Dick Gregory warns of hunger rioting

Dick Gregory, humorist and civil rights activist, warned Americans of impending hunger rioting in an address Saturday night in Stepan Center. Gregory told the audience according to City Staff Reporter Jeffery Pecore, crop failures and crop situations will cause prices of rice and soybeans to climb drastically. This price rise, Gregory said, will drive millions of Americans to the food market and cause food riots in the streets.

The combination of inflation and recession has already caused many Americans to change eating habits and has forced them to turn away from meat and to inexpensive grains, Gregory explained.

At fault for this situation, the American government, Gregory claimed, he stated that the government should have begun programs two years ago to ration food.

The number one crisis in food, and the number two crisis is water," the activist stated. "They know that 98 percent of the nation’s water supply is a very easily accessible source of cancer.”

Government inaction would lead to nationwide food riots which will "televolve the nation in six days," Gregory noted. He added that the bill would be put forward to prepare for food riots and claimed that police officials in Los Angeles have been training for such disturbances for seven months.

Gregory observed that private attempts to hoard food will be useless. "You can run out and all the food you want, because you have some food and I don’t want yours isn’t safe."

The address was sponsored by the Notre Dame World Hunger Coalition and Gregory was introduced by Frank Garland, director of the Coalition.

In his introduction, Garland praised Gregory as a talented and determined friend of the poor, the hungry, oppressed and underprivileged of the world. "He gave himself wholeheartedly to the struggle for peace, to battle for civil rights, to articulate the defense of the defenseless unbalanced child at the altar of abortion, and for these several years lead the cause of getting help for the hungry." In his 75-minute informal speech, Gregory also attacked the Central Intelligence Agency and the rights of privacy in as much as they protected individuals.

Garland, who has publicly called for a reopening of the investigation into assassination of President Kennedy, charged the CIA with involvement in the investigation.

The activist appealed for audience support in helping to abolish the CIA. He suggested a nationwide crusade of fasting in which persons fast and about one hundred persons responded. (Continued on page 9)

SMC graduation plans may change

by Pat Coveny
Special Editor

The plans for St. Mary's senior class for an outdoor graduation may be cancelled. Of the 356 members of the senior class, only 250 have paid the seven dollar graduation fee. The others do not pay the seven dollars by Wednesday, the announcement will cancel the outdoor graduation," said Carol Collins, president of the senior class.

A door to door campaign will start Monday, April 28 to collect the money from those who have not paid. "It would not be fair to those who did pay, to pick up the tab of those who have not paid," noted Collins. The class officers are considering withholding announcements from the seniors who have not paid.

There is no truth to the rumor that proceeds from the Senior Picnic on Saturday, April 26, will be used to pay for the outdoor graduation. "A poll taken early in this semester indicated that 90 per cent of the senior class wanted an outdoor graduation but they have not come through with the money," said Collins. Perhaps those who have not paid should take the "responsibility for their friends into consideration," commented Collins.

In case of rain, or the event that the outdoor graduation is not paid for, graduation will be held in O'Loughlin Auditorium.

Graduation announcements for seniors will be distributed on Wednesday, April 30, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in room 179 LaFortune in the LaFortune ballroom.

Tickets for the Baccalaureate brunch will go on sale Thursday, May 1 in the dining hall. Tickets will be $2 for adults and $1.30 for children up to ten years of age.

For further information concerning the brunch, call Amy de la Torre, class president.

Students should watch for notices concerning caps and gowns and tickets for graduation.

Counseling available to victims of assault

The chairman of South Vietnam’s senate conceded Sunday his country’s government is in a difficult position but said he expected no “bloodbath” when the Communists take over.

“Don’t be beaten,” said Tran Van Lam. “We accept humiliation. This would allow the French to sign the peace agreement that was supposed to end the Vietnam war. As chairman of the senate he was next in line for the presidency of the national assembly went out side the country’s constitution Sunday to vote on the resignation of Gen. Duong Van “Big Minh.”

Lam was the supporter of President Nguyen Thieu, who refused to resign the presidency to Tran Van Hung. As such, Lam would not have been considered a Communist as a negotiator.

