Goldberg helps dedicate
Center for Civil Rights

by Kris Thoren

The Honorable Arthur J. Goldberg addressed the guests of the dedication dinner of the Center for Civil Rights, Friday night in the Krenke Law Library.

The Center was established in 1973 to further public analysis in the fields of human and civil rights. It was dedicated by Fr. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, who served as a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights for 15 years.

The dedication of the center followed a tribute to Hesburgh given by former Commission Staff Director John Glickstein and William Taylor with present Staff Director John Bergoglio. Glickstein is now the director of the Notre Dame Center.

Harcourt Dodds, of the Ford Foundation, recounted Hesburgh’s dedication and Carl Holman, president of the National Urban Coalition, paid tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King. Marian Wright Edelman, director of the Children’s Defense Fund, introduced Goldberg.

Goldberg, speaking of his years as U.S. Supreme Court Justice, said, “Impartiality is a dream. Honesty is a duty.” He said he followed this policy in reaching court verdicts.

In 1961, Goldberg came to South Bend as Secretary of Labor finding it “deplorable, as a result of recession.” He described it today as “looking fairly prosperous.”

Being here for the dedication, Goldberg said that it was “an honor to be at the dedication on the 25th anniversary of the Brown vs. Board of Education decision.”

The significance of the location of the center was “great” due to Hesburgh’s presence, according to Goldberg. He called Hesburgh an “outstanding leader” and a “great spiritual warrior” in the civil rights movement.

Rather than being a “happy warrior” he cited Hesburgh to be a “valiant warrior” who recognized that “equal rights for all are the will of God” and that “God’s Will must truly be our own.”

Concerning the American public today, Goldberg said that there is a “presumed cynicism and disillusionment about government and civil rights” and that government and civil rights are related.

The fact that the public is discouraged about the government is understandable,” he continued. “Watergate has shocked the public.”

He said that the evidence that officials at the highest levels were illegally bugging, perjuring, playing favorites in court cases, covering up, etc., has eroded public confidence.

As for impeachment, Goldberg said that the impeachment of a president was a prospect considered only once before. He cited that polls show that the people want Nixon out, but are unsure about it.

“Impeachment is the most drastic political sanction in our constitution, and people fear its potentially disruptive effects,” Goldberg commented. “Impeachment can’t solve all of our Watergate woes, but if properly and fairly conducted, the result could stand legitimate and alloy cynicism,” he continued.

Goldberg stressed that to seek to correct injustice is a “moral and constitutional obligation.” Citing himself to be a devout Jew and a member of a minority, he reminded the guests that minorities are victims of educational opportunity. “No one is proposing a quota system,” said the former Justice.

He continued that a moderate number of blacks ought to be admitted in law schools and other higher educational institutions to “establish equity, not fill quotas.” He claimed that the most effective action to be taken is for “minorities to share with whites in educational experiences in actual classrooms.”

In citing the Brown decision’s significance, Goldberg spoke of Brown as the “parent” of the Gideon decision, which provided all with the right of legal counsel. In Gideon’s case, first tried without counsel he was convicted and when tried the second time, with counsel, he was acquitted.

Goldberg felt strongly that the Court is in charge of the problems of civil rights and equal justice foundation for a mixed society of blacks and whites, men and women, children and adults.

“The nation has to get rid of a few hundred years of tradition and think who genuinely believes they persist with courage and fortitude,” he said.

Goldberg rhetorically asked when the last rich man was sent to the electric chair and said that the death cells he had seen were occupied by blacks and illiterates. He expressed regret that some states are returning to the mandatory death penalty.

Goldberg appealed to the coalition of civil rights adherents to “restore itsprior unity, not compromise.” He emphasized that “must persist in the hope that it will shufflup, prejudice, fear, and hate.”

Goldberg concluded that “the Court has done its duty. Let the nation do theirs. Let both the Court and the nation do theirs to fulfill the still unrealized dream that all men are created equal.”

In Civil Rights series
Shriver lectures on leadership

by Susan Divita

The Honorable Sargent Shriver was welcomed Friday, March 22, at 3:30 p.m., in the Krenke Law Library by Notre Dame President, Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., and the Honorable Richard G. Hatcher, Mayor of Gary.

Shriver spoke on executive leadership in the field of human and civil rights lectures. Shriver summed up a few of the points of his previous lecture by saying the offices in the government have access to the finest advice in the science, economic and political fields, for example, but practically no advice on moral or ethical considerations of the same issue. He would like to see the ethical side injected into government issues. This notion stems from his main idea that the most basic of civil rights is human rights.

Shriver startled the audience by saying he was delighted with the energy crisis. He stated that this incident brings home the question of “what you do on a small plant when all needs can’t be satisfied.”

Shriver mentioned the food crisis, monetary and trade crisis, and other minorities. This is not because, as he explained, these people are inherently criminals, but were denied certain opportunities.

People are inherently criminals, but were denied certain opportunities when young and so went into crime. Shriver gave an example of a black raised in poverty and other minorities. This is not because, as he explained, these people are inherently criminals, but were denied certain opportunities.

The bureaucratic system has to be “democratized,” Shriver said, and the leadership has to have their eyes open.

Therefore, the United States cannot adopt a policy of independence, he answered, citing Watergate as a prime example. The Americans in recent years, have watched a president killed, the still unrealized dream that all men are created equal.

“Watergate has shocked the public.”

He said that the evidence that officials at the highest levels were illegally bugging, perjuring, playing favorites in court cases, covering up, etc., has eroded public confidence.

As for impeachment, Goldberg said that the impeachment of a president was a prospect considered only once before. He cited that polls show that the people want Nixon out, but are unsure about it.

“Impeachment is the most drastic political sanction in our constitution, and people fear its potentially disruptive effects,” Goldberg commented. “Impeachment can’t solve all of our Watergate woes, but if properly and fairly conducted, the result could stand legitimate and alloy cynicism,” he continued.

Goldberg stressed that to seek to correct injustice is a “moral and constitutional obligation.” Citing himself to be a devout Jew and a member of a minority, he reminded the guests that minorities are victims of educational opportunity.

“No one is proposing a quota system,” said the former Justice. He continued that a moderate number of blacks ought to be admitted in law schools and other higher educational institutions to “establish equity, not fill quotas.” He claimed that the most effective action to be taken is for “minorities to share with whites in educational experiences in actual classrooms.”

In citing the Brown decision’s significance, Goldberg spoke of Brown as the “parent” of the Gideon decision, which provided all with the right of legal counsel. In Gideon’s case, first tried without counsel he was convicted and when tried the second time, with counsel, he was acquitted.

Goldberg felt strongly that the Court is in charge of the problems of civil rights and equal justice foundation for a mixed society of blacks and whites, men and women, children and adults.

“The nation has to get rid of a few hundred years of tradition and think who genuinely believes they persist with courage and fortitude,” he said.

Goldberg rhetorically asked when the last rich man was sent to the electric chair and said that the death cells he had seen were occupied by blacks and illiterates. He expressed regret that some states are returning to the mandatory death penalty.

