WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, responding to the United Nations resolution labeling Zionism a form of racism, was rushing "to highlight States’ further participation" in the world assembly.

Both houses of Congress, joining in a storm of American protest Tuesday, passed resolutions condemning the U.S. General Assembly’s vote as "unjustified and highly unjustified action."

White House spokesman Ron Nessen said President Ford will review the implications of the U.S. unqualified action. "We will be doing research and study ev erything that has happened," he said.

Goldrick explained.

The Academic Honesty committee will study everything that has happened since 1971.

Goldrick said there should be more specific announcements of the board’s policy guidelines in student publications.

"Under University policies in the absence of nothing on academic honesty," Goldrick noted.

The Academic Honesty committee members are Prof. Robert Kerby, John DiPietro, and Ed Van Tassel. Paul Lembke, Peter Johnson and Sally Stanton are also committee members.

Stanton attended a national conference on Student Conduct in National Catholic College Unitees Today, Goldrick said. He said she remains behind the recently passed policy.

"The policy should be documented where students have easy access to it," Goldrick stated.
NEW YORK (AP) — New York City is accumulating a deficit of $1.5 billion beyond that already accounted for in the city books for because months it has not been able to borrow for capital expenses.

The $1.5 billion is separate from the $901 million generally acknowledged by the city as the shortfall in the 1975 budget.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee voted Wednesday to kill President Ford’s nomination of Ben B. Blackburn, a former General congressman, to head the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Opponents said Blackburn, 48, a Republican who served three terms with Ford in the House, was too insensitive to the needs and rights of minorities to serve in a post that sets federal policy on equal access to home mortgage money.

Fifty teams to compete in debate tournament

Notre Dame will host the 4th Annual National Invitational Debate Tournament this weekend, Nov. 1-10. Fifty teams representing 29 schools and nine states will participate in the tournament. Notre Dame will be represented by 15 students who will divide into three or four sub-teams.

The topic of the competition will be "Resolves. That the Federal Government Should Institute a Comprehensive Program of Land Use Control in the United States." The tournament will consist of eight preliminary rounds in addition to the final rounds.

John Borkowski, debate club assistant, termed the field of this weekend’s competition “extremely good.”

The tournament will be the largest debate competition held on Notre Dame in 39 years.
But drill wastes time

AROTC students satisfied with training

by Bob Mader
Campus Editor

Students in the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps are happy with the leadership they receive and the open relationship they have with the officers.

However, some feel that training has been time consuming. "Drill is too tedious so we give it for only one semester," said the unit commander, Colonel Alvin Gendron. "These kids are too damn bright today."

During the second semester the students have a number of options to choose from as a replacement for drill. A ranger team, drill team, orienteering and map reading and physical training are included in the options.

George Lucas will work with the ranger team. The Irish Raiders, during the second semester are the hardest subjects to adequately learn in a classroom and Lucas likes the opportunity for practical field experience.

"We do reconnaissnance of enemy objectives and go out with our M-14's and shoot at each other," Lucas said.

Lucas said the ranger team learns how to go about finding a sniper and killing him, taking prisoners, and other tactical skills.

The sophomores said this training is good for students who are entering ROTC for the first time.

The students learn from their mistakes, Lucas said. "It's better to mess up here than to lose your country," he continued.

Course of study

Gendron outlined the classroom work done by the students.

Freshmen study political science, military science and the relationship of the President, Pentagon and military.

Sophomores delved into leadership and management techniques.

Juniors take a management course and a one-credit course in military law. None of the students thought the courses were burdensome.

Joseph Pelosi, a military school transfer student described the instructors as "fantastic."

It was noted that many of the instructors were new at the beginning of the year and weren't used to teaching.

Manual explains for landlords duties to off-campus students

by John Calcutt
Staff Reporter

Fr. Thomas Tallarida, director of Off-Campus Housing, explained the new Proprietor's Manual last night which his office has recently formulated.

"The pamphlet is designed to make landlords familiar with their rights and obligations under Indian and South Bend laws and housing codes," stated Tallarida. He also emphasized that the proprietor's manual differs from the student pamphlet in that it elaborates on discrimination laws, the duty of the proprietor to deliver possession of the premises, holding over after the expiration of the tenancy, mold, plumbing, keeping the dwelling clean and safe, prescription of regulations, and the expense of any repairs.