The report states that the chairman said, however, he did not anticipate Communist reprisals.

"Wielding air fares" may be the most misleading phrase searching for another way on the plane, according to this week’s U.S. News & World Report. Newest proposals to reduce rates by World Airways, Inc., &Continental, which competing airlines are mentioned. Costs vary with the time of flight, type of accommodations, and therefore it is hard to pinpoint a "reasonable" fare.

According to U.S. News, “Federal regulators have given some five airlines the go-ahead to experiment with a new type of low-cost, no-frills service to Miami-Los Angeles, $104.44" the article continues. “Under the cut rate arrangement, tickets must be picked up seven days in advance of the flight plus there’s a 5 per cent cancellation penalty of $1 or 10 per cent of the ticket price; and that can be very upsetting also,” said Limbert.

Then if the student feels the need to, he can make an appointment.” Limbert explained that the center is a professional “mental health unit,” not just for counseling. As stated in the description of the Psychological Services Center, the two exceptions to the counseling-service section outside help will be sought) includes cases when the student clearly intends to commit murder or suicide or when he is so psychotic that he is unable to manage without such help.” Limbert reiterated the fact that she is under no obligation of duty to report to the administration or security or the administration.

Limbert feels that it is up to the women to be aware of the perhaps small, but constant danger of being raped. "The Observer is doing a very good job with the prevention of rape and assault, and noted that administration is cooperating.

Has asked if she thought that more publicity could be a contributing factor to the number of assaults, by putting ideas into the minds of potential assailants. Limbert stated, "We’re here to help the women, the ideas are already in the minds. The newspaper doesn’t put them there."

Limbert stressed the need for increased lighting and security, and noted that administration is cooperating.

Restating her belief that the Psychological Services Center is there for students in times of need, Limbert more strongly expressed the idea that being informed and aware, "We’re here to help the students who seek services. But it’s being aware and prevention of rape and assault that’s important.

Two valedictorians named for May 19 graduation

The University of Notre Dame will have two valedictorians this year. Each will present a short talk at commencement ceremonies beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 18, in the Athletic and Convocation Center. The rare double appearance is due to the near-perfect 3.98 academic averages attained by both during the last four years. A mark of 4.0 is perfect.

Michael J. Wahonek of Ripon, Wis (128 Belleville St.), a government major, and William J. Kellner of Green Bay, Wis (120 Allard Ave.), chemistry major, will share the valedictorian honors. Another 18 students form Notre Dame’s four undergraduate colleges have cumulative averages in the area 1.9 or higher. Joining Wahonek as (top students in the College of Arts and Letters are Susan Fredergast, Box 186; Arizona, Ill., a history major, and Thomas A. Lillien of Palos Heights, Ill. (1632 Evergreen Ave.), majoring in mathematics.

Others from the College of Science, in addition to Kellner, are Barbara J. Anthony, South Bend Ind. (1782 Cleveland Rd.), a physics major, and Paul F. Angel, Columbus, Ohio, (142 W. Patterson), majoring in mathematics.

College of Business Administration seniors with top marks include Michael A. DeIr, St. Louis, Mo. (9032 Talbot Dr.), finance, William B. Larson, Dallas Texas (1973 Gatercrest), accounting, and Daniel J. Winkie, West Point, Iowa (92 Avenue D), accounting. Also according to this report, an employee of Engineering award winners are Dennis J. Committee to study ND-SMC relations

Joe Corpora, newly appointed C.O.A. 2nd year, announced plans for setting up a committee to study relationships between Notre Dame and St. Mary’s College. The committee will meet weekly so that there will be some communication between the two schools. Since no committee of this kind has existed recently, the jobs and responsibilities of the committee members are not yet known. But it will develop and grow according to need.

This committee will make requests that the two schools cooperate and participate in various activities including non-social ones. “There are several reasons for this. While each school has its own traditions and activities, there is plenty of room for more of a combined effort. School phonebooks should be combined; speakers could be jointly brought to campus. This way both schools will share the cost. I hope that sponsors of such events like the Sophomore Literary Festival will make offers so that one of the scheduled speakers during the festival can speak at O’Laughlin. Again, here both schools can help with the cost and benefit from the events and activities,” Corpora stated.

