Blood supply lines close as weather creates emergency

The Community Blood Bank at Indianapolis, which serves 36 hospitals in 22 counties, said its supplies were down 50 percent, with slightly more than 300 units on the shelves yesterday. The center declared an emergency a week ago, when it ran down to just 20 units of fresh blood. Alice Jurrett, public relations director of the Indianapolis center, said the center needs 300 units of blood to handle 190-300 shipments a day, but three blood draws outside the city have been canceled this week because of bad weather.

"It’s still below normal, but it is at a safe level," she said. "This is not to say we won’t be in an emergency state by Monday. We hope not, but the weather does affect us. We can’t get the mobile units out and the donors can’t come in." Allen said the Red Cross’ Louisville blood center had just 75 units on hand, compared with a normal supply of 150-300 units. The supply in hospitals served by the center was down about 50 percent, he said, because "we’ve missed all blood runs this week." Many regional hospitals reported running low blood from emergency donors, Allen said. The center serves about 50 hospitals, including about 20 across Indiana, south of Bloomington. Allen said one mobile unit drew about 100 units of blood in Columbus, Ind. Tuesday, about one third of what the center normally draws per day.

"We should be able to have a normal day again tomorrow (Thursday)," he said.

At Evansville, which was buried under more than a foot of snow this weeks, the Ohio Valley Blood Bank reported its supplies had dwindled tied the last two days to about 100 units of normal."That is an adequate at this time," said James Shaw, director of the center, which serves 10 counties in Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky.

Insurance discrimination defended during the sub-committee hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) - An insurance industry spokesman defended yesterday that some of the poorest people have to pay the highest rates for automobile insurance, and he said that he is unrealistic to ask companies to solve the problem by overcharging more prosperous persons.

"It is generally true that cars going to major cities generate the highest insurance losses and are charged the highest automobile insurance rates," Donald L. Jordan, assistant vice president of the Alliance of American Insurers, told a Senate subcommittee.

"Unfortunately, the people who have to pay these high rates include primarily large, urban areas, as well as some of the most affluent segments of our national population."

Jordan said this creates a dilemma for insurance companies, which are required by law to base their rates on expected exposure to loss but "are subjected to enormous political and regulatory pressure to keep their rates at an affordable level, even if this means deliberately overcharging some groups."

"The insurance industry alone cannot resolve this dilemma," he said. "It is totally unrealistic to expect business owners, operating in a competitive market, to deliberately overcharge some customers in order to be able to sell to other groups of consumers at below cost."
Sadat halts peace talks with Israel

AP - Egyptian President Anwar Sadat broke off talks with Israel on Wednesday, called his foreign minister back to Cairo and accused Israel of "astonishing rigidity" in the bargaining.

Sadat, who has been attempting to bridge the gaps between Jerusalem and Egypt in private talks with the Israelis, told reporters he does not believe the talks have reached an end.

"I've been through a lot of international negotiations," he said. "I've seen ups and downs in the past.

"It will be for the president to decide what and how the next stage will take place," Kamel said after a 90 minute meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin.

The statement read over Egyptian television said Carter asked if it would be possible to continue the talks for a day or two, apparently to give Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance a chance to patch things up.

The statement said Sadat told Carter: "Israel wants land and not peace, which makes negotiations useless."

An Israeli Cabinet statement charged that Egypt had "deluded itself" into thinking it could "force upon Israel" its terms for a Middle East settlement, and accused Egypt of "astonishing rigidity" in the bargaining.

A Notre Dame student, a professor and three alumni died during the semester break.

Stephen F. Calojie, a senior pre-med major, was killed in a traffic accident on Dec. 29. He was a student leader in the Notre Dame jazz bands and in his fourth year of work at George Wurzbrun, assistant director of bands. Calojie, a drummer, played with the Notre Dame Jazz Combo which won an "outstanding" award at the Collegiate Jazz Festival two years ago and also with the larger Notre Dame Blue Band. From New Orleans, La., he was a resident of Howard Hall.

Christopher J. Fagan, associate professor emeritus in economics, died in his home on Jan. 12. Fagan was a Notre Dame faculty member for 35 years. In addition, he belonged to the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, the American Economic Association, the American Sociological Association and the American Statistical Association.

Fagan was a travel consultant and 1930 alumnus, died during the semester break.

