ND faculty salaries below nat'l average

by Gregg Bangs

Percentage increases for Notre Dame faculty salaries lag behind similar increases at universities across the country, according to a report issued by the American Association of University Professors. The report said the average increase of current Notre Dame faculty members was in the bottom ten percent of schools reporting increases in faculty salaries.

The AAUP report was published in a newsletter prepared by Tom Swartz and Ed Trubac, President of the Notre Dame AAUP chapter. Trubac, an associate professor of Finance and Business Economics, said the major reason for printing the report was to "publicize the financial situation of the Notre Dame faculty and staff."

In their newsletter, Swartz and Trubac stated that its purpose is to "evaluate recent salary increases at the University of Notre Dame by comparing them with the salary increases at the 244 institutions of higher learning for the academic year 1973-74."

The co-authors also felt that "while 1973-74 was a bad year for faculty members, generally, it was much worse for faculty members at the University of Notre Dame."

The major part of the newsletter compared the percentage increase in salary for varying academic ranks of the University with similar rank categories of other institutions.

The institutions that took part in this survey were broken into two categories. The first category encompassed all the institutions that reported data for the last three years.

The second category consisted of private independent colleges and Universities in Category I which "offer the doctorate degree and which conferred in the most recent three years an average of fifteen or more earned doctorates covering a minimum of three non-related fields. Notre Dame is included in this category," the newsletter related.

The chart shows Notre Dame salary gains are far smaller than the increases in both categories. An example of this lag is seen in the "all ranks" category, which is an average of the percentage increases in the ranks of professor, associate professor, assistant professor, and instructor.

The average percentage increase for schools reporting increases at all ranks level was 9.2 percent. The increase in Category I was 6.6 percent, while the Notre Dame percentage increase was 3.8 percent.

Trubac stressed that this year's results were not a new development. "Three years ago, in a similar study, the average pay increase for all reporting institutions was 5.5 percent per year, while Notre Dame's increase was only 3.2 percent. Obviously, we have been behind on the pay increase scale for at least the last three years," he pointed out.

Additional information pertaining to the 1973-74 academic year showed 90 percent of all reporting institutions had salary percentage increases of over 4 percent. This puts the 3.8 percent salary increase at Notre Dame in the bottom 10 percent of salary increases.

The newsletter also stated that 45 percent of all reporting institutions made pay increases of at least 6 percent. Similar data for private, independent schools in Category I were not different.

Only 8 percent of the schools in Category I "granted salary raises to continuing faculty members that were less than 4 percent, while 60 percent (of the schools) gave increases that were at least 6 percent. In this category as well, Notre Dame ranks near the bottom."

Trubac and Swartz explained this newsletter followed "a number of AAUP and Faculty Senate reports commenting on the economic status of the faculty at the University of Notre Dame."

One of the reports, written by Tom Swartz, noted that if an inflationary rate of only 8 percent prevailed during this current academic year, a 17-18 percent pay hike would be required to equal the purchasing power the faculty had three years ago.

The AAUP is an organization that is trying to further the interests of faculty members. The local chapter at Notre Dame is engaged in a membership drive and is due to its current membership of 1576 local faculty members.

Airport receives aid for runway changes

John Brademans, Third District Congressman from Indiana, announced last Thursday that the Federal Aviation Administration will provide a $919,000 grant to improve a number of facilities at the Michiana Regional Airport.

According to airport authorities, the grant will be used for an 1100 foot extension (for runways 5 and 23), a new high-intensity runway lights and a relocation of the instrument landing system.

"These improvements will translate into improved service such as direct flights to Denver, larger loads for incoming and outgoing planes and a general improvement of safety," Brademans explained.

None of the funds will be used for improvement of terminal facilities. "Two things enter into this," airport authorities explained. First, as we are under an $80,000 contract with engineers to determine the need for remodeling or new terminal facilities. This should be complete in December or January.

