The Watergate judge is stricken

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who gained national recognition for his dogged pursuit of the truth in the Watergate scandal, suffered a heart attack Thursday. His condition is critical.

Sirica, a month away from his 72nd birthday, collapsed while delivering a luncheon speech about a lawyer's obligation to professionalism and ethics. His audience was 270 alumni of George Washington University Law School, including many fellow judges.

"His face was flushed and he just keeled over into the room," said Judge Bruce mentioned of the District of Columbia Superior Court.

A medical bulletin was planned for Friday morning.

For two years, beginning with the Watergate break-in defendants in January 1973 through the Watergate cover-up, Sirica was almost totally occupied with Watergate.

It was he who ordered former President Richard M. Nixon to turn over the secretly recorded White House tapes, a ruling that eventually was upheld in the Supreme Court and was instrumental in Nixon's resignation.

It was Sirica who put pressure on the Watergateburglars to testify before a grand jury; it was to Sirica that James W. McCord Jr. addressed the letter that resulted in the Watergate cover-up.

Since April 1975 when he was appointed to replace Judge Eizenhow-er. He became chief judge in April 1975 and when the Watergate break-in case came into the courts, he assigned it to himself.

Since his semi-retirement in 1974, when he was appointed as President Eichenhow-er. He became chief judge in April 1975 and when the Watergate break-in case came into the courts, he assigned it to himself.

"This began his long association with Watergate. His tactics often were criticized but he stuck to his off-stated assertion that all he wanted was the truth.

Since his semi-retirement in 1974, when he was appointed as special counsel for the Watergate-related matters. He passed down rulings on such Watergate-related cases as the milk price support case in 1972, and was the judge responsible for the sentencing of former White House aides H.R. (Bob) Haldeman and John Erlichman.

Both are currently free on bail awaiting appeal.

Sirica's attack came during what Some members of the steering committee have been free to pursue his legal and ethical standards.

Sirica was taken to the George Washington University Hospital, whose spokesman, Phil Debrahn, said: "He was transferred to the hospital's coronary unit and is in critical condition."

Last year, the hospital spokesman said Sirica's basic condition was unchanged, but "his vital signs are stable and his life-support systems continue without artificial support. He is resting comfortably at this time."

"The spokesman said the next medical bulletin was planned for Friday morning."
St. Mary’s recreation funds grow

Dream becomes reality for St. Mary’s. Half the need funds for the construction of a new sports and recreation facility have been received, according to St. Mary’s President John M. Duggan. More than $400,000 of an estimated $500,000 needed funds has been received by the college.

The SMC Committee on Physical Requirements called the recreation facility in February 1974. The facility has been in the planning stages since then. Architect C.J. Murphy of Chicago will design the facility. His firm will prepare a progress report to the college’s Board of Regents this week.

“We are anxious to begin construction on this building,” Duggan said. “We’d like to break ground before the students leave for summer break.”

The Haggard Foundation and The Kresge Foundation donated major gifts for the recreation facility. The Haggard Foundation, Dallas, Texas, awarded $150,000 to St. Mary’s. The Kresge Foundation awarded a $50,000 challenge grant to the college.

Major pledges were obtained from Michiana businesses and corporations. “The College has received funds from St. Joseph Bank, Indiana Bell, Indians and Michigan Electric and Valley Bank of Mishawaka,” Duggan said.

First Bank and Trust of South Bend, South Bend Tribune and several anonymous donors have also contributed to the fund along with American National Bank, National Bank, First Foundation of Elkhart, Whitemer Service, Koontz Wagner, South Bend Vending and Oltzheimer Printing.

Mardi Gras

This Friday, Saturday, and Sunday mark the three final days this year of Mardi Gras, an annual fund-raising project for the United Way campaign. All profits received will be contributed to the fund. All students, faculty, and members of the Notre Dame-St. Mary’s community are urged to attend the event in Stepan Center, and to “take a chance.”

