Gassman follows up cable TV proposal

Carter asks Hesburgh's advice on Cabinet, government posts

by Barbara Breitenstein

Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, University president, will meet with President-elect Jimmy Carter in Washington, D.C., tomorrow to advise him on Cabinet and other high level government appointments and confer with Carter on a "special project.

Hesburgh, who was contacted by Carter last Sunday, Nov. 14, and asked to be one of 11 persons who would advise him on appointments, has thus far suggested 5 persons for the jobs. Hesburgh has talked with Hamilton Jordan, head of Carter's transition team, twice in this regard.

Hesburgh will fly to Washington this afternoon primarily to confer with Carter on a "special project which will require a decision by Mr. Carter very soon after he takes office," Hesburgh explained. However, Hesburgh would not specify what the project might be and explained that it would be made public at the appropriate time.

While conferring with Carter, Hesburgh will present the President-elect with a list of 50 additional names of people Hesburgh considers to be "the best people in the country" for various posts.

"He wants the best people he can find for the jobs," Hesburgh stated.

Hesburgh denied rumors that he might be offered a Cabinet position during the meeting tomorrow, has not done completely rule out the possibility that he might be under consideration for such a post.

"It's such an iffy thing," Hesburgh said. "I don't really think I will be offered a Cabinet position, but I haven't really thought about it.

"It's such an iffy thing, I don't really think I will be offered a cabinet position, but I haven't really thought about it.

The new bishop of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Most Rev. William E. McManus, celebrated a high mass at Sacred Heart Church yesterday. Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, Fr. Edmund P. Joyce and most of Notre Dame's C.S.C. 's concelebrated the mass which marked the Feast of Christ the King.

(Copy by Janet Carney)

ID student attacked by armed muggers

by Patrick Cole

Senior Staff Reporter

A Notre Dame student was murdered in the vicinity of The Library and Nickles' early Friday morning by approximately 12 a.m. The victim was not seriously injured although the attackers took his wallet.

The victim, Joseph Anderson, a junior, Boston, Mass., resident of Alumni Hall, told The Observer that he was not really surprised that he had been robbed.

Laundry proposal considered by Kevin M. Walsh

Staff Reporter

The current proposal to install alternative laundry systems at Notre Dame is presently being considered by the Business Affairs Office, according to Brother Just Paszesny, vice-president of student affairs.

The proposal was originally submitted to the office of business affairs on November 3 but the Student Government Association has been in response to the numerous criticisms voiced by male students about laundry service.

The measure being considered calls for 12 to 15 washers and dryers to be placed in a central location on campus. This would serve as an inexpensive supplement to the laundry service on the third floor, which is currently overused. The new machines would be placed in a medium laundry needs.

Paszesny said that the proposal was presented to the office of Business Affairs to find other location than Laundry Hall for the installation of the washers and dryers. Paszesny cited lack of space and the problem of unpleasant odors as reasons why Laundry Hall would not be an available place for the machines.

Dana Mason, president of business affairs, stated: "The Business Affairs Office is open to the idea of alternative laundry service" but he repeated the problem of finding a proper location for the laundry machines as well as expressing concern for the financial problems presented by the installation of the equipment.

When the Business Affairs Office develops a feasible proposal for a possible location of the machines, it will be sent to Paszesny for a final decision. Paszesny said, "I have no idea as to exactly when the decision will come, but it should be in a short period of time."

The Notre Dame - St. Mary's World Hunger Conference urging students to write to President-elect Jimmy Carter requesting that his choice for Secretary of Agriculture be someone who "under the threat of the plight of the world's hungry,
NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame conferred with representatives of the city's largest bank and President-elect Carter yesterday in an effort to help New York City avoid bankruptcy.

A court ruling that a key $1.6 billion segment of the city's recovery program was unconstitutional touched off an urgent series of new moves on the city's fiscal and federal level. The mayor was just back from Jerusalem, where he left a one-word prayer: "Help!" tucked in a chunk of the Wailing Wall - the ancient site where Jews go to pray and to slip pieces of paper bearing their prayers between the stone blocks of the temple wall.

Beame admitted there was no solution in sight with the city's financial troubles, but he ruled out new taxes or further large-scale cuts in services.

"We're going to have to develop a plan," he said as he met at Gracie Mansion with Don Kramer, Carter's fact-finder here.