"Secondly, federal aid is not presently available for terminal building improvements." Brademans is working with the St. Joseph County Airport Authority and Sen. Vance Hartke, along with airport president John Fricke, to obtain the grant. Fricke said he expects the work to begin "as soon as the ink dries on the final papers this week."

Circle-K club conference held at ND

by Fred Herbst

Staff Reporter

The Circle-K International Fall Issues Conference was held at Notre Dame this past weekend. The conference opened Friday evening with representatives of various Circle-K organizations visiting the Family and Children's Home in Michigan.

Saturday's activities consisted of a board meeting at which district news was discussed and the International Convention to be held March 3-5, 1975, was announced.

Highlighting the issues conference were presentations on urban and housing development by Kent Wilcox of South Bend, muscular dystrophy by Gene Chiou of Chicago, and the future of the family by Larry Bardinmeuller, president of the Indiana-Purdue Circle K at Fort Wayne, and a general address by Richard Lindsay, Indiana State Representative.

Seven area colleges besides Notre Dame were represented at the conference. The colleges represented include, Fort Wayne College, North Manchester, Indiana; Elkhart College, Elkhart, Indiana; Manchester College, North Manchester, Indiana; and Trine College, Angola, Indiana.

The next Indiana District Issues Conference will be held in March at Indianapolis. The Notre Dame chapter of the Circle K will be represented there, as well as at the International Convention to be held March 3-5, 1975.

In the near future the Notre Dame Circle K will visit the Family and Children's Home in Michigan, sponsor a paper recycling drive and work with local police officials to help area probation officers.

Anyone interested in joining the Notre Dame Circle K should call Tom Schnellenberger at 6161.

street from the Old Colony housing project to block busloads of black children being returned home.

McNellis also said that he and Tracey had seen a man sitting in his car and fled, with some whites, some of whom shouted, "There's a nigger!" He got out of his car and fled, with some whites in pursuit.

They cornered him on a flight of stairs and continued to beat his white 17-year-old from South Boston, suffered minor injuries near a subway station in South Boston, suffered minor injuries.

The police said that such information is important in following the discarded stereo for fingerprints but could not find any.

The burglars entered the locked house between 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. by breaking through a basement window, according to McNellis.

The detectives who investigated the burglary said that the South End police have been getting from one to two calls per day about burglaries from Notre Dame students in that area.

The detectives who investigated the burglary also said that McNellis had been a man sitting in a car parked in the alley behind their house two days before the burglary. They took down the license number and gave it to the police after the burglary.

The police told them that if they had called immediately they might have been able to prevent the burglary.

Gaining the support of more than 600 students, McNellis said that he believed Ford would support the idea if he was called to deal with the discarding of stereo equipment.

The police have been getting from one to two calls per day about burglaries from Notre Dame students in that area.

A police Commissioner Robert diGrazia ordered all bars and restaurants in Boston closed for the night. Officials said police fired at least two warning shots to help disperse the crowd, estimated at 600 by Police Capt. Arthur Cadigan.

The whites were gathering at 2 p.m. just as school was being let out. They stood across the street from the Old Colony housing project to block busloads of black children being returned home.

Two more off-campus Notre Dame students had their home burglars a day before their senior year stereo and a calculator worth $450 were stolen from the house of Dennis McNellis and Bob Tracey located on Cedar Street.

The burglars entered the locked house between 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. by breaking through a basement window, according to McNellis.

McNellis said the burglars apparently went to Tracey's room and took a cassette-recorder stereo and a turntable with track radio stereo system. They proceeded to McNellis' room, where they found another "more expensive" stereo. They apparently put down one of Tracey's stereo and took one of McNellis'.

The students reported the burglary to the South End Police Department. The police checked the recorded stereo for fingerprints but could not find any.

McNellis gave the serial number from his stereo to the detective. The police have been getting from one to two calls per day about burglaries from Notre Dame students in that area.