The Observer is published Monday through Friday and weekly during the summer session, except during the new year. The Observer is owned by the students of the Univ. of Notre Dame and St. Mary’s College. Subscriptions may be purchased by $1.50 per semester from The Observer, Box Q, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556. Second Class postage paid, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.

The SMC Women’s Basketball Team defeated the Notre Dame team by 9 points on Jan 24. A rematch will be held Feb. 25, at 6:30 pm in the ACC Auxiliary Gym (alias The Pit).

Dr. Charles Parnell, Business Dean Bro. Leo Ryan and Fr. George Minimiki explained Sophia Sophomore year abroad program to a group of 12 interested students last night at an informational meeting in the Hayes-Healy Building.

Sophia University, located in Tokyo, Japan, is a Jesuit institution which is completely integrated into the Japanese university system. Notre Dame students who attend Sophia University are in the International Division, where courses are offered for international students of all nationalities.

The study of a language during the freshman year at Notre Dame is not a requirement for participation in the Sophia program, according to Parnell, director of the Foreign Studies Program.

He noted that several students had gone to Japan in past years without having studied the language here and after several months they began learning the language to get around successfully.

Minimiki, who teaches the Japanese language course at Notre Dame, said that while "it is better to get some preparation," he knows some students who went over without taking a course before hand and came back to the United States and continued to study Japanese with great desire.

Sophia program still open to frosh

Dean Bro. Leo Ryan and Fr. George Minimiki explained Sophia Sophomore year abroad program to a group of 12 interested students last night at an informational meeting in the Hayes-Healy Building.

Sophia University, located in Tokyo, Japan, is a Jesuit institution which is completely integrated into the Japanese university system. Notre Dame students who attend Sophia University are in the International Division, where courses are offered for international students of all nationalities.

The study of a language during the freshman year at Notre Dame is not a requirement for participation in the Sophia program, according to Parnell, director of the Foreign Studies Program.

He noted that several students had gone to Japan in past years without having studied the language here and after several months they began learning the language to get around successfully.

Minimiki, who teaches the Japanese language course at Notre Dame, said that while "it is better to get some preparation," he knows some students who went over without taking a course before hand and came back to the United States and continued to study Japanese with great desire.

Tokyo "big city"

Another factor that eases the problems for a student who does not speak Japanese is the "big city" atmosphere of Tokyo. All Japanese take English in secondary school, Minimiki explained, and one can usually find someone who speaks English.

One student who participated in the program last year and did not take the language here at Notre Dame noted that "you pick it up really fast." "The Japanese people are very cordial," he said, "and they make an effort to understand the foreign students.

He said that the Japanese consider it a compliment if you can speak their language.

Minimiki also noted that because Japanese have their language so clearly that are learned in class it is much easier to develop a facility in speaking.

"Developments in business in Japan are significant for the world economy," stated Business Dean Ryan, in encouraging business students to consider the program. "There is much interaction between the U.S. and Japan.

For these reasons Ryan felt that it would be a very valuable experience to see the economy of another culture, he said in action. Besides the value in understanding the increasingly important Japanese business world, Ryan felt that lack of a Freshman year language requirement made this program especially suited to business students.

Parnell called meeting

Parnell noted that he called the meeting partly with the hope of interesting business students because it was the only program still open to them and he cannot contact them through the language classes.

Presently, Parnell noted, five of the eight students in Japan are business students.

Tokyo business student who spent this past year in Japan noted that Japanese businessmen are very eager to make U.S. contacts and will often take American business students out to dinner.

Students for the most part live in furnished apartments during their stay in Tokyo, although some live with families or in Japanese student housing facilities. Because the living quarters are spread throughout the city, the students have much more contact with the local population.

The academic year at Sophia consists of two normal ten month semesters and a short six week session and affords the opportunity for a maximum of 36 credits. Students must leave the United States in the end of August and are free to return to the U.S. by June 1.