"Tallarida noted that the regulations concerning mediation and inspection deal with a new University policy initiated with the establishment of the Off-Campus Housing Office.

"Written complaints," Fr. Tallarida stated, "may be submitted by either of the parties (proprietors or students) in forms provided by the O-C Housing Office."

Tallarida said that his office will forward the essential information in the form of the complaint to the second party, whether landlord or tenant, with appropriate suggestions of possible solutions to the complaint.

A joint interview will then be arranged if the complaint remains unresolved.

If all mediation fails, Fr. Tallarida said, the action remains the option of both parties. Also, the O-C office reserves the right to pursue an independent course of action in the event that principles stated in the preceding manual have been jeopardized.

Two specific cases were cited as typical examples of the complaints filed already this year.

In the first case, students initiated the mediation procedure by filing a complaint accusing another student of illegal activities.

Fr. Tallarida said, "We then notified the student, the house inspected the house and the results of the inspection were forwarded to the lessor and suggestions for repairs were made."

In the other case, a neighbor to a student residing in an O-C office and reported the tenants of a particular log cabin having loud parties with loud parties continuing well into the night.

The house inspected the neighbors with a complaint form

"We arranged a meeting," stated Fr. Tallarida, "the parties, the neighbor, the proprietor, the neighbor, and the city councilman for the district even attended. And we got the problem worked out."

"The proprietor's Manual," added Fr. Tallarida, "hopefully will lead to better tenant-landlord relations and help to raise the standards of Off-Campus living in general."

The fieldhouse may be done away with. Plans for tearing down the seventh-eighth year-old structure and building a new facility for the Art Department have been circulating for a number of years. Bill Kremer, assistant professor in the Art Department, indicated there was substance to these rumors. "Sure there is substance to the rumors," he said. "They haven't maintained this place at all, all the maintenance is on our hands."

According to Bill Carter, an architecture student who has picked the design of the new Art building as his thesis, the new facility was scheduled to be behind the bookstore and in front of the Art Architecture Building.

Kremer commented he does not think the structure of the fieldhouse has any serious defects. "Any one of the walls is perfectly straight. The Administration Building has more cracks," he said.

"But the school may have to put a little money in the real this year," Kremer pointed out. The roof leaks badly, he said. "Kremer is opposed to tearing down the fieldhouse. He feels the use of the space justifies its existence."

The fieldhouse has brought together elements of the scattered Art Department, he said. "This welding and sculpture are in the fieldhouse. O'Keefe and the Architecture Building house the rest of the department.

"Kremer did offer some criticism of the fieldhouse. He said the space is not being fully utilized. He noted the ceiling is high enough to have a second floor installed. The bleachers could be knocked out for a painting studio since the natural light is good there, he pointed out.

More room needed

Kremer also feels the building is good for the ceramics program and the Art Department. He called the fieldhouse the "biggest ceramics shop in the country."

"We give everyone studio space, so they can develop their personality and not have their work thrown in with a mass of others. It helps them establish identity," he explained.

"This sense of environment develops excitement," Kremer stated.

"Kremer pointed out the applications for graduate studies in art at Notre Dame are on the rise again this year is spite of the tuition. Kremer attributed the fieldhouse space as a major factor in this.

Bill passed to control gas prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - Granting a last-minute concession to the Ford administration, congressional conferees approved a comprehensive energy bill Wednesday that would roll back consumer fuel prices for two years.

Most Republican conferees voted for the compromise and Democratic leaders said the plan is acceptable to administration officials.

Expected acceptance of the plan by the full House and Senate, probably next week, would end a 10-month-long dispute between the Democratic Congress and the Republican President over the shape of national energy policy.

For consumers, the most obvious effect would be a 3.5-cent-per-gallon rollback in the price of gasoline and home-heating oil until about September 1977, when prices would return to today's levels before resuming their upward climb.

The plan accepted unanimously by the seven House conferees and on a 72 to vote by their Senate counterparts is only slightly different from the one accepted last week.

The key difference is a provision in the Senate plan that would result in above-average prices for energy conservation provisions that will begin flowing from Alaska in late 1977.

The pricing provisions are the major part of a comprehensive energy bill that requires automobile manufacturers to build cars that use less fuel and requires the states to enforce energy-conservation plans.

