Duggan inaugurated at SMC

Dr. John Duggan, New president of St. Mary's College was inaugurated at a concurrent Mass, Sunday in O'Loughlin Auditorium.

Dr. John M. Duggan was inaugurated as the eighth president of St. Mary's College in a long ceremony at O'Loughlin Auditorium yesterday.

Dr. Duggan, chairman of the Board of Regents, presented the medallion of office to the former vice president of student affairs in Vassar College. "We rejoice," she said, "and ask for God's blessing.

Duggan's Address

In his inaugural address, Duggan stressed St. Mary's "special kind of education." St. Mary's is a small liberal arts Catholic college for women," Duggan said. "It is our interpretation of this description that sets St. Mary's apart from other colleges modified by the same set of objectives.

St. Mary's will remain a small college. Duggan said, in order to "maintain the intimate kind of community" characteristic of the college. He explained his belief that a small college is better able than a university to monitor itself and make adjustments.

Civility, openness, and pretentiousness are not reserved to St. Mary's, he continued, "yet they are virtually qualities which not only colleges but our entire society desperately need."

Duggan said that he has been told that it is over, these qualities which encouraged passivity and a lack of serious thinking of the status quo. He stated that God's manners should not "preclude the vigorous, and sometimes usually exchange of ideas, that is, or should be among the hallmarks of the college experience."

In regard to St. Mary's Catholic aspect, Duggan, said, "We have a special mission to help develop in our students Catholic educational and cultural traditions, values, and ideas." Many colleges have forsaken their religious identity under secular and financial pressures. Duggan related, whereas St. Mary's has continued working to create "a living Christian community."

The medallion consists of a golden circlet embracing a cross at the center of which is mounted a disc with the St. Mary's College seal embossed with silver, gold and blue enamel work.

The Mass of the Holy Spirit, which traditionally begins each academic year, was followed by a luncheon and inaugural ceremonies on the campus lawn.

Campus life examined again

At the May meeting of the Board of Trustees the committee on undergraduate life (COLU) presented a lengthy report to the Board on undergraduate academics, coeducation, finances, residentiality and student life. The Committee was a tripartite group commissioned by the Board the preceding October to investigate undergraduate priorities.

Today the Observer begins a detail look at each of the reports of the five subcommittees in a five part series which will run throughout this week. Today, Campus Editor Pat Hanifin examines the report by the COLU committee on academics.

The Academics Committee, chaired by Senior Jim Edor, produced a preliminary report which concentrated on the topics of registration, course availability, course variations and testing and grading.

"Our committee's job was to analyze and evaluate various aspects of academics at Notre Dame," Edor said. "Some areas were of course running well and our report is not a completely negative one. But because of lack of time we concentrated on those areas of most immediate concern."

The report notes that "Notre Dame has been highly acclaimed in academic circles," citing the North Central Accreditation Report, and points out that undergraduate academic opportunities are "excellent."

The first topic of concern examined by the Committee was registration, a process which has dissatisfied many students. The committee attributed this dissatisfaction to "the inequities of the advanced registration system."

We re-affirmed the conclusions of the committee on Advanced Registration which suggested two reforms in January 1976.

One reform is aimed at preventing students from registering ahead of schedule by color coding the From 90's by class. A second reform would provide a "tighter control of the pre-engaged computer cards in accordance with information on the Form K which in turn would prevent students from enrolling more than the normal number of courses."

The Academic Committee itself suggests a further ban on professors handing out course cards personally arguing that the practice is "by its very nature unfair to the total student body."

Alcohol legal in rooms

By Shawn Scanwell
Staff Reporter

Due to the Faccenda bill, passed by the Indiana State Legislature, the University to enforce the state drinking law has been licensed. This has evolved a new university policy on the use of alcohol.

Jim Roemer, Dean of Students, said last Friday, "The University rules and regulations state that alcohol may be consumed in private rooms. This policy is consistent with the laws of Indiana. This year, because of the Faccenda bill, the University will not step in and confront students to see if they are underage or not. If a student is not 21, that's his problem with the state of Indiana. We're not going to come in and confront him about it."

"It's not likely that the sheriff will be coming around knocking on doors or if anyone brings him more than enough more," he explained. "It requires the development of a sense of responsibility and endurance than, say, a meaningful and relevant literature."