The committee will be composed of two administrators from Notre Dame and two from St. Mary’s. The two faculty members from each school and five students from each school.

St. Mary’s College South Bend Alumni Club will host a reception in Stapleton Lounge during which the community may meet Dr. William A. Hickey, acting president, and members of the faculty and administration. Programs and maps will be provided to all visitors as they arrive on campus.

Mitchell morale described as high despite problems

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Attorney General John Mitchell’s morale is high these days, despite his legal problems, because of his renewed acquaintance with wife Mary George Dean. Newspaper reports in its current issue.

“I’m more relaxed now than I have been in 10 years,” Mitchell, 61, was quoted as saying. For the past six months, Mitchell and Mrs. Dean have been frequent companions around Washington, Newsweek said.

“We’re just very good friends,” Mitchell said. “That’s the exact truth.” Mrs. Dean added. “We are very good friends.”

Mrs. Dean owns the Fairfield Hotel in Washington and manages its Sea Catch and Jockey Club restaurants. Mitch­ell and Mrs. Dean first met in the 1930s when he did legal work for her late husband, former Atomic Energy Commis­sion Chairman Gordon Dean, who died in a plane crash in 1958.

Mitchell is separated from his wife, Martha.

Reds destroy U.S. compound, penetrate Saigon outskirts

By KENNETH F. ENGLADE

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist commandos penetrated the northern outskirts of Saigon only three miles from downtown Sunday night and dug in yesterday near the compound of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The commando assault came a day after a Communist attack which destroyed a Viet Cong troops seized Bu Ria province, the 23rd province to fall in the current offensive, as Saigon of the current offensive.

Bui Hoa, and Long Binh bases, as well as other government positions within 5 miles of Saigon.

The commanding officer of the advance said the aircraft could be flown from Bien Hoa airbase to Saigon, including helicopters and heavily armed gunships, to keep the Americans out of the area.

Vietnamese security guards at the main entrance to the Tan Son Nhat complex tightened checks and turned away hundreds of people at the main gate who were trying to enter the base.

Officials said they were not sure how long the evacuation program would continue but indicated they would try to keep it going as long as possible.

The first signs of open panic began to show in Saigon itself. Crowds besieged the downtown headquarters of the Saigon police office Monday, placing their capital under siege.

Military sources said small groups of Viet Cong guerrillas were reported operating in the area at will inside the Saigon defense perimeter, six miles from the center of the city.

The Communist raiders broke through the perimeter easily to fire rockets at the city and attacked government positions four miles north of Saigon near Thu Duc district capital, a major military training center.

The perimeter rapidly shrank, President-designate Duong Van "Big Stick" Nhu's government determined, and plans to begin peace talks were abandoned.

According to political sources, Minh was to ask official Americans to leave the country quickly so he could attempt to negotiate peace with the Viet Cong.

Harper Situation

Dear Editor:

We appreciate the letter by Mr. Konopa, President of the Harper Heights and Neighbors Association. As printed, last Tuesday's Oberstar, but we think it lacks nuance. We have never received a specific invitation to discuss the rezoning strategy for the ordinance or considering its eventual impact. "Discouraging from the beginning would seem a bit ridiculous, if the ammendment weren't live. People living in a zone must have impact on zoning changes, but why shouldn't people of one region dictate changes for the whole city? Furthermore, the ordinance did not phase out student housing in "A" zones, but specifically referred to those presently exists. Thus, the passage of years will see a process of contraction of available facilities in these areas. The strict definition of family" presupposes the value of a region which necessarily be better upheld by families other than Notre Dame students. Substandard housing, lack of redress due to the absence of resources, and all of these things impact equally on your students and ours. Notre Dame has begun inspection of housing, provided legal and criminal prevention information, and prepared one of the best landlord-tenant laws in Indiana. We have met with the absentee landlords and have spoken of what would, and would not be acceptable for student housing. All of this was done through existing structures and great progress has been made.