Goldberg appealed to the coalition of civil rights adherents to “restore its prior unity, not compromise.” He emphasized that “must persist in the hope that it will abjure prejudice, fear, and hate.”

Goldberg concluded that “the Court has done its duty. Let the nation do theirs. Let both the Court and the nation do theirs to fulfill the still unrealized dream that all men are created equal.”

A new addition
Stresses civil rights

Goldberg speaks at CCE

by William Murphy
Staff Reporter

Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg said the present Supreme Court has weakened greatly, in the press conference on Friday at CCE.

Goldberg, who came to Notre Dame for the dedication of the Center for Civil Rights, said that the Supreme Court is no longer a strong moral force as it was during the days when he and Earl Warren served as justices.

Commenting especially on the civil rights area, Goldberg stated that the full promise of the Brown decision has not yet been reached in America. According to Goldberg, many devices have been used to frustrate the Brown decision and many strategies have been used to stall civil rights cases.

"The lower courts," said Goldberg, "are finally trying to enforce civil rights legislation strictly. The tragedy here is that the Supreme Court is supposed to be the final conscience of the nation but the present court is divided and weakened where civil rights are concerned."

Goldberg did say that the court had acted with integrity as far as Warren was concerned. "But," pointed out Goldberg, "judges cannot run the country. In a time when our Executive branch of government is so weak we must look for proper political leadership."

Speaking about Congress, Goldberg felt that legislative procedures must be modernized. He felt that the seniority system must be tempered and suggested that sessions of Congress be televised because, as he put it, "sunlight is a strong disinfectant."

Goldberg spoke out against the American Bar Association's plan to reorganize our present court system. "I am utterly opposed to such a reorganization," said Goldberg. "The Constitution of the United States says there is to be one Supreme Court and any citizen has the right to knock at that door."

Speaking as the former Secretary of Labor, Goldberg stated that he was against the phasing out of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Goldberg felt that the OEO was a great part of the assault on poverty and even though many of its programs were failures, he believed that such an organization was necessary to eliminate the situation.

Goldberg closed by commenting on the recent wave of pornography decisions on the State level in America. "The Bill of Rights," said Goldberg, "cannot be watered down and interpreted differently in different areas of the country. The interpretation of the Bill of Rights as it applies to pornography must be uniform for the entire country."

NOW RENTING
one and two bedroom furnished apartments
Featuring:
+ SWIMMING POOL
+ COMMUNITY BUILDING
+ 2 BATHS IN THE 2 BEDROOM APARTMENTS
+ AIR CONDITIONING
+ DISHWASHER
+ RANGE
+ REFRIGERATOR
+ GARBAGE DISPOSAL
+ TENNIS COURT
+ LOCATION: 3 BLOCKS FROM CAMPUS!

"APARTMENTS WITH THE STUDENT IN MIND "
call 232-5853 for rental information or visit crewood management company 3012 east edison road, south bend

"DO YOU LIVE LIFE.... OR DOES LIFE LIVE YOU?"

TUESDAY MARCH 26 8PM
Galvin Life Science Aud.

((IDENTITY AND GROWTH- AND THE N.D. STUDENT a talk and discussion, with MORTON popular teacher and counselor.

TUESDAY MARCH 26 8PM
Galvin Life Science Aud.

((IDENTITY AND GROWTH- AND THE N.D. STUDENT a talk and discussion, with MORTON popular teacher and counselor.

TUESDAY MARCH 26 8PM
Galvin Life Science Aud.

((IDENTITY AND GROWTH- AND THE N.D. STUDENT a talk and discussion, with MORTON popular teacher and counselor.

TUESDAY MARCH 26 8PM
Galvin Life Science Aud.

((IDENTITY AND GROWTH- AND THE N.D. STUDENT a talk and discussion, with MORTON popular teacher and counselor.

TUESDAY MARCH 26 8PM
Galvin Life Science Aud.

((IDENTITY AND GROWTH- AND THE N.D. STUDENT a talk and discussion, with MORTON popular teacher and counselor.
Susan Darin

New Dome editor named

By Pattie Cooney
St. Mary's Editor

Susan M. Darin, a sophomore from Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, has been appointed editor-in-chief for the 1975 edition of the DOME. Darin will be replacing Rod Brayne, a senior from Matawan, New Jersey.

"I want to follow what Rod did in making the DOME a review of the year. The '72 and '73 yearbooks were very artistic, but not always appreciated by the students. I hope to make the '75 book artistic in a way that could be appreciated by everyone," Darin explained.

Darin served as business manager of the DOME this year and is its first woman editor-in-chief. "I can see that I have to work hard to erase the idea that because I am a girl, the book will have some sort of feminine outlook, and in some ways I will have to work extra hard to combat this image and concentrate on making it a good book," Darin said.

Presently, Darin is in the process of selecting an editorial board. There are seven editorial positions available. Editors are selected on the basis of their qualifications and experience. These positions are important because it is the editors who determine what goes in the book and each editor is in charge of a specific section of the yearbook. For example, Darin was the editor of the faculty administration section.

The rest of the staff will be selected in the fall.

Bookstore B-ball contest registration starts today

by Bob Quakenbush
Staff Reporter

This is it! We'll soon find out the best hoosier basketball team on campus, because registration for the Bookstore Basketball Tournament, an Toasti's premier sports event, begins today.

The biggest change from last year is the institution of an "equal opportunity rule" which permits boy, girl, and mixed teams, as well as graduate and law student teams, to enter.

Again this year, the five-man teams are limited to one varsity or former varsity player per roster. Games will be to 21 (one basket—one point).

At the end of the tournament, Mr. Bookstore will name the Golden Hatchet award will be presented, and prize for the "Cleverest Printable Nickname" awarded.

Registration runs from today, March 3, through Tuesday, April 2. To enter, call Vince Meconi, 144 Morrissey, at 347. When calling, be ready to provide a team nickname and the names, addresses, and phone numbers of the team's captain and assistant captain.

Meconi is still looking for referees, scorekeepers, and general assistants, so volunteers are asked to contact him at the same number.

The title game will be played behind the bookstore on Frivolous Friday, April 19.

SMC juniors arrange Augusta Hall experiment

by Pattie Cooney
St. Mary's Editor

The forty SMC juniors who will be living in Augusta Hall, held a short meeting in Stapleton Lounge, on Saturday, March 23.

During the meeting living arrangements were discussed. There is a one per cent possibility that the forty girls may not be living in Augusta. The only reason they may be living elsewhere is if enrollment drops. At the present time the college has accepted more students than there are beds for and the number of students coming in the fall will not be definite until late spring.

Alternate living quarters for those wishing to live in Augusta, will be fourth floor library wing and east main of Le Mans Hall. The experiment could be continued there since those sections can be separated by closing the double doors that are between east and west main. The students will know definitely by July 1, whether they are living in Augusta or Le Mans.

