Over Two Thousand alumni and their wives will arrive on Campus today, to join in Reunion '75. Beer tents will dot the quads, events ranging from a seminar on "Changing Values in Marriage Today" to a Reunion Mass for all classes will be held, and a pleasant time is guaranteed for all. Story on page five.

Notre Dame held its One Hundred and Thirtieth Commencement exercises, turning out a whole new batch of Alumni, on May 18th. Highlights of the ceremony were an address by Alan J. Pifer (claiming that "in loco parentis" was "gone today and properly so") and a valedictory address shared by two students. Story and pictures on Page Six.

A fire gutted three rooms of the Sociology Department in O'Shaughnessy Hall on May Twentieth. Two secretaries who were working in the office at the time have described the effort of the Notre Dame Fire Department "A Comedy of Errors." Story on Page Three.

A parietals raid in Cavanaugh Hall on May Tenth cost two seniors Two Hundred and Fifty dollars, which they will have to donate to the World Hunger Fund, and three days work on the University grounds crew. The students have accused the rector of the hall of being "selective" in his choice of rooms investigated for violation. The rector claims that "I didn't know anything when I was checking those rooms." Story on page four.

One of the CIA's newest lines of business is selling tickets for rock concerts, according to the latest issue of Rolling Stone magazine.

Employees at the CIA's Langley, Virginia headquarters can take advantage of Washington's unique fringe benefits by buying their tickets at a top-secret Ticketron outlet administered by the CIA's employee activity association.

An internal Ticketron memo gives instructions that there is to be no publicity about the CIA outlet, or any similar one administered by the national security agency's civilian welfare fund at the Fort George Meade, Maryland office.

"The constant motion is causing severe damage to their spines and thus an upsurge in headaches." - University of Michigan researchers who studied 23 occupations across America have reported that a boring job can be the worst health hazard a worker faces.

Job dissatisfaction, according to the report, turns to unhealthy strain, which manifests itself in the form of anxiety, depression, tension, boredom and worry.

Job stress also includes work that is too hard, too complex, or produces a situation where the worker does not know what is expected of him.

The security industry, always on the alert for new elements in crime prevention, has developed these devices:

Fire erupts in O'Shaughnessy

by Andy Praschak
Associate Editor

A fire erupted on the third floor of O'Shaughnessy Hall on May twentieth, starting around ten o'clock in the morning according to Brother Borromeo, Fire Chief of the Notre Dame Fire Department. The fire, started around ten o'clock in the morning and was confined to the three rooms of the Sociology Department. "No serious injuries or loss of extremely valuable papers occurred," said Borromeo.

While Borromeo contends that the fire was started because a secretary replaced a burnt out 20amp fuse with a 30amp one, the two secretaries involved claimed that they had been mileage peculiar odors from the air conditioner prior to the incident. "It was a really hot day and all the air conditioners were on, probably causing an overload in the wiring," said Loretta Budzinski, one of the secretaries.

Borromeo explained that the Fire Station first learned of the fire when an alarm was called in over the telephone. However, Florence Lawrence, the other secretary involved, claims that fire alarms in O'Shaughnessy were pulled, with no warning buzzer or bell being sounded.

"It was then that we finally found the 6600 number for the fire department and called it," Lawrence said. She went on to explain that after they called, the number they waited and waited while the fire got bigger and bigger. Budzinski placed the arrival of the fire trucks at about fifteen minutes after the call while Lawrence said her guess would be about ten minutes. "They explained that they, at first assumed this was just another false alarm, not unlike the many other they receive every day," said Budzinski.

Describing the scene following the arrival of the Notre Dame fire department, both secretaries agreed it was a "Comedy of Errors." When they first arrived it seemed like the Notre Dame firemen just ambled up the stairs to the third floor, according to Budzinski. "They came up to the third floor, decided it was too dark in the room, went back to get a flashlight and upon returning to the fire saw that it was too big for them to put out," said Lawrence.

Borromeo explained that the Notre Dame fire department was able to put out most of the fire with one of their trucks. However, two South Bend engines, a ladder truck and the rescue squad were present at the scene. Budzinski and Lawrence feel confident that they would have been able to extinguish the fire themselves when it first started but they were properly trained to use the extinguishers provided in O'Shaughnessy Hall. "I've been working at Notre Dame for twenty-two years and I have never once been given any type of instructions to follow in the event of the fire," complained Budzinski. Lawrence, who has been employed at Notre Dame for thirteen years explained that at least some type of fire drill should be done once in a while. "We are really lucky that this happened during the summer and the lower two floors were not filled with students, as it would have been during the school year," she said.

Lawrence also noted that everyone can be thankful that O'Shaughnessy is one of the few buildings that has fire walls on it. "Next time we'll know to shut the doors between the rooms," she said. "However, it is unfortunate that we are forced to learn this type of thing through experience," she added.