Besides the language courses, courses in Japanese History, Culture and literature are offered.

The students who had already spent the year in Japan emphasized the opportunities for travel and entertainment in Tokyo itself. "It is very easy to travel," commented one student. "There are trains and buses all over." There is also a great variety in climate in Japan ranging from heavy snows in the Northern islands to almost tropical climates to the South.

Head-on crash kills 4, Injures 2

WAUSAU, Ohio AP - A team of federal investigators will probe Thursday's head-on train crash which killed four people and injured two others.

The two-man team is headed by Elmer Garser, who along with Harold E. Story, was sent from Washington D.C. to the site of the accident, about 35 miles west of Toledo.

The trains, which had been on separate tracks, were carrying general freight and collided in a rural area between Waunee and Archbold. The dead were identified by Authorities as W.H. Davis, 42, of Paul Fuller, 60, of Brooklyn, Mich.; Robert E. Green, of Elkhart; and, of Spray Blvd., 30, also of Elkhart Ind.

Injured in the collision were Billy J. Fuson, 19, of Toledo; and, of the Westbound train, and Howard W. Phillips, 56, of Maumee, Ohio, conductor on the other train. According to Penn Central spokesman Howard Gilbert. He said Fuson managed to jump from the engine seconds before impact. Phillips was riding in the second engine at that time.

Phillips and Fuson were listed in critical condition at Toledo Hospital.

The North Central Association for Colleges and Secondary Schools will conduct a re-accreditation evaluation of St. Mary’s on Mar. 22-24.

A six-person evaluating team, chosen by the association, will visit the campus and meet with students, faculty, administrators and regents.

Process explained

Dr. Donald Horning, chairman of the North Central Reaccreditation Steering Committee, explained the evaluation process. "The evaluation involves a self-study by the college, as well as the evaluating team visit. All constituencies of the college have submitted self-evaluation reports according to the guidelines set forth by the Steering Committee," he said.

In addition, the college is required to submit a general status report. The entire self-study report will conduct a reaccreditation evaluation of St. Mary’s on Mar. 22-24.

Dr. Horning said that this type of evaluation is different from the statistical evaluation of ten years ago. He is in favor of the new method.

"The real advantage of this is that it forces an institution to look at itself objectively. That can be very difficult, but I think it’s helpful," Horning emphasized. "We’ve seen negative and positive aspects of the college and perhaps we haven’t seen everything yet," he added.

The final report, which was compiled and written by the Steering Committee, is available to all members of the college community.

The library has a copy, and the office of Student Affairs will receive one soon. "With a large (ten-member) Steering Committee, I think that we have done a good job of taking a long rang look at the college. However, people can still question what we’ve said in the report," said Horning.

The North Central reaccreditation evaluation of St. Mary’s will not be based on comparison to other colleges. The visiting team, from six Midwestern colleges, includes two college presidents, two deans and two professors.

"The group is a control. They will see St. Mary’s from the outside, which none of us are capable of doing," Horning explained. "They will use their own judgement, influenced in part by their own institutions. North Central standards, but no ideal model. The group will evaluate and make recommendations on these standards," he concluded.

Evaluation: important

Dr. William Hickey, vice president for Academic Affairs, discussed the importance of the evaluation. "It forces us to ask questions about our goals. Graduates have been an important part of the self-study. We’re talking to them to learn how they feel about the education they received here. From this we have seen how they feel about the education they received here. From this we have seen how we can improve and adapt the curriculum," Hickey explained.

While the evaluation centers on student life, academic programs and faculty, other areas are also included. Hickey noted that such as the number of volumes in the library, construction of the activities center and student government contribute to the quality of education.

Asked if the evaluation and recommendations might result in any major changes at St. Mary’s, Hickey replied, "No major changes are expected. More of what we’re doing now and strengthening some programs will be the extent of it."

