As a result of pressure applied by the Hall President’s Council, Student Union Director Tom Gryp will take the current Union complimentary ticket policy to the Student Union Board of Directors for review on Wednesday.

The complimentary ticket policy became the source of controversy this year because of a change in the way the Union sponsors concerts. In the past, the Union had assumed full financial responsibility for concerts, allowing them to award free complimentary tickets to Union members.

The current concert booking process has reduced the Union’s financial responsibility, but forces them to purchase the complimentary tickets at full price. $1150 has been spent on complimentary tickets by the Union for the current year: $425 for Crosby, Stills and Nash; $325 for Hall and Oates; and $400 for the Steve Miller Band.

The current Student Union budget contains a $2400 allocation for complimentary tickets for the current school year.

“Don’t think that it was fair for them to spend Student Union money to reward Student Union people,” explained Mary Ann Webster, Student Hall president and chairman of the HPC’s Student Review Committee, responsible for examining the policy.

“They claim that this is money earned by the Student Union,” she said, “but we feel that it’s money that could be spent in a better way.”

Gryp disagreed. “That money is necessary to maintain the efficiency and well-being of the Union,” he commented. HPC Chairman J. P. Russell, who announced last week that the HPC will no longer participate in the program where they received two pairs of complimentary tickets to each concert, took issue with Gryp. “I think they’re getting enough benefits as it is,” Russell said. “Within each student organization there’s a certain amount of gravy, but I think the free tickets are going too far.”

Russell stated the HPC alternative incorporated in a resolution passed by the group last week. “I think an appropriate process would be a preferential ticket program where they would pull sets of tickets and offer them to Student Union people at full price.”

“I don’t think the Student Union should be buying tickets for people—it’s as simple as that,” Gryp said that he plans to act on the HPC initiative. “I’m willing to take their resolution and alternate plan before the Student Union Board of Directors on Wednesday,” he said.

Gryp also commented on the “hypocrisy” of the HPC action. “It’s ironic,” he said, “that a lot of people that voted for the resolution were the same people who took complimentary tickets for their halls earlier this year.”

After six weeks

CLC members selected

by Phil Cackley
Senior Staff Reporter

The selection process of the members of the Campus Life Council (CLC) was completed yesterday, six weeks after the CLC’s official creation by the Board of Trustees. The final members to be determined were the four hall vice-presidents, who were elected by the assembled body of hall vice-presidents yesterday afternoon in the Student Government offices.

Six rectors and a contingent of faculty members were determined last week. The rectors were elected by the body of hall rectors, while the faculty members, who would not have been able to hold an election until February, were appointed to serve until April by Bro. Just Placenti, vice-president for Student Affairs.

Hall vice-presidents elected yesterday include Tim Nickels, Howard Hall; Ed Andrie, Stanford Hall; Jay Flaherty, Dorothy Hall; and Jim Ladrach, Grace Hall. All four are juniors and will serve terms lasting until April.

All but six of the vice-presidents from 22 residence halls on campus were present at the election. Seven persons applied for the four positions, with two slots going to South Quad representatives and two to the North Quad. One person was active in hall government for the past two years, serving on the hall judicial board, as well as the service committee. Andrie has worked in hall government as a section leader and a member of screening committees for the judicial board and resident assistants. He also has participated in intershall sports.

Flaherty has been involved in Murrihey’s hall government, helping in the selection of hall commissioners and the judicial board. He also has managed the wash sales for the past two semesters. Ladrach has worked on the Arts and Letters Advisory Council, as well as being social commissioner of Grace Hall. Each of the rectors serve terms of one year.

Additional student members of the CLC include Student Body President Dave Bender; Gary Luchini, Student Government representative; Mark Huard, HPC representative; and Tom Gryp, director of Student Union, who will represent Student Union. The first three are all former members of the Student Government.

The six rectors on the council include: Sr. Vivian Whitehead, rector; Ann Payne, rector of St. Ed’s; and Fr. Th omas Tallardina, Zahm rector.

Eugene Gorski, rector of Howard; Fr. Richard Coty, Keenan rector; Ann Payne, rector of Lewis; Fr. Mario Pedó, rector of St. Ed’s; and Fr. Th omas Tallardina, Zahm rector.

SU Board of Directors to review ‘comp. ’ tix policy

An ADVENT PRAYER SERVICE will be held at 10 p.m. tomorrow in Sacred Heart Church.

Sponsored by Campus Ministry, the short service will consist of prayers, songs, and readings. Priests will be available afterwards for those who wish to receive the Sacrament of Penance.

The service has been arranged by Campus Ministry to help students and faculty prepare for the coming of Christ at Christmas. Sr. Jane Fitz will lead the service.

St. Mary’s protests b-ball tix allotment

by Ellen O’Leary

In response to this year’s policy concerning the distribution of tickets for the 1977-78 basketball season, Amy Hartrell, St. Mary’s Sports Commissioner, and Anne Desmond have organized and issued a petition protesting the allotment of tickets to Saint Mary’s.

St. Mary’s has an approximate enrollment of 1,900 students. Of the entire student body, 595 students applied to Saint Mary’s ticket lottery which was allotted 180 tickets. As a result at least 415 students were left without tickets. To show St. Mary’s serious concern a petition was written which reads as follows:

“We, the undersigned, do hereby notify the University of Notre Dame of a formal complaint concerning the distribution of basketball tickets for the 1977-78 season. We feel the cut in allocation of season tickets to the women of St. Mary’s College was unfair. We believe the women of St. Mary’s College contributes to the spirit and morale of the ND-SMC community, it is our hope that such an incident will not happen again.”