The proponents of this measure, no matter how commendable their intentions may have been, did not use existing structures, but instead chose to present restrictive legislation. This legislation, in our opinion merely delays, but does not solve the problem for existing problems which are more effectively addressed in other ways.

We attended a meeting called by Mr. Parent on Tuesday night which focused on neighborhood problems, housing and enforcement provisions. All of these should have been thoroughly discussed prior to passage, and consideration of the HUD findings should have been included.

We disagree with the method chosen to address these pressing social problems. A much more positive approach might have been a revitalization of existing structures through public action, direct confrontation with the landlords, and a sincere effort to accommodate all the interests present in the area, rather than legislation executed to the benefit of a single (albeit majority) group.

A recent letter to the editor complained that one of the Hud's course evaluations was too harsh, and caused the professor of the course both pain and embarassment. As coordinator of the evaluations for the department, I feel it necessary to respond to the allegation that this evaluation was a "cheap shot," constituting a personal insult to the professor, and an inaccurate grade to students.

As I did not write the evaluations, and as I have never taken any courses from the professor in question, I cannot personally vouch for the validity of the evaluation. Yet because the remarks included in the evaluation were especially poignant, the assessment was first checked with several other former and present students of the professor before it was published.

Thus the evaluation was not written by a "vindictive" professor but in the vein of anonymity to attack the professor of the course. Indeed, it is highly unlikely that the evaluator of personal vindictiveness. The Scholastic's evaluations do not question the integrity nor the honesty of the professors - they only attempt to gauge a professor's relative efficiency in the classroom, while also informing prospective students of course requirements.

That a student might disagree with a published evaluation is unfortunate, but hopefully inevitable. Especially if evaluations are not to degenerate into wishy-washy pan the back teeth, unfortunately that the problem is in the teaching of evaluation. In the case of students.

Do you see it as a vicious circle as Pleasants says, but perhaps a main reason for it continuing. With a more liberalized evaluation system students would have to learn, as most personal learning experiences are, on their own to put the right perspective on things. A remarkable improvement both personalized and community wise would be a main benefit. Students would learn their own lifestyle instead of being imposed on them as N.D. courses do try to do. Tell me how to live and I won't have to think about that's what it seems to me. Some might think Pleasants is adding in our decision making. I do not see much, too, the point of conditioning us. What about after leaving college? What will we find and condition us then? We need our decisions of the past for a learning experience, for future decisions, whether the old one be wrong or right. Let me decide on my lifestyle and I'll be more confident in myself.

Pleasants and others from making our own decisions and imposing a lifestyle on us. The benefits from your impression can be seen everyday in the Oberstar. We have heard in the dining halls and unfortunately on the porches of many O.C female houses.

There is a memorable line in The Rock by T.S. Eliot. It asks: "Where is the life we have lost in living?"

While we should be willing to grant that Eliot's question is an important one, we also must recognize that the basic Christian message reaches us. Jesus moves in to the lives of each of us wherever they may be. That's what happens to Mary Vecchio, Mary of the gospel, who was dragged into the center of the crowd before Jesus and accused of the crime of adultery. Mary Vecchio was on trial and uncertain death, but he says about that: 'That's what he says about letting him go free.' That's what he means by the sentence: 'Jesus moves in to the lives of each of us wherever they may be.'

Approval expected for evacuation bill

The Senate is expected to approve the evacuation bill, which would allow the President to order the departure of American troops from Vietnam. The measure is specific and would authorize the President to withdraw American military forces from Vietnam. The Senate has already approved similar measures, and the House is expected to follow suit. The measure does not require a vote, as it is expected to pass easily. The Senate is scheduled to consider the bill on Tuesday, and it is expected to win approval by a wide margin.

Degrees to be awarded ceremony

A total of 1,699 students at the University of Notre Dame, including 1,300 undergraduates, are candidates for degrees at the May 18 commencement ceremonies on the campus. Among the post-baccalaureate degree candidates are 110 doctoral candidates and 120 seeking the Jurs Doctor degree from the Law School.

One third of the candidates for the Master's degree, 40 out of 116, are women. A total of 196 women women or 10 per cent of this year's graduating class are women.

