in the black experience," said Lawson. In accordance with this sort of spirit of the Festival, other departments of the University are attempting to coordinate their activities for the week along the themes of black experience, black art, and black culture.
Royal assassination attempted

LONDON (UPI)—A would-be assassin fired six shots from an automatic weapon into a royal limousine carrying Princess Anne and her husband Capt. Mark Phillips near Buckingham Palace Wednesday. Both were unhurt.

One of the shots hit 26-year-old common husband, who was riding in a car behind the royal couple, in the chest. The policeman was in serious condition with a stomach wound. McDonnell was hit in the chest. A palace spokesman said the attack occurred as the limousine was driving up the mall to the palace.

A man driving a white Ford “blocked the chauffeur-driven royal car in the mall with his car,” A palace spokesman said the royal couple “are shaken up—anyone would be after a think like that—but otherwise they are fine, thank God.”

Inspector Beaton, who was riding in the car, was taken to Westminster Hospital with gunshot wounds, police said. The policeman, driver and bystander were also hospitalized.

Danny O'Hara

A leprechaun’s farewell

It was three years ago at this same time of year that I was selected to follow in the footsteps of Tom Leckner as the Leprechaun mascot for the University of Notre Dame. I would like to take this opportunity to say thanks to all my fellow classmates here at Notre Dame for allowing me to serve as your leprechaun over the past years. Being the leprechaun here gave me a role to play and a position to enjoy.

As a freshman, I was the type of guy who smoked the Crook cigars and drank Miller High Life beer out of quart bottles at the Friday night Pep-Rallies. Now as a senior, I still smoke Crook cigars and attend the Pep-Rallies, but drink Miller High Life out of 12 oz cans.

The point that I am making is that I have changed very little since those days of a happy-go-lucky mick who just happened to be a student at Notre Dame. By being the leprechaun, I was able to be the ultimate Rah Rah, and love every minute of it.

Nostalgia hits hard. Now as a second semester senior, I find my time here at Notre Dame slipping quietly away. I have been living a nostalgic and very real life for the past three years. All of the past memories that have graduated from or served Notre Dame — been a part of this nostalgia that I hold for my soon to be Alma Mater.

In drawing to a close my most heart-felt memories, I would like to thank: the coaching staffs of football, basketball, and hockey for their interest in me; all the others and grounds crew men of ACC and Football Stadium; the Reverend fathers; my fellow teammates of the cheerleading squad whom I have come to know and love in lasting friendship; and finally you the students who have stood behind me in victory and defeat and given me the happy memories of knowing that I was once the Leprechaun for Notre Dame.

For any and all that are interested in succeeding me, I invite you to come to the first practice this Sunday afternoon 11:00 pm in Stepan Center. If you are a rah rah and five foot seven inches in height or less, please come and try out.

One final comment that I would like to make and that is this is a real chance for the smaller members of Notre Dame to find a spot in the nostalgia of Notre Dame. Thank you loyal sons and daughters of Notre Dame!
One major requisite of the success of the Center's program is interest and input from you. Now is the time to begin taking advantage of the opportunity to hear the dedication of the CCivil Rights Center this week is a step in this direction. The objectives of the Center are simple and straightforward — to study the problems that now exist, analyze them and propose solutions.

But more than that — try it. Prejudice is a problem of the mind. Have an open one and you might be able to help stop it.

—Ann McCarr

A Different Opinion

Punishment has been around for a long time. However, people view the purpose of punishment in different ways. This is where we must make a very important distinction. On the one hand there is punishment which is inflicted for the purpose of deterring further misconduct. On the other hand there is punishment which is dealt because it is felt that the guilty party must pay his debt for his wrongdoing. In the former case it is clear that punishment can serve a very useful purpose; it can be a rehabilitative measure. But in the latter it is painfully obvious that revenge — an evening up of the score — is the sole end. This latter purpose for punishment is unreasonable and absurd, and it is beneath the dignity of a civilized society.

The death penalty serves precisely this latter function of punishment. It permits men to vent their anger and frustration upon the guilty party.

Apart from these considerations, however, is another issue which has considerable import. The question is, who can lay a legitimate claim to the awesome right to decide whether or not another human being may continue to live? Who, as a mortal, can decide another mortal’s fate in this regard? No doubt, many of you are wondering what murderers for example, can claim the right to take someone’s life. The fact is, he cannot do so. But do we not stoop to the level of the murderer ourselves if we proceed to ‘give him a dose of his own medicine’?