Approximately 1,000 signatures were obtained from concerned members of the ND-SMC community. The signatures were those of St. Mary’s students, St. Mary’s faculty, Notre Dame students and Notre Dame alumni.

A letter which describes the petition and the circumstances which provoked it, and which expresses the feeling of the Saint Mary’s students has been sent to Mike Busick, Ticket Manager. Fr. Ferdinand Brown, acting provost, Fr. John Duggan, president of the College; Fr. Theodos Hooburg, University president; Fr. Edmund Joyce, executive vice-president; Edward “Mouse” Krause, director of Athletics, and Richard “Digger” Phelps, head basketball coach at Notre Dame.

The closing of the letter expresses St. Mary’s concern, stating: “We feel a fairer system of ticket allocation is necessary to maintain the efficiency and well-being of the Union,” he
Black perspective emphasized in Neighborhood Roots

by Pat Dermody

Plans are underway for a second Neighborhood Roots program, according to Fr. Don McNell, director of the Center for Experiential Learning. Sponsored by CILA, the Urban Studies Program, and the Center for Experiential Learning, Neighborhood Roots offers students and faculty a chance to learn about urban and ethnic neighborhoods in the South Bend community.

The first Neighborhood Roots program was held last September. According to McNell, the program response was so good that they decided to sponsor another one.

"We have tentatively changed the content of the program," said Thomas Swartz, associate professor of economics, who is a member of the Neighborhood Roots "planning task force." While the tour will again take students through a cross section of neighborhoods, "it will include more of the Black perspective than did the first program," noted Swartz.

The next Neighborhood Roots program is scheduled to take place 5:30-7:30 pm on Tuesday, December 6th. Transportation will be provided for students, in cars driven by faculty members. Mary Ann Roemer, program director for the Center for Experiential Learning, said, "We are going to try to get different faculty members involved this time than those who were involved in the last program."

She expressed hope that members of the faculty who participated in the last program would encourage their friends to get involved. "We want to expand a little," remarked Roemer, "and give more people a chance to share the Neighborhood Roots experience."

After touring various ethnic communities in the South Bend area, a Polish wedding meal will be served to all those participating in the program. The site of this dinner has been changed from the ZB Falcon Club, where it was held on the last tour, to St. Adalbert's Church in South Bend.

The reason for the change, according to taskforce member Prof. Thomas Broden, was because "St. Adalbert's will give a much better orientation to one of the ethnic communities." He added that "St. Adalbert's has more to add to the understanding of an ethnic neighborhood that we are trying to experience."

Student input is important to the promoters of the Neighborhood Roots program. "We want to involve students in the planning process as well as in the tour, because the planning is a unique experience in itself," remarked Swartz.

Diego Pena, Notre Dame sophomore and director of Education for Neighborhood Roots, said, "We hope to have a greater push toward student involvement, especially underclassmen."

"We want students to see what is going on in the city, and alert them to some of the problems that urban neighborhoods face," Pena concluded.

‘Religious Belief’ determined as discussion topic

Fr. James Bartchall and Professor Gary Garth will discuss “Religious Belief” in the library lounge at 7:30 tonight. Garth will propose three dilemmas challenging the religious believer. Bartchall will respond to these dilemmas from the point of view of a neo-Thomist. The discussion will focus on problems including justification of religious belief and the relationship between religion and culture.

Burtchaell comments on Human Sexuality report

by Tony Pace
Features Editor

Editor's Note: This is the second in a three-part series.

The Human Sexuality report has been the subject of much planning and discussion since it was issued last spring. The issue of the report is well known among the academic community, especially at Notre Dame.

Although reaction to the report has been unfavorable, it has generally generated the discussion which the Catholic Theological Society of America had hoped for, as indicated in their foreword, when they published the report.

Fr. James T. Burtchaell, a professor of theology and an active participant in the discussion of contraception and the Church’s teaching on it, finds that he is much more in disagreement than in agreement with the report.

"They (the authors) begin by trying to explain that sexuality is a feature of a human being’s make-up that has widespread meaning and effect. I agree with that statement. The rest of their book, however, I don’t agree with," Burtchaell explained.

While Burtchaell does not believe that the "creative and unitive" principle, central to the concept of sexual morality developed in the report, is wrong in itself, he sees this new principle as being more vague than the principles of the Church. He knows that human sexuality is stressed by the Catholic Church.

"One can see the vagueness very clearly in the seven qualities (self-creative and unitive principle which the report finds necessary in the evaluation of sexual behavior)." He argued, "whereby you could probably say that most theft, a fair amount of assault, wife beatings, possibly some rapes, and the like are not condoned because the psychologists and sociologists have not yet provided abundant empirical evidence that rape, etc., is destructive to the person involved.

Burtchaell finds this method troublesome. "They have set up a method," he argued, "whereby one must make an absolute act of intercourse, they had opted not to deal with this area."

Further, Burtchaell and Hauerwas must have agreed that the report was misdirected and negative because it was trying to say what cannot be done in the sexual realm. "On the contrary, I would expect that a book which tries to be positive about human sexuality would very quickly start to talk about marriage, family, and children. Astonishingly, it goes on for hundreds and hundreds of pages without very much talk of what marriage is about."

Hauerwas expressed the opinion that the report was directed toward the right acts of intercourse, they had opted not to use the name of the Holy Father had not been well served by the way he chose to write the letter."