Other students who wished to live on fourth library and east main of Le Mans, may still pick a room up there as their first choice, but in the meantime must pick a room elsewhere.

NOW RENTING

one and two bedroom
furnished apartments

Featuring:

+ Swimming Pool
+ Community Building
+ 2 Baths in the 2 Bedroom Apartments
+ Air Conditioning
+ Dishwasher
+ Range
+ Refrigerator
+ Garbage Disposal
+ Tennis Court
+ Location: 3 Blocks from Campus!

"Apartments with the Student in Mind" call 227-5863 for rental information or visit crestwood management company 3012 east edition road, south bend.

RESERVATIONS
284-4176 Bus. Hrs.
283-7054 Show Nites
Student - Faculty
ND+SMC Staff
$110

THE HOMECOMING

Harold Pinter's disturbing, bizarre comedy
Mar. 26, 27, 28, 29, 30 at 8:30pm
Washington Hall (Notre Dame)

We challenge you.

Our Officer Selection Officers are looking for a few good college men—maybe 3 out of 100—who will make good Marine officers. If you're one of them, we'll give you a chance to prove it during summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

Our program is Platoon Leaders Class, PLC. With ground, air and law options. You might even qualify for up to $2,700 to help you through college. But if money is all you're looking for, don't waste your time.

The challenge is leadership. If you want it, work for it. If you've got it, show us. It's one hell of a challenge. But we're looking for one hell of a man.

The Marines
Box 38901
Los Angeles, California 90038

Please send me information on Marine Corps Platoon Leaders Class. (Please Print)

Name ________________________________ Age __________

Address ________________________________

City ___________________ State __ Zip ______

School ________________________________ Class of ______

Phone ________________________________ Social Security # __________

If you are a senior, check here for information on Officer Candidates Class □

"No limitations on race, creed, color, or national origin."
Dance Marathon ends after poor response

The forty-eight hour Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon ended Sunday afternoon with four of the six couples still competing for the three hundred dollar first prize. The winners of the marathon, to be announced Wednesday afternoon, will be selected on the basis of which couple earned the largest amount of money in pledges for the charity.

“We're still hoping to make close to a thousand dollars to give to the American Muscular Dystrophy Association,” Student Government Administrative Aide Jim Roe said. While the total amount of money earned by the marathon has not yet been determined, Roe added that he expects this year's donation to be considerably less than last year's.

"Every couple worked real hard and they were really impressive. I just wish they'd been shown more support from students than they were given," he stated.

"I thought we were better organized than we were last year and we tried to get the South Bend community involved this time," Roe observed. "We did receive an excellent response from St. Mary's Academy of South Bend," Roe added.

Supplementing the dance marathon were additional contests, including a checkers contest, a haller top contest, a muscle shirt contest, and a name-that-tune contest.

Special activities co-ordinator Dan Schipp said he was also disappointed by the sparse student turnout but that "we all had a very good time."

Schipp also explained that the contestants were allowed a four-hour break every twenty-four hours and a half-hour break every four hours. Meals were donated by Barnaby's, McDonald's, Rocco's, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Perkins and Burger Chef. One contestant, St. Mary's Academy freshman Portia Douglas summed up her experience in the marathon. “I had so much fun meeting all the people—that was the most important part of the marathon," she said.

ND marathon takes its toll on dancer. (Photo by Zenon Bidzinski)

"Black Perspectives In Transition"
A Black Theatre Presentation — Voices, Inc.
"A JOURNEY INTO BLACKNESS"

Sunday, March 31, 1974
7:30 p.m.
O’Laughlin Auditorium
St. Mary's College
Adults — $3.00
Students (I.D.) — $2.00
Children — $1.00

EXPERIENCE THE BONNIE BELL LOOK!

Tommorrow At The Notre Dame Bookstore:
There Will Be A Demonstration
Of Bonne Bell Cosmetics
There Will Be A Drawing
For A Free Gift
From Bonne Bell.

Looking for a place to get away on Lake Michigan.
For rent Lodge and cabins during April and May.
Only 30 min. from campus: Gintaras resort
Lake Shore Rd. Union Pier Mich.
Te. 616-469-3298 or 312-737-4515

The Bonnie Bell Look for Spring '74
Campus Ministry speaks of new program

Editor's note: Following is the first of a three-part series of articles sponsored by Campus Ministry, relating to a program of activities planned for the next three weeks by the Campus Ministry staff. This particular article is an edited version of a taped conversation in which members of the Campus Ministry staff discussed the growth and identity problems of Notre Dame students. Taking part were: Frs. William Toohey, Robert Griffin, Thomas McNally, Thomas Stella; Br. Joseph McTaggart; and Sr. Jang Rite.

McTaggart: We have some very talented students on campus but around midterm some of them face a kind of defeat in their own competitive society here. Then and a number of other things cause them very realistically and very profoundly to ask "Where in hell am I headed and whose value have I been following?"

Toohey: I'm wondering if some of the confusion doesn't come about because the students don't clearly understand right questions. The right question, I think, is "After I graduate from Notre Dame what am I going to do?" Most of them speak about the kind of person you hope to become in four years; it talks about human growth about acquiring skills and techniques and achieving and building and earning. Can the student enter the college market and begin to acquire success. But you may not have changed or grown as a person.

McNally: What worries me a bit is that sounds as if we are talking down to students. After all, we must answer the right questions for ourselves. "What are we going to do?" We don't have all the answers and nobody does. Father Keshegh talks about the need for the moral education of students. This is true, we should be doing a much better job of doing this. But I think also it involves our own moral education because sometimes our values get fouled up and we display the same kind of immorality, if you will, that we hint at in the lives of our students.

Griffin: I think we go through times of crisis several times a year, in our time of crisis as we become an adolescent, a crisis that comes along later in life when one finds himself middle-aged, and so forth. But I wonder why so many of our students seem to toy with the thought of suicide. Why is it that some people who are so well-off and have so much before them suddenly find life so empty that they consider opting out of it?

Stella: Bringing up the idea of suicide is really significant to this whole identity question, I think. Identity is struggling with what it means to be: suicide is the purest form of suicide for a lot of people for whom the whole question of identity is tied into the meaning of life. When the latter is missing, then identity seems to be a problem.

Pitz: That makes sense to me. I've known people who have a lot of degree. They're bright, happy, intelligent people, and have friends. But when they think to look inside themselves they don't find enough meaning there. Then all those externals, which may look like real positive forces to others, mean nothing to those people.

McNally: Last night I was talking to a freshman who, when he first arrived, seemed to be a very happy, outgoing person. But now, just a few months later, he seems kind of unhappy. I get the impression that he is suspicious of me as a rector and that things are going on in his life that may not be good. Perhaps he's into the drug scene, I don't know. My conversation with that freshman has something to say about the whole question we're talking about. A kind of loneliness that I picked up, a sense of isolation. Some things that go on in this kind of growth experience here can be really difficult. I guess we're aware of this but sometimes I at least feel unable to help the students cope with the problem.