The old ‘eye-for-an-eye’ formula for criminal justice just does not hold water. There must be a more rational, more human way of dealing with those found guilty of serious crimes. Behind every such crime there is a human drama, the components of which just might indicate that the blame does not belong totally to the accused. What makes a man go out and brutally murder eight nurses? And what is it that prompts a man to kill a president? These are questions, the answers to which lie outside the scope of the legal profession. Yet some people, in the interest of expediency, are seeking to place the profound choice between life and death in the hands of this group, despite the fact that the legal profession lacks, as we all do, the right to make a man go out and brutally murder eight nurses.

Admittedly, death can be a very effective solution to problems like murder and treason; once the guilty person is dead, he can no longer commit such crimes. But death can also provide solutions to so-called minority and poverty problems, and any other problems which stem in part from human existence. . . . But surely, we would never condone to this level... Or would we?

Thursday, March 21, 1974
Farley Fete Foiled

Editor:
We were happy at Notre Dame for some time thinking that we had made a good job. Then we discovered that it took Macheza only one day to establish once again the fact that he is the man and we are the poodles. College living is not for everyone. High School will reign forever!

The specific point to which we make reference is a Farley Fete party which was planned before vacation and was to have been held this Friday night in Stepan Center. When subjected to Macheza's approval Wednesday morning, permission was denied. The residents of Farley were informed that they did not have sufficient time to plan their party in the proper manner.

The beer was ready, the band was ready, and Farley women were ready to control the operation of the event. Evidently, this is not proper planning for a spontaneous event.

We will readily admit to anyone who asks us that we did not engage in sexual licentiousness, we had not ordered any floral arrangements, chauffeur driven limousines had not been lined up, and it is true that we had overlooked hiring trumpeters to announce the names of guests as they arrived. Last but not least, we had not checked Macheza's social calendar to assure the fact that he could be present at our affair. After all, isn't that any good, clean-cut college party with the presence of your Dean of Students? Absolutely unthinkible! We ask you, how many universities have been able to offer this to the kind of treatment?

Perhaps planning the spontaneous on this campus. Everything has to be planned. For instance, one must be engaged in sexual licentiousness, it terminates by midnight; AdDeuc rules and restrictions are number one in the mind of the administration. One must not burn foreign marches. (one never knows what evil effects the image might be upheld). Attending classes is essential, (how else could one possibly learn?) Regimentation is becoming so all pervasive at Notre Dame that one should be recruiting as the "sister school" of West Point.

A person is accepted at Notre Dame on the basis of his intellectual brilliance. Once under the shadow of the Golden Dome, however, it is insisted upon that one succumbers maturity to in loco parentis, with the right.

At the risk of our football tickets taken away, being sent home, and being expelled off campus where our corruptive influence cannot be felt, these two captivates would like to say that it is time we were treated as adults.

Ann Hawkins
Mary Lobenstein
Witnesses:
Bob Helmack
DENIS O'BRIEN

Mexican Message
Dear Editor:
We are writing to you at this time concerning room picks for the 1974-75 academic year. It is true that it was terribly unwise to include overseas students in the lottery. We have several reasons for saying this:

(1) Last year when we left Notre Dame we were assured of beds on campus upon returning. We were told that it was the University Policy that those students returning from overseas programs would take the beds of those students who are currently planning to participate in the overseas programs. That was the policy and we were informed of no change.

(2) All Notre Dame students are assured two years on the campus. As sophomores we have only had one year.

(3) For those of us who did not make the cut-off, how are we to suppose look for apartments or housing?

Here we are in Mexico City with some sort of idea as to each of our future plans. The students of Europe and Japan are in the same situation. Most of us know more or less where we stand but would not know definitely until room picks are made. It is true, in the meantime, that it will certainly be much too late to write to Notre Dame looking for off-campus housing, at all events the apartments and rooms will be taken. We would therefore like to ask you to change the policy and to assure every overseas student a room on campus.

Thank you for your consideration. Our best to all at Notre Dame.

Francis G. Sawa
Paul Starkey
T. M. Murphy Hill
James C. A. Spurt
Joanna K. Bartholomew
Sharon A. Garvey
Fred Zeller
Joe Corpus
Rasson Sistles
Nob Schwartz
John Garland
Ernie Ribers
Thomas A. Cutty
Gregory M. Ryan
John D. Fessell
Lisa P. Schneider
Michael R. Hastings
Kieran D. Pillows

Supreme Court of the United States decreed, in Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton, that the child in the womb is a non- and therefore not entitled to constitutional protection of his right to live. He therefore may be legally killed for the convenience of others. This ruling is based on the same principle as the well known Scott Case of 1872, in which the Supreme Court held that the free descendants of slaves could be resettled and said that slaves were not even persons. The abortion decisions of 1972 are the Dred Scott Case of the Twentieth Century.