John F. Healy, a Chicago travel consultant and 1930 alumnus, died in Augusta, Ga., on Jan. 12. He was a member and three alumni died during the semester break.

Dwight E. Ripcho, of Springfield, Mo. Ripcho, of De Paul University for a women's master's in business administration program. He was also a travel consultant and 1930 alumnus, died during the semester break.

One of the founders of the Notre Dame Credit Union, Fagan was chairman of its credit committee for nearly 35 years. In addition, he belonged to the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, the American Economic Association, the American Sociological Association and the American Statistical Association.

Eyewitness reports stolen ID's

by Michael Kennaugh
Staff Reporter

An eyewitness reported seeing "a few" students take full semester student ID's from boxes left behind at the ACC after registration on Tuesday afternoon. The witness, who requested to remain anonymous, said that while he ran around the track he saw several people rummage through boxes full of ID's that were sitting unguarded in the middle area inside the track.

The witness stated that between about 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. he noticed that some students were going up and looking through the boxes, picking some ID's up and then taking them away. The boxes were right out in the middle, no one watching them or anything, like they had been left for the trash to pick up," he added.

The witness did not notify Security nor was the Registrar's Office notified. Richard J. Sullivan, University registrar, said that he was not aware of any ID's being reported stolen. Sullivan added that when he asked his staff about the reports, he was told that only "blank stars" from them.

"The main fears of University officials are that the stolen ID's in and we anticipate that the students who are minors might use stolen adult ID cards in order to gain entrance into area bars," Sullivan requested that any new information about the stolen ID's be brought to his attention.

New hospital standards give more local control

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration revised its proposed national hospital standards yesterday to give local agencies, particularly in rural areas, more flexibility to decide how many hospital beds and what services are needed in a community.

The revised proposal, which follows an outpouring of more than 55,000 letters from congressmen and the public, represents a significant pullback from "mandatory standards," proposed last September when officials predicted they would eliminate one of every ten hospital beds in the country by 1984.

Formally called National Health Planning Guidelines, the proposed standards are the first attempt by the federal government to determine an adequate level of hospital care in the United States. As written and now revised by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), the guidelines say there should be fewer than four general hospital beds for 1,000 population in a community and that the average bed should be occupied at least 80 percent of the time.

There are now about 4.4 beds per 1,000 nationwide and a 75 percent occupancy rate.

What makes the new proposal different from the old, as described by HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano, Jr. at a news conference Wednesday, is that more room has been left for local health planning agencies to adjust the standards to their own needs. This is particularly true for rural areas, which raised the loudest objections to the September draft because of suggestions by HEW officials and local hospital administrators that numerous rural hospitals and maternity wards would have to be closed.

Califano made clear during questioning that the guidelines give the federal government few weapons to use in trying to convince local agencies to go along with the federal government's standard to small units, the revised guidelines encourage local agencies to develop services on a regional basis to seek that patients can get the special facilities they need in a community. This is particu­larly true for rural areas, which raised the loudest objections to the Septem­ber draft because of sug­gestions by HEW officials and local hospital administrators that numer­ous rural hospitals and maternity wards would have to be closed.

Dial differently from ND-SMC

Telephone calls made from Notre Dame to St. Mary's will now require that 4-1 be dialed before the four-digit number.

The dialing procedure was changed because Notre Dame will receive new telephone numbers that will begin with the numeral 4.

come back to California for a chance for the basketball game on their way. If we could, why couldn't some cheerleaders—just the same thing? After being asked by some of the students (Old Did not have cheerleaders for football games), we are told that the only nationally-television games like U.C.L.A., Marquette, etc. didn't do it all; we figured it out to try and use that to see if you can get an answer.

Every single basketball team in the Regions, the Semi-Finals, and the Final Four of the NCAA tournament has its cheerleaders there. With the most obvious exception of Notre Dame! Notre Dame, the school that is supposed to be "Class" in every way, only the best colleges in the nation, so prestige, etc. Yet they have no one representing them, but fans who are lucky enough to get tickets, and of course a Pure Class Basketball team, and Coaching Staff!!

We realize it is spring break at Notre Dame and the cheerleaders have to be off to Florida, or similar places, but the bas­ kettball tournament?