Lawrence also revealed that a test taken after the fire confirmed her suspicions that an overload was coming into O'Shaughnessy Hall. She explained that she was told by some workmen cleaning up after the fire that if this type of thing was ever going to happen again it would be in Holy Cross Hall (An undergraduate dorm) because of the faulty wiring system in that building.

"After the fire was completely extinguished, they had to go and poke out all of our windows," said Lawrence. "I don't know why they have to do that but firemen always seem to want to poke out the windows," she said.

Budzinski and Lawrence explained that in the event of another fire they know exactly what to do. "I hope the Notre Dame fire department and call directly to the one in South Bend," they said confidently.

Parietal controversy rages

by Fred Graver
Editor-In-Chief

Two seniors were caught violating parietals in Cageauan Hall on May 12, the day before graduation, by Father Matthew Miceli, The Dean of Students.

The students claim that Fr. Miceli was "selective" in his decision to enter certain rooms to check for drug use, and had reported him to the Dean of Students at one time, according to an R.A. in the hall.

The points of the case, as stated to the seniors by Dean of Students John Macheca, said that Fr. Miceli, "knocked, didn't hear anything, entered saw the student and a girl under the covers, and it was at least evident that you had no top on."

The student claims that Fr. Miceli did not knock, and the first sign he had that there was anyone about to enter the room was the rattling of the key chain outside the door. "None of that is true. I didn't know they were in there," said one student involved in the case.

Fr. Miceli discovered on the second day of work on the grounds crew, the two students were given letters from Dean Macheca, informing them that all of their belongings were to be removed that afternoon, and that they could never return to Cavanaugh.

One of the seniors claims that the decision to remove the two students totally was Fr. Miceli's. "Macheca gave us every break that he could," said, "I was thinking about his position as an administrator, and the fact that we broke his rules."

When contacted for comment on the case, Fr. Miceli replied "I don't want to talk about that just now. There are some things that are still pending. I don't want to put anything in the paper about this."}

with college.

Last year, 90,000 young people like yourself earned college credits in the Army.

They attended classes on post. They studied at night schools and universities. And they took courses through our various correspondence programs. And they paid for up to 75% of their tuition costs.

And after your enlistment's over, you're entitled to 36 months financial assistance at colleges throughout the country.

Our educational benefits are in addition to the job you receive, the salary you'll earn, and the travel opportunities you'll have.

If you'd like to find out more about all the educational benefits the Army has to offer, see or call your local Army Representative.

Sister Marita's School

The five children ranged in age from 7 to 10. They sat at small tables in the library, a room containing a few chairs, a few tables, and an overwhelming number of books on shelves.

All five were first-grade failures. They were reading books written for sixth graders. Occasionally the teacher interrupted the reading to ask a question. From the answer, it was clear that the children understood what they were reading. Meanwhile, at one end of the corridor outside the library, a group of eight youngsters who had just come from a spelling class were arranging themselves on the floor in semi-circle around Julie Rupp, a teacher's aide and herself a student at Indiana University at South Bend. Like the students in the library, these youngsters had all "flunked" first grade.

They took a disorderly but enthusiastic vote on which book they wanted to read. "Tar Baby," they said, and soon they were ready to follow, in their own copies of the book, the teacher's reading of the B'rue Rabbit tale.

"Follow along," said Julie. "If you don't find the words, don't worry; I'll tell you when to turn the page."

The school is formally known as the Primary Day School but is more often called Sister Marita's School. Located on the second floor of a building at 1034 W. Thomas St. on South Bend's west side, it has 24 pupils. One of the admission requirements is academic failure in the first grade at ordinary school. Sister Marita is no ordinary school, and Julie Rupp is no ordinary teacher's aide. She is not, for one thing, working toward a degree in education. She is an IUSB senior in psychology who hopes to complete a bachelor's degree next December.

Sister Marita's is no ordinary school, and Julie Rupp is no ordinary teacher's aide. She is not, for one thing, working toward a degree in education.

The Primary Day School has been functioning in South Bend for seven years. It is currently funded through Model Cities, and it has enjoyed some United Way support as well. Private donations also help keep it going. Children have no re-entry problems when they miss a day of school. They are prodded to try harder, and each success is reinforced by praise.

The curriculum at Sister Marita's stresses the relationship between work and classroom which the program is designed to support. "The point is not simply to find a student a job, but to find a job which fits into the student's academic and course goals — a job that will let the student test classroom theory in the real world and, at the same time, reinforce the validity of what the student is learning at IUSB."

Julie Rupp thinks her job fits that concept nicely. "I can use what I'm doing at Sister Marita's in my IUSB course work. Everything I'm learning as a psychology major comes together in the job; the classroom and the job experience really relate."