Hauerwas expressed a similar feeling on the subject of contraception. "The Church is absolutely wrong about contraception. A marriage must be procreative, and it is a very different thing to say that each and every act must be that way.

The Human Sexuality report has widely ignited the discussion in the community, especially at Notre Dame. It is not the first Church related document which has failed to deal with the human sexuality.

The book doesn't deal with this area. Further, it doesn't really address the question of marriage. The Church must help people to negotiate with the problem of family. The book does little in this area.

Further, "it doesn't really address the question of marriage. From the Bible, especially the New Testament, we see that singleness, premarital intercourse, the life of sex. Jesus said, I prefer you to be as I am, why should one get married?"

Burtchaell emphasized, however, that he saw the weaknesses of the report as being more profound than just a general vagueness of the qualities which the report finds necessary in the evaluation of sexual behavior.

"They are really saying that to have bad sex you must have empirical evidence that the qualities which they propose are being thwarted. While one would quarrel with the fact that sex should have these qualities, as good sex, I don't help you to discern what good sex might be as distinguished from bad sex," he commented.

The report's methodology demands restraint from absolutely prohibiting certain forms of sexual behavior until such time as the empirical scientists can come up with sure evidences that a certain act, by being destructive to the human personality, is wrong.

Burtchaell finds this method troublesome. "They have set up a method," he argued, "whereby one can see the vagueness very clearly in the seven qualities (self-creative and unitive principle which the report finds necessary in the evaluation of sexual behavior)." He argued, "whereby one can see the vagueness very clearly in the seven qualities (self-creative and unitive principle which the report finds necessary in the evaluation of sexual behavior)." He argued, "whereby one can see the vagueness very clearly in the seven qualities (self-creative and unitive principle which the report finds necessary in the evaluation of sexual behavior)."

"On the contrary, I would expect that a book which tries to be positive about human sexuality would very quickly start to talk about marriage, family, and children. Astonishingly, it goes on for hundreds and hundreds of pages without very much talk of what marriage is about."

"Or, 'Does such as this can do some good, but they could be directed toward the right issues. This book is still dealing with art analysis. We live in an anarchical situation today sexually. The Church must help people to negotiate with the problem of family. The book does little in this area."

"Further, I don't really address the question of marriage. From the Bible, especially the New Testament, we see that singleness, premarital intercourse, the life of sex. Jesus said, I prefer you to be as I am, why should one get married?"

Burtchaell gave a speech on campus in September of 1968, which was published in November, commenting on the encyclical. He expressed the opinion that the report was misdirected and negative because it was trying to say what cannot be done in the sexual realm. They have a poor method."

Burtchaell stated, "The book, I agree with the statement in the foreword. The rest of their book, however, I don’t agree with."

"I apologize for the shallow judgment involved in running the photo and hope those of you who were offended will understand that the photo was run by the opinion of The Observer staff."

Fr. Dave Burrell, chairman of the Department of Theology, commented, "I think the intent of the report was for some theologians to help the bishops with the theological matter of sexuality. I would have liked the bishops to have more input to the report before it was released. Their comments could have made the report more concrete and workable." Burrell did not comment on the substance of the report because he had not yet read it.

Hauerwas, who is not a Catholic, doubts that the debate concerning the book will be clarified. "Such a report should be addressed to the culture and not the Church. Where out, the night editor did not realize the ad and the photo would together when they are being laid out, the night editor did not realize the ad and the photo would together when they are being laid out."

To the Marines

An apology

On behalf of The Observer, I would like to apologize for the photograph of a Marine bumper sticker pasted across a spiral which ran in Friday’s issue. The night editor did not intend the photograph to be an editorial comment, and it is unfortunate that it was taken as such.

The placement of the photo next to "Marine Represent" advertisement was also unintentional.

Because pages 14 and 15 are not together when they are being laid out, the art editor did not realize that the ad and the photo would appear side by side.

I apologize for the shallow judgment involved in running the photo and hope those of you who were offended will understand that the photo was run by the opinion of The Observer staff."

Over the past years, financial aid has become more and more important to St. Mary's students. Presently, over one third of the SMC student body receives aid from loans, scholarships, grants and on-campus employment. A hundred years ago, a student could expect to pay $110 per annum, which included tuition, board, and washing (not to mention lessons in "Plain Sewing and every variety of Fancy Work without any additional charge"). This year, according to statistics, it is estimated that the "average" St. Mary's student will spend $5570 to cover costs of room, board, tuition, books, fees, transportation to and from home, and personal expenses during the school year.

A century ago, college was a luxury for the few for whom you couldn't afford it, you didn't go. Now a college education is seen as a valuable asset for almost everyone available for all, regardless of family income. The face of today's mounting inflation this ideal can not be provided only with financial aid.

St. Mary's students receive financial aid in various forms, but the most common is the financial aid package administered through the College. These packages are awarded according to criteria determined by the financial aid office.

A St. Mary's aid application must be filled out along with the FAF (Free Application for Federal Student Aid). The FAF is available from the financial aid office.

For half of these students, part or all of their financial aid comes from employer-paid grants. Students may work in the library, the athletic department, or the Athletic Facility for not more than 15 hours per week. This year, 75 students, 39 percent of the current student body, receive this form of financial aid.

"If a student needs aid, she should come to talk to me. I can't guarantee anything, but I'll certainly don't want to see anyone not come or not stay because of financial need," said Gorman.