Question: Couldn't there be two separate basketball teams? One for football, and one for basketball? And shouldn't it be a requirement that they have to go, not just some rich, selfish, and spoiled student body at the NCAA Basketball Tournament? The team could use some of their expenses (as evidenced by some comments made after the Kentucky game). It's strange how the cheerleaders you now have can always make the Bowl Game - be it Cotton, Sugar, or Orange - for the football team, but can't make a Basketball tournament that is just as important to that team (and by the way, not a single student body at the NCAA Basketball Tournament)? The same questions can be asked about our football team, and any other team for that matter. It's just not going to happen, and they definitely don't care about their share of the money, too.

We attend all home football games, and usually at least one away game each season. Still we

Dear Editor:

I would like to offer related but hearty congratulations to the University of Notre Dame for the magnificent beams of light that each night bathe the golden dome of the administration building in such splendid brilliance. I am certain that this timeless symbol of the Notre Dame community, when seen in such dazzling splendor, brings tears of joy and nostalgia to many alumni's eyes. Nevertheless, I feel that perhaps the security personnel responsible for this lighting display have erred somewhat in their decision to do so, equitably and brightly illuminate our beloved dome. I feel this way primarily because of the fact that the potential for rape in the shadows of the bastions beneath the dome for many years has existed. And presently, I feel that the possibility of rape and rapists is there and there is extremely remote. Having the administration building illuminated several times daily in my four months here at Notre Dame, I cannot help but notice that the members of the ND-SMC community do not congregate on the ramps and the dome proper. Furthermore, the prospect of a potential rapist lurking in the shadows seems to be equated protection from rapists also. Accordingly, I have devised a solution: having the four lights and place these lights at strategic points along the road. The extension cord could be strung from the trees to trees, and each could be suspended over the road by means of a rope and placed at intervals on both sides of the road. If the lighting was concentrated here solely to prevent the figure of Our Blessed Mother atop the dome from being violated, I feel that such a protection is unnecessary. The attempted rape of Our Lady of the Lake would be ineffective at best, merly from the fact that she is well over 15 feet tall, while most rapists are only six feet six inches. In view of these elaborate safety precautions taken on behalf of the dome itself, I feel that perhaps other areas of the Notre Dame and St. Mary's campuses deserve adequate protection from rapists also. Rumor has it that the possibility of a rape occurring on the road connecting the St. Mary's and Notre Dame campuses is several times greater than the chances of one occurring on the dome.

Accordingly, I have devised a simple, inexpensive, and practical plan to remedy this situation. My solution is this: placing a four by six high-intensity lights which illuminate the dome, leaving other two lights to shine on only the front of the dome. (Most alumni don't even see the back of the administration building anyway.)

2. Purchase 2000-3000 feet of extension cord. Available at any hardware store for about $.79/6-foot length. Total cost involved: $320/240 feet.

The benefits would be incalculable. First of all, the light that would flood the road would be a deterrent to even the most deviant rapist. And the monetary sacrifice would be minor in comparision with the amount of money the University.

All my life I have been told by alumni, counselors, and friends that Notre Dame has always demstrated an unflinching regard for the welfare of its students. Four months ago, I arrived here with these words ringing in my ears; I have yet to be disillusioned. Accordingly, I understand that this "light priority" problem (pun intended) which I have men­tioned above, is an unconscious but honest expression of the University. Having been made aware of this situation, I am confident that the people responsible for this error in judgement will rectify the situation as soon as humanly possible.
New dining hall system to eliminate long lines

by Phil Russo

Notre Dame students will soon be using a new system in the two dining halls that will not only prevent misuse of identification cards for dining purposes but will decrease the waiting time in food lines.

Robert Robinson, senior food service director for the university, stated that machines will now check I.D. cards, thus eliminating the waiting period in food lines.

Robinson said that the new machines will not eliminate the need for student checkers because they will be retained to check the pictures on the cards. This, he said, will help prevent misuse of I.D. cards since workers were previously unable to check both pictures and serial numbers.

Robinson added that the goals of the new machine will be to eliminate the food supply with the new machine, which it will give one of the four responses: "valid," "reissue card," "not valid" and "second use not valid." This will prevent the bearer from entering the dining hall for the second time in a meal period.

According to Robinson, a letter to the students will be sent out explaining the rules for the use of the machines.

Cabot Corporation establishes guest professorship at ND

The Cabot Corporation of Boston, MA, has established the Cabot Guest Professorship in the Department of Metallurgical Engineering and Materials Science at Notre Dame.