The mayor said Kramer was going to fly to Washington to see Carter after his briefing in New York. Carter is scheduled to meet today with President Ford, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns and Secretary of Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Beame said that he talked to Carter by telephone Saturday night and that the president-elect told him he felt the situation was so critical he "would by all means" bring it up during his talks with Carter.

The mayor added that Simon also called to reassure him that a planned $3 million in federal help would be forthcoming in December despite the court decision.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

The mayor added that Simon also called to reassure him that a planned $3 million in federal help would be forthcoming in December despite the court decision.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorum. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.

Tenor soloist performs tonight

Tenor soloist Roger Scanlan of Chicago's Roosevelt University will be presented in concert by the Notre Dame Music Department at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Memorial Library Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Accompanied by his wife, Mary, Scanlan will perform works of Vincenzo Bellini, Henri Durey and Hugo Wolf, as well as compositions such as Americans as Charles Ives, William Smith, Virgilio Thomson, Daniel Pinkham and William Bergman.

Scanlan received his doctorate in music at Northwestern University after earlier degrees at St. Norbert College and the University of Wisconsin. He has performed in opera, oratorio and recitals, and was the recipient of a major grant to research contemporary European music literature and voice teaching techniques.
Free University overwhelmed by ‘fantastic’ student response

by Jan Libert
Staff Reporter

Response to the courses offered by the Free University is ‘fantastic’, according to Social Projects Chairman Charlie Moran. “Seventy-five to 80 percent of the classes offered have waiting lists. The enthusiasm of the students was more than what had been hoped for; over 1,000 students registered on Nov. 18 and 19.”

The offerings of the Free University included over 60 non-academic courses covering a wide variety of subjects. Students and faculties will teach courses ranging from value seminars to bartending to auto repairs. Available to all students, faculty and staff members, these courses have no grades or credit given and are free of charge.

The classes began the week of Jan. 23 and will continue for three or four weeks depending upon the instructor. “The original idea,” Moran said, “was mainly to present courses on basic skills applicable today such as insurance coverage or hobbies, such as dance or macramé. But we are also extremely pleased with the reaction of the students to the seminar courses such as ‘Experience of Loneliness’ taught by Rev. Robert F. Griffin, C.S.C. and Prof. R. Breton’s course, ‘World Order’.”

The many who were put on waiting lists for the courses they selected will be notified before Christmas if space is available. The chances for getting into the class vary from course to course.

The problem is the teacher situation. Most of the classes were limited to a workable size by the instructor. Some students may be absorbed into these classes if it is agreeable to the instructor. Another possibilities is conducting a second session, but more teachers are desperately needed, especially in the area of auto mechanics and macramé.”

Moran feels there is a positive attitude on the student's part to this project judging from the responses. He plans to have it continued during the second semester next year and perhaps on a limited scale the first semester of the ’74-’75 school year.

A meeting has been scheduled for Tuesdays, Nov. 30 at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Union office for any one interested in helping with the Free University. Those wishing more information or interested in teaching a course should contact the Student Union office at 776.

Peace Corps recruiting here

The Peace Corps will be recruiting next Monday, Nov. 29 through Thursday, Dec. 2. Representatives from the Peace Corps will be recruiting at the Placement Bureau and the Library Concourse from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

Senior Death March

receives no complaints

by Chris Datman
Staff Reporter

An estimated 800 to 900 Notre Dame students filled the gym Friday night for the Senior Death March, described as “one of the best ever.” Both student organizers and bar managers expressed their satisfaction with the student’s behavior.

Jim Wolf, chairman of the March, described the event as “fantastic.” “I’ll receive any complaints from the bars, the police or anyone else,” he continued. “Everybody just had a really good time and was very well behaved.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “It was the first bar of the March,” Rizzo said, “so nobody was drunk or rowdy. I think the whole idea is a very nice tradition.”

The seniors began their drinking spree at noon in Fat Wally’s. According to Ken Girouard, senior class secretary, most students then drove to the campuses to pick up their cars. They then marched to Corby’s and the Central, where Bridget McGuire’s at 4.p.m., Nickies at 5 p.m. and finally back to the ACC for the pep rally at 6:30 p.m.

Girouard stated that they “had contacted the police to inform them of the first bar of the Death March. ‘They were very nice to us and just asked us to try to not block traffic’,” he said.

