Evaluation, promotion procedures discussed

by Marjorie Ir Staf Reporter

The Faculty Senate discussed last night the provost evaluation which is to be distributed to full-time faculty members on April 16. A motion concerning the implementation of the present vote.

Cushing stressed that this is an evaluation and not a poll or an evaluation of the provost than the visiting and part-time members are probably more able to provide an accurate sentiment is an amendment to the Faculty Affair Committee of the Board of Trustees. The motion to circulate the stated correspondence was defeated, with opposing members citing the fact that the report and evaluation was unanimously opposed after the Ad Hoc Committee's report into two separate reports before sending it to the Academic Council.

Another proposal which passed Senate approval concerned correspondence between the Senate and Fr. Burton on Faculty Senate reports. The vote was 22 for 2 opposed and 1 abstention to the motion to circulate the stated correspondence.

Additional amendments were proposed to amendments previously proposed by the Ad Hoc Committee on Procedures and Appointments and Promotions to rules stated in the Academic Council.

One motion proposed an amendment to the Ad Hoc Committee's report into two separate reports before sending it to the Academic Council for further amending. The motion was defeated, with opposing members citing the fact that the report and evaluation was unanimously opposed after the Ad Hoc Committee's report.

Facenda bill faces House

by Terry Kenny Editor-in-chief

The bill to limit the legal liability for colleges and universities in cases of underage drinking consumption of alcoholic beverages failed last night to reach the implementing provisions. The bill aschad be to come up for a vote at the Final House meeting last night.

The bill, drawn up with the assistance of the University Student Senate, was passed the Indiana Senate last week by a 49-1 margin. The bill now facing House consideration is an amended version of the Senate bill.

The House has amended the bill to provide that if 18 year-olds in Indiana be allowed to enter establishments that serve alcoholic beverages as long as they do not consume alcohol. Under current Indiana law, only persons over 21 are permitted to enter taverns and restaurants that serve alcohol.

If the House should pass the amended version of the bill, it will be sent to the Senate. If the Senate accepts the bill as amended, it will go directly to Governor Otis Bowen for his signature. If the Senate rejects the amendment, the disputed provisions will be worked out in House-Senate conference.

According to Facenda, Governor Bowen has indicated that he will sign the bill if it meets House approval. The bill, Senate Bill 392, is on the informal House agenda to be considered before the end of the session this month. It is being sponsored by Sen. Majority Leader Philip Gutman (R) and Minority Leader Thomas Tegue (D).

The bill was proposed after two cases in the Indiana State Supreme Court extended a broad interpretation of legal responsibility for underage drinking to persons who have knowledge of its existence.

Women reports attempted rape

by Katie Kerwin Staff Reporter

A Notre Dame woman reported that she was attacked near campus shortly before the weekend, but was not seriously harmed.

The woman, a graduate student, reported an attempted rape occurring last night at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 19. Accounts of the incident differed.

The victim stated she was walking home from Notre Dame campus towards the campus. Just before she reached Angela, a pick-up truck pulled up and a man jumped out and forced the victim into the truck.

She resisted, he would leave her alone and pulled away. She kicked at the door open and managed to slip to the back of the vehicle. The man then reached the stoplight at Angela, the driver signaled a right turn. When the girl pointed out that he was going the wrong way, he asked her if she could take her to the Library Circle instead and she assented.

Victim's account

Instead of driving to the Library Circle, however, he took try to Douglas and turned onto a road off of Douglas. He then said he had made a mistake and he would go back to the other way.

The victim then stalled the engine. At this point, she decided that things were getting out of hand and attempted to get off of the truck. The man grabbed her arm and she assented, he told her he was going to take her to the Library Circle and she assented.

According to the victim's story, he followed her and threw her down on the ground. He put his hands on her throat and said she thought he was going to choke her. All this time she was yelling and struggling and trying to fight him off.

During the struggle her jacket was ripped and she told him she was going to get sick. He threw her body on her throat far about a minute and then he got up, looking startled, she said.

The assailant apologized, saying he was very sorry and he didn't bother her anymore. He said he didn't know what hit him, but that he was sorry and would drive her back to campus.

She hesitated at first, refusing and saying she didn't want to go, but at last he convinced her that it would be all right. She went with him, partly because she didn't want to upset him and perhaps provoke another attack.

She waited until he got in and then got in the truck. They were sitting as far away from him as possible. She ride back to the campus with him, keeping the door next to her open, holding it shut with her hand, ready to get out if he moved towards her.