That's the point of the Professional Practice Program. It operates on the sound theory that the classroom and the job can be equally valid learning experiences.

"This is a relatively new program at IUSB, but student interest in it has been gratifying," says Oppenheimer. "For students who have not yet explored what the program offers, now is the time to make arrangements for a professional practice experience in the summer or fall."

Some students, like Julie Rupp, add to academic credit for their work experience by doing reports, papers and other assignments under the supervision of an IUSB faculty member.

To most students, however, the real reward is neither the pay they get nor the college credit, but the satisfaction of putting their education to work in the real world.
Williams to publish IUSB newspaper
IUSB's newspaper, The PREFERENCES, will have a consulting publisher starting with the 1975-76 academic year.

Thomas Williams, National and Foreign News editor of the South Bend Tribune, will be the first publisher in IUSB's history.

Williams will have three main duties as publisher of the PREFERENCES:
1) He will carry the responsibilities of the paper except for editorial policies and other related editorial functions.
2) He will provide for one day a week on the job and be available for counseling of the paper activities at any time.
3) He will critique (weekly) the editorial product of student efforts, giving professional guidance and feedback which will help make journalism a learning experience for everyone on the PREFERENCES staff.

Williams has worked at the South Bend Tribune for almost seven years. During that time, he has worked as a police and court reporter, a copy and special editions editor, and now he is the National News editor. He knows all of the fundamental and demanding tasks of a newspaper.

Williams teaches Mass Communications at IUSB. He has written and lectured on the phenomenon of New Journalism (Marshall McLuhan) and electronic media, which he believes are changing the atmosphere of the environment around society.

Williams will be one of the featured lecturers in the South Bend Tribune Writer's Conference, June 23-27, 1975 at IUSB. He will be teaching the article writing workshop and will have a seminar on Mass Communications.

IUSB to hold Conference
Indiana University at South Bend will hold its 1975 South Bend Writer's Conference the week of June 23 through 27.

Four workshops will be offered: in poetry, fiction, article writing, and writing for children. Each workshop will be led by an established writer with experience as an editor or teacher. The workshop will meet daily for discussions, lectures, and individual consultations.

Also planned in connection with the conference is a seminar entitled "Electronic Communication: The Information Overload," which will examine the impact of electronic communication media on society.

Dr. Tom R. VanderVen, director of the conference, said admission to each workshop is limited to 20 participants. Applicants for the conference must submit manuscripts "which show promise of a developing competence in writing," he said. The manuscripts should be mailed to Dr. VanderVen at IUSB by June 13.

Students who want to enroll in the workshops for IUSB credit can do so. They will be assessed normal university fee costs in addition to other conference charges.

String quartet to reside at IUSB
The International String Quartet, consisting of four talented musicians from three continents, will be in residence at Indiana University at South Bend beginning in 1975-76. It was announced today by Robert W. Demaree, Jr., chairman of the IUSB division of music.

The four two-violinists, a violist and a cellist - came from Indiana University at Bloomington and have taught on the School of Music faculty there. At IUSB, they will teach string students and classes as well as offering public performances and playing with various area musical organizations.

"The appointment of a resident string quartet of this caliber," said Demaree, "signs IUSB's commitment to the development of an editorial policy and other related editorial functions.

The appointment of a resident string quartet of this caliber," said Demaree, "signs IUSB's commitment to the development of an orchestra and chamber-music program of first rank."

Members of the quartet are Charles Kado, Machie Koide, James Van Valkenburg and Lutz Rath.

The International String Quartet has given frequent performances in the Midwest and throughout the United States. A critic recently called their playing "...rich, supple, and powerful.

Menstrual Regulation
by licensed, qualified physicians
You're not a baby machine. You can bring on your period when you want it.

If you have a negative pregnancy test, and your period is not over 14 days late, our licensed, qualified staff doctors can remove the menses by vacuum aspiration, in about 3 minutes! Bring on, shorten, or schedule your period.

Menstrual Regulation is a safe, simple method of "morning after" birth control, which we hope will totally replace the still experimental, definitely dangerous, "Morning After Pill". Menstrual regulation saves the worry and expense of terminating a confirmed, more advanced pregnancy. With menstrual regulation, you'll never know for sure if you were pregnant. Patients under 18 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian, or bring notarized written parental consent (if your period is over 14 days late, call us for counseling, legal abortion, or other medical and emotional help with problem pregnancy.) Call now for an appointment; no waiting.

Garry Trudeau wins 1975 Pulitzer Prize

Garry Trudeau, creator of ‘Doonesbury,’ was awarded the 1975 Pulitzer Prize in cartooning. This is the first time a comic strip has received the award.