Both the FAF and SMC aid applications are available from the financial aid office. The student desiring aid for the '76-'79 school year must have these forms completed by April, 1978, to be considered.

The completed FAF is evaluated by the College Scholarship Service, an independent firm in New Jersey, which sends the analysis back to St. Mary's. The Financial Aid Office then uses this information to determine what forms of financial aid will be made available to the student.

Each student's financial aid package is specifically tailored to her needs as determined through the FAF, and may include loans, scholarships, grants and/or on-campaign employment.

Funds for the financial aid packages come from three sources: the federal government, the state government, and the College itself. St. Mary's draws on gifts, endowment funds, local and national programs to meet the annual budget to supply its share of the financial aid, which will amount to $200,000 in scholarships this year. Together, these three sources will provide $1.6 million in financial aid for the students this year.

St. Mary's students, 39 percent of the current student body, receive this form of financial aid from the College required to fill out.

In the past, completion of the Parents' Confidential Statement (PCS) has been required in order to receive financial aid, but this year the PCS is being replaced by the Financial Aid Form (FAF). The FAF is similar to the PCS but more comprehensive in that it addresses the financial needs of independent students, and students applying for a Basic Educational Opportunity Grant now also apply.

The financial aid office also determines what type of financial aid the student receives. For a student to receive financial aid, they must be enrolled in the college for the fall and spring semesters, and be a U.S. citizen or eligible non-citizen. They must also complete the FAF and be accepted by the college.

Currently, the FAF must be completed by April 1, 1978, to be considered for financial aid. The completed FAF is evaluated by the College Scholarship Service, an independent firm in New Jersey, which sends the analysis back to St. Mary's. The Financial Aid Office then uses this information to determine what forms of financial aid will be made available to the student.

Chapter 5: The Six Standards for Engagement Ring Selection

During the course of this past semester, I have attempted to form a relationship concerning the selection of your engagement diamond. Apparently, judging by your response at least some of you have found it of some value (every writer likes to think that someone out there is reading).

Since this is my last column of the semester (and remembering that this is actually a thinly-disguised advertisement ploy as a column), I thought I might appreciate a brief "check-list", recapitulating the verbiage.

Whether you shop for your engagement ring at Diamond Import Company or at another jeweler, you might wish to remember:

1. Don't Fall Prey for "Sales" or "Student Discounts": Diamond prices are pretty much standard worldwide. Nothing really is a "student discount" merchandise contains stones which have been marked up in order to be discount- ed, or stones of questionable quality.

2. Watch for Classification. If your jeweler's assurance is such as "perfect", "blue-white" or "1/2 carat" (instead of .50 carat), you are dealing with an amateur. Also watch out for the "tw" (total weight) - this may find what every diamond in your ensemble weighs on an analysis of all of what all of them weigh in aggregate.

3. Investigate Alternatives to Diamonds in Your Ring. While diamonds have become the standard and "perfect" gem in many an engagement ring, remember that other stones, as well as semi-precious stones, have had their day in dazzling effect. Rubies, emeralds, sapphires, garnets (in many colors) and most semi-precious stones should be available for your inspection.

4. Don't Settle for "Assembly Line" Diamonds. While diamonds are no guarantee of quality, further, in order to control their mass distribution, you are often limited in terms of selection, and this is particularly true when buying a unique creation of nature, not an alarm clock; customize your own!

5. Demand Proof of Quality Before Your Purchase. A jeweler is no more a cataloguer expert in the merchandise he sells than a car dealer is an automotive engineer. Demand, in precise scientific language, that your stone is exact what it is represented to be. If possible, check your purchase yourself on gemological laboratory equipment, or at least ask for a legally binding appraisal.

6. Always Buy From a Professional. In short, you have more assurance with the purchase of the previously mentioned alarm clock than you do with a diamond ring (diamonds and other expensive gemstones don't come with UL approvals or Good Housekeeping Seals). Therefore, be certain of the integrity of the man who would sell you a diamond of paramount importance. Check his credentials, call the Better Business Bureau, talk to someone who has purchased a diamond or ring before you, before but certain that he is a pro.

To sum it all up, the Latin credo of "caveat emptor" (buyer beware) holds especially true in the selection of your diamond engagement ring. If I might take license with you and ask you to consider, are you taking advantage of the learning which is available, and "let the buyer beware". I would be more than happy to recommend some sources of reliable information for fine gemstones and the science of choosing, should you ever care to study the subject.

Since this is all after an ad for my business, I certainly would appreciate your patronage at Diamond Import Company, and I hope you find the information we have been giving you helpful. I certainly would appreciate your return for the next semester, when I'll be speaking with you again.

Cultural festival planned

by Maureen Eyres
Staff Reporter

Plans are being made for the fifth Black Cultural Arts Festival centering around the theme, "Perspectives on Black America." There will be approximately 13 events during the festival, which is scheduled for the week of Feb. 6, 1978.

According to Monique Spann, festival co-chairperson, "The purpose of the festival is to make people aware of the contributions that Black people make in this country."

Dobble McVey, co-chairperson of the politics and business committee explained, "We have invited speakers from the different aspects of Black life to speak on subjects such as politics, law, business, sports, theology and theater."

Last year's speakers included Gary Cooper, an Alabama state representative, author Amiri Baraka, and four-time Olympian Willie Davenport. Some of the scheduled speakers for this year's festival are Roy Emits, director of the Congregations on Racial Equality (CORE); Tom Gagewood, a former Notre Dame football player; and Sonia Sanchez, a poetess.

