Elections held for SMC Assembly

by Kathleen Horgan
Staff Reporter

Elections for Student Assembly representatives are to be held in the LeMahn lobby starting at 10 a.m. today.

Mary Ann Stolze, vice-president for Student Affairs, noted the significance of the representatives, as the assembly makes recommendations over important issues such as parlates.

"Proposals will definitely be made about parlates," she explained. "The extent of them and how far they will go before assembly and administration is up in the air at this point. This is why good people are needed in the assembly.

The only way to get your voice heard," she added, is to vote for the candidate of your choice in the elections.

Carla Lacaona and Maria Magnanelli, co-chairs of the election committee, expressed hope that the elections would be conducted as efficiently as possible.

Students will have a choice of candidates in all halls except Regina, where Mary Garrett runs unopposed. Pat Payne, Shelly Medlitz and Ann Deighen will seek election in Holy Cross while Claire Hatch, Mary Rukavina and Debbie Simms are opposed in LeMahn.

McCandless fields four candidates, Kathy Murphy, Ginny Nask, Lynn Roberts and Grace Rostellar.

St. Mary's considers Formation of HPC

by Nancy Stefkovich

The formation of a Hall Presidents' Council is currently being seriously considered by the St. Mary's hall presidents, which would mark the first time that such an organization has been attempted at St. Mary's.

Julie Pellerete, president of Holy Cross, explained that an HPC would "extend unity between all the halls.

Vice-President for Student Affairs Mary Ann Stolze stated that the purpose of such a group would be to "keep a line of communication open between hall presidents and students. Everyone on campus wants to know what's going on and the formation of an HPC is a step towards that.

The proposed council, Stolze noted, is similar in function to the Hall Life Commission already out-lined in the St. Mary's student government. She commented that the HPC would have a more defined purpose.

In addition to organizing activities and acting as a source of information to students at St. Mary's, the HPC would help coordinate social activities involving Notre Dame. Hall presidents from both campuses met at an informal dinner Tuesday to discuss the possibilities of such developments.

Stole indicated that the proposed HPC would not only provide social activities with Notre Dame but also "strengthen the relationship between St. Mary's and Notre Dame women.

Regina Hall President Elizabeth Cutter stated that the first meeting between the St. Mary's and Notre Dame hall presidents has already improved their working relationship.

Stolze expressed praise for the hall presidents. "This shows good initiative. The hall presidents are speaking up for the students of St. Mary's and are trying to do the best they can for them.

As of now, the HPC is going through its formative process. The hall presidents hope soon to define its goals and draft a constitution.

The only way to get your voice heard," she added, is to vote for the candidate of your choice in the elections.

Independent candidate for president Eugene J. McCarthy has gotten a place on the election ballot in only 10 states, according to a story written by Warren Weaver, Jr., that appeared in the Sept. 16 New York Times.

However, six of the states are important ones that could affect the outcome in a close election.

The New York Times took a nationwide canvas and found that the former Democratic Senator from Minnesota "still has time to make the ballot in eight states, has filed suit to be on in seven others and the District of Columbia, but has been shut out in 19," Weaver stated.

"Some of the states which the 1968 presidential candidate has gotten on the ballot are Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Wisconsin. He supposedly filed petitions with more than 20,000 signatures in New York, but remains subject to challenge there, according to the article.

McCarthy lost his bid to get on the ballot in California when he could not come up with the necessary amount of signatures. His subsequent lawsuit was rejected.

Recent polls have shown McCarty getting close to or "nearest of the vote in three-way contests with Jimmy Carter and President Gerald Ford. He would get three times as many votes from Carter as he would from Ford.

Presumably, if McCarthy does that well come election day, he could take enough votes away from Carter to insure Republican victory in several big states. This might put Ford over the hill.

At the present moment, McCarthy does not have a mathematical chance of winning the election because the number of electoral votes needed for election are 270, the states which have McCarthy on the ballot outnumber a total of 162.

The article states, "Some Democratic officials believe, however, that the McCarthy vote will fall off markedly if it becomes impossible for him to win the election."