The conference committee is expected to finish work on the bill this week, but that would not allow enough time to get the final version approved by the full House and Senate before current oil-price controls expire on Saturday.

However, the pricing provisions in the bill will be retroactive to Saturday, meaning that oil companies will not be in a position to raise prices without justification pending final approval of the bill by Ford.

Some men just want responsibility.

Be Realistic

Let's be realistic about the calendar — for a change.

The academic calendar for next fall is virtually signed, sealed and delivered. It awaits only the approval of St. Mary's. The calendar is one that almost no one wants. It features a post-Labor Day start, Saturday class in November, and a finishing date very close to Christmas. Its Saturday class in November, and a break in October.

But, barring a massive student uprising, the simple fact is that this calendar will not be changed. Students will again be forced to struggle through another October without a break from the daily grind.

Unfortunately, the only way students may get an October break is to start classes before Labor Day. Last year, a Student Government poll showed the vast majority of students opposed starting before Labor Day. However, the student preference is irrelevant in this case. Based on the guidelines established by the Academic Council last year, the University has already scheduled a conference of Christian Charismatics during the weekend freshman orientation would begin under a pre-Labor Day start. It may prove impossible for the University to break that commitment to the Charismatics.

Some students have proposed that next semester's calendar follow that of fall 1973 with short October and a two-day break in mid-October and a regular Thanksgiving break. This proposal for next semester will meet stiff opposition because the number of class days would dip below 70. Fr. Burchaell and the Academic Council have set 70 days as the required length for any semester.

The basic question concerning the fall calendar is this: despite the near unanimity that some kind of October break is necessary, why can't a satisfactory calendar be adopted? An October break is favored by virtually all the students. In a year when academic pressure on campus is noticeably increased a break is more needed than ever.

What many do not realize is that many administrators favor the October break. Fr. Burchaell has been on record for a week-long break in October since the calendar controversy began over two years ago.

In last year's Student Government poll, 30 percent of the students and 30 percent of the faculty favored a post-Labor Day start and a week-long Thanksgiving break. Thirty-three percent of the students and 31 percent of the faculty favored a calendar like that of fall 1973 with short October and Thanksgiving breaks.

What is most significant is that only 11 percent of the students and 14 percent of the faculty said they favored the calendar we are now all struggling through.

Somehow in last year's confusion over the calendar, the Academic Council voted guidelines that produced a calendar no one wanted. Some students have charged they were short-changed by the Council. What was advertised as an extended Thanksgiving break was merely the two-day break we have now and not the week-long break the students and faculty said they wanted.

Regardless of how this semester's calendar came about, it is important that next fall's calendar include some kind of October break. It would be worthwhile for the University to drop below 70 class days next fall just to grant a two or three-day break in October. The gain in student and faculty rest would more than outweigh the alleged loss in academic quality. Besides, the 70 day requirement is not necessary for academic accreditation.

But, none of next fall's calendar will be changed unless students start to get excited about it. If not, students may be left in the perennial position of Chicago Bear fans: "Wait until next year."
Professors and students react to New York’s financial crisis

by Pat Cuneo
Staff Reporter

In the next few weeks the financial capital of the world, New York City, will fall to bankruptcy unless positive steps are taken by the federal government. Several faculty members and students responded last night to President Ford’s failure to back the larger center of world trade. Dr. John Malone, associate dean and director of the graduate division of Business Administration, summed up the feelings of those interviewed.

"I feel this is a very serious economic question and any inaction by President Ford and the Federal Government is simply hard to understand," said Malone.

Malone believes the government should initiate a guarantee program and stand behind the city.

By this, the government would take the position of guaranteeing the municipal bonds, thereby making them marketable. Otherwise, the bonds would become worthless.

"Acting as 'co-signers' of the bonds, the government could prevent disastrous situations in banks, the markets of other American cities and economic recovery of the country," said Malone.

Budget reforms needed

On the other hand, Malone said the government should insist that New York set up budgetary reforms and various other reforms so the dilemma could be avoided in the future.

Similarly, Professor Emeritus of Finance Dr. Raymond Kent said Ford is quite wrong in his attitude toward New York City.

"It’s simply not sensible for a President to make a move like this especially when he’s up for re-election," commented Kent.

Kent felt that permitting New York to default is a very serious mistake for the entire country as well as foreign international market.