The position will allow practicing Senior Engineers to interact in the classroom and laboratory with undergraduate engineering students. The initial period of the professorship is one semester, although its duration may be extended to two years.

Firemen miss their dogs

ST. LOUIS [AP] - When St. Louis' fire chief banned dogs from the city's 13 firehouses in the drive to get firemen wrestling with anger and citizens howling in protest. By Wednesday, the chief has said, all adopted the machines.

Fire Chief Charles R. Kamprad, evicted the dogs last week, saying they were using a 30-year-old city ordinance against mascots in the firehouses.

He also said he was worried that animals underfoot might delay firemen's response to calls.

And, he said, the dogs could expose the city to lawsuits should they bite someone.

But the firemen were having none of it.

They responded angrily that the dogs gave them companionship during лаws and served as watch-dogs when fire fighters were at fires.

The dog fight caught the fancy of the local news media, and the public became involved - particularly after it was reported Tuesday that four new-born puppies had frozen to death after their mother was turned out of Engine House 28.

Most of the 20 to 30 firehouse mascots are a far cry from the traditional pure bred Dalmatian, although its duration may be limited to a year.

And, he said, the dogs could be using a new system in the two fire departments.

Problems with the hardware have kept them from being used already. When an I.D. card is inserted in the new machine, it will give one of the four responses: "valid," "reissue card," "not valid" and "second use not valid." This will prevent the bearer from entering the dining hall for the second time in a meal period.

Inaugural trust fund created from excess $1

WASHINGTON (AP) - Future presidents, Republicans as well as Democrats, can have bigger and better inaugurations because of a $700,000 trust fund announced Wednesday by President Carter's 1977 inaugural committee.

Bardyl L. Tirana, co-chairman of the Carter committee, told reporters at the White House that the new "Jimmy Carter Inaugural Trust" should provide at least $140,000 to $150,000 every four years, to help finance all future presidential oath-taking celebrations.

Tirana said creation of the trust was made possible because the Carter inaugural collected $820,000 more than it spent. In addition to putting at least $700,000 into the trust, the Carter committee will make an outright, unrestricted gift of $100,000 to whatever committee handles the presidential inaugural in 1981.

Tirana said the gift for 1981 carries forward a recent tradition, noting that the Carter committee was given $96,000 from surplus funds generated by the 1973 inaugural of former Republican President Richard M. Nixon.

There will be strings tied to the larger amount that will be generated by the Carter trust. The money can be spent only for inaugural events and facilities available to the general public.

There can be no spending, for example on invitations balls that generally attract only the party faithful and patrons "fat cats."

Tirana suggested trust funds could be used for free concerts and dances, for free transportation for inaugural crowds, and to pay for keeping local museums open beyond normal hours - all activities that were sponsored last year by Carter's inaugural committee.

The trust, he said, will guarantee that "for all times in the future, inaugurations can be public celebrations in the most nonpartisan character possible."

Under the terms of the trust the fund will be administered as a non-profit, nonpartisan corporation. The trustees hardly have a revenue-compensation problem.

They include the president's son, Chip, and three others associated with the Carter campaign and administration. They are Tirana, A.D. Frazier, a vice president of Atlanta's Citizens and Southern National Bank, and a former aide to the president's son; Bert Lance; and David S. Smoak, vice president of the Export-Import Bank and comptroller of Carter's inaugural committee.

The corporate trustee is the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta, whose president, Gordon Jones, was a co-chairman of the 1977 inaugural committee.

Cleary joins Board of Trustees

Catherine B. Cleary, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the First Wisconsin Trust Company in Milwaukee, has been elected to the University's Board of Trustees.

Cleary, who received an honorary doctorate in law from Notre Dame last May, becomes the 41st member of Notre Dame's Board, which was created in 1967 when governance of the University was transferred from the Holy Cross religious community to a group of predominantly lay trustees, headed by Edmund A. Stephan, a Chicago attorney. She is the fourth women currently holding a position on the Board.

A 1937 graduate of the University of Chicago who received her law degree in 1943 from the University of Wisconsin, Cleary practiced law for four years before joining the First Wisconsin Trust Company in 1947. She was made vice president in 1954, president in 1969, and president and chief executive officer in 1970 and assumed her current position in 1976. Her name is invariably found on lists of the most influential women in American society.

Who are you telling us how to run our business?