Besides McCarthy's, the names of six other minority-party presidential candidates will appear on the ballot in a dozen or more states this November. They are Roger MacBride of the Libertarian Party-25 states; Peter Camejo of the Socialist Workers Party-21 states; Lester Maddox of the American Independent Party (he also appears under three other names)-14 states; Thomas Anderson of the American Party-14 states; and Gus Hall of the Communist Party-13 states.

In a report filed by the Associated Press on Sept. 16, McCarthy said, "It's easier to get married in Vermont than it is to sign a petition for an independent candidate."

According to the report, McCarthy said he was harried by "crazy laws" which favor the major parties.

He said he has up to 40 possible vice-presidential running mates in several states. However, he would not "trust the election" to a vice-president if he wins.

His campaign is spending $500,000, "but may have to raise "a couple of million dollars" to stay in the campaign. McCarthy thinks people are afraid to give money to an independent candidate. "They are afraid to go on the record."

He does not receive any federal election funds and believes there is too much emphasis on financial disclosure to end situations like Watergate, according to the report.

"There was no evidence that they were corrupted by material influences, but they were by power and their desire for power," he said in reference to the Watergate conspirators.

McCarthy added he might seek Secret Service Protection. Only the Democrats and the Republicans are protected by the Secret Service, he said. "Pretty soon, only the Democrats and Republicans will be allowed to vote.

Kissing’s time limited

By Arthur Gavshon

LUANA, Zambia (AP) — Zambian President Michael A. Kwanza said yesterday that he has “days, not weeks” to succeed in averting a racial war in southern Africa.

Kwanza replied, “President Fidel Castro is running out. We Americans have an obligation to all and you can be sure I am conscious of the responsibility.”

In five of his short speech after Kwanza arrived from Tanzania, Kwanza, who predicts future blizzards will fight, Kissinger fails to work out a settlement between blacks and whites in Rhodesia.

“You have only a few days, not weeks, to succeed, because we all have reached the point of no return,” Kwanza said. “If you don’t succeed, the alternatives will be too ghastly to contemplate.”

Our stand is clear. For so there can be no compromise. But what alternative do we have left for Rhodesia what we have ourselves?” Kwanza said.

Kissinger said he agreed with Kwanza’s list of the fundamental issues in the developing racial confrontations - the dignity of man irrespective of color, freedom for men regardless of their color, independence and freedom for all.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere told Kissinger earlier he was pessimistic about averting racial conflict. But despite the gloomy assessments of his hosts, U.S. informants said Kissinger still rates his chances of setting up meaningful black-white negotiations on Rhodesia and Namibia at slightly less than even.

Campus lighting improved

By Greg Besio
Staff Reporter

Lighting the grounds of the Notre Dame campus is a "sensitive problem" according to Sr. Miriam Jones, Assistant Provost. The problem became so serious that four years ago a consulting firm was hired to redesign the lighting plan for the University grounds.

"The problem became so serious that four years ago a consulting firm was hired to redesign the lighting plan for the University grounds," Sr. Jones said, "the University officials found the system overwhelmingly expensive."

The proposal involved removing the entire existing system before installing the new one. Rather than waiting for four years, officials decided to build the new system before taking action, the University has been gradually improving on the old system. The problem is that the system is reaching the limits of its capability.

Last year, Sr. Jones and a group of concerned students took a walking tour of the campus in an attempt to locate any spots which needed immediate attention. This led to a study by the provost's office and the drafting of a plan of action.

Subsequently, over the summer, additional lighting was installed behind the Administration Building, near Lewis Hall, on the path which goes diagonally from Sacred Heart Church to Howard Hall, and on the North Quad. Some lighting was installed near Lyons Hall but it is felt that more is needed there.

Another area of concern, the general area behind the ACC and the path to the Campus View apartment has been illuminated by a street lamp. In addition to these new lights, most of the old fixtures now have mercury vapor bulbs which are brighter and give a more even illumination than conventional incandescent bulbs.

Sr. Jones added that even though improvements are not at an end, she believed that the maintenance crew had "gotten at the worst." Some problems areas that still remain are the grounds near St. Ed's and on the road near the Grotto.