The Notre Dame Center for Civil Rights has an opportunity to render a public service by speaking on behalf of the right to live of the innocent unborn children who are legally killed in the United States in numbers in excess of one and one-half million a year. Unfortunately, the Center has failed to accept this opportunity. The Center has spoken forcefully during the past year in defense of various rights of racial minorities. But the right to live is the indispensable right and it overshadows all other civil rights. A defense of lesser rights, however important they are in themselves, while ignoring the myriad violations of the right to live, is a venture in comparative invasions. It invokes, too, an implicit sanction of abortion. A center established for the promotion of civil rights has no moral duty to address itself to the most important right of all. Its silence on the face of the void that exists is an act of omission.

We are entitled to hope that the Center for Civil Rights and the University of Notre Dame itself will abandon their inexcusable preoccupation with other issues, has done much to divert the attention of the American people from the needs of reform. Let us stop "searching for leaders." And find those leaders insincerely, for investing our hopes in a man on a white horse is a moral copout.

I think a better measure of apathy or commitment is the number of students who will participate in the campus Nader outfit, INPIRG, or who attend the upcoming Civil Rights Conference here. You won't meet a glamorous Presidential candidate that way, but you might learn a lot more about American politics and the future of our existence as a free people. If we government faculty members have been instructed by the American predication for glamour over substance, then we have failed our students in ways far more serious than the student indicated.

Yours truly,

Howard Retter
Instructor in Government

A Faculty Reply to "Apathy}

Dear Editor,
In the March 6 Observer appeared a letter from a government major accusing government professors of apathy for not turning out to see Senator Percy when he was here recently. As one who teaches courses in American government and American political parties, and who did not see the Senator, I suppose I was one of the targets of the letter in a general way.

While I cannot speak for my colleagues, I will say why I was not there: first, while I am in sympathy with many of the Senator's actions and stances for the past 7 years, I am not particularly impressed with the depth or originality of his contribution; and second, the facts of political life make it extremely unlikely that he will ever achieve his ambition of becoming the most powerful man in the world. But the shortcomings of Senator Percy are not really the point.

The point, I think, is the letter-writer's equation of not seeing Percy with apathy and his reference to people,"...searching for leaders." (I am deliberately not mentioning the student's name because I think he is typical of many other students.) I am far from apathetic, but my interest runs more to issues than to personalities. This perverted preoccupation with personalities and personalities, Percy-Nixon-Rockefeller-Kennedy-Jackson-Wallace, rather than problems and issues, has done much to divert the attention of the american people from the needs of reform. Let us stop "searching for leaders." And find those leaders insincerely, for investing our hopes in a man on a white horse is a moral copout.

I am not hesitant to tell of my love for this school, but because it convicts directly concern us, we have grown apathetic on this issue. Since the baby I believe have made. There is one thing that disturbs me about this campus the Cockiness and self-concern that exists in unbelievable amounts. There is too much selfishness

Let's Keep Shu!

Dear Sir:

Have read with surprise and dismay that John Schumate is considering joining the pros.

John Shumate a Notre Dame man and a credit to this campus and not just as a athlete. But as a man. The school needs John Schumate!

I urge you and the Observer to show some spirit and sympathy for "Let's keep Shu!" And involve all the students. There are many ways to display the Spirit of Notre Dame. This is an important one.

Yours very truly,

The State of Michigan Branch of the Subway Alumni

P. S. The Subway Alumni love Shu too!

Talks Civilities and a Right to Life

Editor:

On March 12 and 22nd the newly established Notre Dame Center for Civil Rights will sponsor a conference and lecture program. The formal dedication of the Center for Civil Rights will be in conjunction with an address by former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg.

The Center dedication is an appropriate occasion for the University community to recall that the most important civil rights issue is the right to live. The most important civil issue is abortion.

What is a Notre Dame student? We have all seen reports on the average N.D. student's economic, racial, and religious background, but what about his Christian attitude toward his fellow man? And I do not intend to exclude myself from this question.