"We shouldn’t be exceedingly difficult to borrow in the international market as interest rates will soar even higher than they are now," Kent explained.

"We can only mean a spring back into deeper recession," he added.

Eleanor Popeken, a senior government major who lives in the Bronx, reacted to her city’s peril.

"I love the city, I really do and it has contributed a lot to the country. Now when we are in trouble we can get no support," she noted.

Popeken went on, "New York City has the largest welfare program in the country and the migration of taxpayers has resulted in not enough tax money to support this program. It’s getting so bad that the Metropolitan Opera House had to close down for a few days."

Nob Sax, a freshman business major from a New Jersey suburb, was "upset" by Ford’s inaction.

"It’s most important that New York stay on its feet because it represents the people of the U.S. in foreign lands," he pointed out.

Sax added, "I can just imagine the economic bust if the federal government refuses to back the city. People won’t be jumping out of windows this time, they’ll be pushing congressmen and presidents out."

Sophomore government major Dave Nani said, "The only thing in New York worth saving is the Mets." He quickly added, "Seriously, the financial situation would be in ruin and both the city and country would be plummeted into economic disaster."

Nani continued, "In order to get re-elected, Ford would have to carry both California and New York and if he goes through with his plan of idleness, New York surely won’t vote for him."

New York City is on the verge of bankruptcy and President Ford continues to withhold the necessary financial aid.

Ford lenient to NYC; aid still not promised

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is adopting a more flexible stance toward New York City’s fiscal problems but still is not promising any financial aid, administration sources said today.

The change in stance, which was described as one of offering “encouragement,” resulted partly from steps city and state officials have taken and partly from adverse reaction to President Ford’s hard-line, no-bailout statement on Oct. 27.

Ford was said to be considering a new statement on New York City, although a firm decision reportedly has not been made.

However, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said the President’s position remains unchanged on any promise of financial aid, Nessen repeated the comment for emphasis.

While Ford is “encouraged by the city and the state,” officials are doing to solve their own problems, Nessen said, the President has always believed New York City can avoid default.

There has been a considerable shift in the last 24 hours in the position of many officials in the administration, the Congress and the Federal Reserve Board, who previously had opposed federal help for the city.

The New York Post, meanwhile, said state officials are optimistically awaiting word, which they expect today or Thursday, that President Ford has reversed his pledge not to help the city until it has gone into default.

Their hope is that Ford will accept the state’s last-ditch maneuver to raise taxes, cut the city pensions, lower interest payments to banks and lay off more city workers to win federal loan guarantees to block default, the newspaper said.

At the same time, the stock market accelerated in buying, stockbrokers said, indicating a resumption of confidence in the city’s financial future.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 7.48 at 846.03. Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 7-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

New York officials presented their plans for restoring financial soundness to New York City during a two-hour meeting Tuesday with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board and L. William Seidman, economic adviser to Ford.

But one participant at the meeting, Assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald L. Pasky, said of the plan that “the very tentative nature of it makes it difficult for us to focus on it.”

Nessen said Ford has not talked to Bush recently about the city’s problems.

Other sources, however, said administration officials are encouraged by recent steps by New York city and state officials and therefore Ford’s advisers are recommending he take a more flexible stance toward the city to demonstrate this “encouragement.”

“Clearly we have always felt avoiding a default is something we all wanted to do, but the principal responsibility for doing that lay at the state and local level,” said one source.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and Burns both have indicated that opposition to federal aid for New York City is softening.

The first presidential primary in New Hampshire has run in most of the others. He said other candidates have already spent much time and money in New Hampshire and that he is not "ducking" it.

"I just feel like you have nothing to gain and everything to lose" by campaigning there, he said.

He said Massachusetts would be his first primary test, and added, "I'm not supposed to get any votes in Massachusetts... I think we'll do better.

The 66-year-old governor, surrounded by his wife Cornelia and family, looked fit and raised repeated cheers from about 100 supporters, including a small number of blacks.

The crowd boosed a reporter who asked the partially paralyzed Wallace if he would submit to a medical examination by an independent team of doctors. And it laughed when Wallace answered by saying: "One group of doctors says 'cut him open.' The next group says 'new him up.'"

But he added: "If other candidates want to submit to this board, I'll consider it."

Wallace, who was crippled by a bullet in a car accident, was later asked once again about his health and said, "Yes, I'm tired. I'll tell you what I'm tired of. I'm tired of people asking me about my health."

