WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter said yesterday he will be ready to propose the first step toward a national health insurance program "before the end of this year.

The President's remark to em­ployees of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) appeared to move up the Carter administration's timetable for putting a health care proposal for all Americans.

In a related development, HEW is proposing that a new government agency be set up with the mission of American health care is proposing that a new govern­ment agency be set up with the mission of American health care.

"If America does not change her philosophy in track and field, we will be embarrassed at the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow," Daven­port warned. "We will have to come up with a development program.

Davenport said in the 1976 Olympic Games, the U.S. won one more medal than it ever did including 15 individual medals, and the Rus­sians won eight individual medals. However, he criticized the de-em­phasis on the women's track pro­gram.

"It's ridiculous how women get beat," he said. "East Germany is really doing something with its program. We're going to have to come up with a better development program," he repeated.

Davenport mentioned that the Russians "are computerizing" their athletes to perform on a superior level. He revealed that he was using the same method which involved feeding information into a computer bank concerning what kind of physical qualities it takes to achieve a certain standard.

Criticial USOC

Davenport suggested that the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) has some shortcomings, limiting its ability to assist Amer­ican Athletes. As part of his development proposal, Davenport stressed the need for "subsidizing athletes to prepare them for the Olympics.

"The United States Olympic Committee gave $3.1 million to athle­tes for the last Olympics," Daven­port told. "For 744 athletes, that doesn't seem to add up to a million dollars athlete. What can you do with $4,000. There's nothing you can do."

Davenport is the executive direc­tor of the Mayor's-President Coun­cil on Youth Opportunity in East Cleveland, according to Davenport, is using the same method of recruiting to get young people involved in sports. He also encouraged women involved in sports, saying that some women "are not physically fit to perform" because of the conveniences of modern society.

Psychopath’s motives for killing based upon racial prejudice

ATLANTA (AP) - J.B. Stoner has been charged with killing blacks and Jews all his life. Now, at 52, he is chairman of the American Nazi Party, which he calls the world’s greatest hope for white supremacy.

In an interview yesterday, Stoner emphasized his goal, and left no doubt that he and the States Rights party are for whites and whites alone.

Frederick Cowan, 33-year-old gun enthusiast and Nazi sympathizer who killed five persons—including three blacks and one East Indian—and himself during a ten-hour siege in New Rochelle, N.Y., on Monday, was identified by a city official as a member of the States Rights party.

Among the racist literature police said they found in Cowan’s room afterward was a book they said he had inscribed. “Nothing is lower than blacks and Jews, except the police who protect them.”

Stoner would not comment on Cowan’s membership in the party, saying it is in the party’s policy not to identify its members. “They can identify themselves if they want to,” he said.

“What happened up there in New Rochelle is unfortunate,” he said. “We don’t advocate violence at all except in self-defense. We believe in self-preservation.”

“Actually, I think the white races that live in New York should move down south and let us ship all our niggers up there until such time as we can ship them to Africa.”

He said the group is “very much alive. We’re holding meetings everywhere, distributing literature and picking up members.”

Speculation is that the organization has about 1,000 members, but Stoner declined comment.

A major organ of the party is its monthly tabloid—Thunderbolt—which is operated as a nonprofit corporation under Georgia law. Cowan was reportedly a subscriber of Thunderbolt.

In New York, the Anti-Defamation League of B’nai B’rith said the publication has a paid subscription list of 15,000.

Thunderbolt and the party “advocate white racism, because we want to send the niggers back to Africa from which they came,” Stoner said.

Stoner, an attorney in nearby Mount Vernon, grew up in rural Walker County, Ga. “I didn’t know any nigger-lovers at all when I was growing up,” he said.

“Everybody was against niggers. Most people were even against Jews. I am against Jews because they control the press and television and just let things like ‘Rocks’ be put on that advocates violence against the white race.”

“Rocks” was a film depiction of a black man’s search for his ancestry, based on Alex Haley’s novel. It was shown on the ABC television network.