I am not hesitant to tell of my love for this school, or the hundreds of friends I have made, the knowledge I have absorbed; nor the growth as a person that I have experienced. The one thing that disturbs me about this campus is the Cockiness and self-concern that exists in unbelievable amounts. There is too much selfishness.

How many students do you know who work at centers for the handicapped, homes for the elderly, or hospitals, or have planned careers in some sort of social service? There are quite a few. Nevertheless, self-concern runs rampant on this campus. Self-concern is needed for existence, why, but when it reaches the extent of disregard for a humanlife then something has to be done about the situation.

Our main concern at this time should be for the unborn child. I think you have gotten the shaft from the Supreme Court, pro-life people, and society in general. We are entitled to hope that the unborn child will have their rights to life and will speak in defense of that most essential civil right as the other important but lesser rights. They ought to do so, publicly and strongly, at the dedication of the Civil Rights Center. Sadley, I am not sure that he University is likely to say not a word on that occasion in defense of the unborn children who are the most poor and defenseless of all minorities. Nor should it be for all of us in the University community to recall in our minds and prayers the evil decisions of January 22, 1973, and to resolve to do what we can to restore the recognition in the law of the God-given right to live.

Charles E. Rice

Civil Rights and a Right to Life

Editor:

On March 12 and 22nd the newly established Notre Dame Center for Civil Rights will sponsor a conference and lecture program. The formal dedication of the Center for Civil Rights will be in conjunction with an address by former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg.

The Center dedication is an appropriate occasion for the University community to recall that the most important civil rights issue is the right to live. The most important civil issue is abortion.
Vacation? Ask ND's crew team

They practiced for eight hours a day. But their scenic route was the Potomac River in Washington D.C., which included sights like the Kennedy and Lincoln Memorials.

(Photos by Paul Joyce)
France initiates inflation curbs

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
PARIS (UPI) — Against a backdrop of strikes and industrial unrest, the French government Wednesday announced a program aimed at halting the 18 per cent annual inflation rate.

Declaring "1974 is not going to be another 1973," Prime Minister Valery Giscard D'Estaing said the Cabinet approved a plan calling for:

- A further squeeze on credit.
- Reduction of "value added" tax on some goods.
- Earlier payment of income tax.
- Refusal of price increases in subway fares or postage stamps but granting a 7½ per cent increase in railroad ticket prices.
- Abolition of the two-tier money market.

"Other measures will be considered in July after we have seen the impact of the current plan," Giscard D'Estaing said.

Premier Pierre Messmer said the new measures were necessary in order not "to compromise either the present or future of the country."

Hundreds of striking bank clerks marched through Paris with red banners Wednesday. In other demands for higher wages, strikers hit power companies, factories and coal mines and threatened subways and air flights.

"Workers don't strike because they enjoy striking," Georges Marchais, Communist Party secretary-general, said.

They do so because they are forced to by the reactionary backward policies of the government and management," Giscard D'Estaing said. Parliament will be asked to approve a number of value added tax reductions when it reconvenes April 2.

He said wage-earners, who were ordered to pay 43 per cent of their income tax by Feb. 15, would have to remit a further 43 per cent by May 15—an accelerated schedule.

Giscard D'Estaing said the government would tough with banks exceeding new loan limits of 12 per cent in April and 13 per cent in May and June. The aim is to contain the growth in the money supply.

He said railroad freight and passenger rates would go up by 7½ per cent April 1. The state-operated railroad system had asked for a 12 per cent increase.

"We hope the cancellation of the double market for the franc will boost its stature on the international money market," Giscard D'Estaing said.

Maintaining a quotation for a financial franc "led to unnecessary complications and was not being practiced by any other nation with a floating currency," he said. France introduced the system to protect its market from an inflow of foreign capital but the variations between the two sides of the market have been fractional lately.

Giscard D'Estaing said the government will not establish a wage-control policy, but he urged unions to be moderate in seeking increases from employers.

Political sources said Giscard D'Estaing originally proposed a softer version of Wednesday's measures but President Georges Pompidou—a former Rothschild banker—told him to "put more teeth" into them.

Suspect connected to band festival fraud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At least 25 high schools around the nation were hoaxing into making plans to send their marching bands to compete in a nonexistent "President's All-American Festival of Champions," police said Wednesday.

Suspect's name but said a "thorough investigation" was underway with assistance of other police departments and the Secret Service. They said the young man had twice previously been involved in similar band festival promotions that never occurred, but on a much smaller scale.