Other Speakers

Fr. Theodore Hushburgh, Notre Dame president, in his invocation prayed that the new president not sacrifice his vision, courage to make difficult decisions, and humaneness in thought to a desire for power.

Representatives of the faculty, students, alumni, parents, clergy, the local community, and friends gave greetings to the new president.

Rita M. Cassidy, chairman of the Faculty Senate, said last Friday, "The University will not play a part in settling the problem of the student."

"Jack Duggan we like your style and what you are trying to do," she said.

Relocation of music department slated

Renovation of the 95-year-old Hoyens Hall building, future home of the Notre Dame Music department, will begin next week, announced from Cerny, department chairman.

The contractors will begin working the existing walls next week, and we hope to move into before spring semester," Cerny added. Meanwhile the use of the O'Shaughnessy classroom, presently occupied by the music department, remains under consideration.

The welcoming renovation will provide three to four times more room to better accommodate the more than 500 students taking music classes. No longer will the choruses and orchestra cram into one room. Beginning pianists need to soft pedal their exercises to sit not to disturb neighboring choristers next door.

Hoyens will be air-conditioned and provide 36 practice rooms, 12 teaching studios, several department offices and a recital hall which will seat an audience of 150.

An electronic piano system, a new addition, with six keyboards and accompanying headsets, will allow students to practice in the same room together undisturbed, yet allowing the instructor to practice in the same room together undisturbed.

"The system will definitely aid us in teaching elementary piano classes," Cerny emphasized. "This piece of equipment is a true gift to the department."

Hoyens Hall was built in 1896 to house the Law School. To update plans, the newly covered building last used by the psychology department will now include a third floor additiion as previously projected, but all walls and ceilings in the existing facility will be effectively insulated.

Although carpeting and interior decorating is not being talked of just yet, Cerny eagerly awaits the move. "In the future that I can see, this will adequately hold us for years to come."

Miss Sally Duffy, an Ohio Dominican College graduate, assumes the position of rectress of Lewis Hall this year. Lewis Hall, formerly the residence of graduate students, now houses students from Badin Hal.

Duffy says she has found things rather hectic, particularly learning everyone's name, and that she must acclimate herself to the idea of having no set hours as a rectress.

Yet she says, "I don't think I could ask for a better atmosphere to work in. Everybody has been extremely friendly, courteous and helpful.

Particularly helpful to Duffy has been Sr. Karen Ann Paul, assistant rectress. "Having had previous experience, Sr. Paul has proven invaluable in acquainting me with registration procedures, campus government and my responsibilities as rectress," said Duffy.

Commenting on her responsibilities, Duffy said, "The most important thing is to insure personal and religious growth or the means to attain it for the students.

She also noted her responsibility for the personal safety of everyone in the hall and the prevention of building damage.

Duffy plans to reconstruct the hall gallons, which leaked last year. She explained, "The hall government will be no more.

She and hall president Pat Tuck have placed more responsibility for hall activity in the hands of the section leaders. In the past, section leaders were more communication leaders, but this year they will be involved in planning of social, athletic, cultural, and community activities as rectress, she said.

Duffy says she expects to gain the pleasure of meeting new and interesting people, new friends and the self-satisfaction from helping other people through the job.

She added that there have been a lot of hard feelings about the move from Badin Hall, but hopes the student will become as strongly attached to Lewis Ashley were to Badin.

SGI-UP MEETING FOR FRESHMAN COLLOQUIUM

TUESDAY 7:30 P.M. RMS 104 O'SHAG

IF YOU MISSED US AT REGISTRATION - IT'S STILL NOT TOO LATE!
The University of Notre Dame will construct a new student housing project for graduate women. The facility will be named Duggan Hall, according to University sources. Duggan will house 250 graduate women in 125 identical townhouses with exteriors of brick and white siding and will be arranged in 12 buildings of varying size. Each all-electric apartment will contain a living room and small kitchen and dining areas on the first floor and four private bedrooms and a full bath on the second floor. The building currently housing 125 graduate women will be converted to an undergraduate facility. The University announced last semester that Lewis Hall would be replaced by Lewis Hall. The University is extending storm sewers and sanitary lines and will grade the construction site. Design of the new facility was determined by the University after a series of meetings with graduate students, whose criteria included private rooms, kitchen facilities, and reasonable rent. The location was chosen for its proximity to the library and laboratories. The plan was a compromise between more economical dormitory accommodations and the ideal, but financially precluded, individual apartments. Brother Kieran Ryan, C.S.C., president for business affairs, said the graduate student housing project is still in the planning stage and no contracts have yet been awarded. However, two architects, National Fides Publishers and Aquinas Book Shop, just west of the construction site, will become part of the residence complex. This building will probably be used as a common building for Masses, group meetings and social activities. Laundry facilities also may be included in the common buildings. Fides and Aquinas have not yet made final plans for relocation.