Trudeau, 26, began syndicating the strip through Universal Press Syndicate in 1970. Prior to that date, Trudeau had drawn the strip, then entitled “Wall Tales,” for the Yale “Daily News.”

Since syndication, the support and popularity of “Doonesbury” have shown remarkable growth. The strip is now in more than 400 newspapers in both the United States and abroad.

Recently, President Ford made note of the impact “Doonesbury” had. In an address to the Radio and Television Correspondents Association, the President said: “I am very honored to be here because, as we all know, there are only three major vehicles to electronic media, the print media, and ‘Doonesbury’...not necessarily in that order.”

Trudeau’s hallmarks are an acerbic wit and an identifiable cast of characters, ranging from his own creations—Mike Doonesbury, Zonker Harris and Joanie Caucus—to guest appearances by Henry Kissinger, President Gerald Ford, and much of the Watergate cast. Presumably, some of the targets of Trudeau’s satire give an occasional wince. But others laugh along: President Ford, Press Secretary Ron Nessen, John Ehrlichman, and others, have requested originals of Trudeau’s artwork.

Trudeau is remarkably quiet about his work and himself. He repeatedly turns down requests for interviews or lectures. “If I have anything to say,” he explains, “I say it in the strip.”

Chances are, “Doonesbury” will be Trudeau’s voice for some time to come. With the awarding of the Pulitzer Prize, and the given popularity of the strip, it has become a firmly entrenched commentary on American politics and values, heroes and villains, and life in general.
The University of Notre Dame
1975 Commencement Weekend
May 16-18

The Commencement Address was preceded by a joint Valedictory given by Michael J. Wahoske and William J. Kellner. The rare double appearance is due to the near-perfect 3.985 academic averages attained by both during the last four years. A mark of 4.0 is perfect.

The crowd of over 12,000 heard Wahoske and Kellner tell the graduated to look for and attain "realistically challenging goals," "make the best of an imperfect society by establishing goals and lifestyles that mirror our understanding, not our wildest dreams," they said to the crowd at the Athletic and Convocation Center.

"A man tyrannized by his desires cannot be said to be a happy or a whole man who is at all at peace with himself," Wahoske contended that we are not being truly human when we try to achieve unattainable goals he urged graduates to pursue a path of productive work that promises "a good human life in all its richness and fullness.

Kellner said "we should not be deceived by misguided ideals depicting the way a man should be, nor should we succumb to a normlessness that ingrates truth and quality. We must look at ourselves as we really are—frail, yet powerful. From that look, we should endeavor goals and lifestyles realistically possible and be happy and fulfilled with accomplishment.

Both students have been active in campus and community volunteer work during their undergraduate career at Notre Dame.

Honorary Degrees

Honorary degrees went to Congresswoman Barbara Jordan of Texas, who received a standing ovation from the assembled crowd; Chancellor William D. McElroy of the University of California at San Diego, who is president-elect of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; Dr. Ronald B. Rice, a Notre Dame alumnus who is president of the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, Calif.; author and publisher Frank Shued of Jersey City, N.J., and Alice Tully, a noted music patron and former singer.

Also, Arthur J. Decio, chairman of the board of the Skyline Corporation, Elkhart, Ind., Dr. Peter F. Drucker, Clarke Professor of Social Science at Claremont Graduate School and a noted management theorist; Nancy Hanks, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts, Washington, D.C., and Albert E. Jenner, Jr., a Chicago attorney who served as chief special counsel to the minority of the House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary in the impeachment inquiry respecting President Nixon.

The 1975 Laetare Medal, given annually by the University to an outstanding American Catholic, was awarded during commencement exercises to Sister Anne Ida Gannon, V.M., president of Mundelein College, Chicago, Ill.

In a touching moment towards the conclusion of the exercises, Reverend Theodore Hesburgh, President of the University, asked the parents to stand, outstretch their hands over the assembled graduates and join him in giving them their blessing.

Degree candidates included an even 1,600 undergraduates, 108 doctorals, 120 Juris Doctor in Law School, 178 master's degrees and 71 candidates for the master's degree in business administration.

Included in the undergraduate totals were 660 Arts and Letters students, 622 in Business Administration, 268 in Science and 343 in Engineering.

The University is proud of all of its alumni and equally proud of the many parents and guardians who have played a special supportive role in the learning of intellectual and moral growth.

President Ford has had such a big win with the American people over the Mayaguez incident that he has become a new man—more assured, stronger and determined to show that the United States is not a paper tiger.

In fact, he has gotten into the habit of calling Henry Kissinger on the telephone all the time. "Any American ships have been seized lately, Henry?"

"I told you a couple of hours ago, Mr. President, if any country grabbed one of our ships, you would be the first to know about it."

"Sorry, Henry, I was chewing gum at the time. I wish the Laotians would try to board one of our vessels. I'd show them a thing or two."