This time, an elaborate brochure was put on the market for May 15-18 said President Nixon would award the first prize. The event was alleged to be sponsored by the "United States Parade Association," which police said was "a group of which there is no record we can find."

There are always a large number of springtime events in Washington, especially for high school marching bands, and some legitimate events were being harassed Wednesday by their scheduled participants as the result of confusion caused by the hoax.

One such event, a music festival scheduled for May 9-11 and sponsored by a Kalamazoo, Mich. travel agency, was denounced by telephone calls from some of the 1,500 participants, according to a firm spokesman.

"They do not know it exists," said Sgt. William F. McGill. He said among them were schools in Longminster, Mass., Somersett, N.J., Oberlin, Ohio and several in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

"In some of these cases they were going out selling cookies, or collecting money from merchants to help send kids to Washington for an event they've never heard of," McGill said.

"But we did hear from about 25 schools that had planned to come," said Giscard D'Estaing.

"other measures will be...
Its purpose is to try to ensure Solzhenitsyn is neither forgotten in his homeland nor the facts behind his banishment last distorted. While there are a few new facts revealed, the manuscript represents the first known historical record of the events it describes.

The manuscript is circulating as a samizdat underground document. Sakharov told news media there was no immediate plan to publish it in the West.

"Live Not by Lies" is far us a deeply significant document," Sakharov, developer of the Soviet H-bomb, and mathematician Igor Shafarevich said in a statement on the release of the manuscript.

"Numerous voices, including those of people completely vulnerable to prosecution, show how far the hopes of decreasing the spiritual influence of Solzhenitsyn on the thinking of the country were illusory," the statement said.

The manuscript opens with a quote from the "Gulag Archipelago," which he said the state was "not going to publish." It cannot be avoided."

It includes Solzhenitsyn's explanation of how the KGB confiscation forced him to publish it in December and proceeds to reproduce the first several pages of the book, copies of which are also circulating here secretly. It details with lengthy excerpts the Soviet and Western reaction to the book, the Communist newspaper campaign seeking to discreditSolzhenitsyn as a "traitor" and the writer's comments calling on his fellow Soviets to stop cooperating with "The Lie" on which he said the state was based.

It also includes comments by such prominent dissidents as Vladimir Yanovitch, Mikhail Agursky, Lyudia Chukovskaya, Roy Medvedev, Vladimir Maximov, Pavel Litvinov, Sakharov, Shafarevich and others.

"Solzhenitsyn is gone and they are trying to drive out the memory of him," it concludes. "It will not happen.”

SOCIAL COMMISSION presents

CABARET

7 & 10 Engineering Aud.
Friday Mar. 22

ADMISSION FREE!

LOW-COST AFFINITY-GROUP FLIGHT TO ENGLAND ON REGULARLY SCHEDULED B.O.A.C. 747

NEW YORK-LONDON-NEW YORK

MID-JUNE DEPARTURE MID-AUGUST RETURN

AVAILABLE TO ALL NOTRE DAME FACULTY AND STAFF (AND THEIR IMMEDIATE FAMILIES)

CONTACT THE TRAVEL AGENCY IN BADIN HALL (Tel. 7080) NOT LATER THAN APRIL 1

RARE EARTH and special guest
Rory Gallagher

Sunday March 31 7:30 pm

NOTRE DAME Athletic and Convocation Center

Ticket Prices:

| Bleachers | $3.50 |
| Lower Arena | $4.50 |
| Main Floor | $5.50 |
| Lobby | $5.50 |
| Platform | $5.50 |

Tickets on sale:

NOTRE DAME, C. C. Mon-Sat 9 to 5
Robertson’s South Bend & Concord Hall
St. Joseph Bank - and branches
Ford Barn - Major office only
Elkhart Truth
Birds invade village; solutions considered

GRACEHAM, Md. (UPI) — Townsfolk gathered Wednesday to consider a plan to scare away 10,000 birds plaguing this rural village by using firecrackers, electronic sound devices and non-lethal clay bombs.

According to a committee of local, state and federal officials, the situation has become so desperate that a strategy, the firecrackers would be strung among the birds' roosts in the evening. The electronic devices would broadcast bird distress calls, and the clay bombs would be detonated overhead.

If the plan wins the townspeople's approval, the offensive would begin Thursday night after the birds return to their roots in the evening.

Many of Graceham's 400 residents have taken to shooting at the blackbirds, starlings and grackles roosting in a nearby pine forest with rifles and shotguns. But Paul Beale, superintendent for the Frederick County Health Department, said Wednesday that they are wasting their time.