The victim said the man let her off, still apologizing, and she went back to her dorm and reported the incident to Notre Dame Security. She gave her account to both Security and the campus police.

Story conflicts with Security report

The next morning she again talked to a woman from Security and also looked at some pictures shown to her by the county police.

Security report

Arthur Pear, director of Notre Dame Security, reported last night the provost evaluation, described it as a matter of a man making "improper advances" to a Notre Dame student.

He said that a Notre Dame girl was hitch-hiking downtown South Bend and was picked up by a man in a pick-up truck. The man drove past the campus, Pear said, and pulled into a side road off of Douglas.

According to Pear, the man then "made improper advances," but he did not pursue her and the girl did not have to flag him off. The assailant supposedly told her that if she resisted, he would leave her alone. She resisted and the man apologized, offering to drive her back to campus, which he subsequently did. He then said that he was sorry, Pear reported.

Pears was very definite on the points that the girl was downtown when she got into the truck and that the man had not forced himself on her. When told of this account, the victim angrily stated that Pear's story was not the same as the account she had given Pears.

SPRING IS HERE, on South Bend's version of the college student's favorite season. Unfortunately baseball gloves and cleats will have to remain in the closet as umbrellas and boots seem more appropriate. Expect rain for 4 inches of late in the mid 50's. (Photo by Chris Smith)
Education programs to benefit Faculty receives research funding

The University of Notre Dame has accepted $322,871 in awards for ninety months to support individual faculty projects in research as well as innovative education programs, according to Robert G. Cavanaugh, Notre Dame vice-president for administrative affairs. Awards for research totaled $302,623 and included:

- $45,264 from the National Institutes of Health for a study of a new drug.
- $38,000 from the National Science Foundation (NSF) for study of fundamental particles.
- $18,000 from the Environmental Protection Agency for collection and assessment of submicron particulate matter.
- $12,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for a study of alteration of solubility of hydrocarbons by Dr. James P. Kahn, professor of chemical engineering, and Dr. Kraemer D. Luns, associate professor of chemical engineering.
- $19,000 from NSF for theoretical studies of nuclear structure and reactions by Drs. Eugene R. Marshallite and Paul E. Stanley, associate professors of physics.

Benefits recipients should notify Student Accounts

Notre Dame students who are receiving veterans' educational benefits and who intend to return for the fall semester or for summer school should notify the Student Accounts Office. Those attending summer school should notify Student Accounts during early fall and those returning for fall semester should notify Student Accounts before leaving for summer vacation in May or by mail before June 1.

Student Accounts needs to know the number of hours that will be taken, the address to which payments should be sent, and the expected date of graduation. Veterans who wait until the semester starts to apply for benefits could have wait to five to six weeks to receive payments.

Veterans should also know that due to the recent law passed by Congress they may be eligible for an extension of their educational benefits beyond the thirty-six-month maximum. This extension can be granted only to students who need the extra time to complete work on their bachelor's degree.

Veterans having academic questions are strongly encouraged to contact the Veterans' Benefits Office. The office is located in the Student Services Building, and the local veteran's representatives are available at 940-4311.

Viet Cong threaten to attack Saigon if US continues support

By the (UPI)—The Viet Cong said Wednesday Communist armed forces will push on to Saigon unless the United States ends its support for South Vietnam’s President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Nguyen Ba Tho, chief negotiator in Paris for the Viet Cong Provisional Revolutionary Government, told a news conference that if Thieu is replaced by a government willing to end the 1973 Paris peace agreement, the PRC will open talks immediately with the new Saigon administration on ending the war.

The Viet Cong said Tuesday that it would continue to participate in discussions on Saigon’s future, unless the United States ends "war and provocation" that would stop the communist offensive.

"If the Vietnamese people and our armed forces continue to sabotage the Paris peace accords, the South Vietnamese population and our armed forces will continue their fight." President Ford has ruled out any bombing by U.S. Air Force planes to assist the beleaguered South Vietnamese army against the advancing communist offensive, a spokesman said today.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters that Ford has no plans to resume the bombing operations which were abandoned in January, 1973, and noted "the law forbids them.

"You’ve heard the President say many times, he does not have any plans to do that because of his own Constitution and the requirements of the law," Nessen told reporters.

"The law is very clear," Nessen made the statement after reporters told him that Defense Secretary James Schlesinger at a news conference in Washington earlier today had raised the question of bombing open.