Griffin: Perhaps today it's harder to be what you want to be. You see students who work their heads off to get into medical school and find that medical school is closed to them. They start to qualify for law school and they find that law school is closed to them. Everything is doomsed for today and people who work to get degrees find they really can't use those degrees. I'm reminded of Wordsworth's image of a child being born trailing clouds of glory, but as he grows up he doesn't dream of the promise close in upon him and he loses his sense of identity.

McTaggart: John Dunne says the question we usually ask is "How are you living your life?" and he reverses the question and asks "How is life living you?"

Griffin: Somehow I feel that if you don't live life, life lives you. And life is going to be like a mugger that drags you off into a dark corner and knocks the hell out of you.

McNally: On the other hand, life can be a happy experience and I think it is form us most of us around here. When I talk to students who are about to graduate I find that the opposite force is what Campus calls the Plague, or "unlove." Robert Griffin says that self-knowledge is one of the ways you can come about through your own interaction with other students or form their exposure to the whole Notre Dame scene. I feel good about this.

Toohey: Students come here in need of having an experience of furthering their growth and I think the most creative force for that is love, and the opposite force is what Campus calls the Plague, or "unlove." Robert Griffin says that self-knowledge is one of the ways you can come about through your own interaction with other students or form their exposure to the whole Notre Dame scene. I feel good about this.

Griffin: I've been sitting here thinking, we talk about worth and value. If we could help the students to help one another, so much would be solved and other things would fall into place around us. I suppose we need to find it in human love and in terms of our own family and then in terms of God's family.

Toohey: I think that's true. A lot of students are not real good at unlove they came. At least that's the feeling, I pick up. And so it seems that good things have happened during the years whether these have come about through their own interaction with other students or form their exposure to the whole Notre Dame scene. I feel good about this.

Griffin: The Thomas A. Dooley Center is Working....

Cultural Arts cancels Whitman

The Cultural Arts Commission—Dance and Drama Series was forced to cancel the performance of "The Three Ages of Walt Whitman" last night. A heavy fog prevented the performance. The Cultural Arts Commission apologized for any inconvenience to its patrons. The next performance in the American Character series is "Mark Twain of Hartford," Hartford, Conn., March 21.

The Thomas A. Dooley Center is Working.... in Cambodia, in Laos, in Nepal, in the hearts of millions.

for information call 232-5853

To better serve you

NOW RENTING

one and two bedroom

furnished apartments

Featuring:

+ SWIMMING POOL
+ COMMUNITY BUILDING
+ 2 BATHS IN THE 2 BEDROOM

APARTMENTS
+ AIR CONDITIONING
+ DISHWASHER
+ RANGE
+ REFRIGERATOR
+ GARBAGE DISPOSAL
+ TENNIS COURT
+ LOCATION: 3 BLOCKS FROM CAMPUS!
+ \"APARTMENTS WITH THE STUDENT IN MIND\"

K. J. BROWN & COMPANY INC.

STOCKS, BONDS, COMMODITIES, MUTUAL FUNDS

228 W. Jefferson, South Bend

Telephone 234-5094

Monday, March 25, 1974

the observer
The endorsement of the LaFortune Renovation by the Executive Committee has now given the renovation plans their first big push toward becoming reality.

Next step? Keep pushing.

Meeting over the spring break, the Trustees rejected Ellerbe Architect's $800,000 bid due to the lack of a donor. However, in its place they voted to allocate $250,000 by the students to insure that the University to begin the renovation. They have taken the first step. It is now the student's turn.

We should not be discouraged by the cut in funds. Should the Trustees decide to accept the proposal, then at least a beginning will have been made. After that point a watchful eye will be needed by the students to insure that the renovation continues.

Another major "unknown" to the Trustees and University officers is whether or not the students would respond to any renovations through more use of the building.

Certainly it is not possible to gauge accurately or guarantee any such notion. The fact, though, that students have endured setbacks in pushing renovation for nearly three years should serve as somewhat of an indication of their motives.

For the present, make it known how you feel about LaFortune either to an administrator or through a letter to the Observer. If you care, let it be heard.

Tom Drape

Point-Counterpoint

Opposite our editorial page today, the Observer would like to introduce a new addition—Point-Counterpoint. The purpose of the page is to draw the Notre Dame community more clearly together in ideas and opinions concerning campus, national, and world happenings.

Point-Counterpoint is wide open. It's conception centers the lack of a doctoral Op-Ed page which ideas for a Opinion-Editorial or Opposite-Editorial page. As does an Op-Ed page, Point-Counterpoint will combine an opportunity for both a subject forum and subject perspective.

Under your own signature, we offer any student, faculty, or staff member at Notre Dame a time and place to put forth their opinion on selected topics for student, faculty, or staff member at Notre Dame community we offer its content.

The Editorial Board
Generally, students do not understand the judicial system and how it works. They do not know how to prepare a case, and they do not know what the Judicial Board might have a tendency to look upon violations of rules and possible administrative action, that the student should take. It is considered to best insure fair treatment of their case. I propose that whenever the Dean of Students wishes to see a student with respect to an accused violation of rules and any possible administrative action, that the student contact the Judicial Coordinator’s office for advice on how to proceed, and that all information discussed with him will remain confidential, for the student need not even identify himself when contacting the Judicial Coordinator. This letter and a copy of the complaint are essential, for I have seen too many students hurt because of the lack of knowledge and preparation.

The second revision pertains to the composition of the Appeals Board. The Appeals Board is composed of one administrator, one faculty member, and one student, none of whom are a part of the administration. This board is either insensitive to the needs of the individual, or afraid to overturn the administration’s decision. The rationale that is often expressed is that there are five votes: The members of this board feel, with the administration, that the case is closed. The emphasis is not so much on the person that is a victim, but on the person that has committed the infraction. This one that has continued to work against the disadvantage of the student. The composition of the Board must be changed so that students have equal representation.

Also, the definition of an “abuse of discretion,” the second of the two criteria, states that the Board may overturn a previous decision, must be clarified, for there has often been too narrow an interpretation of it. In all cases, there must be a determination that the previous decision was too harsh after all of the circumstances have been considered. The student should have the right to request a hearing and should constitute an abuse of discretion. The definition of this term must be expanded.

A final change that I would like to see is related to the student’s right to appeal to the President of the University. It would be better for the student to allow the administration to appeal to the administration. The administration has not had much luck with the presidential level, but students have an advantage they have on the Appeals Board.

The second revision pertains to the composition of the Appeals Board. The Appeals Board is composed of one administrator, one faculty member, and one student, none of whom are a part of the administration. This board is either insensitive to the needs of the individual, or afraid to overturn the administration’s decision. The rationale that is often expressed is that there are five votes: The members of this board feel, with the administration, that the case is closed. The emphasis is not so much on the person that is a victim, but on the person that has committed the infraction. This one that has continued to work against the disadvantage of the student. The composition of the Board must be changed so that students have equal representation.