Stoner was a candidate for governor of Georgia in 1970 and won about 12.2 percent of the vote. In 1974, he ran for lieutenant governor, and got fewer than 73,000 votes, more than nine percent of the turnout.

Workshop evaluates how political process operates

Working for social justice through legislation will be the theme of two sessions sponsored by CILA and the ND-SMC World Hunger Coalition, to be held Friday and Saturday.

The workshop is being conducted by the Notre Dame, a Catholic lobbying network.

The key issues that will be dealt with are food and planning programs, unemployment and military spending. The workshop will affect the powerless, poor, hungry, imprisoned and jobless.

The first session will be held Friday night from 7-10 p.m. in the Hayes-Healy auditorium.

The key issues will be presented followed by a discussion concerning why students and faculty should become involved in the political process.

On Saturday, there will be two sessions dealing with practical lobbying skills.

That evening session, from 5 a.m. to 12 p.m., will include discussion of the legislative process, and how it can be influenced by those interested in achieving social justice. It will also look at the shift in President Jimmy Carter’s national budget concerning the key issues.

The morning session, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.,...
Tommy was free for nearly 16 months in a 7-year term at the federal prison camp at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida for his role in the break-in and illegal wiretapping. As soon as Hunt is freed, he will, according to Snyder, said Hunt paid the fine with an insurance settlement and money raised by mortgaging a house. He had served the minimum 30 days of the 8-year term at the federal prison and eventually starting a development operation.

"To be down or dig up was his natural instinct," the story explains, as Prescott builds his subdivision, Prescott Heights. He was the "beginning of a generation that poisoned itself," Goyen says. The reading also included a short section of the book about Cleon Wiley Prescott, the "Oil King," and his "fake snake, Jake." The audience laughed and applauded several times during Goyen's reading from the novel. Commenting that he wanted to "start funny and end sad," Goyen then read from The House of Breath, his 1950 award-winning novel. An attempt to write about "people very close to me," the readings described his home-town and the house he grew up in, which was being "slowly eaten away." "What I most wanted to do," Goyen revealed, "was to record or memorialize the people around me who I loved and who seemed to be vanishing. They seemed to be very mortal and limited." "This is an early work, my first and closest," Goyen continued. "I was trying to just document what I was feeling so much, like a photographer would be taking photographs. So I told myself, 'Document, don't die with pain, don't hurt, create.'"

Goyen began writing at the age of 14, but did not begin seriously writing until he was in the Navy during World War II. He explained that his fear of dying before being able to describe and record his experiences the people he knew had prompted him to begin "writing these things down." Besides these two novels, Goyen is the author of The Fake Sister, two collections of short stories and several other books. Also appearing at the SLF yesterday afternoon were Naomi Shihab, songwriter, composer and author, and Sam Hamod, poet and editor of Cedar Creek Press. The Literary Festival continues with Steve Katz, author-in-residence at Notre Dame, this afternoon and William S. Burroughs, author, tonight, both in the library auditorium.

Hunt pays fine, clears way for parole

WASHINGTON AP: E. Howard Hunt Jr., the chief tent-renter and lookout for the Watergate burglary, paid his $10,000 fine yesterday and cleared the way for his parole Feb. 25.

experience of writing and read from two of his novels last night, the fourth night of the SLF. Goyen praised the spirit of the festival in his opening remarks, explaining, "What we've found is a little space here to get in touch with ourselves and with our feelings again. That's a gift."

"Writers are very personal," Goyen explained to about 250 students in attendance. "What we've made up is often associated with pain and knowledge of suffering as well as the joy and out of it, too. It's not easy to open a book that represents a big chunk of very deep and personal experience," he said.

The Texas-born author, whose works are based on "the city I grew up in," read first from his latest novel, Come, the Restorer. The book centers around a character who was based on "an old lawn mower restorer of old photographs" Goyen remembered from his childhood.

"I thought he was a magical man," Goyen said. "So he became the center of a world I created around him. I wanted to write fantastically about real events. I made enjoying it up making it."