Throughout the afternoon there was police presence at the car park behind Bridget McGuire’s. According to Everald Bridget, bars manager, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman stated that there had been no problems or arrests and that the whole event was good “so long as no one gets hurt or out of hand.”

Another policeman also pointed out that “the only bad thing is that the students are not giving a very good representation of Notre Dame, they seem to be driving by when they carry beer.” He continued to say that it was against the law to carry alcohol opened in the streets but that no one was arrested.

Of the four bars contacted, none reported any damage except for a hole in the bathroom door in Bridget’s. Larry Jeurkens, bartender at Nickies, said their only problem was the litter from which “only took 10 or 15 minutes to clean up.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo, also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “They were very good reputation to people from the bars, the police or anyone else,” he continued. “Everybody just had a really good time and was very well behaved.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “It was the first bar of the March,” Rizzo said, “so nobody was drunk or rowdy. I think the whole idea is a very nice tradition.”

The seniors began their drinking spree at noon in Fat Wally’s. According to Ken Girouard, senior class secretary, most students then drove to the campuses to pick up their cars. They then marched to Corby’s and the Central, where Bridget McGuire’s at 4 p.m., Nickies at 5 p.m. and finally back to the ACC for the pep rally at 6:30 p.m. According to Everald Bridget, bars manager, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman said, “I wish they’d do it once a month.”

Both student organizers and bar managers expressed their satisfaction with the student’s behavior.

Homecoming ’76 runs smoothly

by Tom Duffy
Staff Reporter

Notre Dame’s version of Homecoming, Student Homecoming, held in late October, was well received by students who thronged to events. The much-anticipated Student Death March was received with no complaints.

The hall decoration contest in Fat Wally’s, Nickies and Corby’s was also enjoyed a good deal of success, according to one of the policemen on duty, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman stated that there had been no problems or arrests and that the whole event was good “so long as no one gets hurt or out of hand.”

Another policeman also pointed out that “the only bad thing is that the students are not giving a very good representation of Notre Dame, they seem to be driving by when they carry beer.” He continued to say that it was against the law to carry alcohol opened in the streets but that no one was arrested.

Of the four bars contacted, none reported any damage except for a hole in the bathroom door in Bridget’s. Larry Jeurkens, bartender at Nickies, said their only problem was the litter from which “only took 10 or 15 minutes to clean up.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo, also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “They were very good reputation to people from the bars, the police or anyone else,” he continued. “Everybody just had a really good time and was very well behaved.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo, also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “It was the first bar of the March,” Rizzo said, “so nobody was drunk or rowdy. I think the whole idea is a very nice tradition.”

The seniors began their drinking spree at noon in Fat Wally’s. According to Ken Girouard, senior class secretary, most students then drove to the campuses to pick up their cars. They then marched to Corby’s and the Central, where Bridget McGuire’s at 4 p.m., Nickies at 5 p.m. and finally back to the ACC for the pep rally at 6:30 p.m. According to Everald Bridget, bars manager, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman said, “I wish they’d do it once a month.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo, also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “It was the first bar of the March,” Rizzo said, “so nobody was drunk or rowdy. I think the whole idea is a very nice tradition.”

The seniors began their drinking spree at noon in Fat Wally’s. According to Ken Girouard, senior class secretary, most students then drove to the campuses to pick up their cars. They then marched to Corby’s and the Central, where Bridget McGuire’s at 4 p.m., Nickies at 5 p.m. and finally back to the ACC for the pep rally at 6:30 p.m. According to Everald Bridget, bars manager, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman said, “I wish they’d do it once a month.”

Both student organizers and bar managers expressed their satisfaction with the student’s behavior.

Homecoming ’76 runs smoothly

by Tom Duffy
Staff Reporter

Notre Dame’s version of Homecoming, Student Homecoming, held in late October, was well received by students who thronged to events. The much-anticipated Student Death March was received with no complaints.

The hall decoration contest in Fat Wally’s, Nickies and Corby’s was also enjoyed a good deal of success, according to one of the policemen on duty, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman stated that there had been no problems or arrests and that the whole event was good “so long as no one gets hurt or out of hand.”

Another policeman also pointed out that “the only bad thing is that the students are not giving a very good representation of Notre Dame, they seem to be driving by when they carry beer.” He continued to say that it was against the law to carry alcohol opened in the streets but that no one was arrested.

