Calendar dates announced

by Pat Cuneo
Senior Staff Reporter

Dean of Administration Leo Corbacci announced yesterday the selection of Sept. 11 as the Saturday class day providing for a 70-day academic calendar for the fall semester.

The Saturday class day substitutes for the Friday class for Thanksgiving break, thus allowing students a four-day Thanksgiving break. The Friday sequence of classes will be transferred to Saturday.

The 10-day calendar begins Aug. 31 with the mid-semester break scheduled for Oct. 16 through 24 and Thanksgiving break for Nov. 25 through 28.

The last class day will be Dec. 14 with finals ending Dec. 21. Corbacci explained Sept. 11 was selected as the Saturday class day because it did not conflict with any athletic events, especially football games.

When Saturday classes were employed in past years, they were scheduled at the end of the semester. "It was more or less a loss-toss, up but we figured an earlier date would be better," Corbacci said.

Corbacci and officials of St. Mary's College collaborated on the final draft of the fall calendar and said the spring session remains unchanged.

No further Saturday classes "Saturday class days in future schedules will most likely not be necessary," Corbacci stated. Mike Gassman, academic commissioner, was satisfied with the calendar on a whole.

"For the first time, the students got the schedule they wanted," he said. "We pressured breaks and we start as late as possible and end as early as possible," he stated.

Gassman added, "Due to the calendar itself, the Saturday class day couldn't be avoided without going 70 days.

Gassman believes the calendar incident was one of the first times the students became concerned with their administrative policy and their views were heard as they brought about a change in the calendar.

The students wanted a calendar with two breaks, they were probably going 70 days and they were consistent with the calendar they wanted," Gassman explained.

He continued, "The administration is going to have a calendar to provide for a Thanksgiving break as requested.

The question still remains whether the students will go to class on a Saturday.

Visitors blamed for Fisher theft

by Frank Tennant
Staff Reporter

The Fisher Hall burglars were not Notre Dame students, according to Dean of Students James Roemer.

"The students and resident assistants in the halls along with students staying up late can do the job as effectively as the monitors.

Pears argued that in many cases rectors did not want monitors.

No increase in burglaries

Pears pointed out there was no increase in the number of burglaries this year over the same time period last year. With the burglaries being minimal," he sees no justification to bring back the monitors.

"The students and resident assistants can do what the monitors did, and even better, if they want to become involved," he said. Pears added any rector could simply ask by a vote.

Fr. Carl Eby, rector of Fisher Hall, said, although there is no crisis stage on campus, he would like to see the monitors back.

He added they cannot stop everything. If the monitor is in the basement, he cannot prevent something on the fourth floor, he concluded.

Hall retails monitor

Cavanaugh is one hall which still has a monitor.

Mike Pavlik, president, said, "The security in our hall has been adequate." All doors, except the front, are locked at parietals and the monitor can see all that goes on.

Pavlik stated, "the measures taken in the hall have been a great deterrent to burglaries.

"I think it is in the basement, he cannot prevent something on the fourth floor, he concluded.

Vote by Faculty Senate

Appointments policy to be reviewed

by Bob Betnik
Staff Reporter

The Faculty Senate voted last night to resubmit its Committee on Administration of the University proposal for further consideration a proposal that would revise the current procedure for appointments of principal academic officers.

Under the current appointment procedure, only department chairmen are appointed for specified terms, with one or more principal officers appointed for indefinite terms, but are subject to review every five years.

These officers include the provost, the vice-president for advanced studies, the deans of colleges, the dean of the Law School, the dean of the Freshman Year of Studies and the director of University libraries.

The Senate Committee on Administration of the University proposed that appointments of these officials be for specified terms. They also recommended that the process of periodic review be replaced by a process of reappointment.

Alberta Ross, chairperson of the Senate subcommittee, said the change is necessary "because no body is exactly sure what the review process is." According to Ross, the committee would open up the review process and make it easier to replace deans.

However, Senate members could not agree on the exact wording of the proposal.