So far this year only one complaint has been received by the Provost's Office about insufficient lighting. In reference to the St. Ed's area, Sr. Jones emphasized that improvements would continue to be made until lighting was at a "satisfactory level."

Mansfield spends last day in Senate

By Tom Raum
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Mike Mansfield, retiring as Senate majority leader, proved his reputation for being taciturn when he was asked what he planned to do after spending his last full day in the Senate yesterday.

"It was the 73-year-old Montanan's reply. Senators of both parties joined in bidding farewell to Mansfield, Democrat, who has held one of government's most partisan jobs since early 1961, longer than any other man.

Asst. Republican Leader Robert Griffin of Michigan praised Mansfield in a floor speech as leaving "an unparalleled legacy" for the Senate.

"His dedication to principle above partisanship is unrivaled in the history of the United States Senate," Griffin said.

And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who was elected to the public office, plans to spend his last full day in the Senate in 1952 with Mansfield after the Oct. 2 congressional adjournment.

Jackson said, "the University officials planned the Senate with low-key leadership in a period that spanned the administrations of four Presidents - Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford - as well as the war in Southeast Asia and the Watergate scandals."

Sociology Club to meet to plan improvements

by Terri Blazic
Staff Reporter

The Sociology Club will hold their first meeting of the year Sunday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m. in room 104 O Shaugnessy Hall, Ed Singer, club president announced yesterday.

Singer stated three main purposes of the club: first, to improve the image of the sociology club by developing better student teacher interactions; second, to encourage sociology majors to voice opinions about the club; and thirdly, to increase the morale of the club members by working towards a common goal.

"Most of the club would like to have informal talks with their professors in order to get the professors and the students more involved with each other," Singer said. He believes that this would decrease the disinterest sociology majors have in their own program.

Singer announced that the club would survey all sociology majors on what influenced them to choose the major, their opinions of courses, and their reactions to last year's club programs.

Another activity planned is a careers program with lecturers from various graduate schools.

Possible speakers include representatives from law schools, medical schools, a Masters in Business Administration program and a school of social work.

"I'm going to take this tour though University, I'd like to know about some of these rooms and about this statuary," he said.

He said that in his more than three decades in Congress, he never managed to take the guided tour of the Capitol offered to all tourists.

Mansfield, who has decided not to seek re-election after 34 years in public office, plans to spend some time in the Senate today before leaving with Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, for a long-planned visit to the People's Republic of China.

An acknowledged authority on Far Eastern affairs who taught sociology to the subject, Mansfield will not be back in Washington until after the Oct. 2 congressional adjournment.

He said then he will spend two weeks campaigning for Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and Democratic candidates in Montana.

Mansfield said he isn't sure yet whether he will return to the University of Montana, where he's still listed on the faculty, or seek one of the some 20 other offers he says he's received for a teaching job.

Mansfield provided the Senate with low-key leadership in a period that spanned the administrations of four Presidents - Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford - as well as the war in Southeast Asia and the Watergate scandals.

Football and education have always been strange bedfellows. Somehow they have managed to coexist, yet not entirely in harmony. The University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Editorials represent the opinion of the editorial board.

Dear Editor:
Questions of sexism aside, Tim O'Reiley's response (Sept. 13) displays a lack of human decency and kindness which I-and, I am sure, many others-find extremely disturbing. Apparently O'Reiley feels (if that isn't too strong a word) that respect for others as human beings, no matter what their weight, must take a back seat to his own desire to be liked.

However, O'Reiley's letter did clear up one mystery, viz. his favorable evaluation of the Head of Residence. On the three occasions (only the first by our own choicery which my wife and I have dined at that establishment, we have found the waiters overbearing, boorish and intent on hanging us through our meal in record time. Given O'Reiley's evident lack of sensitivity, it is no surprise that he felt right at home.

Shaking off The Gipper's Ghost

Thomas O'Neil

Our stand, happily, is this: As tired and redundant as the myth may be, Rockne is part of the Notre Dame membrane. In fact, we note, that despite the strange Bedfellows relationship, the Notre Dame faithful are happy with the accommodation and accept that the Gipper's Ghost is immortal. With this understanding we may rationalize student disappointment with Dan Devine and hope that our football record is 1 and 10. But our disappointment over a less successful football record must also be understood. Notre Dame should neither cast off the Gipper's Ghost nor Dan Devine.