The University of Notre Dame is committed to its highest levels to value-oriented education based on the Catholic tradition. That commitment is reflected in what the members of this community say and write, but most importantly: what they do. Our rules and regulations, especially as stated this year, are intended to document Notre Dame’s behavioral expectations.

The emphasis must again be placed on what the members of this community say and write, but most importantly: what they do. Our rules and regulations, especially as stated this year, are intended to document Notre Dame’s behavioral expectations. It is primarily the responsibility of the Student Affairs Staff—R.A.’s, Asst. Rectors, and the Dean of Students Office to aware of what students do and to enforce appropriate regulations. It follows that students violate regulations are violated.

The administration, far from assuming a dominant role in the regulation of student affairs, should seek only to facilitate the institution’s development. That caring concern is more integral to value-oriented education.

The need for an expanded staff stems from the implementation of the “independent hearing officer” approach. “Pending action” is defined as integral to value-oriented education. In order to prevent serious cases, cases have required up to as many as twenty hours of my personal time before a final decision was made. The independent hearing officer would be a series of meetings with the student, his rector, his R.A. his academic advisor, and even people who will be involved in carrying out the decision. The independent hearing officer’s every effort is made to determine a student’s level of personal and then make an appropriate decision, taking into account as well as the interests of the student.

Another change flowing from the developmental model involved the need for a new, more accessible alternative to the traditional penalties of disciplinary action or suspension. A “decentralized” approach was developed as a single “hearing officer.” As a matter of fact, follow-up responsibility in board decisions, as a part of the student’s personal development, is made sometimes up to and beyond graduation.

This is still another area where a board of campus police might be utilized, not as a “hearing officer” but as a “safety officer.” The Notre Dame student must be held responsible for self-regulation under the guidance of the faculty. To who they turn for instruction in the academic disciplines.

One of the two criteria on which the Appeals Board must be changed so that students have equal representation.

The emphasis must again be placed on what the members of this community say and write, but most importantly: what they do. Our rules and regulations, especially as stated this year, are intended to document Notre Dame’s behavioral expectations.
Imagine a sprawling playground 7400 feet above sea level with ski runs, golf, swimming, fishing, tennis, horseback riding — enough to boggle the mindstück and jock alike.

A mirage? Hardly. "Big Sky" — western Montana's newest resort complex — is presently $27 million of recreational wonderland, and still growing. Until two years ago, there was nothing but the mountainside. Only 30 percent of Big Sky's 10,600 acres will be developed, but there's still a lot more to be done.

If you plan to visit Big Sky before next winter, be prepared to do some arduous dodgeball with construction workers. Although skiing opened to the public December 15, most of the complex is still under construction. A "grand opening" is slated for March 22. You can still make plans to be there while the runs were being made.

Big Sky's biggest attraction, of course, is skiing. Lone Mountain (11,166 feet) and Andesite Mountain feature downhill, open bowl and cross-country trails. Andesite Mountain feature downhill, open bowl and cross-country trails. There are presently three chairlifts (three more are planned), and there is an efficient tram system to get you up and down on the mountain. The existing lifts can carry 5200 people per hour, so there's little or no wait for the facilities are superb. Jean-Claude Killy was a consultant at Big Sky and skied here while the runs were being made. He describes Big Sky as a "ski resort of the future".

The facilities are superb. Jean-Claude Killy was a consultant at Big Sky and skied here while the runs were being made. He describes Big Sky as a "ski resort of the future".

However, the biggest film of the week, as you probably know, is "Klute", which opened in two sections with part one having been televised last night and part two following suit this week. The film has an amazing cast and the spectacle of the movie far exceeds the storyline of the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army. Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton lead the cast and admirably fulfill their roles. Miss Taylor, incidentally, went through 68 costume changes for this film. And, of course, this is the picture in which Taylor and Burton's romance blossomed. Made in 1960 at a cost of $40 million, the film managed to turn a small profit with the movie far and away bedazzles the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army.

The facilities are superb. Jean-Claude Killy was a consultant at Big Sky and skied here while the runs were being made. He describes Big Sky as a "ski resort of the future".

Among the movies abound in this week's schedule of premieres and reruns, here is a quickie plot summary of many of the films.

"Manhunter" takes place in the thirties and an elderly serial killer leaves his mark on his victims. The film is based on the story of the same name by Thomas Harris who lifted a great deal of his basic plot from the original story and the drama rests on his gradually going mad. The film managed to turn a small profit with the movie far and away bedazzles the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army.

The facilities are superb. Jean-Claude Killy was a consultant at Big Sky and skied here while the runs were being made. He describes Big Sky as a "ski resort of the future".

 However, the biggest film of the week, as you probably know, is "Klute", which opened in two sections with part one having been televised last night and part two following suit this week. The film has an amazing cast and the spectacle of the movie far exceeds the storyline of the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army. Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton lead the cast and admirably fulfill their roles. Miss Taylor, incidentally, went through 68 costume changes for this film. And, of course, this is the picture in which Taylor and Burton's romance blossomed. Made in 1960 at a cost of $40 million, the film managed to turn a small profit with the movie far and away bedazzles the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army.

The facilities are superb. Jean-Claude Killy was a consultant at Big Sky and skied here while the runs were being made. He describes Big Sky as a "ski resort of the future".

However, the biggest film of the week, as you probably know, is "Klute", which opened in two sections with part one having been televised last night and part two following suit this week. The film has an amazing cast and the spectacle of the movie far exceeds the storyline of the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army. Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton lead the cast and admirably fulfill their roles. Miss Taylor, incidentally, went through 68 costume changes for this film. And, of course, this is the picture in which Taylor and Burton's romance blossomed. Made in 1960 at a cost of $40 million, the film managed to turn a small profit with the movie far and away bedazzles the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army.

The facilities are superb. Jean-Claude Killy was a consultant at Big Sky and skied here while the runs were being made. He describes Big Sky as a "ski resort of the future".

However, the biggest film of the week, as you probably know, is "Klute", which opened in two sections with part one having been televised last night and part two following suit this week. The film has an amazing cast and the spectacle of the movie far exceeds the storyline of the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army. Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton lead the cast and admirably fulfill their roles. Miss Taylor, incidentally, went through 68 costume changes for this film. And, of course, this is the picture in which Taylor and Burton's romance blossomed. Made in 1960 at a cost of $40 million, the film managed to turn a small profit with the movie far and away bedazzles the viewer, distracting him or her from any drama during the entrance to Rome, the killing of a woman, the battle and the desertion of Antony's army.
Jim Grosser

Scholastic chief chosen
by Mark Frazel
Staff Reporter

"A different kind of viewpoint on this university is concerned with the Scholastic is all about. A broad one, yet more specific in detail," declared Jim Grosser, a junior English major from Tampa, Florida. Grosser has also worked for the Tampa Tribune during the summer. He foresees about the same Scholastic is all about. A repertoire of music. Although the Notre Dame concert band was held from Sunday, March 10, through Thursday, April 4. The first session for tryouts will be held in Stepan Center at 2:00 p.m. Sunday. All those planning to tryout should contact either Jeffrey or Picton at 7080.