Hickey summarized his view on the reaccreditation evaluation. "The whole process involves an in-depth look at St. Mary’s. It’s other institutions helping an institution to look at itself. I think we have every right to be confident."

Disinterest cancels weekend ski trip

The Student Union ski trip scheduled for this weekend at Crystal Mountain in Michigan, has been cancelled because not enough students expressed an interest in it. Student Union announced yesterday.

Only 17 students signed up for the trip.

Sources said the trip will be rescheduled for a weekend later in the semester. This weekend’s trip conflicted with the last days of Mardi Gras, a North quadr and a home basketball game, they added.

Accounting award competition opens

The accounting firm of Ernst & Ernst will sponsor the Annual Accounting Achievement Award at St. Mary’s. Howard W. Moody, partner of the firm, recently presented Saint Mary’s President John M. Duggan with the agreement at the College.

The award, a $500 tuition stipend, will be presented to a student who intends to complete a major in accounting and annually brings to the campus noted leaders in the fields of business, education, industry and business.

Viewing speakers generally schedule discussions with students and faculty members during their stay on campus.

Chicago Tribune editor slated to lecture Monday afternoon

Maxwell McCrison, one of the youngest managing editors in the 128-year history of the Chicago Tribune, will discuss "The American Press 200 Years Later: Still Fighting" at 3:30 p.m. Mon. Feb. 9 in the Library Auditorium.

McCrison was part of an editorial group that designed and launched Chicago Today, a compact paper converted from the Chicago American which the Tribune had acquired from the Hearst Corporation.

As managing editor, he saw Chicago Today surpass its afternoon competition, Chicago Daily News, by some 50,000 total circulation in the first two years of operation.

Australian born, he gained his early newspaper experience as a reporter for the Sydney Morning Herald and was sent to New York as a foreign correspondent in 1952. He later joined the Chicago American as a reporter and worked as a rewrite man, copy editor, feature editor, magazine editor and Sunday editor.

Approximately 2800 students requested refunds for more than a thousand financial aid this year and families, according to June McCauslin, director of the office of financial assistance, the amount of financial aid is less this year than at some other universities, although the percentage of students being assisted in some way is about the same," stated McCauslin. "People aren't realizing that for years this was a poor man's university. Our endowment did not build up in the way that many universities have.

Most money for the Notre Dame Scholar program, the only channel of gift aid offered by the University was donated by Florence Daily, a woman we had never known," McCauslin said. "Received over ten years, the nine million dollar gift provided the bulk of the University's general scholarship fund.

Including jobs, loans, and grants, the average aid per student totals $2345 this year.

Need is foremost in determining who will receive assistance, providing the student exhibits top academic achievement. Information concerning finances is obtained entirely through the Parents' Confidential Statement. The view of McCauslin no cutoff point for parental income can be reasonably established. "It depends on the family circumstances completely," she declared. "For example, a family making $10,000 a year with good assets and only one child might not receive aid, while a family making $30,000 annually with eight children and three in college might be eligible."

McCauslin indicated that Notre Dame does not award "merit" scholarships, unlike some universities. Such programs are used to attract more prominent students regardless of need.

While McCauslin commented that "no preference is given to law or engineering students," the student loan because it guarantees the student loan.

"The federal program is the most economical way to obtain a student loan because it guarantees an interest rate of 7 percent," said DeVoe. "A conventional loan to the parents would have a much higher rate."

McCauslin elaborated on the benefits of the endor­ginated program. "The federal government will subsidize the interest if the annual adjusted family income is less than fifteen thousand dollars annually. This can also be done if we tell the bank that the student has a need."

McCauslin emphasized that students wishing assistance for the fall should pick up their applications before spring break. The deadline for the PCS is April 1.

Lonesome George, last known tortoise of his sub-species, looking for a mate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consider the plight of Lonesome George, the Pinta Island tortoise who probably is the world's loneliest creature.

