SLC urged to follow-up COUL proposals

by Valerie M. Zarchis

Most students and faculty are feeling the pressures of academia and would like to see an October break despite a pre-Labor Day start according to a spot survey on campus. History Professor Leon Bernard commented, “Last year I was opposed to an early start, but now my opinion is completely reversed. I would welcome a break now despite an early start.”

Fr. Terry Lally, assistant vice-president of Student Affairs and teaching a theology course this semester, said he has now seen many students under pressure and who need a break. “ESC weekend was the only vacation, and afterwards you are more tired than if you had took a regular vacation.” he stated. He also added, “I’d like to take a vacation myself right now.”

Junior Mary Ellen Keenan and Sister Madonna Kolbecherg discussed changing the calendar. Keenan objected to an early start but said an option would be to have a post-Labor Day start.

Kolbecherg said a week off in October is too long and she would opt for a short break in October after midterm.

"My students seem more pressured, and in one vacation," he stated. He also added, "I’d like to take a vacation myself right now."

He realized how long and strenuous the fall semester was. He was unavailable for comment.

In reply to adverse criticism that a pre-Labor Day start would cut into summer earnings, Burtchell said, "I feel the calendar will justify itself."

Social Commissions plan Halloween dance Friday

By Cathy Nolan

Staff Reporter

The St. Ed's and Lyons hall social commissions are sponsoring a Halloween dance this Friday night in the basement of Lyons hall.

The dance, which is being held in conjunction with the Student Union Social Commission, is open to the entire Notre Dame-Saint Mary's community.

Students are encouraged to wear costumes and prizes will be awarded to the best dressed person. Judging will be done by dance chairpersons Steve Haunser and Carrie Conaway.

However, it is not mandatory that students wear costumes to attend. Tickets will be sold at the door for seventy-five cents. This is not designed to be a money-making project for either of the halls. "All students should encourage their friends to attend," Haunser and Conaway commented. "The dance is being given as a social event for the students to celebrate the Halloween festivities."

Stigar Center will be decorated in Halloween fashion with corn stalks and pops and will include the decorations. Music will be provided by "Stratus," a dance band composed of former members of such bands as "Wind" and "Tulipman.

Refreshments will include cokes and popcorn.

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — William and Susan Backers' first marriage began to totter as they decided to tie the knot again they decided to tie the knot and but, it didn't go off too amicably. The couple, who married twice in the same day, either.

In a private ceremony over the weekend, the bridegroom's mother was unable to attend. She was ill and in a fall down stairs.

A bridesmaid attended although she was in a fall down stairs and was bedridden with pneumonia. The bride, expecting a child in May, came down with influenza after the ceremony.

But the photographer was there and got pictures of the ceremony in the church. One of the things that happened in the Backers' wedding July 36 was that the photographer accidently exposed his film and ruined the pictures.

Other happenings then:

The wedding couple stepped out after an argument with the groom and a new one had to be named.

The ring-bearers' parents, also an argument, dropped out and had to be replaced.

The minister injured his neck in an auto accident and was barely able to perform the ceremony.

The organist went on vacation and the organist had to be found at the last minute.

The florist delivered flowers to the wrong address and half of them did not arrive at the church until two hours after the ceremony.

One of the bridesmaids sneezed throughout the ceremony. She was allergic to the baby breath flowers in her corsage.

Group research grants available

Grants up to twenty thousand dollars are available from the National Science Foundation under their "Student-Originated Studies" program.

Programs of from 5 to 12 students in the social sciences may be eligible to undertake scientific studies having immediate social or environmental use.

Projects funded must be independent of students, have as their concern the collection of scientific data for some local user, and must pose yet unanswered questions of a scientific or technological nature.

Deadline for proposals is Nov. 10, 1976.

Bank awards recreational funds to SMC

By Marjorie Ir

St. Mary's College has been awarded a total of $10,000 by the American National Bank and Trust Co., according to team president Brian J. Wernig.

The funds will go toward the construction of a new sports and recreation facility for the College, said Steve Wernig, assistant director of student affairs. Building of the facility has been necessitated by the size of the sports teams at St. Mary's.

Until last fall, sports had been almost non-existent at St. Mary's, according to Wernig. In the fall of the present year, though, student interest in sports has doubled the enrollment of the previous year, and put additional teams on the varsity level.

Wernig, who joined Student Affairs in the fall of 1974, had worked to build up the sports program. The College is spending a lot of money on the sports program.