Butz urges grain exporters to use voluntary controls

By CHERYL ARVIDSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz announced a new system Monday requiring prior government approval for major sales of U.S. grain to foreign countries and hinted that export controls might be imposed if the voluntary system failed to work.

The voluntary reporting system — designed to make sure the domestic grain supply is not depleted by any unexpected surge of sales abroad — was detailed during a meeting between Agriculture Department officials, major grain exporters and other government agencies.

Grains covered initially under the new requirements included wheat, corn, sorghum, soybeans and soy bean oil. Butz said he hoped the new reporting system would guarantee exports of a manda tory wage, price, rent and profit controls.
Off-Campus: Time for a Change

In a period of three years, the number of off-campus students has increased steadily. As such, their needs have also increased. The University must begin to shoulder some responsibility for its off-campus students. Their attitude now is, at best, vague. At worst, it seems that they don't care at all.

Over those years, the off-campus students have acquired a very demanding status in comparison with his on-campus counterpart. Though off-campus students attend the same classes, suffer the same frustrations (and then some), and receive the same diploma, no compensation is made for the additional discomforts and inconveniences of off-campus life.

Now, for the first time in its history, Notre Dame has a solid percentage of students living off-campus. Recognition of this fact must be forthcoming from the University. They must begin to put some strong support behind these students.

The first step is expansion of the present off-campus office. Presently, Fr. Thomas Tallardia and his student assistant are doing the best possible job, considering the conditions they work under. But the office is understaffed, and any expansion of facilities is sadly needed. Unless this is done, the leverage that is needed to work effectively in other areas will be missing.

One of the primary areas to be investigated is off-campus housing. As it is now, the housing is, for the most part, sub-standard. Many homes are left unrepaired because the landlord knows he can get away with it when renting to students. It is a situation of classic exploitation, and the University needs to do something about it.

Through an expanded off-campus office, these landlords could be confronted, and given a choice between either improving the quality of their property or losing student tenants. As an option to the landlord, a low interest loan program could be offered by the University, for improvements on the property and which are not.

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

An expanded off-campus office would aid tremendously in the establishment of the proposed food co-op as well. Unless the University begins to take an interest in, and throw some aid behind, the co-op, its chances for survival are minimal.

Another area which needs investigation is the high crime rate in South Bend. This situation is a compound of all the problems plaguing off-campus students. Since they are in low-rent neighborhoods, the students are sitting ducks for robberies, vandalism, and other crimes, which are common to the area. Their high-priced possessions, such as TV's and stereos, are prime targets for easy thievery.

The South Bend police claim that they are doing everything possible in this area. The responsibility for action once again shifts back to the hands of the University.

One proposal that could be worked on is the development of an insurance plan, sponsored by the University in conjunction with an insurance company which would be designed to handle the type of problems which are common to the off-campus student.

Another proposal to be pursued is the establishment of a program such as the Hall-marked support program which was instituted in many halls last year.

In addition to immediate projects, it is time for the University to begin developing long-range plans for off-campus life. It is time to begin considering the prospect of the University acting as landlord. The large amount of land surrounding the University may provide an exceptional area for off-campus development.

The main problem with the University acting as a landlord is that of pricing. As with the plans for property improvement, co-operation between the University and the landlords must be stressed.

These ideas are meant only to emphasize a fact: the time has come for the University to consider fully the off-campus situation and begin to take strong, positive action towards showing support for its off-campus students.
WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congressional sources said Monday they are mystified why the administration apparently changed its mind last week and rejected a key part of compromise designed to ease emigration of Soviet Jews in return for better U.S.-Russian trade terms.

Sources said the breakdown in the compromise, if unresolved, would almost certainly block administration hopes of getting better trade status for the Soviet Union included in a trade reform bill the Senate is expected to pass after the congressional election recess.

Fran DeMarco continues popular dancing program

by Tom Brennan

Staff Reporter

Ballroom or touch dancing has gained a strong foothold at Notre Dame if the enthusiasm of Monday night's crowd is an accurate indication. The LaFortune Student Center was the place to be as eighty students learned the fun-damentals of dancing in a festive atmosphere.