Thousands killed

Powerful earthquake shakes Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala AP—A tremendous earthquake jolted a 2000 mile strip from Central America into Mexico before dawn Wednesday with the brunt of its force centered in Guatemala City.

Walls crashed onto sleeping inhabitants and one report said as many as 2,000 persons were killed.

Col. Manuel Angel Ponce, the chief of staff said the figure of 2,000 dead is "conservative." He added that "almost everyone" were coming in from the interior of the country 15 hours after the earthquake struck at 3:04 a.m. local time and sent hundreds of thousands of tons of earth spouting smoke when dawn broke.

Search teams put the magnitude at 7.5 on the Richter scale. "We would call it a major earthquake," said a spokesman at the U.S. National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

"A magnitude of 8 would be a great earthquake."

Officials said they feared many were killed as the buildings collapsed while the residents slept.

Many persons can have been in a daze through the debris-choked streets trying to find possessions. Rescue efforts were hampered by the rubble scattered small fires, and at least 15 aftershocks that brought down already weakened buildings.

A volcano south of the city was spouting smoke when dawn broke.

There were no reports of casualties in the other affected countries of Honduras and El Salvador, to the southeast of Guatemala, and Mexico, to the northwest. However, the northern part of Panama as reported very heavy damage estimates.

Guatemalan government and rescue authorities in the stricken town of 4.5 million inhabitants were trying to compile an estimate of the dead and injured but hours after the quake had still made no official report.
Fire kills ten

NEW YORK—A smoky fire sent poisonous fumes through an upper West Side apartment house early today, killing 10 persons, seven of them children, and wounding 10 others. Thirty families were driven out into subfreezing weather.

The blaze in the six-story building on West 94th Street near the Hudson River apparently began around 12:20 a.m. in an overstuffed chair in a first-floor rear apartment, fire officials said. It spread rapidly up to the back of the building through pipe recesses.

Ervin's sister is hostage

RICHMOND, Va.—Heavily armed police today surrounded a Richmond home in which a gunman had holed up with several hostages, including the agesister of former North Carolina Sen. Sam Ervin.

They said Ervin's sister, Laura Hall, 90 and totally disabled, was among those in the house in which the gunman took refuge after firing at pursuing officers during an automobile chase.

On February 28, InPIRG will hold an Environmental Education Seminar for grade school teachers. Project Chairperson Julie Englehart says the purpose of the seminar is to give the teachers ideas to use in the classrooms. Environmental education now is often just short sessions on ecology. We want to instill environmental values through other areas like English and history, too.

Dave Carlyle will head a study on area nursing homes. Carlyle hopes the study will not only turn up any cases neglect on the part of the nursing homes, but also serve as a comparative study to be used by older members of the South Bend community. Among the other projects planned is a food pricing survey to follow up a similar survey done last semester.

Also a study of testing services used at the Universities, and investigations of various aspects of local government are scheduled to be undertaken.

The success of these projects and of InPIRG in general, hinges on finding the solutions to two major problems: financing and volunteers.

South Bend may stop movies

(continued from page 1) from the films, provides a multitude of campus organizations with money to run their activities. If these funds become nonexistent, then campus-wide activities such as parties, outings, free concerts and science fairs could cease to exist. The money from the Services Commission also keeps down the student fee. ‘Perhaps the most serious result would be no weekend movies, which are very often the only social activities for many students,’ she said.

With concerts kept to a minimum this semester, movies become a necessary social activity, the films co-ordinator noted.

Lafayette Blvd., in the Main Gallery. Along with prints by such masters as Picasso, Goya, Renoir and Hogarth, can be seen works by many of today's American artists.

Vending machines
Waddick said the lack of security hurts halls when they try to get vending machine games. He claimed, "The companies seem to think Notre Dame has a reputation for vandalism." "This makes it hard for a hall to do business with them," he added. Ford Vending Co. has no machines at Notre Dame this year although in previous years they have a representative said they had too much trouble and it was not worth it to have machines here. He noted money was stolen from machines in Grace and the backs of machines were ripped off in Howard and last year. The representative said the company would do nothing if better security were provided.

On the other hand, Michiana Vending Sales services Fisher, Grace and Morrisey this year. The representative said in three years there have been only five break-ins.