"It's doubtful that any major power such as Laos is going to mess with us, Mr. President, after your strong and forthright action in the Mayaguez incident."

"They better not. If we show any weakness at all, every country in the world will think that it can push us around. I sure wish I had been in charge during the American bullets restored to him." Twain being a true patriot, felt he had to save the flag from those "patriots" who equate any foreign death with American glory. He puzzled over the difficulty, for a moment, for the stars and stripes replaced by the skull and crossbones."

"You know the American people, Henry. The conservatives have stopped picking on me, and even the Democrats are looking at me with new respect."

"We have no intelligence that they're thinking about it, Mr. President. But that doesn't say they wouldn't."

"Well, keep the 82nd Airborne on alert, just in case. And I'd like to see some cruisers sent to Monte Carlo. You never know when Prince Rainier thinks he can push us around.

"Consider it done, Mr. President."

"You are sure Cuba doesn't have any Soviet missiles stationed there any more?"

"They were all pulled out in 1962, Mr. President."

"You know, Henry, after the Mayaguez incident, I received thousands of telegrams in support of my action, including one from Ronald Reagan."

"You deserved it, Mr. President."

"I get standing ovations wherever I go."

"As well you might."

"The conservatives have stopped picking on me, and even the Democrats are looking at me with new respect."

"It's a dream come true, Mr. President."

"But why are you so concerned to have another international incident?"

"You know the American people, Henry. Right now everyone is saying 'Good show, Gergy,' but if someone doesn't grab another one of our ships, they're all going to say, 'What have you done for us lately?'

Dear Editor;

I've been reading about the sadie hawkins dance and the gender-relations on this campus for approximately 3 years. I've been involved in the planning of this event, and I can solve the immediate problem here. However, I can't solve the social problem. It applies to almost everyone.

"Gee let's go to dinner at 5:15, that way we'll see them and them."

Let's forget our pride and be friends. It would be very easy to have a party where the male-female relationships on this campus are approximately 3 years. Often, however, I wonder if I've ever left high school.

The rules still apply here. In most cases, your girlfriend who knows you, someone who is dating her or someone who is best friends with her. So, in fact, and this is not to know anyone you know, it is not liked by anybody. I'm sure girls have the same situation. There is an unspoken rule similar in nature to Spatter's rights. If you have a girl before you, you have the first chance. That's also unfair. Let's forget our pride and be friends. Someone who is not in the room and he's kind of guy (many of us are) that at least a stop playing games of pride. We've left. It applies to everyone, but it's not liked by anybody. It's honest and friendly. It will surprise you, perhaps shock people, for a while. But once we get used to it, we can really learn to love each other.

Incident at SMC

Dear Editor;

Regards to the excellent job SMC purity does.

Last Wednesday night (Sept. 30) kept 30 km, walked back to my dorm and myself bought two friends back to Regina South. One was totally passed out and we were going to carry her up to her room. The rectress told us we weren't going to take the girl upstairs after hours and the other guy split. In the meantime—nothing to come out to be the assistant rectress, came down. She and the girl's friend went with it. I'd like to respect those who would have left the floor on the 3rd way. On the way down, we stopped to hassle about being up there. It seems to me that it was a lot easier. As I'd had a few myself I'm sure I must have some obscenities, but I tried to keep it at a minimum. After once in a while they had and how cool they were they because they had a budge. I did this as sacrastically as possible until we reached the door and I left. While leaving SMC I happened to walk by the dorm where my two friends pulled in couldn't resist one more crack so I looked at them and said, "Nice uniform—The one without the uniform went mental and told us, "That's it. You're coming in now."

Dear Editor;

Let's forget our pride and be friends.
Dear Editor:
Within the past week, students have received in their mail a form to be filled out with names and addresses of people they think would welcome a chance to become members of the "Notre Dame Subway Alumni Association." This association's aim is to "give formal recognition to the fans who have never seen the campus but have followed the team all the way." After paying a membership fee of $5, members would receive "an official car decal, a formal recognition to the members as but another one of the University which they know about the Subway Alumni."

I am firmly against duping people into financially supporting and taking "official" pride in a university which they know nothing about. The regular Notre Dame Alumni Association is valid because the men and women graduates who become members do so with their eyes wide open. They have personally witnessed much more than a few football games each year. They have attended classes, met teachers, made friends and become a part of this educational institution. I feel sorry for you. Maybe someday you will meet a woman who can be classified as a human being, for surely the only women you have obviously come in contact with can be classified as creatures.

Sincerely,
Anne Marie Ashe

The article entitled "And Such is Woman" printed in Tuesday's Observer demands equal time for a revaluation by the opposite sex. This is an analysis of the male viewpoint which has been through the anthropologist's eyes.