"The interest is definitely here," said Wernig. "People keep coming up with more ideas and are interested in both varsity and intramural levels," he said.

"The interest is definitely here," said Wernig. "People keep coming up with more ideas and are interested in both varsity and intramural levels," he said.

Sports now budgeted

Wernig explained the basic pre-requisite for starting a team. "Interest is the basic factor in starting a team and in elevating it to the varsity level. Last year was the first time sports were budgeted.

"The intramural program is now budgeted also," she said.

"To make it to the varsity level, the team goes through a one-year trial. If the students show the interest, I submit a budget request to Dr. Mary Alice Cannon (vice president for student affairs). She then brings it before the College Budget Committee. If the request passes, that sport is then included in the allocations for the following school year," explained Wernig.

"Team budgets include uniforms, equipment, gas mileage, travel and entertainment for away events. In addition to that is the rental of practice gymnasiums," said Wernig.

Wernig emphasized that the College is just as interested as the students are and that is why they are putting so much effort into the sporting program. "The college is spending a lot of money on the sports program. We've made a commitment to it by the fact that we are supporting the teams," she said.

"But, we're really not doing it right without a building of our own," Wernig said.

Forced off campus

Wernig said the teams are doing well with the on-campus practice areas they do have now but they are forced to practice off campus.

"Basketball and volleyball teams practice in the Moreau Seminary gym basketball area and Logan Center one night per week in exchange for assistance with the construction program for the retarded.

The gymnastics team practices in the gymnasium of the House of Gymnastics, which is owned and operated by coach Ron Dierin.

The swim team practices in the Regina South pool, though it is not regulation size.

Discounting the athletic building, Wernig said, "I don't know what will be included in the new building until December. It all depends upon how much money we have to work with. The Building Committee of the Board of Regents decided over the weekend to begin contacting architects for proposals. We'd like to break ground this spring."

At this point, funding will determine all aspects of the athletic ruging, Wernig said. "Nothing has been said on how much we must have before the ground-breaking."

Gym first priority

"We'd like to put in an Olympic-size pool, but the gym takes first priority. I really have no idea of building costs, so I can't put any solid figures on the final cost of the building," she stated.

"The students are conducting fund drives and more people are becoming aware of the need," said Wernig. "St. Mary's doesn't like to ask parents for more money but when things get started, I think more parents will become interested," she continued.

Bob Quakenbush reported on the returns from the Fall Sports Campaign. He announced the five highest leaders in collection. St. Joseph's and 40th Congregations have $116.00, a total of $116.00 on Salesville had $213.75 per student, a total of $14.10. Keenan averaged 86.89 currency adding 293.67, Holy Cross averaged $6.54 cents per student, totaling $92.75, and Morrissey averaged $5.7 cents per student, a total of $17.25. Quakenbush commended St. Ed's on their success and in the being the only team to exceed a dollar average per student.

The Bucko Trophy committee members were announced by Bette Johnson. They are: William Burke, Assistant Provost; Fr. Robert Griffin, University Chaplain; and James Roeneway, Dean of Students. An announcement of the winners of the September's award will be forthcoming this week.

Strength measures proposed for handgun legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., also chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, proposed tough measures Tuesday for controlling and licensing every handgun and handgun owner in America.

He also called for banning so-called Saturday night specials, cheap guns, easily concealable weapons. In the Senate, Sen. Bob Bayh, D-Ind., also urged this type of legislation.

Rodino said he wanted to see this bill passed by Congress a bill that would require every handgun owner in America to obtain federal licenses that would identify owners by name, photographs, fingerprint and social security number.

To obtain the identification, individuals would have to swear he was over 21 and not a convicted felon, not mentally incompetent, and not a drug user, alcoholic, or among other things.背景 information would be subjected to verification by the FBI.

Bicentenary Exhibition

Victor Higgins show open at Art Gallery

by Phil Cackley
Staff Reporter

The paintings of Victor Higgins, an American artist, are being featured in an exhibition at the Art Gallery, which opened on October 27 to December 31. In preparation for two years, as part of the Bicentenary Exhibition focusing on American artists, theGallery said, the exhibit has been

Hesburgh at opening

The exhibit began on Sunday with a "gala opening" attended by Fr. Hesburgh, president of the University and other members of the Administration, as well as members of the Board of Trustees.

Also in attendance were many relatives of Higgins, who died in 1949. The exhibition was originally conceived as a "gala opening" to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the University.