"Sonia Sanchez is a passionate, earthy writer who demands action, commitment, and change," stated Val Hardy, festival co-chairperson.

Hardy also noted, "We have invited Andrew Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and are awaiting his response."

Other events planned for the festival include a panel discussion on Black Theology, a speaker on the topic of Blacks in the medical field, an exhibition of Black Art in the Notre Dame Art Gallery, and a presentation by Talent in Action, a high school drama group from Virginia.

Hardy added, "All of the events we have planned thus far give a perspective on the contributions of established Blacks to the country. Talent in Action focuses on the future contributions."

The festival will conclude with a student-run fashion show entitled, "Disco Dazz." "The fashion show is run totally by the students," Hardy emphasized, "From modeling to choreography. This event gives students the opportunity to get involved with one another."

A volleyball tournament and basketball tournament, similar to the tournaments held during An Tostal, will run concurrently with the festival. Hardy emphasized, "This is another chance to get involved and participate."

The annual event is organized by interested students and is supported by the Black Cultural Arts Commission, the department of Black Studies, and Student Government. James P. Stewart, director of Black Studies, is the faculty advisor.

In addition to co-chairpersons Hardy and Spann, other students working on the festival committees are Debbie McVey, politics and law; Sandra Broadway, fashion show; Dale Atkins, sports; Jordan Youd, theater; Richard Ryans, business; and Edward L. Underwood, theology.

Anyone interested in planning the festival is invited to attend the weekly Monday meetings at 6:30 p.m. in the Black Cultural Arts Center in LeFortune.

HIØBS offers ten-day course in winter outdoor education

Men and women 16 and one-half years and older who seek revitalization through adventure are enrolled in the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School's winter programs, offered in the coast from the school's headquarters in Rockland, ME and from its major island base, Hurricane Island at the mouth of Penobscot Bay. In addition, sailing courses are offered between November and March in the Florida Keys and Everglades.

The Outward Bound School conducts a scholarship program for those who are unable to meet the tuition costs which range from $250 to $750. Additional information on the program may be requested from the school by writing the Director of Admissions, Department W, Box 429, Rockland, ME 04841.

Outward Bound has grown enormously since its beginnings in the U.S. in the early 60's. Established to help young people learn more about themselves through outdoor education, the program has grown by offering more courses for older people each year. Sixty-seven percent of those completing Hurricane Island's winter courses last year were 21 years or older.

The focus of the ten-day winter courses is learning to live comfortably in the cold. Students are equipped by the Outward Bound School with winter parkas, boots, sleeping bags, tents, ski and snowshoes suitable for expediting and camping in cold temperatures.

Most participants have had little or no experience with winter mountaineering, so the early days of the course are spent learning the essentials of living without the supports of civilization. Orienting, first aid, shelter building and expedition planning are some of the skills to be mastered during the intensive ten-day course.

Midway through the ten days, students go off individually on their "solo"--a two-day chance to be completely alone in the winter wilderness, practicing new-found skills and having time for introspection and reflection in the stillness of a snow-blanketed forest. Once returned to the group, a final expedition is planned.

Perhaps the most important ingredient of any Outward Bound course, winter or summer, is the sharing of skills, successes, friends and experiences.

Hurricane Island Outward Bound School offers courses winter and summer in Maine. During the winter months of January, February and March, the course sites are in the Mahoosuc Mountains of western Maine. From early May to mid-October, sailing courses are offered along the coast from the school's headquarters in Rockland, ME and from its major island base, Hurricane Island at the mouth of Penobscot Bay. In addition, sailing courses are offered between November and March in the Florida Keys and Everglades.

The Outward Bound School conducts a scholarship program for those who are unable to meet the tuition costs which range from $250 to $750. Additional information on the program may be requested from the school by writing the Director of Admissions, Department W, Box 429, Rockland, ME 04841.

Add leadership to your college schedule.

Some of our classrooms are full classrooms.

College military science courses are courses in leadership development. They offer you management experiences which will benefit you in any career civilian or military.

You can take the first courses as a freshman or sophomore without obligation. Advanced courses, in your junior and senior years, lead you to a position of responsibility as an officer in the active Army or Reserve.

As an Army ROTC student, you'll also have the opportunity to compete for 3 and 4-year full tuition scholarships. And you'll earn nearly $4000 during your last 2 years of college.

Don't wait until after college to get practical management experience. Add leadership to your class schedule now.

Urban planners were concerned with grand avenues and vistas. Architects sought extravagance and elegance as a "style" of monument-vistas. Architects sought extravagance and were concerned with grande avenues and now clearly perceived. Urban planners emerged as an awareness and an important participant. Enough of the common man was an important participant. Enough of the common man was an important participant. Enough of the common man was an important participant. Enough of the common man was an important participant. Enough of the common man was an important participant.

The Baroque was the detachment between participator and formality than many orchestral symphonies. The approach in its entirety is slightly less exclusive with sex, drugs, and anything perverted, they had the crowd yakking it up constantly.

The others are meant to be "stuffly" and quite rightly so. But it is a pleasure when the detachment between participator and vicarious likeness is bridged, as was done in the third piece, two sonatas by Gabrieli. The orchestra was divided according to its original design context when the pieces were first performed in St. Mark's of Venice. The upper balconies near the stage were used to house two brass sections which would compete with musical phrases and blend together to form a sort of natural stereo effect. Butler conducted the splayed orchestra from the middle of the main floor of the auditorium. In essence the sentiment of the baroque was displayed: such an intensity of space, not merely in architectural form, but with the music itself and its meaning and feeling.