Homo-sexuality

Dear Editor:
It is always taken as a milestone when one overcomes and replaces with an understanding of what is to be a "homosexual".

This was done recently in the Observer "Homosexuality" by Andy Prashack.

Notre Dame has always been a strong leader on behalf of any person be he black, brown, red, white, or a member of any other minority group in the fight for human decency whenever those causes are endangered.

While trying to meet the intellectual needs of its students the university has also aid its students in their task of organizing to find perspectives and to ultimately discover their aims in life and help them achieve their goals.

The series of articles proved to be very perceptive and interesting because it chose not to be overly partisan but acted as a sounding board to show an element of society that exists today but has been ignored in the past in hopes that it would disappear. Not all lies in books

Dear Editor,
As my college days come to an end, it is time for an overdue reflection on the goodness and perseverance of the University of Notre Dame. The excellence of the academics at the University goes without saying. It is a foremost leader in many areas of education and has maintained a national prestige with the quality of its professors.

Both Dr. Arens and Father Griffin are to be congratulated on their views which are totally distance themselves with the words of Father Griffin when he said "The name God who created

Onward to Victory
A review by Fred Grader

This is a valuable book, in the sense that it is a collection of the many accounts of the Alumni Association of Notre Dame; how it came to be, how it grew and developed, and what faces it in the future. Mr. Armstrong does a splendid job in building up the history of Notre Dame for its Alumni. He has written for many years as the secretary to the Association and spent quite a few of his retirement writing this book.

The men who have made the Alumni Association work. He has seen what goes into supporting the growth of the University. And the Association and its functions, rather than to dwell on the growth of the University. Here, too, is a review of the history of the University, written by the authors, Armstrong.

The title of the book is misleading, and it must be revised. It gives a one-sided view of the Association, and a view of the changing campus. The book is adequate, but it is not adequate.

In the opening chapters of the book, Armstrong expresses himself well and with clarity of the facts of the history of the University, where the campus is the topic of the book. The book is an attempt to give any information as to what the general feelings of the Alumni were.

What the book needs, is a passage displays one of Armstrong's best moments. It is a splendid piece of work.

A pleasant impression of the scene, but no informative or interpretative enough to give the reader a real sense of how an Alumni owned the changing campus of the sixties.

Armstrong doesn't make clear what he means by the challenges to the beamer and the crossroad. He followed the above passages with an account of how much cash the Alumni Association raised in 1960, which they elected, what buildings they attempted to build. He skirts the issue by mentioning that the changing campus was the topic of several dinners, the Alumni Association is already a hallmark of N.D. when he took over the direction. There have been better books written about Notre Dame, and there have been books which have been much further off the mark than this one. It is a compilation of the Alumni Association and its functions, though it lacks a sense of the lives and spirits that contributed to that functioning.

For that, the Alumni Association can be grateful to James Armstrong, and for his life-long dedication to them.
Summer theatre fare to be offered for fourth consecutive year
by Sue Zwick
Production Manager

The summer theatre is presented by a company of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students, graduates, and faculty. The eleven members compose the core of the acting staff, which is supplemented by interested people from the community for the particular play. The summer for 1975 is slated to be "the best" ever offered to the Notre Dame area. A four play subscription series of family oriented drama will open on June 25 with the area premiere of Anthony Shaffer's SLEUTH. The British mystery, directed by Richard Bergman of the theater faculty, will feature Charles Ballinger in the role of Andrew, with Bill McGinn, a senior at Notre Dame, in the role of Mellow. Performances will be repeated June 27 and 28.

A revival of Lawrence and Lee's A LONELY GOD, with heroes and villains, will be presented on July 31, August 1 and 2. All performances begin at 8:00. Simultaneous with the adult series, on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's Theatre for Young People will present two original works. The first J ACK AND THE BEANSTALK, written by Reginald Bain, in the form of participatory theater, is an experimental performance that allows children to talk, act and partake in the movement of the story. JACK AND THE BEANSTALK follows a similar plot played by Bain, ROBIN HOOD, which was performed successfully last summer. Dr. Bain explained, "We minimize the costumes and scenery, and try to totally immerse the children in the action." The play is directed by Janet Wilson, a graduate of Saint Mary's College, and will be performed at 2pm on June 25, 28 and July 2, 9.

The second presentation of the Young Peoples Theatre, TALES FROM MOTHER GOOSE, is a non-sscripted play directed by Miles A. Cusen. According to Bain, the structure of the play is taken directly from the storybook version, but the dialogue is written and improvised by the actors. TALES FROM MOTHER GOOSE will be performed on July 12, 16, 19, 23 and 26.