Of the four bars contacted, none reported any damage except for a hole in the bathroom door in Bridget’s. Larry Jeurkens, bartender at Nickies, said their only problem was the litter from which “only took 10 or 15 minutes to clean up.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo, also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “They were very good reputation to people from the bars, the police or anyone else,” he continued. “Everybody just had a really good time and was very well behaved.”

The manager of Fat Wally’s, Paul Rizzo, also agreed on the good behavior of the crowd. “It was the first bar of the March,” Rizzo said, “so nobody was drunk or rowdy. I think the whole idea is a very nice tradition.”

The seniors began their drinking spree at noon in Fat Wally’s. According to Ken Girouard, senior class secretary, most students then drove to the campuses to pick up their cars. They then marched to Corby’s and the Central, where Bridget McGuire’s at 4 p.m., Nickies at 5 p.m. and finally back to the ACC for the pep rally at 6:30 p.m. According to Everald Bridget, bars manager, they were there to make sure no one got hurt. The policeman said, “I wish they’d do it once a month.”

Both student organizers and bar managers expressed their satisfaction with the student’s behavior.
The Hunger Coalition's drive to enlist the support of the Notre Dame - St. Mary's community in their current offering of letters is particularly meaningful this time of year. With Thanksgiving and the holidays coming up, many ND-SMC students are heading home to warm houses and huge servings of turkey and football. Many of them are unaware that they can make a positive contribution toward alleviating some of the misery that many in the ND population now faces. All the Coalition asks is that before they leave for home, students try to influence their parents, men or to President-elect Carter, asking their support for American participation in a world food reserve program.

Religious platitudes aside, the Coalition makes a valid point that few Americans realize the truly awesome conditions of hunger and deprivations that now face most of the world's people. Those who do, often mistakenly believe that there is little that the United States can contribute that would stop the suffering.

However, for a nation as large as ours, the possibility of a major role in arresting world hunger is a real one. The United States currently sells a little more than half of the grain being dealt on the world commodity markets. If only a portion of that grain was instead allocated for distribution to the world's poor, it would be a positive contribution to what has been in the past, a decidedly negative situation. This is the crux of the matter. No one can realistically imagine that the United States can solve the hunger crisis alone.

Certainly, the world does have an obligation to help, but this can be seen only in the context of a world food reserve. If a significant portion of the world's producers were to agree to keep a portion of their harvest in reserve, the United States could make a great deal of contribution in this area.

The true American contribution would be to help in the organization of the world food reserve. This is necessary because a large number of the world's producers are not organized, nor do they have the right kind of organization to participate in a world food reserve. The United States could help in the formation of the right kind of world organization, and thus could help the world food reserve become a reality.

This proposal is not only a moral one, it is also in our national interest. It is in our national interest to prevent the kind of social and political disorders that can emerge from hunger and starvation. It is also in our national interest to have the United States participate in an international organization that has the potential to contribute to the world's welfare.

Let us not lose sight of the crux of the matter: the United States must contribute to the solution of world hunger. Let us not forget that we are a world power and that our participation in a world food reserve would have a major impact on the world's food situation.
The letter headlined "ND males are chauvinistic!" does not ring true in my opinion.

The letter writer headlined "ND males are chauvinistic!" mentions the view of a former student, Miss. Maude O’Day, that is typical of the kind of distortions and fallacious arguments that only contribute to the confusion and resentment in male-female relations at Notre Dame. The solution to the distortion of reality with sex-role stereotypes is to have a change in thinking about the problem in general. Miss. O’Day's view is not, nor should it be, typical of the thinking of one sex or the other for the entire problem.

The attitude, which seems to surface periodically in letters on the subject of the sex-role stereotype, is to have no tolerance to understanding and to misunderstandings that are overwhelmingly characterized faults as "ineffectiveness, chauvinism, egotism, etc." ND males are no different from ND females.

The bright line 'comes up again and again in previous discussions with us.

There is no difference in the way we view our respective genders. Both of us are human beings and we are responsible for our actions. We are not to blame for our actions.

There is no difference in the way we view our respective genders. Both of us are human beings and we are responsible for our actions. We are not to blame for our actions.

I must be considered in light of the fact that both of my accumulated experiences have been in the same environment.