Butloc and the orchestra then performed Telemann's Concerto in D Major and Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 in F Major. The evening opened with a performance of Paul Dokas' Fanfare to "La Peri". Though perhaps the weakest piece technically and acoustically (and visually - they were placed behind the empty seats and stands of the strings and woodwinds sections) it was, as the program noted, a fitting opening for the brass band schedule of the evening.

The Brandenburg Concerto No. 2, which followed, is from a series of six concertos written by Bach for Prince Leopold of Hesse. Any one of the pieces is an extraordinary work in itself; together they are a classic of form and beauty. Here Bullock, and the other featured soloists from the orchestra, led the orchestra in an impressive performance, the finest display of the evening.

Cheech and Chong Variations on Themes
by jon o'sullivan

Cheech and Chong walked onto the stage at Stepan Center Saturday night and within the first minute had clearly set the tone for the rest of the evening's entertainment. One of the two long-haired, hippie freak comedians grabbed the mike and made a reference to the fact that Notre Dame is going to the Cotton Bowl, that USC is going to the Tampex Bowl, and that they are going to the Smoke-a-Bowl. The crowd went wild. Cheech and Chong then took the opinion poll: "How many of you here smoke marijuana?" In reply along with scenes of delight, the stage was barraged with a volley of joints thrown by the crowd. Chong promptly lit one up while Cheech asked the audience, "Now, how many of you out there f--- sheep?" The rest of the night turned out to be comic variations on those themes.

Cheech and Chong played the audience well Saturday night and gave them what they wanted. It seemed that the crowd consisted mostly of townies and high school kids who came just to party it up on the floor of Stepan Center and to laugh at a lot of crude humor. Actually only about 700 of the tickets were sold. Most were ND-SMC students. It was sort of an audience that certainly did not derive their laugh track from sophisticated humor. So even though every one of the comedians' sketches dealt exclusively with sex, drugs, and anything perverted, they had the crowd yakking it up constantly.

They opened with a sketch from the movie Star Wars entitled "Queer Wars" in which the two limp world famous blissed-out in pursuit of their arch-enemy "Anita". There were some pointless routines in which Cheech dressed in a pink tutu and Mickey Mouse ears bounced a rock music acting like a rock star named "Alice Bowie". Cheech, dressed as a nun, also conducted a sing-along in which the audience had the opportunity to add their own, usually obscene, words. And by far the cleverest sketch had Cheech picking up a total burn-out hitch-hiker played by Chong, who inadvertently feed Cheech a whole handful of hits of acid. On Getting Bombed

by Fr. Bill Toohey

"Wouldn’t it be great if our day-care centers had all the money they needed, and the Air Force had to give a bake sale to build a bomber!"

-A current graffiti

"You’re not going to believe this. Most people don’t. The greatest crisis facing all of us today is ecological imbalance, terrorism, or world hunger. All of these are critical. But the moral issue we face is nuclear catastrophe."

Unfortunately, most Americans refuse to believe such a horror is possible. Even though dozens of top scientists and political experts predict a nuclear war is certain in this generation, it seems too unreal for most of us. It seems Sidney Lens is probably right: "Because of its catastrophic scope, the nuclear menace is neither believable nor believed by the general public. It has been absorbed, grain by grain, over a period of thirty years."

We really don’t buy what someone like Norman Cousins claims: "What is now in the offing is not a war by one nation against another, but a man-made holocaust that will incinerate a billion or more human beings both within and without the warring nations."

Or Arnold Toynbee, who surveyed the rise and fall of 27 civilized nations, concluded in his book, Man and the Bomb: "We are now moving into a chapter in human history in which our choice is going to be, not between a whole world and a shreded-up world, but between one world and a na. world."

We find this hard to swallow.

Yet there have been at least 13 occasions since 1958 when we almost had nuclear war. The last near-miss was in 1973 during the Yom Kippur war, when Henry Kissinger proclaimed a worldwide nuclear alert and the Soviets were poised to send planes to Egypt. Even these dangers in the past are far outweighed today as we enter the second nuclear age.

By 1985 forty nations will be able to make nuclear bombs, and a decade later, 100 nations—not to mention terrorists and the Mafia. According to our arms control director, the U.S. today is "basically defenseless" against this type of proliferation. Ten of thousands of nuclear bombs, which can destroy the world many times over, are stockpiled and ready for use. Since Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the danger of total nuclear war has steadily increased. The people of America, the U.S.S.R., and the world, have to make sure nuclear weapons, and the general miseducation of resources.

Selden Osborne was one of them. He walked the entire distance. He turned 67 on the way; and one of his grandchildren had been born while he was walking. He often referred to that child’s birth, when people asked him why he was doing such a nutty thing. As Selden said, in an interview, "I want my new grandson to have a chance to live out his natural life. Do you really believe we can go on piling up these weapons indefinitely, all over the world, and not have some of them go off?"

The war may not come in my lifetime, I’m getting old; but it could end the lives of my children and grandchildren. We won’t abolish nuclear weapons in my life, either, but we’ve got to do it in my children’s lifetime. For, you see, we won’t have any more time after that."

Osborne put it very simply: "I tell people that I’m on this walk because I’m hoping to participate in a miracle. I tell them: It will be a miracle if others follow us. Without those miracles, we’re done for. Fortunately, miracles are possible."