The search committee thoroughly investigated your IQ before they hired you, we welcome you as a courageous new member—Mary P. Gabreski, chairman of the Parents Council, and Jeanne Murphy Westland, vice president of the Alumni Association Board, both pledged the support of their groups and the best wishes for Duggan's success in his new position. Sister Kathleen Nelligan, superior general of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, said Duggan in the creator of "now women who still have old values." The virtues of the South Bend Mishawauka community were extolled by Jerry Hamness, president of the South Bend Mishawauka Chamber of Commerce. "The good life exists in Michiana," he said. "The people take pride in the community, and free enterprise. Here you will find the benefits of the fruits of labor and hospitality." Student Body President Joan Mc Dermott said the students desire the pursuits of goals in a Christian atmosphere and the development of mutual interdependence. Labor committee to rally Sept. 6

The Farm Labor Aid Committee and other organizations in the Michiana area will sponsor a rally at noon on Saturday, September 6. An ecumenical service, which will be held in St. Stephen's Church at 1102 Thomas, will precede the rally. The rally will feature singing and music with guitarist Benito Salazar, as well as a number of speakers. Starting from St. Stephen's, the rally will proceed to a location to be announced at the service.

The service and rally are teabow since the United Farm Workers.

SMC InPIRG to meet tonight

Students who joined the SMC branch of InPIRG (Indiana Public Interests Research Group) last year will meet in LaFortune Hall Monday at 7 p.m. with Rick Warrick, InPIRG's northern coordinator, to discuss issues and finances for this year, and to organize elections and a drive for more volunteers. "Mainly, we want to check into consumer interests this year, such as grocery pricing and bank policies," said InPIRG member, Kathy Nolan. SMC's branch of InPIRG's northern section has cooperated with Notre Dame's InPIRG last year to investigate and work on sundry issues at local drugstores. Although the two chapters have separate boards because of separate funding, SMC's plan to continue working in conjunction with Notre Dame on most InPIRG projects.

Presently, InPIRG at SMC is in its planning stage and needs volunteers in different areas of public interest. It will depend on cooperation with Notre Dame, Indiana State University-South Bend, and possibly Valparaiso. "If we get enough students interested and willing to put effort in, we should be able to check into a lot of consumer issues," said Nolan.

SLC candidates to organize

An organizational meeting for all SLC candidates will be held Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. to distribute petitions for candidacy, rules and information. These petitions must be handed in with 100 by 11 p.m., Sept. 18. Campaigning starts the next day, with a petition drive on September 23 and a second one on September 25.

The North and South Quads and Off-Campus comprise the three voting districts. Off-campus balloting will take place at the Campus View and Notre Dame.

apartments from 11:30 to 1:00 p.m., and in the Huddle and the library from noon till 6:00 p.m. On-campus students can vote in their halls between 11:30 and 1:00 a.m. or from 5:00 till 6:30 p.m. I.D. cards will be stamped to insure validity.

Elections will be handled by a committee comprised of Peter Guttacker, candidate, Ed Byrnes, Stan Cardesoe and Tim Casley.

Book exchange pick up schedule

Students can pick up unsold books and money during the following hours:

Tuesday, Sept. 8: 7-30 p.m.
Wednesday, Sept. 9: 7-10 p.m.
Thursday, Sept. 11: 1-2 p.m.

Please enter the exchange through the south stairwell of the LaFortune Student Center and proceed to the second floor.

Books not picked up by 2:00 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 11 will become the property of the Student Union.

Mr. White and the exchange managers request that no outside books or notebooks be brought into the Book Exchange.

Darby's Place opens tonight

Darby's Place opens for business in the basement of LaFortune at midnight tonight.