Morrisey is the only hall in which they had trouble this year. He claimed this was not as bad as in some other places they have machines.

Michiana Vending Sales insists on some type of supervision because the machines are expensive. This is provided by the halls.

The spokesman said most places will not let you have machines if there is no supervision.

He said he would talk with Pears about "more effectively using the security staff of Security." He does not see the Fisher incident as a justification for hiring more people.

Roemer said, "there is no crime wave on campus." He said he is pleased with the situation this year.
Vietnamese in South Bend

by Eileen O'Grady

South Bend, like many other cities across the country, has seen a steady increase in the number of Vietnamese refugee families. A revolt in South Vietnam for a rising number of Vietnamese refugees. Nearly 100 immigrants have already applied for parole here and began the pioneering process for a new life.

The journey from Vietnam to South Bend was a long and arduous process for most of these 10 families. After their escape from South Vietnam, they were placed in the refugee camp at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas. Case workers from Fort Chaffee contacted the South Bend Catholic Social Services in search of sponsor families. The Social Services then contacted the churches in the area. They responded with names of families who volunteered to sponsor Vietnamese families. As more South Bend families volunteered, more Vietnamese families were brought up from Ft. Chaffee. However, there are still 10,000 Vietnamese still at the camp.

The Catholic Social Services have been the real driving force behind the adjustment here in South Bend. The program collects clothes, food, and money from parishes for various parishes for all the Vietnamese to come to know people in the community. They also publish a bilinguAl monthly newsletter, entitled New Life. Informing the families of new arrivals, social events and general information about their new community. Their most important function is to provide the Vietnamese families with the sponsors.

According to Pierre Kondordor, the Vietnamese coordinator for the Catholic Social Services and a Vietnamese refugee himself, the role of the sponsor is to help the family adjust to the American lifestyle.

"The sponsor receives the family into their house, gives them food, assists them with money and helps them in looking for jobs, until they become self-sufficient," he explains.

The Nguyen Family

The Nguyen family, for example, has nine sponsors. They immediately placed the family in a home of their own. The Housing Assistance Program aided the sponsors in finding the house and helps the family afford payments through loans and monthly payments, instead of money down. The sponsors also donated all the furniture for the house, helped pay the rent for the first few months, supplied them in the beginning and helped Mr. Nguyen and his 17 year old son Long find jobs.

"My family and I spent the first week once a week and discuss what else needs to be done for them. One of the next things is to get a car, driver's license and insurance for the family. Hank Kondorl, one of the sponsors, explained that they really want to be independent fast and not be a burden on us. I think they'll integrate just like everyone else," he added.

The Nguyen family has seven children, ranging in age from 3 to two years old. The parents are young, in their middle thirties. They have been in South Bend since Sept. 30, and spent three months at Ft. Chaffee. Mr. Nguyen works as an assistant maintenance man at Imaginering Enterprises, Inc. in Vietnam, he was a policeman. His wife Long works at Halk's Friendly Super Market, and together they provide the family's income. Both speak very broken English.

Two of the children attend Central Catholic School with the rest of the Collax Elementary School. They have caught on to English much more quickly than their parents, with 12 year old Lin actually interpreting for the rest of the family. She claims they all like school and have many friends there. She does not find much difference between school here and back in Vietnam, although "the math is very easy here," Lin states.

Most of the 10 Vietnamese families in South Bend are large, with an average of six to a family. One family may consist of the immediate members along with grandparents and other relatives. At least one member of every family can speak English well enough to manage. The married son is usually the head of the household yet most of the adult males in the household, along with a few of the women.

The adjustment sometimes has been hardest on the Vietnamese women. Their role in the Vietnamese culture is usually one of housewife and mother, so they have little exposure to English and the American society outside their family.

Employment

All but two of the families have at least one person employed. "Generally the kind of jobs they get here are of lower skill than what they had in Vietnam," explains Roger Parent, in charge of recruiting sponsors for the Catholic Social Services.