Maybe the miracle starts when those of us who are skeptics begin to question the wisdom of our past policy of the “nuclear balance of terror” and, instead, pay heed to people like Selden Osborne who reminded us that the survival of people everywhere is threatened by the international arms race and the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

Another point we might reflect on: While we build new and more costly weapons, the needs of millions of people go unmet. Only the defense contractors profit from the billions of dollars we waste on more armaments. These dollars are needed to bring about real security-the security of adequate health care, a good education, decent housing, enough to eat, liveable cities, and alternate energy sources. Using our money for these needs would also help to create more jobs and reduce inflation.

We might even listen to Isaiah: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks.

"We simply don’t buy what someone like Dennis had, or what Selden Osborne who reminded us that the survival of people everywhere is threatened by the international arms race and the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

But no matter, they were not really there to do a slick performance of anything. In fact, Chong and Chong seemed at times to be following their sure-fire humor which you can find on their albums and shifted to an emphasis on more visual comedy which bordered at times on slapstick. Therefore, some of the skills did not seem as highly polished as they would have been on one of their albums.

But no matter, they were not really there to do a slick performance of anything. In fact, Chong and Chong seemed at times to be doing their best to gross out the audience, especially in their porno flick sketch. Chong, the working class slob, takes his wife, Cheech, again in a dress, to the theater. I’ve never been to a porno flick before. Hey, this place’s got a funny smell...one of the slow puppies,” the husband observes.

It was an exercise in parodies which most of the audience, especially the teenagers who came to be shocked, seemed to enjoy.

A blind blues musician and was led out on stage to the microphone by a stage hand and then proceeded to make strange noises in his hands as if he had a harmonica. In this skit as well as most of the others, Cheech and Chong departed from their smooth vocals of Dennis, and polished as they would have been in their offing is not a war by one nation against another, but a man-made holocaust that will incinerate a billion or more human beings both within and without the warring nations." Or Arnold Toynbee, who surveyed the rise and fall of 27 civilized nations, concluded in his book, Man and the Bomb: "We are now moving into a chapter in human history in which our choice is going to be, not between a whole world and a shreded-up world, but between one world and a na. world." The council will hold at least one meeting before the end of the semester. Pacey said, to begin organizational efforts. "Getting organized, getting the CLC on its feet is our first goal," he explained.

"It should be remembered that the CLC isn't all like the SL ClC. It isn't a legislative body. The CLC is here to advise the vice-president for Student Affairs," Pacey said.

"I would like to sit down with David Bender so we could come to some kind of confonations for immediate plans. The original plans for the group were to think in terms of campus life.

Social space was mentioned by Pacey as an important topic of concern, but he said the most important concern is organization. "Once we get pulled together, the members will determine the direction of the group," he said.

Bender observed that both the alcohol and "party" policies of the University have not been dealt with in a while, and he singled out these two topics as "two of the most immediate and obvious concerns." He also felt the CLC would deal with judicial affairs on campus, particularly after the recent revision of the University and residence hall disciplinary regulations.

The trustees made a committee to look into improvements in the five worst halls on campus by the end of the spring semester. The CLC could direct some of this," Bender said.

Social life is a major concern of students, Bender said, a fact which he emphasized that social life is a constructive learning experience. "It's not just blowing off steam," he said. Social life should be looked at more in terms of personal and social development, according to Bender.

Nicolls stated that he saw the most important concern to be organization of the CLC. Andrle added that the council could lay the basis for future social achieve­ ments, such as co-ed dorms, or the loosening of alcohol restrictions on campus. "If we give the students the tools to throw parties them­selves, there'll be more interest than when the Student Government organizes activities," Andrle added.

Students discuss SG Constitution
A handful of students turned out last night for a public meeting held on the revisions of the Student Government Constitution. Students posed questions concerning the constitution and offered suggestions to the committee which has been appointed to revise the document. The committee includes Tracy Kinneman, executive co-ordinator of the Hall President's Council (HPC); Tom Byrne, student government press secretary; and Bill McLean, a former Ombudsman.

Student Government and the HPC have appointed the group to review and revise the constitution which Dave Bender, student body president, has called "an ambi­ guous and outdated document."

The council presented its revisions Tuesday at the HPC meeting with Hall.

Rape call termed a ‘hoax’

by Bob Varettoni
Senior Staff Reporter

An anonymous telephone call reporting a possible rape on the Notre Dame campus last Friday night was called a “hoax” by a spokesman from ND Security. Roemer said no one they questioned knew anything about the reported incident.

“[To our knowledge, there was] no rape situation that happened,” Roemer said. “And we have no way of getting further knowledge.”

A spokesman from the office of the South Bend detective chief said that a report of the incident had been made, “but there wasn’t any evidence to prove that anything happened.”

PLO Against Negotiations

TRIPOLI* Libya(AFP)-Palestinian leaders declared a new hard line against negotiations with Israel yesterday and demanded that the Arab leaders meeting here end their bickering and form a "Steadfast" front against Egyptian peace moves.

The tough statement issued at a news conference reflected angry impatience at delays in the five-nation summit caused mainly by discord between president Hafez Assad of Syria and Iraqi delegation headed by Foreign Minister Saddam Hamadi.

"We, the PLO, in all its factions, demand formation of a front of steadfastness and confrontation comprising Algeria, Libya, Syria, South Yemen and Iraq," said the PLO statement, naming the countries participating in the meeting.

"This front should confront all surrender solutions and imperialism and Zionism, as well as their tools in the Arab world."