Notre Dame concert band completes southern tour
by Jim Deaichen
Staff Reporter

The University of Notre Dame concert band returned after a needed week off from rehearsals, the concert band will begin preparation for a banquet following the Blue-Gold game on May 4th and for graduation weekend activities.

Head cheerleaders newly elected
by Leanne Jacques
Staff Reporter

Sue Picton and Pat Heffernan were chosen head-captains for the 1974-75 ND cheerleading squad on March 6. The decision was made by a vote of the squad.

Picton said, in regard to the squad's money-making projects next year, "We plan to have a lot of movies and sell the bumper stickers again." The cheerleaders are a self-sponsored group.

Cheerleading tryouts for any interested freshmen, sophomore of junior will be held from Sunday, March 10, through Thursday, April 4. The first session for tryouts will be held in Stepan Center at 2:00 p.m. Sunday. All those planning to tryout should contact either Jeffrey or Picton at 7080.

LOW-COST AFFINITY-GROUP Flight to ENGLAND ON REGULARLY SCHEDULED B.O.A.C. 747
NEW YORK-LONDON-NEW YORK
MID-JUNE DEPARTURE MID-AUGUST RETURN
AVAILABLE TO ALL NOTRE DAME STUDENTS FACULTY AND STAFF (AND THEIR IMMEDIATE FAMILIES)

CONTACT THE TRAVEL BUREAU IN BADIN HALL (Tel. 7080) NOT LATER THAN APRIL 1

PLACEMENT BUREAU
Main Building
INTERVIEWS SCHEDULED FOR WEEK OF APRIL 1, 1974
SIGN-UP PERIOD BEGINS FEBRUARY 19

Where do MONY men go?
As far as their own ability and initiative take them.

What Andy Huff has done is a

Andy Huff, Class of '73

Andy Huff graduated from Notre Dame and received his B.A. degree in January in 1973, majoring in Sociology. He played in two renegade games. Andy was voted Notre Dame's Most Valuable Offensive Player for the 1972 season in which N.D. finished with an 8-3 regular season record. Andy continued his football playing after graduation, playing semi-pro football in the Continental League with the New England Colonials. He was the All-League fullback and his team won the league's championship. As the season ended, Andy decided to develop himself in a business that offered independence and contacts. Andy joined the MONY sales team at Notre Dame and surrounding community. He joined the MONY Sales Team in January of 1974. He is developing skills in the private college market, personal estate planning using computers, and health insurance planning.

Where do MONY men come from?
From many walks of life, like graduating from N.D.

Where do MONY men go?
As far as their own ability and initiative take them.

What Andy Huff has done is above average. But the opportunities are still there. It's up to you. If you have what it takes, we have the career both in sales, and sales management. The insurance industry is growing and at MONY we've branched into mutual funds and variable annuities.

Campus Interviews: April 4th

WE NEED YOU TO MAKE IT WORK!
Applications Now Being Accepted
For These Areas Of Interest:

Administrative
Services
Special Projects
Academic
Publicity
Cultural Arts
Campus Press

Apply at Student Union Office 3rd Floor La Fortune
Or Call 7757 Until Wednesday at 5 P.M.

Sound interesting?
Then contact Jack Mayes, manager, South Bend, 515 St. Joseph Bank Building. Phone 233-3516 or interview with us on Campus April 4th.

Andy Huff, Class of '73

Andy Huff graduated from Notre Dame and received his B.A. degree in January in 1973, majoring in Sociology. He played in two renegade games. Andy was voted Notre Dame's Most Valuable Offensive Player for the 1972 season in which N.D. finished with an 8-3 regular season record. Andy continued his football playing after graduation, playing semi-pro football in the Continental League with the New England Colonials. He was the All-League fullback and his team won the league's championship. As the season ended, Andy decided to develop himself in a business that offered independence and contacts. Andy joined the MONY sales team at Notre Dame and surrounding community. He joined the MONY Sales Team in January of 1974. He is developing skills in the private college market, personal estate planning using computers, and health insurance planning.

Where do MONY men go?
As far as their own ability and initiative take them.

What Andy Huff has done is above average. But the opportunities are still there. It's up to you. If you have what it takes, we have the career both in sales, and sales management. The insurance industry is growing and at MONY we've branched into mutual funds and variable annuities.

Campus Interviews: April 4th

WE NEED YOU TO MAKE IT WORK!
Applications Now Being Accepted
For These Areas Of Interest:

Administrative
Services
Special Projects
Academic
Publicity
Cultural Arts
Campus Press

Apply at Student Union Office 3rd Floor La Fortune
Or Call 7757 Until Wednesday at 5 P.M.

Sound interesting?
Then contact Jack Mayes, manager, South Bend, 515 St. Joseph Bank Building. Phone 233-3516 or interview with us on Campus April 4th.

Andy Huff, Class of '73

Andy Huff graduated from Notre Dame and received his B.A. degree in January in 1973, majoring in Sociology. He played in two renegade games. Andy was voted Notre Dame's Most Valuable Offensive Player for the 1972 season in which N.D. finished with an 8-3 regular season record. Andy continued his football playing after graduation, playing semi-pro football in the Continental League with the New England Colonials. He was the All-League fullback and his team won the league's championship. As the season ended, Andy decided to develop himself in a business that offered independence and contacts. Andy joined the MONY sales team at Notre Dame and surrounding community. He joined the MONY Sales Team in January of 1974. He is developing skills in the private college market, personal estate planning using computers, and health insurance planning.
Sunday drivers reappear with more gas

By United Press International

Many Americans who had been staying home on weekends because of the gasoline shortage hit the road to seaside resorts, parks and historic attractions Sunday, five days after President Nixon dropped the voluntary ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

President Nixon suggested last week that the lifting of the Arab oil embargo and increased supplies of gasoline no longer made it necessary for stations to shut down on Sunday.

William E. Simon, the nation’s energy chief, had some good news and a word of caution for motorists Sunday. He predicted that gasoline supplies should increase sufficiently for a “normal summer” of travel but drivers should plan their trips, observe 55 mile per hour speed limits and shut off their car air conditioners.

“Using our heads, we are going to have a normal summer,” Simon said in a television interview.

In the Middle Atlantic states, where the gasoline shortage almost created an emergency in February, a United Press International survey showed that despite Nixon's lifting of the ban, few service stations opened Sunday.

Despite the few number of stations open Sunday, there were increases at tourist attractions and indications that the weekend trip was returning.

Strong bookings were reported by Washington area hotels and motels for next weekend's annual Cherry Blossom Festival.

There were dramatic increases in tourists in Ocean City, Md., Williamsburg, Va., and some state parks in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina.

Officials of the American Automobile Association said many stations lacked personnel to operate, some didn’t have enough gasoline and many operators liked taking the day off.

Sixteen per cent of the service stations in the Los Angeles area were open, compared to only a fraction on recent Sundays, but traffic was still described as light.