Lonesome George is the last known member of his sub-species, the last to carry the traits peculiar to his breed. There are no known descendants of the famous giant Galapagos Island tortoise.

And Lonesome George is expected to live at least two more years.

Lonesome George was discovered in 1971 while slowly paddling across Pinta Island, perhaps in search of a mate.

Before the discovery of Lonesome George, the Pinta Island subspecies was thought to be extinct, killed off by 19th century mariners and by the introduction of goats to the island. The goats destroyed the vegetation necessary for the giant tortoise's survival.

Intensive searches on Pinta Island since George's discovery have failed to turn up any others. Indeed, Lonesome George may hold the distinction of being the rarest animal in the world.

In 1972, George was brought to the Charles Darwin Research Station on Santa Cruz Island, the headquarters for most research on the Galapagos, a group of islands off the Ecuadorian coast. His age is estimated at 40 to 60 years.

Wardens have killed almost 37,000 goats on the island and the vegetation on Pinta Island "has recovered remarkably," said MacFarland.
Collegiate Seminar has unfortunately fallen short of its original purpose. The program was originally intended to provide all Notre Dame students with a solid exposure to the great classic thinkers and writers. But today the Collegiate Seminar program has strayed far from its original mission to provide a serious academic discussion of the classics.

Instead, Collegiate Seminar is merely a battle ground for the students supervised by instructors who do little more than moderate the discussion. Some sections are not even taught by the faculty members, but by law students and graduate students. Some of the readings can be considered "classic" only in the sense of the imagination.

Seminar has become kind of a joke in Arts and Letters. Because the reading list's requirements vary so much from instructor to instructor, students scramble during registration to find the section that suits them. Some academic advisors have counseled their students to avoid taking Collegiate Seminar because it cost them a waste of time.

What seems most puzzling about Collegiate Seminar is that it is a two-semester requirement for each Arts and Letters student, whereas the students in Business, Science or Engineering, who is less likely to read the classics, have no such requirement.

No one can argue with the purpose of Collegiate Seminar. There is great value in the philosophy that certain things are required for all educated people, especially with the Senior Values Seminar and Letters requirement. But because the reading lists and knowledge of the ideas of Aristotle, Plato and Saint Thomas Aquinas are valuable for any student intent on a college degree, it would make academic sense to have some University-wide requirement for at least one semester of the classics. To be effective the program would require substantial University commitment of money, professors and time.

Given the minimal support the University has provided Collegiate Seminar, such a University-wide requirement is highly unlikely.

Besides, let's be realistic: Most students don't want to take another required course, much less one that forces them to read the classics. Many students are fed up with requirements, especially with the Senior Values Seminar scheduled to be mandatory for all present sophomores.

What needs to be done is make Collegiate Seminar optional and make a serious effort to recruit non-Arts and Letters students for the course. If the readings are made more interesting, we would permit those students who are interested in the classics and who enjoy the course to take Collegiate Seminar.

Since there would be fewer students taking the course the average quality of the instructor could be improved by keeping only the best and most knowledgeable. The quality of discussion would improve since students raising the class would be taking it because of a genuine interest and since the addition of non-Arts and Letters majors would give the classes a wider range of viewpoints. The sections would perhaps be made smaller.

Finally, these smaller, more motivated, better directed classes could be allowed greater flexibility in their approach and thus serve as ideal testing grounds for new ideas and new methods.

Collegiate Seminar has been dying a slow death for several years. Now is the time to put it out of its misery.

This year, for the first time, Notre Dame is enjoying the national exposure afforded a school having a majority of its basketball games nationally televised.

With the National Broadcasting Company televising four Notre Dame games nationally and the Spoelstra Sports Network carrying sixteen games, the Irish will appear on national television twenty times this season. This is not including any NCAA tournament games that Notre Dame may participate in.

The television exposure, far more than any other university in the nation receives, is viewed favorably by Irish Head Coach Richard "Digger" Phelps. "I feel that the television coverage we're getting is excellent," he said.