When asked if he would accept the vice-presidential nomination, Wallace said, "I'm not running for vice president, but you don't want to paint yourself into a corner... I just don't think that I would."

US leaders to speak on alcohol

Notre Dame will host a three-day seminar on alcohol abuse prevention from Nov. 21-23 in the Center for Continuing Education.

More than 125 students, faculty and administrators from 43 colleges and universities will hear talks by national leaders focusing on education, rather than prohibition.

Notre Dame student government and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA) are co-sponsoring the seminar.

The focus of the seminar and followup activities is to provide the university community with accurate information to assist in making responsible decisions.

The seminar is not part of an existing drinking campaign or the beginning of a new federal effort to control the drinking habits of Americans, organizers said.

By Phoebe Hagan, director of the division of prevention of the NIAAA, the seminar is a culmination of visits by staff members to 43 schools during the last 12 months.

Their objective, he said, was to disseminate information about alcohol abuse and to encourage campus leaders to take a critical look at drinking behavior on their campuses.

As a result of these meetings, an estimated 32 projects and activities have been initiated at the campuses visited.

Special task forces on alcohol have been established at seven colleges and 14 schools have undertaken education projects for residence hall advisors.

Another 18 schools have held or are planning “alcohol awareness days” on their campuses.

When the 43 campus visits were completed, an editorial board has established a program of students and faculty interested in alcohol education.

The editorial board helped develop the first draft of a manual on alcohol education and information projects.

One of the tasks of the seminar participants, according to campus communities across the nation to imitate successful programs.

By involving students, faculty and administrators in this project, we have served as a catalyst in this effort but the university community has been the real force behind the development of this manual, Phelps said.

Much of the material in the draft of the manual is based on alcohol information and education projects that are operating on the campuses visited.

As many as 100 different projects and activities are described in detail along with information on how to get such a project underway.

MURDERS STILL UNSOLVED

By Jerry Buck, Associate Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The first victim of the Skid Row slasher was found nearly a year ago on the lawn of the Los Angeles Public Library. His throat was slashed from ear to ear.

It was Dec. 1, 1974, and it was considered just another skid row murder.

Seven days later another decedent was found dead in a skid row alley. Then another.

And by then the murderer was out of town.

But when the murder volunteered for a “Skid Row Slasher” and police had organized a special police unit to track the killer, one of the biggest manhunts in the city was underway.

Still, he continued to stalk his victims, cutting their necks through the spine.

Then the murder moved out of state, unseen.

But a victim was found on Jan. 31. Then nothing.

Dozens of skid row murders - the latest last week - have been minutely studied, but no link has been established between these murders and the slasher.

“The man who lives on the street is his own history,” said Lt. Dan Cooke, a spokesman for the Los Angeles Police Department.

“They live day to day anyway. Even at the time they never cared about it one way or the other.”

“The biggest concern was caused by the last two victims, who were killed away from skid row. Then people began to say, ‘It could have been me.’”

The case remains unsolved.

No one has been charged. The slasher squad, down to a few detectives, is still at work and a Los Angeles County grand jury is expected to hear evidence in the case soon.

Moreau Gallery to show American nature paintings

“Seascapes, Landscapes, and Still Life,” an exhibition of paintings by B.J.O. Nordfeldt, will open in the Moreau-Main Gallery at 11 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 22.

Included in the exhibit are 32 paintings on loan from the University of Minnesota.

As a student, Nordfeldt travelled through England, Italy, North Africa and France and worked in New Mexico where he produced many paintings and prints and developed his southwestern landscapes.

After teaching briefly in Utah, Minnesota, and Kansas, he moved to Jersey where he painted during the last 30 years of his life.

Nordfeldt’s paintings are American in spirit, and his work is stylistically associated with that of John Marin, Marsden Hartley, and Arthur Dove.

The exhibit will run until Monday, December 8. Gallery hours are from noon to 5 p.m. daily and admission is free.
Seaver knew exactly how the National League's best pitcher felt when the Baseball Writers Association of America announced Wednesday that he had won the Cy Young Award.

"I'm sure it was a big disappointment for him," said Seaver. "I've gone through the same thing."

Seaver and Jones, the NL's only 20-game winners, were considered the only real candidates for the trophy that goes to the league's best pitcher. The writers picked Seaver, giving him 98 points to 80 for Jones, of the San Diego Padres.