In the southern New York area, about one third of 160 stations surveyed by the AAA were open.

One of Virginia’s major tourist attractions, Colonial Williamsburg, reported that it was recovering from a winter nosedive in business attributed to the gasoline shortage. A spokesman said there had been “quite an increase” in visitors this weekend.

Tom Taylor, district ranger at the Great Smoky Mountain Park office in Cherokee, N.C., said business picked up Sunday.

“There are lots more hikers on the trails and sightseers from other states. ‘It surprised me to see so many out.’

By United Press International

Many Americans who had been staying home on weekends because of the gasoline shortage hit the road to seaside resorts, parks and historic attractions Sunday, five days after President Nixon dropped the voluntary ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

President Nixon suggested last week that the lifting of the Arab oil embargo and increased supplies of gasoline no longer made it necessary for stations to shut down on Sunday.

William E. Simon, the nation’s energy chief, had some good news and a word of caution for motorists Sunday. He predicted that gasoline supplies should increase sufficiently for a “normal summer” of travel but drivers should plan their trips, observe 55 mile per hour speed limits and shut off their car air conditioners.

“Using our heads, we are going to have a normal summer,” Simon said in a television interview.

In the Middle Atlantic states, where the gasoline shortage almost created an emergency in February, a United Press International survey showed that despite Nixon's lifting of the ban, few service stations opened Sunday.

Despite the few number of stations open Sunday, there were increases at tourist attractions and indications that the weekend trip was returning.

Strong bookings were reported by Washington area hotels and motels for next weekend's annual Cherry Blossom Festival.

There were dramatic increases in tourists in Ocean City, Md., Williamsburg, Va., and some state parks in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina.

Officials of the American Automobile Association said many stations lacked personnel to operate, some didn’t have enough gasoline and many operators liked taking the day off.

Sixteen per cent of the service stations in the Los Angeles area were open, compared to only a fraction on recent Sundays, but traffic was still described as light.

In the southern New York area, about one third of 160 stations surveyed by the AAA were open.

One of Virginia’s major tourist attractions, Colonial Williamsburg, reported that it was recovering from a winter nosedive in business attributed to the gasoline shortage. A spokesman said there had been “quite an increase” in visitors this weekend.

Tom Taylor, district ranger at the Great Smoky Mountain Park office in Cherokee, N.C., said business picked up Sunday.

“There are lots more hikers on the trails and sightseers from other states. ‘It surprised me to see so many out.’

Volleyball tourney renewed

by Bob Quenkanish

Staff Reporter

Will the Conqueror Worms have the courage to squirm from the mud of defeat to take another shot at the Mud Tournam ent? The world will soon know. Registration for the festival’s Volleyball-in-the-Mud Tournament begins today.

Last year the Worms were long made it necessary for

An Tostai event

An Tostai weekend itself, tournament play will be moved outdoors to the An Tostai field. The quarter and semi-finals are expected to be played on Frivulous Friday, and the finals are scheduled the afternoon of Sunny Saturday.

“This year,” reports Mike “Hush” Brauw eiler, “we hope to dig the 30 by 60 foot volleyball pit about seven inches deep so we can really turn it into an outing gasgnumire of mud.”

Brauw eiler explained that last year “we hardly scraped the mud off the surface of the field,” the result being a slick but not extremely sloppy volleyball court.

Boys, girls, and mixed teams are eligible to enter. Although substitutions are permissible, no more than six players will be allowed on court at a time. Each match will consist of three games to 15 points; two out of three wins.

Teams may be registered by phone or in person after registration in person is both required and recommended.

Fire at Nickie’s draws streaker

by Pete Kernan

Staff Reporter

A Friday night crowd of over 200 students escaped injury when a fire broke out at Nickie’s Tavern, approximately 1:50 a.m. in blaze, which caused approximately $359 damage, was started when an accumulation of grease in the hamburger grill was ignited by flames from the gas broiler, according to South Bend Fire Inspector Joe Louis Kovatch.

Nickie’s employee James Patrick Sweeney noted that once the flames were spotted, “everyone left in an orderly fashion, except two unidentified pool sharks who refused to leave until their grudge match was resolved.”

Six fire department units responded to the alarm and quickly extinguished the flames.

Spectators watching the firemen in action from the safety of the A&P parking lot across the street were treated to a display of athletic prowess by an unidentified resident of the nearby Notre Dame apartments who sprinted past the crowd clad only in his shoes and socks.

The damage to the building was repaired Saturday morning and Nickie’s was open for business as usual Saturday night. Owner Nick Billeo was unavailable for comment.

Fire at Nickie’s draws streaker

by Pete Kernan

Staff Reporter

A Friday night crowd of over 200 students escaped injury when a fire broke out at Nickie’s Tavern, approximately 1:50 a.m. in blaze, which caused approximately $359 damage, was started when an accumulation of grease in the hamburger grill was ignited by flames from the gas broiler, according to South Bend Fire Inspector Joe Louis Kovatch.

Nickie’s employee James Patrick Sweeney noted that once the flames were spotted, "everyone left in an orderly fashion, except two unidentified pool sharks who refused to leave until their grudge match was resolved.”

Six fire department units responded to the alarm and quickly extinguished the flames.

Spectators watching the firemen in action from the safety of the A&P parking lot across the street were treated to a display of athletic prowess by an unidentified resident of the nearby Notre Dame apartments who sprinted past the crowd clad only in his shoes and socks.

The damage to the building was repaired Saturday morning and Nickie’s was open for business as usual Saturday night. Owner Nick Billeo was unavailable for comment.

SPRING FLING ARMORY PARTY SATURDAY APRIL 6th

Tickets In Dining Hall Monday April 1st

SATURDAY APRIL 20, AT 7:30 PM

STILLS ARMORY PARTY

THE BEACH BOYS

PRE-CANADA

A special program for NotreDame students (and their partners) who are preparing for marriage.

April 21, 28, May 5

SIGN UP IN CAMPUS MINISTRY OFFICE

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, AT 7:30 P.M.

TICKETS: $5.50 AND $3.50, ON SALE AT THE A.C.C. AND THE S.U. TICKET OFFICE.

First ticket sale Wednesday March 27
Nixon may attend

Heaven at Moscow talks

By BARRY JAMES

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived Sunday night to prepare the way for President Nixon's projected visit and said he hoped to make concrete progress on nuclear arms, trade and other issues in talks with Soviet leaders.

Kissinger flew into Vnukovo airport from Bonn, where he met West German Chancellor Willy Brandt during the afternoon and discussed recent U.S. differences with its European allies.

"I expect we will make concrete progress on a number of outstanding issues, and that we will agree that all of us have an obligation to promote them in every part of the world," Kissinger told newsmen in Moscow as he walked from his plane to a waiting black Soviet limousine.

"We in the administration are convinced that much of importance depends on the relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union," Kissinger was expected to hold three days talks with Leonid I. Brezhnev, Communist Party general secretary, and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

He told newsmen the stalemate in the Soviet-American nuclear arms talks at Geneva, the controversy in the United States about trade with the Soviet Union and Nixon's expected visit here in June all would be on the agenda.