The story tells the adventures of Wiley Prescott, a "firedevil," whose business is putting out oilwell fires in fictional Rose, Texas. Prescott becomes rich by taking a percentage of each well he saves, then buying his own well and eventually starting a development operation.

SMC to revise RA training program

by Mary Flann

The expansion of the Resident Advisor program at St. Mary's is still in the planning stages with changes being discussed, stated Gail Ritchie, assistant director of counseling.

"We are in the state of reflection about where we are and how we can meet the needs of the students," Ritchie added.

Kathleen Rice, dean of student affairs previously mentioned specific changes to be made in the RA program such as RAs being trained in career and academic counseling and assigned regularly, accordingly, the RA's disciplinary role being clarified and the two-week psychology course for the core-training program being eliminated.

St. Mary's Student Affairs office continues to ask for student input on proposed and any new changes in the RA system.

An additional change under consideration is a commuter-student who, like the RA for the dorm resident, will assist the commuter or non-resident student. A letter has been sent to several randomly chosen non-resident students inviting them to an informal discussion on Monday, Feb. 21.

"We will discuss and identify the needs of non-resident students, then, we can determine a job description, and whether they want to apply for a commuter-student advisor position. We are very excited about the idea," she continued.

Kim Skinner, chairperson of the steering and grievance committee and an RA in Regina Hall, sees change having a negative effect at times. "But if we are to progress, we need change. The consequences are always interesting," she quoted.

"Expansion in the RA program will involve a slow change," Ritchie added. "Through the committee system and with the input of the three constituents of the college students, faculty and administration, we are making a major assessment of where we are.

United Way picks leaders

Selection of the volunteer leadership positions for United Way of South Bend were announced Tuesday by Patrick L. O'Malley, Jr., president of the agency's board of directors.

Appointed to second terms as chairpersons of the central services division were Dr. Thomas Briones, director of Urban Studies at Notre Dame, who will head the Planning Division and W. Jack Richards, financial secretary of Bendix Local #9, UAW, who will continue to serve as chairperson of the Labor Participation Committee.

Appointed to first terms as chairpersons of the communications Division were Don Joseph, director of the communications Department. Mrs. Donald Chamberlain to fill Mrs. Ronald Jaicomo's unexpired two years of an unexpired term. Mrs. Ronald Jaicomo and Trea- surer Benton M. Wakefield, Jr.

Vice-President for United Way of South Bend were appointed fund raising chairpersons. Newly elected members of the board included: Albert J. Bouri, Bortel College; Robert Huff, UAW Local #5; Lex B. Wilkinson, American National Bank & Trust Company; Mrs. Stephen Lobdell; Margaret Roberts, Local #4065 UAW; Louis S. LaPerriere, III, Dodge Division; and Nataloma Electric Company, all for three years term.

Petition seeks vote on pay hike

The president of Young Demo­ crats and the chair of Colleges Republicans are currently circulating petitions to demand a standing vote on a U.S. Congress vote for the raise.

Monday, the U.S. Congress will automatically receive a $14,000 pay raise, boosting their incomes from $44,000 to $58,000, Kevin Richard­ son emphasized that members of the steering and grievance committee system and with the input of the three constituents of the college students, faculty and administration, we are making a major assessment of where we are.

Harry Chapin paints his songs of life---

by Gregg Bangs

When preparing to review a concert, I frequently get a hold of as many albums of the particular performer as possible. This isn't done to memorize every song or become aware of interesting chord progressions, but to familiarize myself with the artist's choice of material and get an overall feel for the way it's presented. In the case of the folk singer, the lyrics and overall feel for the way it's presented is what's most important. In the event of a particular performer, having albums of his regular material is important, but to familiarize myself with the particular performer as possible. This is done by getting a hold of as many albums of the performer as possible.

Chapin is a man which Chapin sings about. All the Chapin regulars are there - the dreamer, the adult-child, the fool, children, the song to his wife, the comical narrative and the humorous narrative. Almost incredibly, the humorous narrative is titled "Bummer." It in no way follows the tradition of "Taxi," in fact, it shows off a bad habit of pretentious writing that Chapin sometimes falls into.