Included in the undergraduate degrees are 466 candidates from the College of Arts and Letters, 401 from Business Administration, 277 from Science and 169 from Engineering. There are 71 candidates for master's degree in Business Administration, including six women. The total of 1,699 in the 1975 class compares with 2,216 last year, 2,096 in 1974, and 1,869 in 1973. There were 1,678 undergraduate degrees awarded last year, 292 master's and 136 doctoral degrees.

$177 million to pay evacuation costs and $150 million for Vietnamese refugee relief. The House is expected to take a final vote Tuesday, sending the bill to the White House for the President's signature.

The measure's key provision is specific authorization to use troops, if necessary, to evacuate Americans and such South Vietnamese as can be accommodated. Preference is given to those who run a "high risk" of Communist reprisal for having associated with the U.S. presence there.

Congress believes the bill's language would prevent reinvigoration of U.S. troops in Vietnam fighting. The measure orders Ford to report to Congress just how the troops are being used and Congress reserves the right to disapprove the use and order the troops back out of Vietnam.

Although the House took 15 consecutive hours to pass its version of the aid bill, the compromise agreement is expected to win easy approval. Under House rules, debate on the conference bill is limited to one hour. No amendments can be offered so it will be an up or down vote.

The only other major business before Congress this week is adoption of proposed federal spending limits for the new 1976 fiscal year that starts July 1. Acting under a 1974 law, Congress will for the first time attempt to draft a budget of its own, a province traditionally left to Presidents.

The Senate begins work Tuesday on a budget resolution which does not require, that spending be held to $360 billion, 11.3 billion more than Ford has proposed. The House opens its budget debate Wednesday on a resolution proposing, but also not requiring, a spending limit of $308.2 billion, 13.1 billion more than the other piece of legislation passed by the Senate. The separate House and Senate budget resolutions would have to be resolved in a conference committee like any other piece of legislation passed in differing forms by the two bodies.

The budget exercise is in the form of guidelines for the Congress in the 1976 fiscal year, but starting next year, when the fiscal 1977 budget is up, any spending limit finally determined by the House and Senate would be mandatory.

Electric shock that stuns

Alternative to guns invented

DETOIT (UPI) — Residents of crime-ridden cities may soon see a new way to protect themselves with a less lethal weapon that shoots out harbed hooks like an electric harpoon.

The hooksrap an assailant with an electrical shock that is supposed to stun rather than harm.

By Syracuse physician

New morality termed destructive

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ten years as attending physician at Syracuse University's health center has led Dr. Robert J. Collins to one conclusion: the "new morality" is a destructive force.

"It ignores history, it denies the physical and mental composition of human beings, it is intolerant, exploitative and is oriented toward intercourse, not love," Collins said in an article in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Ten years of listening to young women at a large Eastern university have made me aware of the sexual confusion of children of a generation that either misunderstood or ignored sexuality and had little wisdom to pass on to its self-liberated children."

Collins, now medical director of the Loretto Geriatric Center in Syracuse, explained: "The simplicity of the male anatomy and its operation, he said, suggest that in a man, sex can be an activity apart from his whole being — a drive related to the organs themselves.

In a woman, however, a relationship is engulved in romanticism and trying to find and express her total feelings for her partner.

"Women love only in depth and with commitment to the partner," he said. "To be happy, they must have trust in their partner — no casual affair that is collar-centered gives this."

"Anticipating love and happiness, students rush for the quick kill, the Taser, as Collins put it, "the first alternative to the gun", sells for $199.50. It was invented by John Cover, a California aerospace engineer who named it for the initials of the words "Tom Swift and his electric rifle."

The Taser resembles a flashlight. It is nine inches long, weighs a little over one pound and works on a rechargeable battery.

When it is fired, a small gunpowder charge forces tiny wires outward and hooks on the end of the wires prick the victim's skin in less than a twentieth of a second.

The weapon sends out a 50,000-volt charge that can be continued or renewed by pressing the trigger. The hooks also will pierce up to 1½ inches of clothing.

The wires and hooks are contained in cartridges that slip into the front of the weapon. The cartridges cost $10 each and are not reusable.