The author's preoccupation with WHAT THE RATIO REALLY IS, proves nothing at all. Secondly, her generalization about the very same individuals as "the best in the nation, and the very worst in thoughtfulness...is the greatest." I have experienced, and as "insensitive, sensitive, emotional and chauvinistic" within one paragraph is absurd. Finally, the generalization of groups perform different horribly. The conclusion, no misunderstanding is construed from my experience.

The letter headlined "ND males are chauvinistic!" does not ring true in my opinion. The letter writer headlined "ND males are chauvinistic!" mentions the view of a former student, Miss. Maude O’Day, that is typical of the kind of distortions and fallacious arguments that only contribute to the confusion and resentment in male-female relations at Notre Dame. The solution to the distortion of reality with sex-role stereotypes is to have a change in thinking about the problem in general. Miss. O’Day's view is not, nor should it be, typical of the thinking of one sex or the other for the entire problem.

The attitude, which seems to surface periodically in letters on the subject of the sex-role stereotype, is to have no tolerance to understanding and to misunderstandings that are overwhelmingly characterized faults as "ineffectiveness, chauvinism, egotism, etc." ND males are no different from ND females.

The bright line 'comes up again and again in previous discussions with us.

There is no difference in the way we view our respective genders. Both of us are human beings and we are responsible for our actions. We are not to blame for our actions.

I must be considered in light of the fact that both of my accumulated experiences have been in the same environment.

The author's preoccupation with WHAT THE RATIO REALLY IS, proves nothing at all. Secondly, her generalization about the very same individuals as "the best in the nation, and the very worst in thoughtfulness...is the greatest." I have experienced, and as "insensitive, sensitive, emotional and chauvinistic" within one paragraph is absurd. Finally, the generalization of groups perform different horribly. The conclusion, no misunderstanding is construed from my experience.
The Doobies at the ACC

Two years ago, the Doobie Brothers came to the ACC and played two hours of the kind of music that has become their stock.

On Saturday night, why not? The Doobies’ high-energy concerts are wildly popular, and fun to hear. In this year’s two-hour performance, the last forty minutes were devoted to material that most of the crowd came to hear. But the Doobies also did a good job of escaping from a proven formula to try something new and filled the first part of the show with tunes that varied from the newest to the oldest. McDonald’s lead guitarist Jeff “Skunk” Baxter, two experts on Hammond organ, seemed especially responsible for the group’s expansion into other areas of rock.

By 1970, their incomes were two-tenth the income of persons living in the advanced countries. And much of this growing income disparity comes about, Moffit insists, “not as Brown would have it, believe, as a result of population growth, but because of the penetration of underdeveloped economies by multinational corporations.”

In a recent address, Pope Paul pointed out the danger of multi-national corporations taking advantage of their markets. These private organizations, he said, can lead to a new and abusive form of domination on the social, cultural, and even political level.

Perhaps the funniest was a routine that had been ready for something different than the usual, loud, melodic tunes that have become most of the crowd came to hear. But the Doobies gave a strange, raucous and hilarious musical skit.

Two years ago, the Doobic Brothers performed “Black Water,” they ripped into a collection of songs that are responsible for the plight of the poor. Moffit insists that real poverty, not a result of it. Moffit’s fieldwork between Brown’s “rich” and “poor” countries since the dawn of Western colonisation and there is no reason to believe that, given the absence of basic structural (i.e., systematic) changes in both the underdeveloped and the advanced countries, things will be different.

The Doobies opened the set with “China Grove” and “Take It To The Streets,” both of which got the crowd on their feet. Instead of continuing with the hits, though, the San Francisco-based band proceeded to play a lot of medium-and-slow tempos numbers off their latest release, “Long Train Runnin’.” For once Baxter played a pleasant solo acoustic guitar, while McDonald did the same on the piano. This would’ve been unheard of at their concert of yesteryear.

At the beginning of this year, for example, the per capita income of persons in the under-developed countries was one half the per capita income of people in the rich countries; but the inconsistency of world poverty and under-development. When we do so, we find, for instance, that imperialism is the cause of poverty, not a result of it.

Most of us go on the same way. Sure, we are obligated to feed the hungry with what we produce, but there is a need to investigate the structures that have made people go to the top of the fray. At the same time we meet physical needs, we must also be engaged in a sophisticated political analysis of the root causes of poverty and oppression. As Pope Paul once said, “We cannot limit ourselves to simply alleviating the results of oppression; we must go further, and eliminate its roots.”