It should cultivate the strange bedfellows relationship by improving our performance in the classroom and on the gridiron. It is part of the Notre Dame tradition: to reconcile the academic and improve our performance in the classroom and on the gridiron. It is also, thankfully, part of our tradition.

The University of Chicago chose to eliminate its football program altogether, and yet keep its reputation for leadership in the educational community. Harvard and Yale have tolerated football, yet survive in the limelight based on their educational record. Ohio State could hardly survive at all without Woody Hayes and his sideline one function - to say "no" to any student, faculty or (God forbid) administrator who dares challenge the status quo. This is done when innovative solutions are offered for problems which may or may not exist in the eyes of ND's "Powers that Be." Blaming Fr. Burcheill for his exceptional ability at presenting and defending the "no" that issue from our powers that be is akin to blaming the boxing glove for injuries incurred during a Bengal Bout: such a placement of blame denies the existence of a flat within the glove - a crucial point in judgment if one desires to find a way to stop the punishment.

"Read "Powers that Be" to mean any individual or group of individuals whose position or relationship with Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh causes his/her/his opinions to be considered irrelevant any and all policy making at the University of Notre Dame.

"No bureaucratic device should be allowed to destroy an individual's reputation as thoroughly as the position of Provost has maligned Fr. Burcheill. To clarify the purpose of Notre Dame's administrative hierarchy and to allow Fr. Burcheill to regain the level of respect, admiration and love he held prior to his selection as Provost, I suggest, "Chief Spokesman for the Office of Intrigue" and redefine his official responsibilities in the following manner:

"...delict, absurd and otherwise indefensible criticism of the President of the University of Notre Dame by befuddling the students and frustrating the faculty who reside in this Christian community..."

United States Reading Lab will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people at Notre Dame.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative of any yet to be found in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life.

In just 4 weeks the average student finds that he has substantially increased his comprehension and concentration. In fact he finds that he can read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in detail. Included will be classroom procedures, instruction meth­ods, class schedule and a special 1 time only orientation lecture. That is less than one-half the cost of similar courses. You must attend any of the free meetings for information about Notre Dame classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14 (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible).

If you have always wanted to be a business person who wants to stay abreast of today’s ever-changing accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These free special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive this course, which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a 4-week course that speeds you 5 to 7 times faster, comprehend more, concen­

Presidential debate highlights television week

Monday, September 20
8:00 pm, 28: Monday Night Football: The Oakland Raiders, fresh from an upset win over the Champion Steelers last week, set out to avenge last year's humiliating 42-10 loss at the hands of the Kansas City Chiefs. Frank Gifford, Alex Karras and Howard Cosell report from Arrowhead Stadium in K.C.

8:00 pm, 34: In Performance at Wolf Trap: Beverly Sills plays Violetta, the dying heroine of Verdi's masterful opera La Traviata. Henry Price and Richard Fredricks also perform in the tragedy that begins the third season of PBS's fine operatic series.

Tuesday, September 21
8:00 pm, 26: Rich Man, Poor Man: One of the most popular series of last year's season returns with most of its original cast as well as some new faces. The story line may sound more like a blurb for a Harold Robbins novel, but this series is highly interesting and very well done. In the opening episode, Senator Rudy Jordache decides to care of a sick relative.

8:30 pm, 16, 22, 28, 34: President's Debate: A truly important event, the two Presidential candidates engage in the first of three debates tonight sponsored by the League of Women Voters. Ford and Carter will field questions from a panel of as yet unnamed newsmen in the Walnut Street Theater in Philadelphia.

ON THE SCREEN
Boiler House I: Shadow of the Hawk
Boiler House II: Survive, a low-budget flick based loosely on the story of the Andes survivors.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst will be sentenced Sept. 24, more than a year after she was captured and her bizarre journey in the terrorist underground came to an end.