Rank said the victim reacts the same way as if he grabbed a live electric wire — the shock causes a freeze-up of muscles.

"Recovery takes about three minutes."

The weapon is marketed by a subsidiary of Advanced Chemical Technology of California. Alvin Simon, president of the firm, said the Taser has been tested on actual human subjects and the victims suffered no permanent ill effects.

"It isn't a very good offensive weapon," Simon said. "You're not going to hold up a liquor store with a Taser. It's value is mostly in the surprise.

One drawback to the weapon is the length of the wires — only 10 feet. To effectively stun an assailant, the Taser shooter must within that range.

But Bank thinks it's a more of a momentary harm versus permanent injury or death.

Gregory warns of rioting

Throughout his speech, Gregory urged blacks to begin to use their political powers more effectively and to direct these powers toward social change.

Gregory also spoke out strongly against abortion.

Gregory said any country which legalizes abortion has a "death syndrome," he attacked the claims of the population as a myth, and noted that the world hunger problem is not caused by population increases.

According to Gregory, over ten million tons of grain, sixty percent of India's grain production, is eaten by rodents each year. He said the hunger problem is being exploited by persons who wish to force population control on underdeveloped countries.

Government officials who are Africans who submit to sterilization are given free radios. The irony of this promise, Gregory said, is that there are no radio stations in Africa.

Abortion is used in America for the purpose of "racial genocide," Gregory charged. He observed that there are over one hundred abortion clinics in Chicago neighborhoods capable of performing 50,000 abortions on black women each year.

A strong supporter of women's rights, Gregory stated that women who have abortions or use contraceptives cannot truly be liberated. These are the products of a male-dominated society, he said.

After the lecture, Gregory accepted a Circle of Life bracelet from Joe Corpora and Pat Cahill, Notre Dame and St. Joseph County Right to Life Organizations.

Report from America: LSD and Kojak

Stevenson, Wash. (UPI) — Winds to 70 miles per hour, flames from 60-foot "whi-ent" smoke, "Kojaq" Sunday drive rescue teams back down icy Mt. St. Helen's, where they had been searching for six hikers missing in a spring avalanche.

Three students were reported killed. It was Saturday in the avalanche when spring snow, balanced on "ball bearing" type crystals, cracked down from the 9,677-foot peak into the 29-person party seven miles from the six of the hikers away.

A spokesperson for the Skamania County Sheriff's Office said authorities at the scene confirmed that all of the hikers died in the mishap at the 4,000-foot level and three others were missing.

Names of the victims were withheld pending positive identification and notification of relatives.

The mishap followed only a few hours an avalanche on nearby Mt. Hood, in Oregon, that killed Sallie Hee, 28, Curwella, Wash., and an oceanography instructor at Oregon State University, who was leading a group of Marzamas Club members down the north face of the mountain when the avalanche broke loose.

The mountain peaks are on each side of the Washington-Oregon state line and on a clear day the hikers could see the gable-topped buildings in nearby Portland.

A Forest Service spokesperson said three feet of snow fell in the last few days and "the ground crystals were broken down like ball bearings." The weight of hikers or even the wind could trigger avalanches under such conditions, he said.

Brian P. O'Leary, 23, Seattle, Wash., and John R. McClaffin, 27, Kent, Wash., were among the hikers caught by the avalanche. O'Leary was treated for a sprained ankle and chest bruises and McClaffin received treatment for facial lacerations. "He was buried completely," said Mrs. Patrick O'Leary, Brian's mother, who talked to him by telephone. "They pulled him right out in his sleeping bag."

"His watch was broken. The hands were crushed at 2:20 p.m. by the force of the avalanche."

"He said he was one of the lucky ones. He said they can only hope and pray about the others."

It was the second time her son. a North Seattle Community College student, survived a mountain mishap. Mrs. O'Leary said two years ago Brian was trapped by a blizzard on Mt. Hood with a couple of other climbers. They were eventually rescued.

The survey found five general areas of sex bias and stereotyping in therapy -- the tutelage of traditional sex roles, the downwarding of expectations.
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republic of China on Taiwan will trust the United States to live up to its mutual defense commitments despite serious American policy setbacks in Southeast Asia, Ambassador Chen said Sunday.