Pope Paul pointed out the danger of multi-national corporations taking advantage of their markets. These private organizations, he said, can lead to a new and abusive form of domination on the social, cultural, and even political level.

The Doobies opened the set with “China Grove” and “Take It To The Streets,” both of which got the crowd on their feet. Instead of continuing with the hits, though, the San Francisco-based band proceeded to play a lot of medium-and-slow tempos numbers off their latest release, “Long Train Runnin’.” For once Baxter played a pleasant solo acoustic guitar, while McDonald did the same on the piano. This would’ve been unheard of at their concert of yesteryear.

At the beginning of this year, for example, the per capita income of persons in the under-developed countries was one half the per capita income of people in the rich countries; but the inconsistency of world poverty and under-development. When we do so, we find, for instance, that imperialism is the cause of poverty, not a result of it.

Most of us go on the same way. Sure, we are obligated to feed the hungry with what we produce, but there is a need to investigate the structures that have made people go to the top of the fray. At the same time we meet physical needs, we must also be engaged in a sophisticated political analysis of the root causes of poverty and oppression. As Pope Paul once said, “We cannot limit ourselves to simply alleviating the results of oppression; we must go further, and eliminate its roots.”

Pope Paul pointed out the danger of multi-national corporations taking advantage of their markets. These private organizations, he said, can lead to a new and abusive form of domination on the social, cultural, and even political level.
Notre Dame hockey team. The superb effort of Mohr prevented the score from being higher than 2-0 to continue through 3-1 and 3-0 breaks for the remainder of the game.

Notre Dame rallied in the third period as they played their best hockey of the night. They dominated the game and scored two more goals to put the game out of reach. The final score was 6-2 in favor of Notre Dame.

In the second period, the Irish kept the puck away from their opponents and scored a goal. Clarke broke the tie at the halfway mark of the third period with a rising slap shot from the point the Irish power play.

In conclusion, Notre Dame continued their winning streak and defeated Michigan Tech. The Irish have shown their ability to play tough hockey and are looking forward to their next game.
Al Hunter became Al Hunter became the all-time NL leading rusher and Rusty Lisch played well in his first start as the Irish beat Miami Saturday.

Ray O'Brien

The Last Home Game

"A game like Saturday's context is not easy to analyze because there were several factors involved. The Irish's offense was being directed by an inexperienced quarterback. Seniors were playing their last home game in their Notre Dame careers. Bowl offers lingered behind the game. The Irish looked like a bunch of old windbags in the first half and came back as a Hurricane after intermission.

The Irish couldn't have met a more charitable opponent than Miami if they went out and played the twelve disciples. The Hurricane did everything except run and pass and was able to get four times and were intercepted once (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

This is not to take anything away from Rusty Lisch who performed outstandingly in his first starting assignment. Lisch simply took advantage of Miami's generosity and led the offense in its second highest scoring output of the season. The perfect touchdown pass to Dan Kelleher down the sidelines and his right card run for a score are examples of Lisch's talent in both facets of the game. Lisch has made himself a prime contender for the number one quarterback spot next season.

Once again Dan Kelleher and Al Hunter led the passing and running attacks respectively. Kelleher's three catches for 67 yards gives him a team record. At this rate, he'll set a new school record in this category. Since the Notre Dame game, this senior has bubbled into a star and will be sorely missed next year.

Al Hunter has proved that he can run with the best of them. Congratulations must be offered to this all purpose back who now owns Notre Dame's single season rushing record. Adding the 126 yards he accumulated against Miami to his pre-game total of 813, Hunter needs only 5 yards to become the first Notre Dame runner for over 1000 yards in a single season

Another congratulations should go to the offense who shook the second half blues and finally scored a touchdown in the third quarter. One must wonder if the kickoff team was so overjoyed by this feat that they forgot to tackle Miami's returner on the ensuing kickoff.

The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.

The "Outstanding Senior Reserve Line' man" of the game goes to Tony Slager, then connected with Kelleher for a 54-yard touchdown to narrow the Irish lead 23-0. The secondary looked very weak in the second half allowing 20 points to Miami. The total would have been much higher if Miami had not fumbled four times and were intercepted twice (eight turnovers in the game). One almost had to feel sorry for quarterback E.J. Baker. Miami receivers acted as if the ball was poison. Baker was very accurate as he bounced passes with his receivers hands, heads, stomachs and chests. When Miami receivers caught the ball they manhandled it after running a few yards.