His Mama was a midnight woman
His Daddy was a drifter drummer
Nine months later came the little Sandys
Sandy is my mirror. There are secrets in her eyes
And every single morning
There are secrets in her eyes.

The song, which is some sort of social commentary, gets progressively worse after these lyrics. To make matters worse, the song to his wife, the comical narrative and the humorous narrative. Almost incredibly, the humorous narrative is titled "Bummer." It in no way follows the tradition of "Taxi," in fact, it shows off a bad habit of pretentious writing that Chapin sometimes falls into.

Although not quite as effective as Elton John's "Rocket Man," "Star Tripper" nevertheless presents a disenchanting picture of the astronaut business.

"Dreams Go By" deals with what is perhaps Chapin's most consistent subject - the dreamer. Chapin himself is a man always thinking of better times: he gives an enormous amount of free concerts for world hunger. He looks at frustrated adults, guesses what they would rather be doing and writes about it. The formula is effective for Chapin because his dramatic vocal delivery makes the dreams seem like the crux of man's existence. Yet it's believable.

While it's true that Chapin sings of his own world hunger. He looks at frustrated adults, guesses what they would rather be doing and writes about it. The formula is effective for Chapin because his dramatic vocal delivery makes the dreams seem like the crux of man's existence. Yet it's believable.

"Sandy," a homage to his wife, could've become soppy like John Denver's "Annie's Song," but Chapin sings with such a sense of conviction that you just have to believe him. These are not just lyrics - he lives the times. They are convincing.

Although Harry Chapin does deal with somewhat depressing themes at times, a great many of his songs are optimistic in nature. Even the singer himself gets tired of sad songs as he says in "Stop Singing Those Sad Songs!"

Stop Singing these sad songs Just tell me 'bout the good times I have heard that cold hard truth so many times before

Chapin sings primarily of his own experiences. However, the songs are written well enough so that each listener can claim them for their own. Go see Harry Chapin on Saturday - you'll see and hear a little about yourself.

VATICAN City [AP] - Vatican radio will have a new transmitting antenna in the world's largest ro- diation power for short wave. It is expected to become operational by the end of the year.

The new transmitter, with 500 kilowatts of power for short wave, is expected to become operational by the end of the year. It is designed to broadcast from Vatican City, designed by experts from the United States and Canada, to reach listeners around the world. The new transmitter will replace the old one which was damaged during an earthquake earlier this year.

WASHINGTON AP - A pay raise for members of Congress, federal judges and high federal officials requested by President Gerald R. Ford went into effect without a House vote after a move to bring it to the floor was blocked by Rep. Charles H. Davenport, D-Calif.

Ford said he would protest individually the raise, or to the no-vote method of putting the issue to a vote. But it leaked out to the press, and that "one of the purposes of the 1967 law establishing the procedures was to prevent Congress from having to vote on its own pay raises."

Rep. Robert H. Lagomarsino, R-Calif., said he went back to his district during the recess that ended Tuesday and found that only one thing all my constituents were talking about, the proposed pay hike, was "a hot button issue. We must face up to our responsibility and have a recorded vote."

Wilson, a member of a subcom- mittee that voted down a resolution of disapproval, said of the efforts to raise judges and officials, but does not think members of Congress should have one until the federal budget is balanced.

Wilson said the matter was being handled under proper procedures and that "one of the purposes of the 1967 law establishing the procedures was to prevent Congress from having to vote on its own pay raises."

Rep. Robert H. Lagomarsino, it was blocked by Rep. Charles H. Davenport, D-Calif., but that it would pass if such a vote were held. He also defended the procedures for putting the raise into effect unless Congress moves to disapprove it.

"We have to have greater res- pect for the intelligence of the American people than to believe that they will not see through this charade," said Davenport. "We must face up to our responsibility and have a recorded vote."

"If I have been hoodwinked," said Davenport, "we are at a loss to know what else anybody can do to get this to a vote."