Darby's opens for business in the basement of LaFortune at midnight tonight. Fr. Griffin opened Darby's last year for the Farm Labor Aid Committee to use as a social place for the community with "a clean, well-lighted place to study." Darby's, named after Fr. Griffin's cokerspaniel Darby O'Gill, provides a place where male and female students can meet socially after midnight.

Tom Daley, manager of Darby's, stressed this point: "We want to create an atmosphere that will allow people to socialize after midnight, but still be able to study."

Darby's Place will be open from 12 to 4 A.M. Sunday through Thursday, and coffee and donuts will be available. The Student Union Social Committee is responsible for Darby's, not this year, instead of the Ombudsman.

Volunteers are needed to work at Darby's during the week, and anyone interested in helping should contact Tom Daley, 8736.

St. Mary's seniors wishing to have their senior pictures taken in the 1976-77 blue mantle are to submit either the proof of their choice to room 304 McCandless Hall by October 1.

Those seniors who have not yet had their picture taken, or who want their re-takes to be signed up for an appointment with Mr. Kane, photographer, on the south side of the Dining Hall facing Moreau Hall.

$10.00 re-take fee will be charged to those seniors who have not yet had their pictures taken, and an additional $5.00 re-take fee charged to those who are having them taken again.

The dates scheduled for photographing are Sept. 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13. September 14 and 15 have been reserved for rain dates.

All photo orders are handled through the mail by Mr. Zehring on his own order sheets. Only the number of the proofs is required to make copies. Thus, turning the proofs to the Blue Manta staff will not affect a student's order.
We start again. The summer is over. Monday, September 8, 1975.

The summer of '75 - with those good or heavy job offers - is over. Cincinnati, Cleveland, the Little John of Ohio, is gone. We've had a spring of Jewish culture and religion. Many did not see Jews constitute one of the smallest minorities on campus. And the tragic consequences of the Kent State shootings have unfortunately become a reality.

The first days of a new school year might be a good time to ask some honest, very basic questions: What's the purpose of it all? What's the point of coming here? The great danger, basic questions. What's the purpose of it all? Is education will be seen for, if it is not to render service to persons, for life. It can function for gain, not for good.

In many universitites, for instance, the Humanitons don't. They neutralize. Students are asked the wrong questions. When you ask what are you going to do? - whereas the real question is: when you graduate, what are you going to be, what kind of person will you have become? The temptation is to reward students for successfully acquiring information which will enable them to fit into our present system, with all its faults and superficialities - consumeracey and materialistic self-serving.

One can ask the question: Why? or, if it is not to render service to persons, whether that be understood as the most private intimate relations, between friends, lovers, and family or in the public and institutional relations that we have to the needs for justice and peace.

Aren't we talking about the mutual recognition that says: "the university is needed in the sense that it offers the people maturity into vulnerability." To "mature into vulnerability." The trouble is in our culture we have inherited some very strong maxim's: "Mind your own business!" - "live and let live!" - "whatever someone does, that's his business and I don't meddle!" - A lot of these maxim's and others like them so completely that we have developed a deep instinct against any form of fraternal correction and care. And such maxims do have their place. Minding one's own business is frequently the right thing to do, to become a busy body? The image of the stupid guile, the lick, the rat, hardly stands high in our American way. And yet there is that drunk driver. There is that girl going off to the abortionist; the friend on drugs; the student cutting herself off from all others.

"It takes a real brother, not a keeper, to respond to the needs we see around us for loving correction and care."

Let's propose a few situations. You are at a party. Someone, obviously smashed, in a real argument with a friend. What do you do? We let him go without saying a word, without doing anything. There is a girl you know who lets it be known that she is having an abortion. Or it comes to your attention that a friend is on drugs. You become aware of a student who is starting to isolate herself from other individuals. We frequently find ourselves in situations where we would like to do something to help, but do not have the obligation to speak up? To interfere. It is not our business (because very burdensome) duties Christians have, to save souls, to save persons, people who are indeed suffering. The trouble is in our culture we have

Joseph Heller enjoyed both tremendous commercial and critical success with his first novel, Catch-22. Perhaps the timing of its mid-60's release helped make the novel an incredibly popular one, for the lunacy of Vietnam and its juxtapositions seemed the perfect parody of U.S. involvement in Indochina. The book was also the inspiration for a classic television series and an equally classic feature film. In the meantime, Heller taught at City College of New York. He was asked about how his second novel was coming, a common answer was: "something's happenin'".