"Those who were soldiers cannot translate the skills needed here or learn the language fast enough," he adds. He gives the example of a man who was a lieutenant colonel in charge of construction in Vietnam and is now a custodian at St. Mary's Day Care Center. Two other who were also soldiers in Vietnam are now working at McDonald's.

Other professional men are having more success at finding jobs. An accountant from Vietnam works for an accounting firm in South Bend, a pediatrician from Vietnam is currently taking courses for a license to practice in this country. Dr. Le Thanh Minh Chau was the rector of the University of Hue, and is now the assistant to the Vice President of Advanced Studies at Notre Dame. His wife, Dr. Le Tan Dat, is a pediatrician in Vietnam. She now is a graduate assistant at the Law School at Notre Dame and will be teaching a course there next semester.

Donohue new head of CAC

by Paul Stevenson
Staff Reporter

Maura Donohue has been named cultural arts commissioner by Tom Birsch, Student Union Director. Donohue, last semester's assistant commissioner, replaced Chris Mauren, who resigned for personal reasons.

Donohue has been with the Student Union for two years. Last year, she worked for the Services Commission as editor of the off-campus news letter and for the Cultural Arts Commission on the Sophomore Literary Festival.

The Cultural Arts Commission sponsors such events as the Midwest Blues Festival, the Sophomore Literary Festival, the Collegiate Jazz Festival, Cinema '76, the dance and drama series, and the Isis Gallery.

"The Midwest Blues, the Sophomore Literary Festival and the Collegiate Jazz Festival require a great deal of administrative coördination and financial planning," Birsch said.

"Chris was an extremely capable commissioner and his decision not to return this semester was quite a disappointment, but we feel that Maura is capable of handling the commission equally as well," he added.

Donohue and her assistant, Gerald Doyle, will oversee the workings of the Cultural Arts Commission.

"There won't be too many changes this semester," Donohue said. "Everything will stay basically the same."

"The budget for the year was established last semester, and that is what has to be observed," she explained. "The main thing will be to reduce last year's expenses which were exorbitantly high."

"The new position requires a whole new perspective with an emphasis on coördination in events within the commission's budget and relating the Cultural Arts Commission to the Student Union as a whole," Birsch said.

"I feel Maura will do quite well. She is enthusiastic and is learning very quickly," she noted.

The two major events Donohue must conduct this semester are the Sophomore Literary Festival and the Collegiate Jazz Festival.

Both of these campus events involve complicated finances which require undivided attention, Birsch said. The Sophomore Literary Festival, for example, has a budget of $11,000 provided by the Student Union that Donohue must administer.

"The new position requires a whole new perspective with an emphasis on coördination in events within the commission's budget and relating the Cultural Arts Commission to the Student Union as a whole," Birsch said.

"I feel Maura will do quite well. She is enthusiastic and is learning very quickly," he noted.

So. Cal. doctors to end slowdown

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Southern California doctors voted Wednesday to end a 35-day malpractice insurance protest slowdown and a spokesman said doctors would be back in their offices as normal on Thursday.

Dr. Richard Corlin, a spokesman for United Physicians of California, said the physicians' group voted to end the slowdown during a meeting and decided that "phase one, to bring about a resolution of the medical malpractice insurance problem - the job action - has come to a successful conclusion."

Corlin said the vote was "unanimous" among the 300 doctors' statewide representatives in attendance.

UPC says that about 23,000 of its members took part in the slowdown. The group claims membership of about 80 per cent of the 41,000 doctors in the state.

Despite protests of the exorbitant malpractice insurance rates, many of the doctors have paid the new rates.

Corlin said doctors would "continue pressure in other ways."
Collegiate seminar class evaluated

by William Shawshinm
Staff Reporter

Staffing is the major problem in the present Collegiate Seminar, according to the approximately twenty students who attended the open forum concerning the course in the lounge of the Library Auditorium yesterday afternoon.

The forum was conducted by the committee appointed by Isabel Char-les, acting dean of the College of Arts and Letters, to evaluate the Seminar. The committee listened to the students for over an hour.

A major concern of the students was the lack of interest shown by their instructors. Many felt their teachers did not want to teach the course and consequently came to class poorly prepared.