"I thought the voting would be closer," said Seaver, who had won the award twice before, after leading the New York Mets to pennants in 1969 and 1973. He didn't win it in 1971, a year in which he felt he was the best pitcher in baseball.

"I felt I pitched well enough to win in '71," he said. "But they gave it to Ferguson Jenkins. If Jenkins had won it this year, I wouldn't have felt as bad as I did in '71."

In 1971, Seaver started on the final day of the season and won his 26th game. It was no coincidence that he also started the final game of the 1975 season and won No. 19.

"Yes, that was partially why I started that last game," Seaver said. "The club wanted to give me the best shot it could at winning the award."

Seaver, who set a major league record with his eighth straight season of 200 or more strikeouts, had a 2.9 record and a 2.38 earned run average. He received 15 first place votes and 21 seconds. The BBWAA committee.

Seaver was the best pitcher in baseball.
Nixon appraiser guilky of perjury

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court jury today found literary appraiser Ralph G. Newman guilty of lying about the date Richard M. Nixon gave his vice-presidential papers to the nation to claim an illegal $450,000 tax break.

The U.S. District Court jury deliberated nearly five hours before returning the verdict to Judge Frank J. McGarr.

Newman, 64, a Lincoln scholar and president of the Chicago Library Board, was accused of lying to the Internal Revenue Service about his appraisal of the Nixon documents. He was accused of backdating Nixon’s papers to allow the former president an illegal $450,000 tax break for donating his vice-presidential papers to the National Archives.

The jury retired Tuesday night after deliberating for three hours. The jury foreman, Ingram Millar of U.S. Dist. Court, said the five-voter, seven-man jury was not close to a verdict.

Newman faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

In closing arguments, the government contended that Newman backdated a deed to the papers in an effort to avoid the constraints of the Tax Reform Act of 1969 which disallowed tax deductions on such donations.

Testimony by Jay Horowitz told the jury that 600,000 items were delivered March 27, 1969, for storage in the National Archives.

The case had been disallowed until April 1979, nearly nine months after the Tax Reform Act took effect on July 26, 1969.

Horowitz said Nixon claimed a tax deduction in 1969 tax return and took a $450,000 deduction on $1,000 fine.

Newman and Frank DeMarco were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last March 3-6 at Stepan Center.

ND swimathon set for Nov 23

by Dave Gill

The varsity swim team’s annual swimathon has been set for 7 p.m. Nov. 23, at the Rockne Memorial Swimming pool.

The swimathon was started four years ago to finance programs for the retarded at Logan Center and Carville.

"Also," said senior swimmer Bob DiTolla, "it helps finance a civic training program for us.

"In the past, we’ve gone to San Juan, Puerto Rico, this year we may go to Florida or Arizona," he added.

"The money is also sent to the international Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to sponsor clinics and swimming programs.

The swimathon consists of each team member swimming 100 meters, which is a part of the Notre Dame 1976 Mock Convention."

Mock convention to have St. Mary’s women’s caucus

by Paul Walter

A women’s caucus is being formed at St. Mary’s College as a part of the Notre Dame 1976 Mock Convention.

The caucus will be mainly concerned with informing the delegates and the platform writers on some of the major issues concerning women, according to co-chairpersons Ellen Minter and Grace Restive.

Beginning on Turn, Nov. 20, the group will begin holding meetings to decide which topics will be covered and then the approximately 60 volunteers will start researching.

Minter, a senior at St. Mary’s, said that some of the topics might include the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, or family planning.

"Our major job will be to provide research," she stated, "and then we will hold hearings to inform the writers of the platform on the issues involved."

Minter said they would also request delegates to attend these meetings and invite local speakers.

Minter said that the research would include such things as seeing how a particular senator feels about a certain issue.

The mock convention will be held March 3-4 at Stepan Center.

SMC sophomores to sponsor dance

SMC sophomore College class will sponsor a semi-formal dinner at the Holiday Inn in Niles, Nov. 23.

Approximately 250 students are expected to attend.

Cocktails at 6 p.m. will feature a chance to be with good people for Mass and informal supper.

When three players are aiming to get into the college college in the country what more can a coach ask for than a trio of juniors making a scoring junior line of Clark Hamilton, Alex Pirrus and Brian Walsh. The trio has been a shining light of this year’s hockey campaign.