"The more exposure that college basketball gets, the better for all of us."

Fr. Edmund Joyce, vice president of the University and in charge of athletics, is also pleased with the coverage provided by the two networks. "I know that our alumni and friends are delighted at being able to watch the team," he said. "It's important that the alumni across the country have the opportunity to see the team play."

Despite the extensive coverage given the basketball team, little money made through it. "We don't look upon television revenue as being significant," Joyce said. "It's not very important financially."

While no exact figures are available, Joyce stated that the University receives approximately $2,000 a game from the Spoelstra Network. The amount received from NBC a game is undetermined. This compares to approximately $250,000 received for every Notre Dame football game appearing on national television.

The increased television exposure seems to have had little affect on the team itself. "Television doesn't affect the way we play," Phelps said. "We go out and play hard in every game, whether it's on television or not."

Phelps states that it's still impossible to tell if the national exposure will help recruiting. However he notes that he has ten underclassmen on the team and even the nationwide publicity may not be enough to lure a high school player to Notre Dame, knowing that he probably won't be able to play immediately.

The head coach did note that the team's increased popularity, due to the increased exposure and the team's rugged schedule, will go a long way toward the Irish's goal of a NCAA Tournament bid. It is expected that Notre Dame will continue to be put on national television frequently in the future.

Besides NBC, the Spoelstra Network will continue to be put on national television frequently in the future.

"I'm amazed that Spoelstra has made a success of this," Joyce. "I think they've had enough success to continue. I expect them to."
Student Union to purchase new printing press

by Peter O’Beile
Staff Reporter

An ad-hoc committee of Student Union decided to purchase an $8,000 piece of printing equipment in an attempt to cut production costs to provide a quicker, more efficient Campus Press.

This sum represents a sixth of the entire Student Union budget for 1976-77. Student Union director, said the machine would be purchased to cut production costs to both Student Union and Student Government.

Birsic, said that this ad-hoc committee set up this ad-hoc committee to deal with financial matters of extreme importance.

The Student Union will buy the machine from the A. B. Dick company but the exact terms of the deal have not been finalized. Two members of the ad-hoc committee, Birsic and vice president of Student Affairs, Andy Bury, director of Campus Press, will discuss details with the A. B. Dick company in a few days.

The exact financing plan and whether it will be known by Monday or Tuesday.

It was stated the following terms as the best possible transaction:

- Ideally, Student Union will make a 20-25 percent down payment, the three to five year lease will be set up with a "continuously rolling" option to buy the equipment in six months. Birsic explained.
- However, the $8,000 could be paid in full if this present contract in Student Union exists until the end of the year. Birsic noted.

Birsic spoke highly of the people at A. B. Dick. He noted that they provided "great servicing" of all equipment they sell. Birsic also mentioned that this company has done some free work for Student Union in the past. He does not anticipate any difficulty in arriving at a feasible method of paying for the equipment. Indications are "that we will have satisfactory terms," Birsic said.

The deal has been established, Bro. Benoist and Bro. Jost, vice president of Student Affairs, must approve it. Birsic anticipates their approval.

"If things don't work out, this year's committee will have to take responsibility for next year's committee," Birsic noted. All the information collected by this year's committee will be set up for smaller financial matters the following year.

The $8,000 piece of machinery does "everything associated with the press," Birsic stated. Presently Campus Press requires three days for job completion. With the new machine they believe the time could be reduced down to one and a half days. Birsic said.

"The actual process of the new machine is "much more efficient" than the one presently used. Birsic made a printing plate, which is essentially continuous operation, in "one-sixth or one-seventh of the time it now takes," Birsic commented.

The new machine also saves two head comptrollers, and Eric Ryan, who is presently training to be Student Body treasurer next year.

Irish open homestand with Davidson

by Fred Herbst

Notre Dame will open a four-game homestand tomorrow afternoon as the Davidson Wildcats invade the ACC.