Third World Relief Fund

By Shawn Bransell Staff Reporter

Professor Robert Bodo, on behalf of the organizers of the Notre Dame Student’s World Relief Drive, stated Tuesday that cash and pledge contributions by faculty, staff and students in the drive totaled $13,999.90 as of the end of March.

The pledge drive, initiated in early February, has reached faculty and university employees to have contributions deducted from their paychecks. Lift faculty and 145 university employees have so far participated. These deductions, plus various cash donations, have amounted to this figure.

Four persons donated $100 or more. Thirty contributed between $50 and $99, and 36 gave between $20 and $49, making a total of 109 donors giving more than $50. Some faculty or university employees expressed disappointment at these relatively meager results, but hoped that a foundation had been established for a more substantial response in future.

According to the preferences indicated by the contributors, the contributions are to be distributed to these seven organizations at the following rates in percent:

- Catholic Relief Service 21
- Co-Workers of Mother Teresa 20
- OXFAM America 13
- UNICEF 11
- CARE 12
- Church World Service 11
- IFCO-HAINS 11

Contributions may still be made or pledge by the Personnel Department, and will be distributed by these percentages. Somepledges are not from dining hall collections and Pullman, Indiana and Athletics collections at basketball games have amounted to $3072.76 so far for this semester. This money will be distributed equally to the seven organizations instead of using the faculty’s percentages. A new account will be set up within the accounting department at Notre Dame this week.

The administrative cost of the pledge drive amounted to $238.36, which the University absorbed. The Student’s World Relief Drive requested their appreciation to Mr. Gar Marmontello for handling the administrative details.

Hotline is a ‘Brainstorm’

John Kenward
Staff Reporter

Cathy Falkenberg of 120 Breen Phlox has been awarded the Grand Prize for her idea of a campus hotline. The idea won the Operation Brainstorm contest.

Operation Brainstorm, an idea contest sponsored by the Ombudsmen Service which ran from February 27 to March 12, concluded with the announcement of 10 winners in each of the Social, Service, and Policy categories.

Falkenberg’s idea was awarded a Grand Prize for her idea of a Ombudsmen Advisory Board — all faculty-staff members of the Social, Service, and Policy categories. The Board would work in the service of the university. Falkenberg further suggested that possible psychologists or psychology majors work in the service of the university.

In the Social Category, Robert Wruble for his “Roommate Preference” idea that suggested using computer cards in matching roommates. The idea would include small but important personal distinctions as smokers and non-smokers and night owls. Second in the Social Category was John Meuleman and his “Pre-registration in the ACC or Stopen Center” idea which advised complete pre-registration in one of the buildings to avoid the bother of the campus-wide procuring of class cards.

In the Service Category, Robert Sweeney, Jr., took first place with his “Computer Dance” entry. Second place was awarded to Kathy Harvor for her “Skiing at the ACC” idea which would allow free skiing for all students as well as late night skiing and the issuance of skiing equipment.

Third prize was given to John J. Callahan for his “Dance Concerts” idea that would “make a dance more than a dance and make a concert more than a spectator event.”

In the Service Category first-place winner Joe Scott received a sleeping drive in the Northwest neighborhood tavern district to “improve relations between students and the families living in that neighborhood.” Scott also added that the drive could be worked up by a Student Government sponsored post-clean-up party or picnic.

Second in the contest was Thomas L. Curren for his idea that “quick beginning classes” be established at the beginning of each fall semester.

Riehle to study energy waste as campus fuel costs increase

by Michele Arrie
Staff Reporter

Fr. James Riehle has been appointed Director of Energy Conservation at Notre Dame and will be examining methods of reducing fuel costs on campus. Riehle stated, “The recent budget for fuel has increased from 1.5 million dollars last year to 2.5 million this year, which is a substantial increase for the university.”

The new director believes that “people are not aware of the high cost of fuel.” He further stated that, “even a 10 percent reduction in fuel costs would mean a 10,000 savings, which isn’t a small sum.”

Riehle also added that “reduce unnecessary lighting in university offices, laboratories, and classrooms.” He stated, “Although the campus power system is run efficiently, the three necessary elements of oil, electricity, and coal have increased in cost tremendously.”

Fr. Riehle saw the need in establishing a full-time and extensive committee to handle the problem of energy waste.” He stated Riehle. “The Energy Conservation Committee reduced fuel costs of 350,000 dollars in the past two years by eliminating unnecessary lighting, unplugging appliances in the dormitories, and turning off lights.”