Dance instructor Fran DeMarco is pleased with the great response her dancing lessons have gotten, because they fill, as she sees it, the cultural and social needs of the Notre Dame community. Touch dancing brings male and female students together, and according to Fran, that's the way it was meant to be.

Judging from the response at Monday's session everyone involved seemed to agree. The atmosphere is relaxed and every week a new dance step is taught. Fran hopes to have television coverage in the near future, e.g., a half hour television show. Since other universities have taken up ballroom dancing, the possibility of intercollegiate dance competition may become a reality.

So whether you want to become the scourge of Kubik's or enjoy a relaxing evening, the LaFortune ballroom is the place to be on Monday night.

Blood drive to continue

by Mauri Miller

Staff Reporter

Results of the newly-organized ND-SMC blood drive were described as "very good" after its first week.

Volunteers from Stanford and Grace Halls donated blood at the Central Blood Bank last Tuesday and Thursday.

Members of Fisher Hall will donate blood today. Cars will leave from the main circle for the bank at 9 a.m., 10:30, noon, 1:30 p.m., and 3 o'clock.

Those giving blood from Morrissey Hall will volunteer their time Thursday. Under the new system each hall is assigned a day to give blood.

All off-campus students can give blood anytime, as no special days have been designated for them.

NEW YORK (UPI) The chairman of the nation's largest beef company was found guilty of bribery conspiracy Monday but was set free without a fine or penalty by a judge who said he realized that to do business in New York, the company had to join "the corrupt system."

Currier J. Holman, co-founder and co-chairman of Iowa Beef Processors Inc., was given an unconditional discharge by Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Burton B. Roberts.

"I like you," Roberts told the 62-year-old defendant. "I like you as a man. You have been a victim of circumstances."

Holman's company was fined $7,000 on the charges of conspiring to bribe labor leaders and supermarket officials in order to introduce Iowa Beef's boxed-beef products into the lucrative New York market.

However, Roberts said, Holman and supermarket labor relations executive Moe Steinman had indeed formulated "a plan to bribe labor leaders and supermarket officials."

Prior to Robert's sentencing, Holman, in a quiet statement said "Judge, if I'm guilty - and you the observer set free by judge of the nation's largest beef company had to join "the corrupt system.""

"Moe Steinman was a shaddy character, if there ever was one," Roberts said. "He looked like a gangster in a grade 'B' movie."

But after IBP agreed to pay $1 million in payoffs and kickbacks was authorized by IBP, the judge said, because of IBP's dire financial condition and Holman's conviction that only an opening in New York could save the company from disaster.

"If IBP was to survive, it had to join the corrupt system here," Roberts said.

Ford ignores protest over Nixon pardon

BURLINGTON, V.T. (UPI) — President Ford encountered hundreds of jeering student demonstrators protesting his pardon of Richard Nixon Monday night when he flew to Vermont to launch a personal campaign blitz on behalf of Republican candidates in next month's elections.

The demonstrators were massed outside the University of Vermont in Burlington when Ford arrived. They shouted and waved signs as he entered the university gymnasium to speak at a $35-a-plate dinner.

The President did not appear to react to the protestors, and once inside the gymnasium, the mood changed dramatically. Ford received a two-minute standing ovation from the estimated 2,000 Republican faithful.

Ford joined the guests for dinner prior to his speech, which White House officials said might provide some clues to the anti-inflation program he will outline Tuesday in nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress.

"Nixon, Ford, what's the difference?" read one large sign carried by youths. "Jerry, you old ratler," read another.

"Pardon the innocent, not the powerful," said one placard, indicating the demonstrators' opposition to Ford's pardon for Nixon and his conditional amnesty program for Vietnam draft evaders and military deserters.