At a House vote, told reporters: "I am at a loss to know what else anybody can do to get this to a vote."

Some said they would try to have one until the federal budget is balanced. But they acknowledged the odds against them were long. House Republican Leader James Rhodes, who sponsored the attempt to force a House vote, told reporters: "I am at a loss to know what else anybody can do to get this to a vote."

President Gerald R. Ford sent the current recommendations to Cong- ress just before leaving office. Unless either chamber adopts a disapproving resolution in 30 days, the raises go into effect automatic- ally. In the present case, the 30-day deadline ends at midnight Saturday.
Europe to join U.S. on Spacelab

WASHINGTON (AP) - An American scientist and a European scientist will fly in orbit together when the first Spacelab is launched in 1980, the National Aeronautics Space Administration (NASA) said yesterday.

The flight will be the second international space mission for the United States. In 1975, three American astronauts linked up in space with a Russian ship carrying two cosmonauts.

Three other Americans will fly on the first Spacelab mission. They will be the two pilots and the flight engineer who will man the U.S.- built Space Shuttle, which is to ferry the Spacelab into orbit from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The two scientists are to work different shifts so that experiments can continue 24 hours a day during the week-long test of the big laboratory. They will orbit 155 miles above the earth.

The Spacelab will remain attached to the Shuttle during their mission. On later flights the Shuttle will deposit the Spacelab in space and return up to 30 days later to bring it back to earth. As many as four scientists, including all foreign astronauts, will be expected to work on these later trips.

The American scientist will be selected by NASA, the other by the European Space Agency (ESA), an eleven-nation group. The scientists won't have to undergo rigorous astronaut training and they will work in a shirt-sleeve atmosphere.

The European scientist will come from one of the ESA nations - Belgium, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Ireland, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and West Germany.

The international aspect of the first mission was further defined yesterday when NASA announced that 222 scientists from 16 nations will prepare experiments for the flight. They were selected from 2,000 who submitted suggestions.

NASA picked 86 of the scientists, with a minimum of United States and the others from India, Japan, Canada, France and Belgium.

The Europeans selected the other 136 from its member countries and from Norway and Austria.

Experiments will be performed in physics, biology, botany, medicine, astronomy, solar physics, geodesy, earth observations, materials processing and thermodynamics.

Both the Spacelab and the Shuttle are scheduled for its maiden flight from Cape Canaveral in 1979, and will orbit 20 to 24 more times into space after refurbishment back on earth.

HOLLANDS: Bng. (AP) - The sole survivor of the shotgun slayings of four young transients in police yesterday she recognized a shocked local as one of the assailants who burst into the family's rural home.

Betty Spencer, mother of one of the victims and stepmother of the other three, identified a composite drawing of the youth from her bed at a Terre Haute hospital, where she has been under constant guard.

The drawing of the suspect, between 14 and 16 years old, with blond, curly hair, was based on the descriptions given by a Fountain County sheriff who broke into their home early Saturday.

Mrs. Pat Chrisman said the intruders, armed with a shotgun, took ¢77 and another shotgun.

Based on information provided by Mrs. Spencer, a police artist made composite drawings of two other suspects. She described one as being between 20 and 25, about 6 feet 2 inches tall, brown, wavy brown hair. She said the other was between 17 and 20, of medium build, with dark hair parted in the middle.

Mrs. Spencer's statements apparently support the theory that the attacks may have been the work of a small gang of men who terrorized and robbed two other couples last week, police said.

"There is a possibility of the same people being involved," said Sgt. Robert E. McClean, commander of the Terre Haute police.

"We're not sure at the present time. We're checking out all our leads."

Capt. Stan Kenny, commander of the state police investigation division who was named to head the probe, said priority is being given to suspects with prior criminal records.

"Our investigators feel that they are making definite progress in the murder investigation," said State Police Supt. John T. Shettle.

State police said they planned to show Mrs. Spencer the photographs of three young transients arrested Monday night after they failed to pay their bill at a restaurant on U.S. 41 near Evansville in Indiana's southwestern corner.