Riehle added, “All heat was turned off in the dormitories during the Christmas vacation.”

Riehle cited the interest in fuel conservation on other university campuses around the country. He stated, “Purdue has done much work in this area and we will be examining its techniques in controlling energy waste along with other schools.”

A meeting is scheduled soon to bring the former Energy Conservation Director, Fr. James Flanagan and Riehle together to exchange ideas.

Flanagan’s improvements “resulted in the university meeting the fuel budget last year,” he said, but he foresees “the limitation of student use of electrical appliances in the dormitories.” If everyone does their part the reduction is very significant.”

Riehle added that “a person be appointed who is interested in serving on the committee in progress, but the committee itself/reduced fuel costs for a person who would devote most of his time to the planning for and achieving of energy conservation.”

It is with this in mind that I am appointing Reverend James F. Riehle, C.S.C., as Director of Energy Conservation. He will be holding his appointment as Director of Energy Conservation Building and I ask each one of you to cooperate fully with him.

It cannot be overlooked that any savings in energy will also save dollars in our fuel budget. You may not be aware of the fact that in the last two years, the cost of fuel increased over $1,000,000. In the last two years, the cost of fuel alone has increased over $1,000,000. That is, the fuel cost in our budget for 1973-74 will be more than $1,000,000 higher than that in the 1972-73 budget. This certainly speaks to the need of fuel conservation for both conservation of energy and also for the conservation of our funds.

We count on your complete cooperation with both the new Director and the Energy Conservation Committee.

With many thanks, I am very desirous of Notre Dame’s cardiac student body. (Rev.) Theodore M. Hehurgh, C.S.C.

After a short visit to Israel, it is hard to imagine that this is such a troubled area. The people appear calm and oblivious to the potential of war. Both Jews and Arabs go about their affairs with a business-like attitude. Soldiers, with machine guns nonchalantly slung around their shoulders, blend in with civilians on the streets and buses.

The land, even frontiers, seem peaceful. Mt. Hermon, within eyeshot of the Syrian army, has developed Israel's prime ski resort. Of course, a midnight stroll along the Lebanese border is not recommended, but the one-time trap for tourists is now a Paris. With few exceptions, only the sounds of Israeli Army Serge break the quiet.

By far, the greatest concern among the citizens of the fragile exclave of the Lebanon is the 'uncertainty' of what something they must live with daily. The monetary hemorrhage needed to pay for the soldiers, with machine guns nonchalantly slung around their shoulders, blends in with civilians on the streets and buses.

The Lebanese border is not recommended, looks of recent vintage. Even Jerusalem has hopes for better. The prosperous years were a great tradition of the populace, kibbutzim perhaps the most remarkable part of Israel or perhaps the world has to be the Old Quarter of Jerusalem. If one cannot feel hope for mankind here, then he never will. In this center for the three great religions, people of every conceivable belief and background, if not dancing arm-in-arm, at least co-exist peacefully, quite a feat considering the hardships that went not far away. With hundreds of walls of the Old City, the Jewish, Christian, and Arab quarters all display distinct перспективы, the one among the others as well. Orthodoxy is the main influence in the Jewish quarter. The men walk about in traditional garb: long black coats, rounded black hats, and balded hair and beards. The food here is strictly kosher. There are several synagogues, but the holiest are located on the edge of and outside the quarter. The Wall of the Old City, the remnant of an ancient temple, borders the Arab sector, and all access to the wall is under tight security. Worphippers face the wall, often touch it with their hands, saying their prayers in God. According to Hebrew tradition, men are separated from the women by a screen running from the bottom of this wall in this case. Outside the Old City walls stands the Tomb of David, containing many artifacts from the time of this great king.

When considering the Christian Quarter, one must always remember to divide this three since most everything is split between the Orthodoxies, Catholics, and Church of the Holy Sepulchre. The fourteen stations of Christ's journey through Jerusalem are all marked with churches, the most Be for the Sepulchre, containing the Calvary, the Anointing Stone, and a grotto where Jesus was placed within one hundred feet of each other, is also a triune atmosphere where the entrance space within the church is divided. The church is the only thing left from the old Anointing Stone, one for each religion. The Tomb is a two chambered structure; the larger, outer chamber is split three ways, the smaller, inside chamber is split two ways, the one is primarily Orthodox, the other is Catholic. The Calvaries lost this one.