It takes a lot of confidence to come fresh out of school and begin telling us how to do things.

On the other hand, it takes an unusual company to provide the kind of environment where that can happen, but that is exactly the environment you'll find at Scott Paper.

We constantly search for people who have the ability to respond to challenges and think for themselves. Those with the initiative and desire to see alternatives, the skill and courage to convince others that there are better ways and who aren't afraid to express their ideas.

At Scott, we admire an aggressive stance because we are an aggressive company. You can make your own opportunities with us...and we'll prove it.

The president and Led chose Mardi Gras construction to start because they expected the administration's year long search for a FBI chief willing to serve a 10 year term, the maximum permitted by law.

Homecoming long awaited by Irish

by Gregory Solman
Sports Writer

Tuesday night, it mattered little that Manhattan College was in a whole different league than the struggling Irish. It was the light at the end of the tunnel that was important to Notre Dame.

The schedule did not do the Irish favors for the first four weeks. It is not often that Notre Dame experiences a long and tiring Christmas vacation on the road. After defeating Manhattan 79-67 on the road to lead the Dons to the grudge-match victory, it was time to return to the Cotton Bowl. The Irish had 10, and Rich Branning sparked the Kentucky victory, after Notre Dame won over top-ranked Michigan State 77-66.

Notre Dame's star-crossed road trip continued in Oak腊e, Ala., for this first appearance of the year. Notre Dame felt the effects of an injury-free season for the Irish than needed to go. The Irish had 10, and Rich Branning sparked the Kentucky victory, after Notre Dame won over top-ranked Michigan State 77-66.

The Fighting Sioux of North Dakota held the Irish to 40 points in the final two WCHA contests before Christmas vacation. The Irish led Wisconsin 3-2 after two periods. Notre Dame took advantage of the Irish the first night with an 8-2 streak breaking loss they suffered one year ago. Unlike the previous year, however, the student body was not the most valuable player. This year, it was Bill Cartwright, whose arm miraculously healed, enabling him to lead the Dons to the grudge-match victory, 79-70.

A poor first half shooting performance by the Irish, coupled with a second half San Francisco sport that saw the Dons escape the Irish 23-11, led to the Irish as well as the student body. Notre Dame was the unanimous selection for the National Title. After the loss to Georgia Tech, Notre Dame had to hope that Texas would defeat Texas A&M the following weekend to insure that they would be playing the number-one team in the country the day after New Year’s.

The next week we had to come from behind to beat Purdue and we really began to feel as though things were starting to come together. After we soundly defeated a good Southern Cal team, we had our confidence going for us and we knew that we could play with anybody in the country.

The next weekend the Irish shocked the number one ranked Denver Pioneers, handing them their fourth loss of the year, 5-3. Behind the hot hand of goalie Len Mohr and the tenacious checking line of Tom Michalek, Steve Schneider and Kevin Humphreys, Leavy’s crew scored eight goals while yielding eight over the course of the weekend. By the following week, the Fighting Irish had scored two goals Friday while Michigan State held Notre Dame to one goal on Saturday. It was a good performance by the Irish, especially considering the weight carried by the Fighting Irish in the Cotton Bowl coupled with the weight carried by the name Notre Dame, brought the MacArthur Bowl back to the Dome.

The next two weeks were quite a test, for the Irish were to play the number one ranked Denver Pioneers, Hawaii and Air Force was next and the Falcons were completely demolished, 49-0. Later that evening, the Irish were informed that the University of Mississippi Rebels upset the number one ranked Denver Pioneers, handing them their fourth loss of the year, 5-3. Yes, October 22, 1977 is a day that will not be forgotten for many years. For the seniors, this one day helped erase such memories as 55-24, 24-17 and 71-13. Now, 49-19 is a score that reaches heights that only the best of the best can achieve.

The Notre Dame football team reacted very well en route to their uphill drive takes over which helps you to sacrifice many things in order to well, assisting on a goal in the process. Scott Cameron saw action in the week leading up to the Cotton Bowl in for the missing skaters.

The following weekend against Georgia Tech would be the time the Irish would falter. However, after the 1976 loss to the Yellow Jackets, the Irish would not lose this season. The Ramblin’ Wreck was destroyed, 69-14.