"Don't think that was a very substantial lead," Lt. Robert Jones, said from state police headquarters in Indianapolis.

"But we don't want to leave any stone unturned."

ND fencers duel to 59 straight wins
by Ray O'Brien

The highest nationally ranked team in Notre Dame athletics is no longer the football, basketball or hockey teams. The fencing team boasts a 16-0 record this year and has a 39-match winning streak that totals 57 at this point in the season.

At this time there is no looking back for Notre Dame fencers. "We forget about all records for now," explained head coach Digger Glass. "We just keep on winning and when it ends we'll just look back and admire the record." This year's team holds so many previous records that looking at their own records would take up more time than practices.

In the Notre Dame Irish showed a career win-loss record of 22-9 in 1974-75 in the season, for a phenomenal .874 winning percentage. Tim Glass leads the epee team in his second year as captain of that weapon. Glass holds a career win-loss record in his three years of fencing. The Irish boasts an earned All-American recognition for the past two years. Last season Glass finished sixth in the NCAA's and is presently ranked fifth in the U.S. collegiate fencers.

Glass was no newcomer to the sport of fencing. He is a member of the Notre Dame national championship team in 1973 and was a U.S. Junior Olympic champion in 1975.

Glass is one of only ten fencers out of 340 in the world with previous fencing experience. When asked about recruiting procedures for fencing DeCicco explained, "There is no real recruiting but we have fencers from Notre Dame H.S. in Niles, Illinois." A high school teammate of Glass, Pat Gerhard, holds the current position in the foil. Gerhard holds a 21-3 record on the season. It is the second best in the nation. As a junior, Gerhard already ranks fourth on the all-time foil list. A new Notre Dame fencer, Mike Sullivan, has since that position in 1976-77. The third man in the Irish lineup manning the foil is sophomore at the foil. In the first quarter of the season the Irish surprised everyone by putting up a point in every match. Points may be scored with the foil by contact with any part of the body, and within the area. In the foil, only the groin area and above is a legal target for points scored and contact may only be made with the tip. Points may be scored with the saber by contact with and within the area. The "wait." This form of attack was done on horseback," stated DeCicco. Notre Dame's main strength lies in the foil.

Each team has three starters for every match. The three foilists boast a combined 76-19 mark and losses. The second and third full positions are held by Terry McGovern and Mike McWade. "Some of the best boys in the country have seen this year in intramural matches," said DeCicco.

While Notre Dame's depth is a strong advantage in dual matches, it is the team's occasional championships roll around. That is the problem the Irish faced last year and will again pose a problem in this year's tournament.

The only top specialists at each weapon participate in the NCAA tournament. Notre Dame loses their team depth advantage here. In the National Championships, Notre Dame fencers have defeated the eventual NCAA champ during the regular season only to fall short in the finals. After going undefeated last year DeCicco's fencers fell to third place in the finals at the Univ. of Pennsylvania. This year defending champ NYU will send the same three fencers that competed for them in last year's championship. Wayne State will enter Uri Rahav, who was the 1975 national champion. The other perennial powerhouse being Connecticut, a state school of Penn. "Any one of the six could win the national title this year," noted DeCicco. "We have an excellent chance but I would have to say that the Atlantic coast is the factor in the success we have been working for our final goal of an NCAA championship which takes place March 24th, 25th.

While the Irish fencers will take on Ohio State, Michigan State and Illinois-Chicago this week in a rare home match. The match will start at noon in the Pit of the ACC.

Senior tri-captain Tim Glass leads the Irish fencers with an individual record of 27-2.

done much to raise our levels of expectation and has been a major factor in the success we have been working for our final goal of an NCAA championship which takes place March 24th, 25th.

The college basketball rankings have had a major effect on Notre Dame observers as not unlike a high-stakes sporting event the Irish have been working for their final goal of an NCAA championship which takes place March 24th, 25th.

San Francisco still tops AP poll

The Irish for their part are working for the same goal of an NCAA championship which takes place March 24th, 25th.