Miss Hearst, 22, could receive as light a sentence as time served, or a maximum penalty of 35 years in prison. She was convicted March 30 of armed robbery and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Defense attorney Al Johnson has previously said he will file an appeal immediately after the sentencing.

Miss Hearst has been undergoing a court-ordered psychiatric evaluation at the San Diego Metropolitan Psychiatric Correction Center since April. That study was completed last month and submitted to Orrick.

Miss Hearst's trial judge, the late Oliver J. Carter, ordered a 90-day testing at the request of the defendant's attorneys. After Carter's death of heart failure in June, Orrick extended the study.

The newspaper heiress, kidnaped by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army on Feb. 4, 1974, testified during her eight-week trial that she participated in the April 15, 1974, bank robbery in fear of her life. She said she did not surrender because she feared the SLA or the FBI would kill her if she did.

She has been in custody since her arrest last Sept. 18 in San Francisco.

Community org. to hold meeting

Community Services, a campus volunteer organization which operates through the residence halls, will sponsor a meeting Sunday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. in the basement of Badin Hall for all students interested in participating.

Projects for the current semester include tutoring, visiting the elderly, parish surveying, Parish Partnership, coaching recreation programs and restoring rundown homes, all in the South Bend community.
Ford opens campaign

By Barbara Breitenstein
Senior Staff Reporter

President Gerald Ford suggests the government "ease the burden" on families with children attending "non-public schools" and colleges, according to a story by Dave Riley of the Associated Press, AP.

In his campaign-opening speech at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor Wednesday, AP said, Ford touched on aid through taxes for parents who send their children to parochial and other private schools.

Ford suggests the government "find ways through the tax system to ease the burdens on families who choose to send their children to non-public schools and to help families cope with the expense of a college education."

Duel in 'key' states

Ford opened his campaign at his alma mater, according to aides, "to rebuff symbolically the notion that he lacked the scope, depth and foresight to be more than a caretaker Chief Executive."

According to a Sept. 16 story in the New York Times, "Mr. Ford contended in his address that he had learned from an 'impossible comeback' from the turmoil of war, recession and 'corruption at the highest levels' that confronted him two years ago."

But, according to the AP, it was not just because of these reasons or that he was open to keep some distance the Ford chose to open his campaign there. Michigan is also the only "key" state in which he is leading president surprisingly ahead of Jimmy Carter in Virginia 43 to 41 percent, and the race in that state is being called "neck-and-neck."

"With the South becoming a battle ground," the article continues, "Southern Republicans are lobbying for more attention from Ford. He, running mate, Sen. Robert Dole."

The poll also shows that outside the South, Carter is leading the President by only four points in New York, one of Ford's "battle states, indicating, according to Evans and Novak, surprising Ford support in the industrial North."

However, Baker admits, that Ford backers are disappointed in surveys from the border states. According to the AP, "particularly Tennessee and are 'less than ecstatic' about results from Ohio and Wisconsin, two of the 'swing states.'" Ford returned to Washington following his speech at Ann Arbor and was scheduled to speak to a dinner of the Bolo-Americana Foundation last night.

HAMMONT, Ind. (AP) - A three-judge federal panel ruled yesterday that a minor doesn’t need parental consent to get an abortion within the first three months of pregnancy, bringing the Indiana abortion law in line with a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision.

In their ruling, 7th U.S. Circuit Court Judge Robert Sperchak and U.S. District Court Judges Jesse Eschbach and Allen Sharp also barred the state from enforcing that portion of the law.

"It is good that the government recognizes that such a decision is in the best interest of the state," said Ind. Attorney General Don Bogard.

Judge Sharp said the order was in line with a recent Supreme Court decision.

Despite the federal ban on enforcing the permission section of the Indiana statute, Don Bogard of the Indiana attorney general’s office said: "We haven’t made any decision on that issue yet. We will take a look at the situation and decide a course of action within 30 days.

The panel’s decision was based on a 1974 lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court here by the Gary-Northwest Indiana Women’s Services, Inc., its Hammond director, Dr. William Lewis, and three pregnant minors.

Carter’s mike shut off

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Jimmy Carter’s microphone shut off suddenly yesterday as the Democratic presidential nominee was criticizing Indiana Republican Gov. Otis R. Bowen for refusing to debate his opponent.