"Obviously, we, like everyone else, are watching," he said, not added.

"Promises made, commitments undertaken by a government are as valid as they are concerned to keep. We have no reason to question the validity of your commitment."

He noted the United States and Taiwan have been allies for many years under a mutual defense treaty signed in 1954 and "during the last two or three years your president and secretary of state assured us and re assured us that the United States stands by our treaty commitment with us in joint defense."

Chen, a Kiao-chi born Chiang, a 1950 graduate of the University of Missouri and ambassador since 1971, made his remarks in a radio interview (UPI-Audio's Washington Window).

Chen, who once was secre tary to the late President Chiang Kai-shek, predicted that his last death and the events in Southeast Asia will have no effect on its U.S. relations with the Republic.

"We respect any changes in our relationships," he said.

"The relationship is based on our mutual concept of or understand ing of what constitutes our common political theory. The United States has a fine record of its commitments in its history and we do not think that ours will be the first exception to that rule."

Chen said he does not believe there were any secret commit ments made by the United States to South Vietnam after the withdrawal of U.S. forces and therefore none were broken.

But he said he recognizes that when the United States initiated contacts with Peking, it agreed that the U.S. would gradually remove all its forces from Taiwan.

"This would not affect America's mutual defense agreement or jeopardize Taiwan's defense," Chen said.

At present, some 4,000 U.S. servicemen, mostly Air Force, remain in Taiwan all on a scaling down from a high of some 7,000 in recent years. "It is not whether you have tr spe on the scene," Chen said. "It is whether you have the will to use the force. You (the United States) have bases in Okinawa, you have bases in Japan and you have bases in the Philippines. It's really your prepared ness, your readiness to use it, you will in use to it to back up your commitment."

The fourth and final scrimmage before this weekend’s Blue-Gold game was held Saturday in the Notre Dame Stadium, and though the offense was hot-and-cold, there were some very impressive individual performances.

It was the first offense vs. the second defense, and the second offense vs. the first defense for four 15-minute quarters, and after a close struggle the first offense emerged with a 27-17 advantage on a 22 yard Dave Reeve field goal with 21 seconds left on the clock.

Though two of the day’s four touchdowns were scored on pass plays, they were the result of spectacular after-the-catch runs and overall it was individual running and blocking that proved to be the highlight of the day. Both the first and second offenses hit cold spots and stalled at times, but all six running backs on both teams were impressive in their play.

Halfbacks Russ Kornman and Mark McInerney of the first team and Steve Schmitz and John Rufo of the second often broke long gainers on slants and sweeps, while starting fullback Art Best and his second team counterparts were successful up the middle. When the offenses did stall it was because of some aggressive play by both defensive lines. Jeff Weston and Steve Niehaus had good days for the first ‘D’, as did reserves John Dubenetzky and Ken Dike. The secondary units held the passing game pretty much in check, with short V-flares passes and screen checks being the most suc- cessful aerials of the day.

The first offense opened the scoring early after John Dubenetzky intercepted a Joe Montana pass on the second play of the afternoon. The first ‘O’ took over on the 22 and drove down to the 3yd line on the running of Russ Kornman and Art Best. Best plunged to the 2 for a first down, and Mark McInerney swept around the right end for the score. Both teams traded punts for the next couple of sets of downs as the defenses tightened up, but after a penalty put the first defense back on their own 8yd line, McInerney fumbled on a draw play and the second team recovered at the 4. Steve Orsini fought his way to the 1 in the second great and second effort, and then scored on the next play. The extra point tied the squads at 7 apiece.

The first ‘O’ struck back quickly in the very next play. QB Rick Slatter scrambled from the pocket and hit wide receiver Ted Burgmeier on the right sideline at the 45yd line. Burgmeier raced across the field and outran everyone down in the field to score the first touchdown of the afternoon. McInerney scored the first score of the day.

The Irish started slowy, but came back in the second 50yd meters of the race to finish less than a second behind the Wichita boat, with a time of 4:56.9 while Nebraska finished third with 5:03.3.