The exhibit, however, did not bring in as many people as expected. According to Higgins, who died in 1949, the exhibition was the fourth major project worked on by the gallery.

As for the gallery's discoveries and helped fund the exhibit, the expense of which was very high, Conyers termed "one of the most significant contributions of the Higgins family." Higgins, who painted in the Southwestern United States, is considered an important part in determining the development of American art.

Founded Taos school

One of the founders of the Taos school of painting, and influenced some of the great American artists such as Georgia O'Keeffe, David, and Bellows. He was particularly interested in moving outdoors into a natural setting from a studio, much as the French Impressionists did for his French contemporaries.

The Indianapolis Museum of Art became interested in the Higgins family when the late M. P. Higgins, who was a lawyer, requested that his family be represented in the museum's collection. The museum then acquired a number of works from the Higgins family, which were on display in the exhibition.

The exhibition will be on tour

The Indianapolis Museum of Art will have the exhibit after it leaves Notre Dame. It will then move on to hopefully the Whitney Museum in New York, and to several museums in the Southwest and the West Coast.

Included in the exhibition are oil paintings, watercolors, and photographs of Higgins, his fellow members of the Taos school, and a few of Higgins at work. The paintings span all four of the 1940s, and the two second Taos period, the 1890s and the 1900s.

The guide to the exhibition, which included the title "Victor Higgins," is an artist from Indiana. Higgins was born in Shelbyville, Indiana, in 1881.

Juries enter innocent plea for Moore

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Over strong defense objections, a San Francisco jury on Monday entered an innocent plea for Mary "Squeaky" Fromme, who was convicted of trying to kill President Ford and ordered her trial to start Dec. 15.

Meanwhile, another woman accused of trying to kill Ford, Lynette "Squeaky" Frayne, was acquitted of a lesser charge in federal court in Sacramento. She has pleaded innocent to charges of trying to shoot Ford Sept. 5 near the Califor-nia state capital.

The government's arguments on U.S. District Court Judge William MacBride's order that Ford give video-taped testimony as a defense witness at Fromme's trial in San Francisco, Chief Pub lic Defender Abe Fortas said Monday, "We're still out of luck." Fortas said the 15-minute arrangement marked by a sharp exchange with the judge, repeatedly insisted no plea be entered until psychological tests are completed to determine whether Mrs. Moore, 43, is competent to stand trial.

U.S. District Court Judge Samuel Conti, striking requirements of the 1974 Speedy Trial Act, swept aside all objections. He said the trial would begin scheduled unless she were found mentally incompetent.

Conti later agreed to Hewitt's request that Mrs. Moore, 43, be allowed to attend a closed juvenile court hearing in San Francisco Thursday concerning her 16-year-old son, Frederick Aalburg. He is currently living in a foster home in the Bay area with a friend of his mother's.

Mrs. Moore, who told police after her son was arrested she was worried about being late to pick up her son from school, will then be returned to San Diego to complete her psychiatric tests. A trial is set for Sept. 28, seven days after the judge allegedly fired a shot at Ford outside a California hotel. The law requires that for a person held without bond a trial must begin within 90 days after arrest.

"We're still out of luck," Fortas said. "I'm a senator, and take breaks when I want to." In Zamh hall, Rector Fr. Thomas Tallarida said that the students are being encouraged to put a proposal before the Faculty Senate and the University Senate for an October break. Tallarida stated that students took advantage of the break last December and found it "very congested. The students want a break," commented the rector.

Some professors still favor a post-Labor Day start even if it means no October break. Andrew Wurtz, associate professor in sociology and anthropology, said he doesn't think an early start would be "over but it means starting August." No, he said, "I'm sure that some professors still favors a post-Labor Day start even if it means no October break. Senior seek interviews at ND Placement Bureau

by Mary Reber
Senior Staff Reporter

Seniors begin to line up at the Placement Bureau about 8 a.m. every Monday, when the bureau is open to job interviews for the following week. The Placement Bureau Director, Richard Willemin.

"The very first week of interviews we had lines out the door," Willemin said. "That's what we were doing in the morning," he said, noting that the lines grow longer as time goes on. "When I came to work Monday morning at 8:00 there was a line of about 125 students," he said.

Although there is considerable competition for interviews, Willemin feels that lining up before the office opens in the morning is unnecessary. "On Mondays the Placement Bureau lined up outside the office, not two per person, which means not all the companies' visits will be taken. The students should sign up for them. The rest of the week, students lined up to sign up for as many interviews as they wanted to go to.