"I think anyone who refuses to debate the issues in an important election like..." Carter said as the microphone went dead.

He paused a few minutes as aides scurried to correct the problem, then said as the power came back: "You can see what Republicans think about debates.

The point, by the way, was that not debating was a sign of mistrust.

St. Mary’s tourguides recruited

A "Punch and Dip" Party was held at Stetson Lounge at St. Mary’s for all SMC students interested in being tourguides and benefitting for incoming freshmen. At the meeting approximately twenty students received information on tour procedures and were given background information about St. Mary’s.

"Tours are an important factor in a student’s decision to come to St. Mary’s. For most, it is their first experience with the school...and they learn what college classes and dorm life are really like," commented Lesly Miller, a member of the Admissions staff.

The tour also enables these girls to ask questions that they would feel uncomfortable asking members of the faculty or Admissions Office.

It was these economic issues that Hitek addressed at a luncheon meeting of the Exchange Club in Muncie.

"The disastrous policies of the Nixon-Ford Administration have resulted in depressed production and high unemployment rates and have produced federal deficits totaling $842 billion," Hitek said.

The senator also said he has sponsored legislation to create a permanent credit of 10 percent to stimulate plant investment.

Hitek and Allen Sharp also endorsed Kiwanis Club, Republican nominee Lugar said, "The existing estate tax system is seriously outdated and needs years of date with the realities of today’s farm values.

Retarded child dies alone, ignored by family

Miami (AP) - It took three days for the 11-year-old girl's body to be found at the Sunrise School for the retarded. She had been brought there on a medical emergency call, and her family had never visited her.

On Sunday when she choked during breakfast. While she was still alive, the girl began to shake and choking sounds came from her throat.

"When they carried her into the nursing station, she was unconscious," said school director Leslie Leech. "She had stopped breathing." School workers added that the girl had been brought to the school because she was retarded. She had been brought there on a medical emergency call, and her family had never visited her.

On Monday morning, the girl's body was found by school workers. The girl had died on Friday. Her parents had never visited her.

"This is a tragedy," said school worker Mary Misskey. "We should have lived in some part of the city."

Egan co-moderator

Magg. John J. Egan, director of the Center for Pastoral and Social Ministry at Notre Dame, will serve as co-moderator of the plenary sessions of a conference next month in Detroit expected to focus on social justice priorities for the Catholic church in America.

The call to Action Conference, sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' Bicentennial committee, will be held Oct. 19-21 and caps a two-year program of the American hierarchy emphasizing "Liberty and Justice for All." The program involved discussion in some 79 parishes as well as in several nationally published hearings in various regions of the country. Some 1,200 delegates are expected in Detroit.

Egan, a former bishop of Chicago, has also been a priest and a social justice activist. He was ordained in Chicago in the 1950s and served as a parish priest and a social justice advocate. He was also a member of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' Bicentennial committee, which is expected to focus on social justice priorities for the Catholic church in America.

Jameson honored

Dr. Kenneth D. Jameson, an associate professor of economics at the University of Notre Dame, has been named a fellow of the American Economic Association in Atlantic City.

A native of Salt Lake City, Jameson received an undergraduate degree in history at Stanford University and graduate degrees in economic development and economics at the University of Wisconsin before joining Notre Dame's faculty in 1970. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and a fellow of the Ford Foundation.

The Irish Eye

Last week was a nightmare for the favorites in college football and those who didn't pick a rash of upsets. Top-ranked teams like Southern Cal, Alabama, and Penn State lost to Northern Colorado, Nevada, and Penn State, respectively. This week's slate of games is made even more exciting by the potential for upsets that many felt they would be, each scoring convincing triumphs.

The Illinois offense is in a college football cul-de-sac. Despite the early season losses, no team is eliminated from contention for the top spot at the end of the season since there appears to be a good chance that this year's National Champions will be the eventual champion.