Concurrently with the theatre season, Dr. Miles Cusen will direct an acting workshop for high school students beginning June 16 and continuing through August 2. The workshop will feature the improvisatory techniques of Viola Spolin and others, in an effort to stress the pursuit of self-discovery and individual development of acting techniques. Workshop participants will perform in a self-composed improvisatory program at the conclusion of the season. "The summer program is designed to teach the participants about theatre, as well as have fun. We try to get the children very much involved," said Dr. Bain.

Information on the theater series and the summer workshop may be obtained by calling the theater at 284-4176. Special subscription rates and group rates are available.

Search for Deans continues...

Dubick succeeds Dr. Albert J. Beutler, who resigned in the spring of 1975 to become president of Bethel College.

Dubick reacted with pleasure to his recent appointment. He served as acting dean of student services during the 1974-75 academic year. When Dubick was named interim dean last year, he stated what he believed to be his philosophy of the job. Dubick put into effect these philosophies throughout the academic year and continues to carry them out while he is dean.

"It is my belief that the chief student personnel officer must be able to identify his philosophies and articulate his philosophy of student services not only to students but to the rest of the university as well," said Dubick.

According to Dubick, impersonalism created problems for the Student Services' office in the past. He hopes to correct this situation by having weekly meetings with students of IUSB who would like to talk to him.

"The dean's office exists to help the student achieve all the goals of education, but additionally, to see that each student is treated as an individual with dignity. It is the task of the student services administrator to interpret this attitudinal set to the rest of the university community," said Dubick.

Dubick's office oversees administrative activities as well as helping the students. The offices of admissions, veteran representatives, registrar, special services, counseling center, financial aids and university division are a part of student services.

One of Dubick's goals as Dean is to get together with the student leaders of IUSB (Student Association, PRESSAGE editor, Anakate editor and others) once a week to talk over problems and to help find solutions to any problems. Dubick believes the possibilities of student input are unlimited.

According to Dubick, students and the administration must work together for the betterment of IUSB.

Dubick believes the students should have access to any information, and the students should have input into the university.

Dubick came to IUSB in 1971 in the capacity of director of student activities. He holds the master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Notre Dame. He served as a counselor at Kent State University and was there when confrontations on the campus against the police took place.

His appointment was recommended by an IUSB faculty and student search committee which conducted a nationwide search for a candidate. Dr. Michael Slack, Professor of Psychology, was chairman of the committee.

"I looked for other possible positions while awaiting the search and committee's decision, said Dubick, "But I wanted the job here. I like the students, staff and the Chancellor. This is a good place to be."

Dubick said that changes would come about slowly. "It would be totally disrespectful to come into the job for total change."

One of the main problems cited by Dubick is the lack of time he is able to give to student problems. One solution to the problem is a student activities committee. Dubick, also, is considering an assistant to help with the students and paper work of the job.

"Early in the year, I did not expect to be offered the position, commented Dubick, "I'm very happy here at IUSB. The potential for growth is here."

Dubick believes the students should have access to any information, and the students should have input into the university.

Division of continuing education offers wide variety of courses at IUSB

A wide variety of courses, ranging from "Photography for Fun" to photography and bicycle maintenance, are currently being offered by the division of continuing education at Indiana University at South Bend.

The division went into full swing this week. Information and registration materials are available in the IUSB office of continuing education in Northside Hall.

Classroom processes:

Courses in group processes in the classroom, "games students play," and the function of speech in the "Future Shock" society are being offered.

"Games Students (and Teachers) Play": Transactional Analysis in the Classroom is the title of a course in Transactional Analysis for teachers and administrators. Transactional Analysis is a systematic approach to changing human behavior.

Craig Hosterman, chairman of IUSB's department of communication arts, will examine the role of speech in future society, stressing new directions in speech and the ways in which they can be incorporated into existing high school speech programs. The course will touch on the electronic and mass media, speech and communications "games," and performance-oriented courses versus theory.

Richard Feingold will teach "Photography for Fun," a basic course for the amateur photographer.

"Multi-Media for the Layman" will deal with motion-picture, slide-show and videotape production. The course will teach methods of editing, timing, narrating, sound mixing, scripting, story board techniques, and will include individualized instruction in the use of videotape recording equipment, 35mm and automatic cameras, 16mm and super-8 equipment, and other equipment for producing and editing multi-media shows.

The preprinting workshop, conducted by Marie Schwallach, will provide students with an opportunity to learn preprinting processes, including photographic equipment and a light table.

Recreational courses:

Sailors, pilots, bicycle riders and tennis players will have an opportunity to improve their skills through the summer program of continuing education.

John Machalski, 35-year veteran sailor and championship racer, will teach the theory and practice of small boat sailing.

Top of boat safety, the costs of owning a boat, and how to select a craft will be included.