"The number of students able to obtain interviews depends on the number of interviews the employer decides to send," Willemin stated.

Students setting up interviews through the Bureau are faced with the chance of getting jobs than those who wait until the last minute. "Many companies cancelled their interviews last year," he said, because of the inflationary economy and because many had not hired at labor market in first semester interviews, he said.

"If the economic condition does not improve significantly, the students with interviews this semester will have the best job opportunities," he observed.

Since the interviews began in the fall of 1969, the number of companies that have cancelled their visits. Willemin said. Unlike last year, however, additions of other companies' interviews replaced the cancellations, he added.

"As of right now, we have signed up as many companies to visit ND as the same time last year," Willemin stated. "But the number of jobs the interviews have to fill is greatly reduced," he said.

He described the job opportunities for accountants and engineers as "still strong.

"However, in other fields, such as Arts and Letters, and less creatively-reduced in some cases they have dropped as much as 30% per cent compared to the number of jobs available as last year," he said.

According to the 1975 ND Employment Manual, the interviews scheduled for this year include 177 companies, representing 114 for business majors, 63 for arts and letters graduates and 62 for those preparing for engineering school.

Sadat requests peace conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egypt has decided to ask the United States and the Soviet Union for a resumption of the Geneva peace conference, it was learned Tuesday as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat held another round of talks with President Ford.

Diplomatic sources said it would take about two months to get the Middle East conference going if all sides approved. In the meantime, Sadat expects the administration to make one more effort through Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for an Israeli withdrawal on the Syrian front.

It was also learned that the administration has decided to ask Congress for $750 million in economic aid for Egypt. An additional $641 million for Egypt in farm commodities, under the Food for Peace Program, was announced by the Agriculture Department.

At a White House meeting, Sadat urged Ford to relax the administration's resistance to Palestinian Liberation Organization participation in Geneva. "I urge a dialogue between the United States and the Palestinians," Sadat told reporters later, "because the United States is the main party in this game."

He said the "peace process will take a long time because of Israeli arrogance and because they want to impose their term on the Arabs."

Lighting his pipe in a session at Blair House, Sadat paused and then said, "This is not acceptable from our side."

He stressed the need for a U.S. initiative on the Palestinian issue.

"If we are not going to achieve any global solution for this problem it will not be reached without the Palestinians."

Ford had said at a White House dinner Monday night that "there can be no peace until it is reached without the Palestinians." The administration still opposes a seat for the PLO until it accepts Israel's existence.

Sadat urged Ford to strike "a deal" with the Palestinians and start a "dialogue" with them, newsmen were told.

Specifically, according to the Egyptian sources, Ford was urged to deal with Yasir Arafat, head of the PLO, which the Arab nations last year granted sole authority to represent the Palestinian people.

The Geneva conference has been dormant while Kissinger arranged disengagement on the Sinai and Golan Heights. Israel has said it will never sit down with an organization which it says has sent terrorists into the Jewish state to murder civilians.

The decision to give Egypt $750 million in economic help more than doubles the current $300 million aid figure. At the same time, Sadat is seeking military commitments, perhaps up to $1 billion worth over 10 years.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said the two presidents discussed both forms of aid.

Nessen said Ford said deeply regrets New York mayor Abe- ham Beame's refusal to welcome Sadat to the city on Wednesday. Beame based his snub on Egyptian support for a U.N. resolution to condemn Zionism as racism.
Problems plague refugees

Since the first tent city opened, hundreds of thousands have handled nearly 50,000 refugees. More than 45,000 have left, the official number of those settled through sponsors. Charitable institutions have given $500 for each camp.

There have been seven deaths, as few as each of the babies legally is a native born American. Of the 600 children without parental care, all but 100 have either been reunited with their parents or have made members of some other Vietnamese family passing through the camp.

But there have been problems.

Capt. Geln, who served in a combat unit in Vietnam and lost a brother in the war, said some refugees have tried to test the limits of the charges into personal servants and others have attempted to force young girls into sexual liaisons. He said Los Angeles police were called in case of a Vietnamese girl who was being threatened with harm by the mob unless she returned to her sponsor's sexual demands.

In interviews with Americans here, the plight of the refugee children seems to be a lot of sympathy. Their parents have been here for a very long time.

Some of the reasons the Vietnamese fear new lives in their new home. They may be afraid of the less real to the beholder. One report among refugees, who have been here a long time, is that sponsorship through a relative may end if they don't adopt the agency's religion. An attempt by one agent to move the family of a group of Cambodian children who arrived without their parents was held unconstitutional by a court in Los Angeles.