The next Saturday was going to be quite a test, for the Irish were to meet Mississippi State in the first time ever. The only thing known before the contest and were ready for the challenge. Notre Dame scored first, however, minutes later when the Irish missed a chance to extend their advantage the game began to shift. Notre Dame found themselves trailing 17-17 entering the final period of play. Once more, this squad displayed their championship caliber by registering 14 final period points, against the best defense of the officials. The Irish returned to South Bend with a 21-17 win.

Air Force was next and the Falcons were completely demolished, 49-0. Later that evening, the Irish were informed that the University had accepted an invitation to play in the Cotton Bowl on January 2. However, head coach had one game left, that being with Texas. Notre Dame also had to hope that Texas would defeat Texas A & M the following weekend to insure that they would be playing the number-one team in the country the day after New Year’s.

Well, the Longhorns did win their battle with the Aggies, but the Irish still had to face Miami. Notre Dame took to the field in a very high energy mood and were ready to spatter. At halftime, the contest was still close. However, the Irish offense exploded in the second half and Notre Dame rolled to a 49-13 victory.

Now, everything had worked out just as planned. The Irish ended the regular season at 10-1 and were preparing to face the number-one ranked team in Dallas. Many believed this battle would be for the national championship. However, Oklahoma, Alabama, and Texas all believed they should agree with that point.

But, all the bowl games are over and we know Arkansas surprised Oklahoma and Michigan chocked in the big one once again. That left the race between Notre Dame and Alabama. Had any other team been in a fight with the Crimson Tide, the Alabama Crimson Tide would not have been considered a national champion. The unbelievable performance by the Fighting Irish in the Cotton Bowl coupled with the weight carried by the name Notre Dame, brought the MacArthur Bowl back to the Dome.

"Next year we are going back for it again," Devine stressed. Well, it’s great to be optimistic about next year. However, the players and coaches should take time to enjoy the distinction they’ve earned this year - National Champions.

The next weekend the Irish shocked the number one ranked Deerer Pioneers, handing them their fourth loss of the year, 5-3. Behind the hot hand of goalie Len Mohr and the tenacious checking line of Tom Michalek, Steve Schneider and Kevin Humphreys, Leavy’s crew scored eight goals while yielding eight over the course of the weekend. "This puts us where Texas was," number-one," Devine remarked. "We are going back for it again. We are going to play the number-one team and we beat them.

Green Machine shocks country, destroys Texas, 38-10, and captures National Title

Dallas - The Fighting Irish football team shocked the University of Texas as well as a national television audience via their 38-10 stampede over the Longhorns in the January 2 Cotton Bowl Classic. Notre Dame's victory over the sole remaining undefeated team plus some major upsets in other post-season competition enabled the Irish to claim the National Championship for the first time since 1973.

The Longhorns received the opening kickoff and attempted a reverse, but their fortunes were not to equal those of Georgia Tech. The Irish defense anticipated the mimicry and stepped on the Longhorns at their own 11.

Texas began to move the ball well and was soon faced with a third and down and one at their own 64. Then, Randy McEachern attempted the option, but pressure from Ross Browner caused an errant pitch and Browner made the recovery at the Texas 32.

Jim Browner recovered a Ham Jones fumble at the Texas 22 on the next Longhorn possession and the Irish needed but four plays to reach the endzone. Notre Dame quarterback Mike Lockett with a 7 yard pass to receiver Steve Heimkreiter.

Although they did not score on the opening possession of the third quarter, Notre Dame moved the ball well enough to tie the game on a 37 yard field goal by Dave Reeve, to make the score 10-3.

Three plays later, Montana hit Mike Lockett with a 13 yard touchdown pass. Reeve's point from placement gave Notre Dame the lead, 17-3

With 3:47 left before halftime McEachern threw incomplete to flanker Ronnie Miksch. But, an interference penalty gave the Longhorns a 4 yard field goal, but after that point, everything was Irish.

Jim Browner recovered a Ham Jones fumble at the Texas 22 on the next Longhorn possession and the Irish needed but four plays to reach the endzone. Notre Dame quarterback Mike Lockett with a 7 yard pass to receiver Steve Heimkreiter.

With that last score, memories of the 1974 clash with Southern Cal came to mind, as Montana hit Mike Lockett at the 13 yard line to set up a short field goal.

The Irish drove from their own 20 left before halftime McEachern threw incomplete to flanker Ronnie Miksch. But, an interference penalty gave the Longhorns a 4 yard field goal, but after that point, everything was Irish.