Private pilot ground school instruction for persons who plan to take the Federal Aviation Agency Private Pilot Written Examination will be taught by Maj. William A. Smith, USAF, a 6,000-hour professional pilot and assistant professor of aerospace studies. The objective of the course is for each student to complete satisfactorily the FAA exam. Persons enrolling in the course must have logged at least 15 hours of flight.

A course in bicycle touring, selection and maintenance will be taught by Marth Scher, President of Michiana Wheelers and an experienced bicycle-tourist. Local conditions, geography and unusually scenic tours will be discussed. Aspects of buying and maintaining multi-speed bikes will be reviewed.

"Tennis for Health," a four-week course designed to teach the techniques of the game or to improve play, will be held at the Raquet Club in Mishawaka. Instructors will be club professionals. Sections for beginners and more experienced students are planned.

The new Dean of Faculties will be appointed by August 15, 1975, according to Lester M. Wolfson, chancellor at I.U.S.B.

Dr. Joseph L. Peyer, former Dean of Faculties at IUSB, resigned in that position because of health reasons in April. He is expected to return to an extensive course at IUSB in the fall.

According to Wolfson, the new dean will be selected from the eight candidates of Indiana University and will be appointed by interviews conducted by him and an advisory screening committee. The committee will be compiled of faculty members and appointed by Wolfson.

The IUSB Dean of Faculties currently has an immediate staff of an Assistant Dean and an Assistant to the Dean. In addition, the heads of Arts and Sciences, Business and Economics, Continuing Education, Dental Auxiliary Education, Education, General and Technical, Library Science, Music, and Public and Environmental Affairs report to the office.

The qualifications of the job are: 1) Tenure or tenure-track; 2) Senior rank, preferably full professor. 3) Evidence of distinctive scholarly and/or creative accomplishment; or evidence of excellent teaching skills; 4) Appropriately prior administrative experience within an academic setting.

Wolfson said that applications or nominations will be accepted through July 11, 1975.

The reasons for accepting applications from the IU system only and for not having an interim Dean of Faculties is speed, according to Wolfson.

"This is an affirmative action procedure. We need someone who knows the Indiana University system. If we appointed an interim dean and went through a full competitive search, it could take a year or more before the office could be filled," said Wolfson.

The decision to appoint the dean without a full search was made through many telephone conversations and contact with other offices, according to Wolfson.

Dubick, who had been acting officer of IUSB, the Dean of Faculties is responsible for the development of the total academic curriculum. If we appointed an interim dean, we would have two candidates for the Chancellor," said Wolfson.

The job of dean entails responsibilities for the faculty and curriculum of IUSB, and the execution of such other duties as the Chancellor may assign.
Last of the Winter Sports

by Bob Kissel

At long last the winter pro sports, basketball and hockey, have concluded their seasons, just before the arrival of a summer mosquito swarms. Think back and try to remember the first exhibition game in either sport last fall. It seems like ancient history.

The real story of the NHL playoff series was not Philadelphia’s six-game demolition of the Buffalo Sabres, but the unexpected semi-final series results prior to the finals.

late in the game, the Blues kicked off twice from the 25 and once situation. late in the third period and ran 35 yards on a fourth-down punting fall practices. But we got in a lot of good work in the Blue-Gold varnaries. We lacked some continuity because of injuries and a 4 experience, so this game was a valuable opportunity for them. We needed a couple of back-ups in the game with injuries. Jim Weiler and Steve Schmitz left early and both of them had really good shows. Robinson suited up but did not play. He had a bad dislocation. Rain marred a sluggish first half but then sometimes slippery turf, Joe Montana cranked up his throwing arm and pitched the varsity Blues to a 38-6 victory over the Whites.

"I wasn't particularly excited about it, but I never am in the spring, but then I wasn't disappointed either," said Devine. "I think we accomplished quite a lot this spring under the circumstance. We lacked some continuity because of injuries and a great number of sessions missed because of late classes."

The guidelines for their yardage have been pretty well established by the administration," said Devine. Montana and Forsythe have good arms, are usually timely in releasing the ball, and are pretty much on target. They'll need plenty of work before being ready for some top college defenses in the fall. Unhappily, neither was running ahead of Rick Sager (and earlier Frank Allocco).

Montana completed seven of 12 passes for 131 yards for the Blues leading 10-6 in the third period. Then, Montana rifled a 33-yard beauty that Ted Burgmeier grabbed in the corner of the end zone and the Blues were off and running. Early in the fourth period, Montana flipped a short screen pass to Dan Kelleher for a 6-yard gain in the left flat of a Bob-Walls' block. And later on Montana hit short tight end MacAlley who made a sliding catch of 16 yards for the score.

Art Best, the game's leading ball carrier with 112 yards in 18 carries, tallied the final touchdown from the five late in the gained Best was one of the players cited by Devine for doing a good job despite being able to practice only two days a week because of late classes.