Other students questioned the qualifications of their teachers.

Student Mike Lavalle commented, "If the University is committed to the interests of its students, it should provide qualified teachers.

The sizes of the individual sections also came under fire. One student commented, "My seminar is so big that each person can only make a two-sentence comment about a book instead of discussing it." It was noted limiting the class size would alleviate the problem of unnecessarily lengthy discussions.

The syllabus of the course was also discussed. Students pointed out the material was covered too quickly, often to the extent that the book was not given enough attention.

Tony Zipple, another student, proposed extending the seminar over four or six semesters to insure that each book is covered in depth. Other students suggested covering fewer books during the present two semester seminar.

Zipple also proposed grading the seminar on a pass-fail basis. Student Mark Grove felt this would eliminate "the student who feels obligated to spout a number of comments to receive a 'A', but pays no attention to the quality of what he is saying."

Grove also felt students should have more say in choosing the books they read. He said this would result in students reading the books more thoroughly.

One student also said students should be able to choose their instructors, if possible instead of being assigned arbitrarily to a particular section.

There was, however, praise as well as criticism for the seminar. All but one student were in favor of continuing the course.

Those in favor of continuing the course, structure, the exposure to students outside their specialized majors, the acquisition of analytical skill and the knowledge gained about Western culture as benefits of the course.

One student, Bruce Zerfas, countered, "I do not see what is so vital about Collegiate Seminar. The classes are usually dominated by a few students, which leads to poor discussions."

"The books chosen have no value. I feel the course should be optional instead of required," he added.

12th Winter Olympics begin

INNSBRUCK (AP) - The East German team set records in both the men's and women's luge events Wednesday and a Colorado couple grabbed hold of third place in ice dancing as the 12th Winter Olympics opened in this Alpine capital.

Defeat Guenther, a 23-year-old East German technician, sped down the luge run on his back on a tiny sled in a record time of 42.85 seconds to edge three West German competitors to run in three more times. Total times in the races which continue through Saturday decide the medalists.

Margit Schumann of East Germany edged West German unknown Monika Schettschik by a tenth of a second in record time of 1:47.33.

The Games were formally opened with 90 minutes of fanfare on an Alpine hillside.

Competition hits full stride Thursday with medals events in the men's 50-kilometer ski event, the men's downhill ski event and the women's 1.5-meter speed-skating event.

On Friday, the U.S. hockey team takes on what looks like an impossibly shoddy chance of defeating virtually the same Russian team that overwhelmed the professional Hockey League in a series last month.

The men race 1,220 meters, the women 850 meters. The women's luge run opened with 90 minutes of fanfare on an Alpine hillside.

In 1976 the East Germans showed the world they could win an Olympic luge event with the team of World Cup champions Margit Schumann and Monika Schettschik.

The Germans set a world record by posting a time of 1:47.33.

The hours get awfully lonely!

Answer to question. Gay Community of Notre Dame. Morning Bible study, 7:45 a.m.-9:45 a.m., open to all;

Record crowd watches A.D. bomb LaSalle with season-high 41 points in Irish's 108-89 win

by Ernie Torriero

In one of the best total team efforts of the season the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame downed La Salle, 108-89, before the largest throng ever to witness a collegiate basketball game in the history of Pennsylvania.

Twelve Notre Dame players saw action in a performance highlighted by the devastating play of consensus All-American Adrian Dantley. Dantley scored 41 points and tied his career high of 17 rebounds before leaving the contest for the first time with just over two minutes left.

Total team effort was the password of victory as Notre Dame boasted four players in double figures. Freshman center Bruce Flowers hit for a career high 14 points while Dock Williams and Toby Knight netted 13 apiece.

The Irish fell off the first eight points of the contest before Explorer guard Charlie Wise hit the first La Salle points of the evening. "Sweet Charlie" as he is known to the City of Brotherly Love, was to net 16 points in his losing cause.

With La Salle in a man-to-man defense and 6'10" guard Daryl Charles guarding the taller Dantley, the Notre Dame scoring machine was working like a well-oiled machine. Dantley's jumper with 8:30 left in the half gave Notre Dame a commanding 27-12 advantage.