So with the help of the "Wizard of Vegas", Gregg Bangs, here are the Irish Eye's picks for the weekend:

Alabama at SMU: The Bear didn't appreciate last week's performance by the Tide against the Mask. After an opening season loss to Missouri last year, the Tide rallied 11 straight wins and can bet that they would like to do so again. This game will be a tie by little-respected LSU in the first week of the season. The Tide are favored to win by 10 points. This promises to be a very close game, but the Tide should win.

Arizona at UCLA: Arizona hopes to fare better against the Bruins than their record against them in recent years. UCLA is favored by 22 points. This game is an extremely important rout of Arizona State. The Wildcats are tough, but Arizona State is favored to win.

California at Oregon State: Oregon State is favored by 20 points. This game is one of the weekend's outstanding games. California is upset by Georgia last week and needs a win to remain undefeated. They played the most competitive game last season, but they are still awesome. On the strength of Joe Roth's arm, it's a close call.

Northwestern at Ohio State: The Buckeyes are favored by 31 points. Northwestern is undervalued in the national bowl. By two one-yard thick bars and a quarterback that kicks field goals, Northwestern will win their second trip to the Sugar Bowl. South Carolina by 4. Bangs: Gamedays by 14.

Pittsburgh at Georgia Tech: The Yellowjackets were upset by South Carolina last week. Pittsburgh is favored by 10 points. This game will be a tie by little-respected LSU in the first week of the season. The Tigers are favored to win by 10 points. This promises to be a very close game, but the Tigers should win.

Penn at Dartmouth: What could be a better football showdown in the Ivy League? Dartmouth is favored by 10 points, but the Penn Quakers aren't ranked in the polls. They may not be beated all year. Pitt by 10. Bangs: Pitt by 10.

Ohio State at Penn State: Ohio State rolled last week over a decentralized Michigan State. The Buckeyes are favored by 10 points despite their lack of opposition they were impressive. Penn State wasn't overly impressive in their tilt with Stanford. The Nittany Lions are young and somewhat inexperienced and should be too much trouble for Woody's bad boys. But while they may not always beat with Joe Paterno when he's at home, they never bet against him. He's probably the best coach in the country and if there's a way to win a game, he'll find it. Penn State by 3. Bangs: Herbst, dream on.

NOTRE DAME hopes for victory tomorrow when they have to try to catch the Bollermakers.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. The win will help boost the Bollermakers to the Mutual Network Radio Network by Don Cameron. The Bollermakers will be seen by WSND. The game will also be telecast on WNDU TV.

Captain's Corner

Revisiting last Saturday may help us as a team, but will be even more helpful to the "greatest fan in the world"-the students. The team, itself included, played the worst game of the season against one of the best teams we have played this season. The band will step off from 6:30 p.m. tonight in Stepan Center. There will be a pep rally at 7 p.m. tonight in Stepan Center. The team, myself included, played the worst game of the season against one of the best teams we have played this season.

If the fans (students included) knew what the whole football offensive was all about, there would be no roaring. Offense is a team game. Team discipline and coordinatio

The Bollermakers shutout Purdue 17-0. The band will step off from from 6:30 p.m. tonight in Stepan Center.

GOOD LUCK TO US ALL!!!

The Irish Eye - November 1976

Football Picks

Illinois at Missouri: The Illini are going to be practically hopeless. The Tigers are favored to win by 10 points, but they are still awesome. This game is a close call, but they should win.

Michigan at Indiana: Michigan is favored by 10 points. This game is a close call, but they should win.

Ohio State at Penn State: The Buckeyes are favored by 10 points. This game is a close call, but they should win.

Notre Dame at Purdue: The Bollermakers are favored by 10 points. This game is a close call, but they should win.

Penn State at Michigan: The Wolverines are favored by 10 points. This game is a close call, but they should win.

Purdue at Missouri: The Tigers are favored by 10 points. This game is a close call, but they should win.

The Irish offense will also remain the same as last week with the exception of the quarterback. Jeff Westan, Westan was lost to the season last week after suffering a knee injury. This season is complicating by the suspension of Jay Case for academic reasons.

Last week's 10-7 victory over the Michigan State was a big victory for the Irish offense. The team is practicing for the game with Purdue, which is a must win for the Irish. The defense is also practicing for the game with Purdue, which is a must win for the Irish.