The coach, Lefty Hamilton, can think of one more thing, an NCAA championship for his team and if Hamilton, Pirrus and Walsh realize their goal Lefty could get his wish.

Last year Notre Dame lost some key individuals to injuries, academic ineligibility which caused some big changes in the roles different players had been playing. This year the team is fully healthy, but for sure, if we put the bulk of the scoring responsibility on a line like Clark Hamilton, Alex Pirrus and Brian Walsh, it would be a victory on all fronts. The trio has scored a total of 34 goals in their initial campaign. Walsh had accounted for half of this total.

But some players respond best when the pressure is on. In that role they will do just what these three sophomore- delimited line did in their first season of collegiate hockey in the country. In the regular season they had accounted for 64 goals, a little less than half of all the goals produced for the 1974-75 season. Brian Walsh emerged as team leader in scoring, Alex Pirrus in leadership. Pirrus and Hamilton followed their role in the first season’s scoring category, managing 23 and 21 goals respectively, each with a total of 28. As a unit they became...

Rumors, denials, incessant bowl talk and constant criticism seems to dominate the Notre Dame sports page these days. Let’s find out and find out what’s really going on.

"Devil HAILED OR MU?

The latest of the DeVine-centered rumors comes from the pages of the Michigan State student newspaper, the State News. In Friday’s edition the paper claimed MU officials had been in contact with several of the Michigan State athletic directors.

When the State News spoke with Devine last Thursday afternoon, the Notre Dame coach was quoted as saying, "I cannot make any statements on that.

Late Friday afternoon, Devine issued a denial through the Notre Dame News saying part of the quote in the paper, "I don’t have any intention of leaving here. I’m happy at Notre Dame."

What gives the story credibility is that Devine reached and received his master’s degree from Michigan. He was an assistant at Eastern Michigan for four years before taking the head job at Arizona State last season.

Yet the offer would have to be a sweet one for Devine to consider leaving DuLaC. Besides who would want to get into the mess they have at MU. The football program is under NCAA investigation and the basketball program is ruled by diension.

So this story belongs with the earlier reports of Devine’s future in the thoroughly undefined column.

Cloned PAPER SAYS BAND IS PREPARING FOR COTTON BOWL

Credit the Chicago Sun-Times for this piece of nonsense this morning about a band at MU. In its story today the paper quoted an unnamed source saying that the Notre Dame band will be coming to MU to prepare for the Cotton Bowl against Oklahoma.

"That’s untrue," Robert O’Brien, the band director, told the paper, "Our band simply doesn’t operate that way.

"That’s ridiculous, too," Ed Krause, Notre Dame’s athletic director added. "We have no idea where any band is going to play. Even the decision is subject to a vote of the athletic board, the players and coaches, and we have not asked to be included."

I find it odd if the band members got to vote.

ELI WHITNEY WANTS NOTRE DAME

An information bureau today that if Elliot Whitney were alive be he would want Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl. In his handwriting the letter is a personal note in an attempt to convince the athletic director...

"I want to ask if the band members got to vote."

"I want to see Elliot be happy in the Cotton Bowl."

The letter is another indication of how times have changed. If you think Notre Dame is going to be best Pittsburgh Saturday, then...

The Notre Dame cross country team resumes its schedule this Saturday when they participate in the NCAA District 4 qualifying meet. The meet will be run over a hilly, six mile course in Bloomington, Indiana and is to begin at 10 a.m.

Coach Joe Pante is optimistic about the Irish fortunes last year, we had the most individuals from one team to qualify for the nationals in the like of Joe Yates and Jim Hurt. We hope to qualify again this year.

"Boys and girls you need to be in top form this year," Pante told the Irish. "You have been working hard, and the work will pay off."

Cheerleaders and Band Under Fire

Never before has there been such an appalled criticism against the symbols of the spirit of the Irish. The Notre Dame fans have never needed a band or any other form of stimulant to gain support. The cheerleaders and band are doing their best to incorporate new ideas into the Notre Dame tradition.

These organizations change from year to year as do the members of the football team. If taken with the correct attitude, one can see no reason to be irate about the condition of our band and cheerleaders. Everyone is supposed out there to have fun. Why is it that some zealots desire for us to be slaves to the tradition? All that criticism can’t be warranted."