It was the great height advantage that helped net Dantley a first time with just over two minutes left. Dantley scored 41 points and tied his career high with just over two minutes left. Dantley's performance gave Notre Dame a commanding 27-12 advantage.

The Irish reached the century mark when Bernard Rencher hit a free throw at the 2:24 left in the game. Digger Phelps substituted for the 9 minutes remaining minutes as the huge crowd of 16,297 prepared for the second game of the college basketball extravaganza between Villanova and South Carolina.

Fighting Irish: Dantley's 41 points gives him an even 1000 in his storied career. His 17 rebounds marks a career high net this year vs. Texas Tech and last year against Kentucky.

If the Notre Dame hockey team is to make the top four places of the WCHA for the season, they must get some home birth for the upcoming playoffs, the one person who will be looked to for leadership on and off the ice is Alex Pirus. So we went to the Toronto native to discuss the Irish chances for post-season success.

Thus far into the season, Pirus has three goals, and 8 assists, to give him a three year total of 48 goals and 93 assists. His line is one of the most prolific in Irish history, as with Brian Walsh and Clark Halsey. But Pirus now is one of 135 goals and 192 assists in not even three complete seasons.

In the past, the Irish have not fared as well, losing three times in play-off action and twice, and this is something that Pirus and company aim to change this year.

"We have to pull together and unify ourselves so we are all pulling together and not letting down. I think our chances are pretty good of opening at home the play-offs, but that means that we have to win some games to do that," Pirus said.

The Irish [10-10-2 WCHA] record are currently tied for fifth place with Colorado College so all they need to do is move up one place before the end of the season and Notre Dame will open the play-offs at home.

Coach Charles (Lefty) Smith agrees with Pirus that the Irish chances are good for a fourth place finish or better. "Looking at the rest of the schedule, you have to admit that our chances are good, because our three big series' are all at home.

Smith is referring to the Michigan Tech series, Feb. 13-14, Michigan State the following weekend and then Minnesota-Duluth Feb. 27-28. Tech is the league's leader in the WCHA and MSU is 6 points back in third place.

Putting it into some statistical perspective, Pirus points out that "we need to win 60-80 percent of our games in order to finish better than fourth place and perhaps 65-75 percent to get into fourth place. However, with games played back-to-back like we play them in the WCHA, sweeps are a tough thing to get and that's what we have to do."

Actually, looking around the league, it appears that sweeps are a very difficult thing to get, as just Michigan Tech and Minnesota are well ahead of .500, while everyone else is floating right around the break-even mark.

"It's hard to find the reason why we, and others have had trouble sweeping," Pirus explained. "I've been thinking about this a lot and the only thing I can think of is that there is a letdown after Friday night, especially if you win on Friday night."

Pirus felt that winning is a habit-forming thing, like losing. The more you do it in the past, the more you do it in the future. I guess the way to explain it is that it's an electrifying feeling, and once you start winning a number of games, you don't worry when you fail behind, because you just know that you're going to end up on top in the end. Tech and Minnesota have it this year and it is a hard thing to get, but it takes hard work and a good winning tradition."

However, one thing that can be noticed from statements made by both Smith and Pirus, is that they may be optimistic, but they are in the same breath, cautious. The combined record of the teams left to be played is 52-57; however, that record is brought down primarily by Denver and Wisconsin. The two teams who the Irish would have the easiest time sweeping because of poor records, will offer special difficulties because they will be played on the road.

Denver is the only high city and Pirus pointed out that playing there gives problems because of the altitude. "You can only play 45 second shifts there, where here we play a minute and 15 second shifts usually, you get passsed up there a lot more easily," Pirus will be tough because the fans get riled up over hockey there, to say the least.

The home games then will have to be the pivotal ones. The Irish will need to sweep Minnesota-Duluth and probably one other of the three and the best chance will be Michigan State. Then Notre Dame will hope to make the张某nous the Irish which has infected the WCHA this year and continue and teams suddenly don't get hot.