Local police estimated the crowd at about 1,000 in the area where the President's motorcade arrived on campus; it was not known how many actively participated in the demonstration.

The judge depicted Holman as an honest businessman whose zeal for introducing a revolutionary packaging concept which would save consumers 9 cents a pound on beef products made him to believe that dealing with extortionists and racketeers was the only way to do business in New York.

"Sadly, like a modern Dr. Faustus Currier J. Holman sold his soul to Moe Steinman," Roberts said. Steinman, a vice president for labor relations with the Dutch-Showell chain, with reputed organized crime connections, sold Holman on the idea that he could overcome the refusal by butchers' unions to handle IBP's boxed-beef.

"Moe Steinman was a shaddy character, if there ever was one," Roberts said. "He looked like a gangster in a grade 'B' movie."

But after IBP agreed to pay $1 million in payoffs and kickbacks was authorized by IBP, the judge said, because of IBP's dire financial condition and Holman's conviction that only an opening in New York could save the company from disaster.

"If IBP was to survive, it had to join the corrupt system here," Roberts said.

Tight I-H contest develops among undefeated teams

by John Higgins

Dillon coach Mike Bierley, who steered his squad to an unbeaten season and championship in fourth year last fall, realizes the pressure "cousin-leaguer" Ara Parseghian shoulders in defending a title.

Sounding like the Irish head man himself, the second-year Big Red boss said yesterday, "It's going to be a tremendous difficult situation. We've prepared for it since our unbeaten season and on the campus."

Capitalizing on two costly turnovers and utilizing a punishing defense, the Big Ten opened with a 26:0 blanking of Penn State. Fullback John O'Neill scrambled for 62 yards and 2 touchdowns, on a 62-yarder, and bullish fullback Craig Tigh added a 3-yard TD score. The defense, led by Mike Kemp, Carl Weyand, and Kevin Donohue, held the Panthers at bay and set up two scores with fumble recoveries.

Howard was the victim 22:0 with Tigh exploding for 64 yards and O'Neill chipped in with 56 and another two scores. Defensive end Bob Derdak was all over the field to frustrate the Howard offense, which wasn't given many opportunities anyway. Tigh's ground forces kept the ball the entire third period and allowed Dillon 6 plays in the second half, two of which resulted in turnovers. "Tough as ever" Morrissey was just in that two opening contests as it kept pace with rival Dillon in the South standing as well as in fewest points allowed, as the Cardinals did a great job of putting the ball in the air and edged fired-up Pangborn 6-12.

But the defense led by Mike White was the highlight of the game as it held Alumni to negative total yards and in turnovers. Squeezing in own middle linebacker Jim Dwyer tackled the Alumni QB in the end. The lone score against P came on the first series, with Notre quarterback Brian M tarielli hitting Bob Zwick on a 23- yard scoring toss. The victory proved a costly one, however, as Puntarelli suffered possible torn knee ligaments in the second quarter and may be lost for the year. Other Morrissie starters were banged up in the action and could be out for the next two to three weeks.

The surprisingly-strong Sorin team turned the tables on the Fighting Irish with a 38:14 porting of St. Joe's as it came out on top in three North Division.

The situation on the North Quad is still a mystery as the home team fights to maintain dogfight as is the Southern Division with its second unbeaten. Darkhorse contender Notre Dame gave notice of its might in a hard-fought 21-20 victory. The games played within one week, and since Notre Dame had the North standings with half its regular season complete.

The college football world is as electrified as the Big Ten, but the most electric is a blanket of Flanner 6-0 on a Larry Strickroth 2 yard TD run. Irish defense prevented Flanner from crossing into Holy Cross territory the entire year by Bille Delaney.

the goal line. Strickroth added his second touchdown of the year in a 14:8 win over Planner on a 56-yard blast up the middle on the game's first series, and Bob Kelly garnered the winner in a 70-yard sweep in the second period. The defense, headed byougard Tim Kwiecien, "We felt shocked by our spring schedule."