Leaders of the five countries and PLO chief Yasir Arafat have been trying since Thursday to reach a common stand to counter Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's trip to Jerusalem and his drive to start peace talks with the Israelis.

Concurrence sources said efforts to form a solid front against Egypt have dragged on through 18 hours of formal talks and many more individual meetings because of Iraqi insistence on rejecting U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 and 339. Those resolutions form the basis for American-led efforts to resume the Geneva peace conference, which has been recessed since December 1973.

Iraqi sources said after yesterday afternoon's three hour session they had received clearance from Baghdad to soften demands. A late night session was scheduled for what the sources said would be signing of a final agreement.

"The Iraqi problems have been resolved," said Algerian Foreign Minister Abdulaziz Bouteflika.

"They have been settled in a positive way."

Palestinian sources said their declaration, which reaffirmed the PLO's reflection of the U.N. resolutions, tipped the scales toward compromise on the issue of forming a front.

In Cairo, Sadat said in an interview with the Associated Press that the Soviet Union was behind the Tripoli meeting. The Tripoli Egyptian leader said attempts to mount an economic boycott against Egypt or to isolate him in the Arab world, "does not raise any concern for us."

He said the Soviet Union can be punished for its role in the rejectionist summit here. He would not describe what steps he was considering, but Cairo has already recalled its ambassador from Moscow.

But the Palestinian initiative itself was a compromise between hard-line and moderate faction.

In return for backing the Syrian position at the conference, hard-line Palestinians won the tough new anti-negotiation stance.

Since moderation was forced on him by guerrilla defeat in the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war, Arafat has expressed willingness to attend Geneva peace talks. The new declaration specifically ruled out this possibility.

That move was regarded as a major victory for the "rejection front" headed by George Habash of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. His Marxist group rejects any negotiations with Israel and calls for dismantling the Jewish state.

Irish irons much improved

Then Michigan Tech fans screamed for a call and got it when Jeff Browne sliced himself from a charging Gord Salt who ran into the freshman defenseman from seven strides away. Paul Jensen scored on the power play for Tech and then Greg Hay took advantage of a defensive lapse to beat John Peterson on a breakaway. Dana Decker scored on the power play again with Dan Byers in the box on another delicious goal and the Irish had lost control of the game. Before it was over Tech had 13 power play opportunities and the Irish couldn’t get back on track against those odds. Michigan Tech added four more goals at the make the final score 7-1. The Irish will be going after their second straight seep at home this weekend against North Dakota with face-off scheduled for 7:30 pm Friday and Saturday.

Hoopsters claim third straight win lightly. (Continued from page 12) Tripucks, the game’s second straight win with 19 markers, stated, “I think they just played a smart game, it kept them close.” Batton, the other Irish co-captain, didn’t think the 2-3 zone employed by Valparaiso made much difference. After some shots were hit from the outside, Batton said, “things opened up underneath.”

The Irish face a rigorous schedule during the upcoming week. They encounter Lafayette on Monday at home, travel to Northwestern on Wednesday, and then journey to the coast to face UCLA. This schedule, “this Saturdays,” said Flowers, “is tough with all the tests and papers that we have coming up. Digger gave us a day off last week to catch up, but even that isn’t quite enough. But I’m still looking forward to playing UCLA. I’ll probably be the top Sierra Done-Done UCLA game.”

Tonight’s game against Lafayette is scheduled for 8pm in the ACC.

Don “The Wizard” Fairholm led the Fighting Irish hockey team to a 4-3, 1-7 split with Michigan Tech this weekend. Fairholms assist and one goal performance moved him into tenth place in the ND all-time scoring list.

Miami - Ten minutes into Saturday night's contest, it appeared as if Notre Dame would blow the Hurricanes right out of the Orange Bowl. But, not until the second half, did the Irish out-distance the Hurricanes. The ball floated into the arms of Irish lineman Bryan Ferguson who fumbled the ball when tackled by the Hurricanes at the Notre Dame 20 and six plays later, the Hurricanes reeled the score back to 38-33. The game was won by Chris Dennis.

Luther Bradley became the Notre Dame career record holder for interceptions as he snagged two errant aerials in the 48-10 Irish victory.

Notre Dame reeled the second half kickoff and rambled 77 yards for an Irish touchdown. Ferguson took 13 plays and 4-52 off the clock.

The first half rebuttal came on Dave Mitchell's one yard burst off left tackle. The second score came on a spectacular catch by Ken MacAfee. The Montanta circuit was deflected by free safety Bryan Ferguson but MacAfee juggled the ball and hauled it in for the touchdown.

The final Irish score came with 7:34 left in the game when Rusty Lisch plowed over from the one. The drive was highlighted by Jerome Heavens' 18 yard sprint. The Irish carried the ball 229 times this season, four short of the record set by Al Hunter last year.

Notre Dame amassed 404 yards in total offense, the Hurricanes managed only 128, only 28 of which came on the ground. The Hurricanes encountered 11 tackles for a negative 97 yards. The Hurricanes were held without a first down in the second half while the Irish managed 16.

Luther Bradley established a team record, snagging two interceptions in the contest to give him 17 for his career. Bradley's tandem was also the first of the two touchdowns came on Dave Mitchell's one yard burst off left tackle. The second score came on a spectacular catch by Ken MacAfee. The Montanta circuit was deflected by free safety Bryan Ferguson but MacAfee juggled the ball and hauled it in for the touchdown.