A test of the mood among the refugees is that of Chaffe. She is the almost fatalistic attitude among some Vietnamese facing an American winter for the first time. When asked on the 26th, the Vietnamese correspondent for Camp Four, said:

"Must do not want to go to Chaffe. They are very much worried about the winter. None of us has seen snow, and some do not understand what it is. But some do not think it is the worst thing that can happen to them in America. They are more worried about other things. They don't want to be in buildings with floors and stairs. Won't they?" American officials say.

There is also an element of fear over the impending move to America. Some long to want to shed their refugee status:

"Many do not want to go to Chaffe because they are tired of living in a tent. They want to get their children into schools where they can learn what Americans must know. They want to have jobs to have a firm (stable) life, to really become Americans."

When the less educated among the Vietnamese talk of their aspirations for the future, it becomes realistic, and there are fears that some nasty shocks may lie ahead for many when they finally do have to come into contact with the English language, paying bills and landing jobs.

from half presidents on how best to regulate drinking in the halls." VPF President DiPietro announced the formulation of a subcommittee on student discipline to be headed by John T. Goddard. "The purpose of the committee is to re-emphasize the concept of adherence to certain fundamental values and to develop procedures for enforcing those values."

DiPietro stated, "The steering committee, chairmen of the Off-Campus and Community Relations Committee urged "cooperation with the food co-op to get help to get off the ground". Our food co-op is one of the few neighborhood groups in South Bend." and "develop work programs for the co-op in the summer and during the year."

The SLC approved the suggestion of Robert Kerby of the Steering Committee for revision of the by-laws in accordance with recommendations of members.

Kerby, who has emphasized the importance of letting students know where to go to get things done, "If there is not enough interest from the students," he believes, "members should do just what we've done."
Glass chasing Olympic dream

by Fred Herbst

At Notre Dame, the Olympic Games are a faraway dream for most Notre Dame students. But for Tim Glass, the dream is approaching reality. Glass is an All-American fencer and captain of this year's Notre Dame epee fencing team. The epee is his specialty.

Currently ranked eighth nationally, based on previous competition, Glass has hopes of making the United States fencing team for the Montreal Games in 1976.

"It's my biggest goal," Glass said of his attempt to make the Olympic squad. "I think it'd be a great personal achievement. It means alot to me. If I don't make it this year, I'll try again in 1980." Glass didn't become a fencer by choice. When he was fourteen his father had him take lessons in fencing in hopes of improving his coordination for basketball.

At Notre Dame High School of Niles, Ill., Glass worked between two and three hours a day on his fencing under the guidance of Fr. Larry Calhoun. Calhoun is a Notre Dame graduate who learned to fence from Notre Dame coach Mike DeCicco. Besides his high school practice, Glass also took professional lessons three days a week.

After graduation from high school, Glass decided to attend Notre Dame due to the strong fencing program and coaching of DeCicco.

Only a junior, he has already won All-American fencing honors and is currently ranked fifth in the NCAA championships last year.

Pangborn wins Interhall soccer

By Pete Baum

Pangborn won the Interhall soccer championship last night by defeating Finner, 1-0.

The game's only score came in the 1st half when the center from two yards put the ball in the goal. Pangborn's goalie partially deflected the shot, but the ball still had enough momentum to trickle in. In both teams' defense, there were numerous scoring opportunities in the hard fought game, only to have them thwarted by excellent defenses.

The game climaxed a six-game regular season during which both teams were un defeated.

"We are looking to him and others like him to make steady progress and hopefully in the next year he will have the opportunity to go from eighth to fourth," DeCicco said.

Glass is currently on a special training schedule, devised by DeCicco, on which he runs three to four miles a day besides his normal fencing practice.

Based on Glass' progress, DeCicco believes he's a bona fide Olympic candidate since all the people he'll be competing with, he probably has the greatest momentum.

"I'd have to say that the odds are 40-60 against making it," said Glass, who is obviously not as optimistic as his coach.

"But if I make it, I don't think I'd be over awed by the competition, it's just like the World Championships and I've already competed in them," Glass said.

"Tim Glass makes the Olympic team, it will undoubtedly be quite an achievement. But it's a big 'If.' While Glass has a chance at making the squad, he's a long way from being a sure bet.

 Ranked eighth nationally, Tim Glass prepares for a year that will determine if he will gain a spot on the Olympic team.