A large, open-air market winds through the streets of the Arab Quarter, coming right up to the walls surrounding the Dome of the Rock. Much more variety is found here than in the tourist shops of the other sectors, because the natives themselves shop here, often in the long robes and beardly identified with Arab sheiks. The dome of the Dome is the most imposing monument in Jerusalem, covered with gold and impossible to miss in the sunlight. The dome covers the rock where Mohammad ascended to heaven, and is an masterpiece of artistic workshop. Unfortunately, its location inside Islamic complexes peace efforts, since the question of who should control the land underneath it becomes a very emotional problem.

Just outside the Dome another controversy has arisen over practice of Israel'sWX Baptistery, archaeology. In many places throughout the country the people have unearthed traces of past civilizations, particularly in the desert regions. Now, the religious groups are renewing their efforts inside walls of the Arab quarter, leaving the Arabs to claim that the area is being defaced. They have responded by forcing movement of the science and cultural committee of the U.N., further heightening uneasiness between the two sides.

Which ever way one feels about the current situation, admiration for Israel cannot be denied. Against long odds and many challenges they have carved themselves a home in the desert, and are working hard to preserve it. They feel the large Arab forces as their borders, dangerously awaiting another war. They persevere, however, and build on in the firm belief that God had meant this land to be their home, something they will never surrender.

Devine debuts today in opening football practice

by Bill Strick
Sports Editor

One of the head football coach Dan Devine is being indoctrinated to as he begins his tenure at Notre Dame is the weather. The first day of spring practice, Devine's first day at the helm, was delayed yesterday by what will undoubtedly not be the last spell of unfavorable weather, and the eagerly-awaited appearance is scheduled for this afternoon.

But whether or not the outlook is sunny for the new head coach depends on how you look at it. Though a good number of returnees return, 14 starters are gone, nine from the offense. The competition for starting berths in the vacated defensive backfield and line and the juggling of defensive assignments should make for an interesting month of football practice.

"I'm very excited about spring drills," says Devine. "We'll be doing some things different and we'll be smoothing in positions we have to work on for practice session is crucial for us."

Perhaps the most crucial task is replacing the departed offensive line. Former Tommies guard Al Mulock is gone at quarterback and experienced runners Al Robertson and Mike Johnson are also gone. Fifth year man Frank Anderson, who has another year of eligibility because of an injured sophomore season, is given the edge right now at quarterback even though senior Rick Stager and a host of talented sophomores will also be competing. Returning runners include Art Best, Mark McLane, Tom Parise, Russ Kornman, Jim Weiler and Terry Eurek.

All-American receiver Dan Donmelon will probably be replaced by senior Steve Niehaus. The rest of the offensive line will sport some new names, with guard Al Wujcik the only returning starter. Co-captain Ed Bauer, senior Joe Schick on his way back from an leg injury, and Ellen Moore, Cal Bucket and Vince Koen will try to fill the gap left by the graduation of experienced lineman like Steve Sylvester, Steve Neace, Mark Bremennan and Gerry DiNardo.

"Obviously we're going to have to completely rebuild the offense," says Devine. "We've lost our starting backfield and our three centers who started for three years. All-American receiver Peter Demome is also gone as are most of the interior line."

There is less void on the defense, though some excellent players have left. Most notable is the absence of star linemen Greg O'Keefe and Drew Mahalak. Tony Novakoff, Doug Becker and Joe Schick are all up at the top of the replacement list, while Tom Mlesiak, still at the edge of the middle linestopper.

The defensive line is a deep group, with spots already being filled on both the A and B teams. The B 's, with returning seniors Maurice Wright and Pete 'Stymie' Schreck and a host of talented sophomores will also be competing.

Reggie Barnett is the only starter graduating from the defensive backfield, but the starting backers are by no means set, and the scrambler for them should be interesting. Randy Harrison will probably be switched back to his natural tackle after a solid freshman season at free safety, with Jackandrus expected to occur between him and Derrick Mullen, Tom Lopianski, Tom Homann, and the Junior class will be competing for these spots.

B raging der three California contests

by Bob Kinzel

The Irish rugby team will travel just about anywhere to find the best in rugby competition. Notre Dame's squad flew out to sunny California for warm sun, but unfortunately for them, Colorado beer, and unfortunately for them.

The Notre Dame rugby 'A' side lost to California at Irvine 21-3. Before their West Coast trip the ruggers downs the local South Bend team 28-10 under the lights at Carrier Field on St. Pat's Day.

Scoring for ND were: Doug Mosier, Tony Mendina, John Frangiosa, and Rick Post, and leading runner Wayne Bullock are also gone.