Something did indeed happen. As Catch-22 was an attack on man's involvement in war, Something Happened chronicles a man's dissatisfaction with the American way of life. Heller has his main character, successful, middle-aged businessman Bob Slocum, describe all aspects of his life. There's a didacticism in his writings about his wife, child, and office life and career.

The book itself does not read well. Heller compounds his mistakes by adding a 50-page appendix filled with the death of his wife's father. He is not a minor writer, but he adds more information. The result can only be that the reader is left feeling that information is constantly being added to provide the character development. In the end the reader feels that Heller is successful for making the reader think but not for having a solid piece of evidence to support the thesis. If one wants to read a devastating attack on the American dream, one might consider reading The Grapes of Wrath. If one wants to read a well written and engrossing narrative, Moby Dick is a classic work of art. It's total engrossing and will linger on your mind for quite some time.

these courses are the same as traditional courses but characterized by a less formal management and atmosphere," the committee explained. The economics, theology and college seminar courses have been active in developing these courses. Mrs. Mary McCabe, director of student development programs, noted that a non-credit program on male-female relations was run last year by Grace, Breen-Phillips and Farley, with "very positive results" and that a similar program may be run this year. The committee felt that the departments should be encouraged to continue, revise and improve the courses, especially since many of them have been the result of "student interest."

Tests and Grading

"Measurement of student achievement is a terribly complex undertaking. That it is not always attended to in an effective manner is given testimony sometimes by the professors charged with the responsibility for evaluation of student achievement, and often by the students who are evaluated," the report said.

It noted that testing and grading were nonexistent but mentioned problems. Test questions should show whether a student has met the objectives of the course and which grades depend, should not be set by comparison between students. The committee suggested that department chairmen and deans initiate "systematic reviews of the courses of instruction." Departmental seminars and manuscripts in test construction could be offered to the faculty.

Future Investigations

Eder stressed that the Academic report was only "preliminary. We did not have enough time to investigate several topics and some of the committee members were tied down by other duties." One such area of concern which the group had initially planned to look at was career and guidance counselling. However the committee members have plans to revive their investigations this year. The committee is currently suspended but we hope to continue it this year," Eder commented. "There is still a lot of work that can be done and if we can get together we can fill the vacancies left by graduation."

Another reason for keeping the committee functioning is to keep the points made in its preliminary report before the Board of Trustees.

"We submitted the preliminary report to the Student Affairs committee of the Board during their May meeting. They considered it then but gave us no firm commitment, so we must keep this in front of the Board at their upcoming meeting, along with the final part of the COL Report. Student government and theother campus organizations, particularly the media, are important in this effort too," Eder concluded.

Slager, Montana duel for QB role

by Ernie Trottier

Dan DeVine said last week that Montana State and Montana have a duel for quarterback of the year honors in the Big Sky conference. DeVine said that Montana State quarterback Joe Montana would be better than Montana quarterback Phil Slager in one respect: Montana State has the better backfield. Slager evened the score by throwing for 325 yards and five touchdowns against Montana State.

Slager finally got off the board with 13:32 remaining in the second quarter when he rolled out of the pocket and hit a 38-yard pass to teammate Gary Forystek. Montana State led 10-0 after 14 plays.

The second half was highlighted by the passing of sophomore quarterback Joe Montana. Montana had four completions in 13 pass attempts, including a 20-yard scoring pass to Monte Bernardini.

Weiler scored from three yards out on the next play and Montana State rolled out pass for 32 yards for the other score.

The second half was highlighted by the passing of sophomore quarterback Joe Montana. Montana had four completions in 13 pass attempts, including a 20-yard scoring pass to Monte Bernardini.

The White team lost its second straight game.

The 1975 collegiate football season gets under way this weekend and there are a number of new names in the picture.

For example, there's another contender in the Big Ten, an epic rivalry in the SEC and some former powerhouse teams that have nowhere to go but down.

On the other hand, don't look for too much of a contest in either the Big Eight or the Pac-8.

The 1975 season is looking like a year's defense. If they can beat an improved Auburn and Calvin Gulliver, and seven members of last year's defense, the Trojans should glide through the Big Eight.

The Trojans opened the season with a 35-0 victory over the White team.

The defense, always the Trojans' strength, was dominant against a solid White offensive line and he demonstrated a good, hard-running ability.