The U.S. officials said Kissinger also will discuss Middle East diplomacy with Brezhnev and will try to overcome recent strains in Soviet-American relations.

"We and the Soviet leaders will work constructively and seriously to reach the goals we all share," Kissinger said. Signs of strain in U.S.-Soviet relationship also have been evident in Moscow, as in Washington. The official Soviet press has jumped at Kissinger's Mideast diplomacy and Soviet officials have expressed concern about efforts by some members of Congress to block trade credits to the Soviet Union unless this country allows free emigration.

U.S. officials said they expected the strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks to be perhaps the most important issue in the discussions here. In Washington last week Kissinger speculated whether a new agreement covering offensive missiles could be reached by the end of the year, the target date set earlier by Nixon.

U.S. officials said they believed the Russians would be anxious to hear about Kissinger's talks last week with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has led the Congressional fight on Soviet-American trade.

Washington reports said Jackson might favor granting credits and most-favored nation trade status to the Soviet Union if it makes further concessions on Jewish emigration.

Kissinger lunched near Bonn Sunday with Brandt and West German Foreign Minister Walter Scheel. Afterward he sought to play down recent differences between the United States and Europe.

The Atlantic relationship has always been and will remain a cornerstone of American foreign policy," he said. But he acknowledged the right of European countries "individually or as a unit" to support the Soviet view from the United States.

Kissinger said the West Germans have developed ideas for strengthening Atlantic consultations.

"We have encouraged the Federal Republic to pursue some of these ideas with their colleagues in the European community," he said.

The Playhouse

525 N. Hill

Live Entertainment Wed. thru Sat.
Happy Hour Mon.-Fri. 5-7 p.m.
DRINKS ARE 2 for 1!!

Dance Fri & Sat
to Sounds of
"Sunday Funnies"

Monday, March 25th.

9 A.M. - 4:30 P.M. Room 222

Administration Building (Placement Bureau)

BONNE BELL

WANTS YOU!

Bonne Bell Cosmetics will be conducting interviews to find a Campus Rep for their products.

There will be no selling involved you just promote their products.

Interviews will be Monday, March 25th.
John Fineran

Blarney Stone(d)

Gipper’s home

Editor’s note: John Fineran was in Houghton, Mich. covering Notre Dame in the first round of the WCHA playoffs. While visiting the hometown of George Gipp, he found the climate cold, but the people and the hospitality warm.

HOUGHTON, Mich.—“Welcome to the Copper Country...you are now breathing the purest, most vitalizing air on the Earth.”

The Copper Country Amateur Hockey League could have picked a better savior than George Gipp. The Irish have played in the number six spot so far.

John Fineran

ND stickmen 1-2 in Colorado

by George Eckes

The Notre Dame lacrosse team returned from their Spring trip in Colorado with a 1-2 record and seemed to be well on its way to a successful season. The Irish chapter, according to Coach Rich O’Leary, is still in great need.

Experience was certainly one of the factors in the stickmen’s first encounter with the Air Force Academy, as the Falcons trounced the Irish, 20-5.

The ND stickmen again took it on the chin against Colorado College, losing 15-5, but played surprisingly well, holding the lacrosse powerhouse to an average of 27 goals per game. The score was a particularly rough one as 27 penalties were assessed. The average number for a lacrosse game usually runs from 10-14. John Corcoran led all scorers with three tallies, while both Joe Meares and Bob Thibeau scored two goals each past the CC goalie, and Caron added the lone make for the Green Bay Packers, Roger Staubach and Tom Landry, quarterback and coach of the Dallas Cowboys, Chicago Cub shortstop Don Kessinger, basketballer Mel Coasts and soccer star Kyle Rote, Jr., recent winner of the Superstar Competition in Florida.

Anyone interested in more FCA information can contact Jim Early at the Notre Dame Football Office or Professor Ken Milani at 1562-247 Hayes-Healy Center.

FCA to meet Tuesday in Grace

ND stickmen successful in California

by John Vincent

The Notre Dame tennis team returned home this past Sunday after a very productive spring trip in California. The Irish netters finished the eight-day trip with a 6-4 record the finest competition the West Coast has to offer.

“We were pleased with our performances,” said head coach Tom Fallon, who is beginning his 17th year at the top post. “We were afraid that we would be overpowered since those schools had so much more time to prepare than we did, but we only lost the ones that we expected to lose.”

Although the team is still undecided, sophomore Rick Slager has been playing the number-one slot for the Irish. He is now three-for-three from Columbus, Ohio, 5-6 for the year, but as Coach Fallon said, “Rick has the potential to heat anybody on a given day.”

Slager, one of the new look bullets, played evenly with nationally ranked Tom Kreis of UCLA until dropping a tie-breaker in the third set.

The net singles record belongs to sophomore Inoue, who is 9-2. Inoue, a native of Lahaina, Hawaii, was a finalist in the New England singles championships last year, and the Irish has played in the number six spot so far.

Coach Tom Fallon discusses strategy with his Irish tennis team. The Notre Dame netters fared well in sunny California, winning six of 10 matches, and will entertain Illinois April 2 to begin the new season.

Soccer practice

Soccer practice for the Spring season will be tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 p.m. on the field behind Stepan Center.

The Notre Dame Foundation of Christian Athletes, in its organizational phase, will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Grace Tower penthouse.

The Irish chapter, which was initiated on February 28 by several teachers and coaches at motor Christian lives. The group promotes Christian fellowship among athletes and coaches with the hope that this will be shared with the larger community.

The FCA is a nationwide organization, counting both amateur and professional athletes and coaches as members. Some of the professional athletes who are members of the FCA are Notre Dame's Mike McCoy, now a tackle for the Green Bay Packers, Roger Staubach and Tom Landry, quarterback and coach of the

The Notre Dame Foundation of Christian Athletes, in its organizational phase, will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Grace Tower penthouse.

The Irish chapter, which was initiated on February 28 by several teachers and coaches at motor Christian lives. The group promotes Christian fellowship among athletes and coaches with the hope that this will be shared with the larger community.

The FCA is a nationwide organization, counting both amateur and professional athletes and coaches as members. Some of the professional athletes who are members of the FCA are Notre Dame's Mike McCoy, now a tackle for the Green Bay Packers, Roger Staubach and Tom Landry, quarterback and coach of the

The Notre Dame Foundation of Christian Athletes, in its organizational phase, will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Grace Tower penthouse.

The Irish chapter, which was initiated on February 28 by several teachers and coaches at motor Christian lives. The group promotes Christian fellowship among athletes and coaches with the hope that this will be shared with the larger community.

The FCA is a nationwide organization, counting both amateur and professional athletes and coaches as members. Some of the professional athletes who are members of the FCA are Notre Dame's Mike McCoy, now a tackle for the Green Bay Packers, Roger Staubach and Tom Landry, quarterback and coach of the