"The shooting is not having any effect on the main group of birds," Beale said.
Irish nine shaky on Southern trip

by Pete McHugh

The people were gracious, the weather beautiful, but notre Dame's hospitality did not extend to the ball park as the Irish finished their regular season on a 2-7 record against Louisiana State (New Orleans), Arkansas State, Tulane, and Illinois State last week in sunny New Orleans.

The Irish, despite a good Southern squad and more than representative in attendance, found themselves après dependent on defensive efforts and following their two early victories, slumped badly as Belle Kates Jake Kline emphasized the sloppy field.

"Defensively, we gave away too many runs."

Another problem defensively was the loss of senior second baseman Jim Gwin, who was sent home with the final six games of the trip. The stand-out Irish shortstop, who had missed the third period when Michigan Tech's John Jaschuk's shorts-handled ball was the key to Tech's 2-1 victory, was fighting Irish from further on the field.

The goal was to figure one Notre Dame's 2-4 victory for the evening, but the Irish was back on track its two-goal advantage which comes with a 4-2 victory the previous evening.

The Irish, who finish 14-20, did not easily enter the playoffs. Twice the South Bend inners came within a goal of tying the Huskies in this two-game, total goals series. Each time, however, the Huskies advanced the series score of one of their own.

Notre Dame and Michigan Tech both skated at the end of the most of the first period. The Irish were without right wing Ray Delorenzi for the contest. Delorenzi, a junior from St. Paul, Minn., came down with the flu and had a temperature of 102 degrees, and as a result left the game, was taken down to field and fighting off some Tri-captain Ian Williams made the temperature of 102 degrees, and as a result left the game, was taken down to field and Fighting Irish from further on the field.

Kronholm played superbly throughout the contest as he made 49 saves to Warden's 31. The shot totals, however, were not indicative of the play. Notre Dame simply outplayed the WCHA champs, but unfortunately they did not outscore them.

The Irish, who finished 12-8-0 in the WCHA, were eliminated for the NCAA championship in Boston after posting finals of 1-3, 4-1, 0-1, 0-0, and 4-1, and 4-0, respectively.

The Gophers of Minnesota were on to the National Championship and, as a result, the Huskies played the 10th ranked collegiate champs this weekend for the North American title.

The Irish out shot the Huskies, 38-27, and five errors could have counted for five unearned runs to Anna. Notre Dame's and Minnesota's super freshman from Cambridge, Mass., was recognized as the outstanding newcomer in the WCHA. Delorenzi, who led the team in scoring most of the season before surrendering it to Bum bacco, capped second-team honors with a triple and Coleman went 5-3 with two doubles.

Fanning's title hopes end in second round

by Hal Munger

Heavyweight Mike Fanning extended his season win-loss record to 18-0 before losing 12-8 to Brigham Young's Gary Peterson in the NCAA finals held at Iowa State University March 14-16. It look Mike over six minutes to win his first match against a Montana State wrestler. However, the big man from ND flipped over his man, recorded pin number 11, and went on to win the match 6-4.

Peterson then beat him in the second round.

The finish was not as high as Fanning and Coach Prechter had hoped for but administrative tape almost deprived the Eastern Regional champion the opportunity to compete. He was not sure of his fate till less than hours before action began. Apparently there was a conflict as to whether or not Fanning had been entered before the time deadline. As a result Mike was properly not been prepared for the award.

Fanning then beat him in the second round.

Poterson, who beat Michigan, the Big Stick team title with Michigan, Big Ten champions, was eliminated from the tournament.

Howard Cosell guest of honor at banquet

(continued from page 11)

Dwight Clay, a junior guard from Pittsburgh, Pa., was selected the outstanding playmaker. His assists this season are the highest in Notre Dame history. Nicknamed him "Ice Man," Clay tossed in 25-foot jump shots with seconds to play in the Ohio State and UCLA contests to save Irish victories. He did the same thing last season against Marquette and Pittsburgh.

Greg Schmelzer, a senior from Park Ridge, Ill., was selected the Outstanding Player of the Year. The forward scored eight points this season but was presented the award for his outstanding help in preparing the regulars.

Irish head coach Jake Kline will open his 41st home baseball season on April 5 against Miami of Ohio.

make things difficult for Notre Dame's Dratta. Tulane's Dave Hartman won the game with a solo blast in the bottom of the eighth. For the Irish, Hansen sparked a five run rally in the ninth inning with a triple and Coleman went 5-3 with two doubles.