Davidson enters their game with the Irish with a 5-15 slate and is offing a 75-62 loss to Appalachian State that eliminated them from any hope of a first division finish in the Southern Conference.

Freshman guard John Gerdy leads the Wildcats in scoring, hitting for 16.8 points per game. Along with Gerdy in the starting lineup are two other freshmen, Jon Rice at forward and Tom Don at center. Seniors Eppa Rice and Jay Porter are two forwards to expect. Rice is needing a big push so they can round out the starting lineup at forward and guard respectively. Freshmen Pat Hickert and Tom Jorgensen are Davidson’s top reserves.

Riskey and Powell follow Gerdy in scoring for the Wildcats, scoring 11.3 and 10.0 points per game respectively. Dore and Rice are the team’s leading rebounders pulling down five a game.

Davidson’s youth has been apparent thus far, as the Wildcats are suffering through one of their worst seasons in history. However, Head Coach Bo Brinkels is pleased with the progress shown by his team. “We’ve shown definite signs of improvement over the last couple of weeks,” he says. “We’ve lost some close ones and beat a pretty good Santa Barbara team. But it’s not enough to show improvement and lose close games.”

The basketball program at Davidson has taken some hard hits in the last season. The team is 1-18 in ACC play and has opened the season with a loss to Davidson.

The All-American forward also continues to lead the Irish in scoring, averaging 29.6 points per game. Duck Williams follows Dantley in scoring, averaging 15.1 points per game.

The Pioneers are coming off two straight losses, the major scoring punch. Doug Berry and Alex Belcourt have each scored 13 points since the Christmas break. 11 games back. Berry has tallied two goals and seven assists in the span while Belcourt has managed three goals and ten assists since returning to the ice. Belcourt was sidelined for nine Pioneer games with an injury and has 20 points in the 17 contests he has played.

The Pioneers are coming off two straight 5-2 defeats at the hands of league leader Michigan Tech. Coach Murray Armstrong of Denver reflects that the coming weekend will have great importance for both teams. “I don’t think it’s any secret that Notre Dame series here this weekend is very crucial. We need to sweep this series to keep in the playoff picture. Notre Dame has had good hockey the past couple of weeks and we are running out of time.”

Denver will be relying on two freshmen to solve the major scoring punch. Doug Berry and Alex Belcourt have each scored 13 points since the Christmas break. 11 games back. Berry has tallied two goals and seven assists in the span while Belcourt has managed three goals and ten assists since returning to the ice. Belcourt was sidelined for nine Pioneer games with an injury and has 20 points in the 17 contests he has played. Berry was 2-2 in 26 games so far this season.

In goal for the Pioneers will be Ernie Glanville who has a 4.3 goals against average. Glanville ran into problems last Saturday against Tech. In the warm-ups prior to the game, he was knocked cold by a shot taken by a teammate. He started the game, then injured his leg in a collision in the second period, recovered and finished the game with 33 saves.

The Irish will be operating with the same squad from last weekend. Tim Flyer is still troubled by a knee injury and will miss action again this weekend but is expected to be back for Michigan Tech next weekend.

Larry Meher and John Peterson will again split the goalkeeping chores. Peterson is coming off an excellent game against Colorado College, turning away 23 shots in the 3-1 victory.

Earlier in the year, the Irish and Denver split at the ACC-Cwo with Notre Dame winning the Friday game 5-2 on two goals each by Clark Hamilton and Kevin Nugent. On Saturday, goalie Jim Bales stopped 38 shots in the Pioneer 4-1 win.

In other NCHA action this weekend, Michigan takes on Michigan at Houghton, Michigan. The Wolverines are third in the conference. In addition second place Minnesota takes on fourth place Denver and Colorado College faces last place Wisconsin. The Irish will be splitting the weekend live over WSNF-AM(840) live with John Vozzo reporting starting at 8 p.m. MST.
