Burtchaell likes liberal education

by Mark Perry
Staff Reporter

Fr. James T. Burtchaell, at a small gathering in Fisher Hall last night, stated that he believes students are pressured into studying for certain professions and are thus losing many of the benefits of a liberal education here at Notre Dame.

Burtchaell discussed how colleges and universities are simply training schools for certain professions, but gradually began to adopt a more liberal education. He advised students to use their liberal education to help them choose a career.

He explained how training and education differ. "If you ask to be trained, you are really asking to be initiated into the skills that it takes to be proficient in a job or profession. If you want to be educated, you are not asking to be taught skills so much as to have your intellect trained so that you might be resourceful in thinking and expressing your thinking."

"The point of a liberal education," he continued, "is to help the more mind and not to involve any skills."

Burtchaell noted that when making a career decision, students at Notre Dame have certain advantages. "On the basis of selectivity, students at Notre Dame have intellectual and educational advantages that put them in the first one or two per cent of people their age," Burtchaell said. "If you are talented enough to come to Notre Dame, it is likely that people will look at your savvy rather than your skills. They are more interested in your intellectual ability. "There are many pressures on students," he continued, "not to follow their own intellectual curiosity, but to instead conform to some sort of career plan." Burtchaell believes the present college process should be reversed, that a career decision should be postponed as long as possible. "Why should you decide when you are a junior in high school what you want to do with your life," Burtchaell asked. "Instead of deciding what to do early and then asking what you should do to train for that, ask instead what you really want to do next semester, what would you find interesting. Then ask what... (continued on page 3)

SMC's used-book sale saves money, hassle

by Molly Wade

St. Mary's first used-book sale was held in the North Regens basement kitchen from Jan. 17 to Jan. 23. Sophomores Maureen Read, Patty Vidal, Susan Carberry, and Linda Jacobs organized, published, and ran the exchange.

Leaflets encouraging students to take part in the sale were distributed last semester. Interested students dropped their books off in the kitchen between Dec. 10 and Jan. 16. Read explained that they were attempting to eliminate the usual confusion of signs, telephoning, and rushing to different halls to the North Regens basement to find needed books. "We needed kitchen. All unclaimed money will move organization," she remarked, be donated to Logan Center.

HPC ‘generally plans’ carnival for All Tostal

by Michael Lewis
Senior Staff Reporter

The HPC Constitution Committee, responding by saying, "Bro. Just was given a copy and we invited his comments." He also noted that the role of Judicial Coordinator was outlined more specifically in the proposal than the current Constitution. He agreed that there is no impeachment clause in the proposal, adding "no one really asked for one before. I didn't see the need for one, myself."

The Constitution devoted a large part of the meeting to discussion, concentrating on specific problems in their roles as Hall Presidents. The HPC plans to devote a part of future meetings to discuss practical problems, such as the role of Hall Vice-Presidents and section leaders.

The "pugnacious" the proposed Student Government Convention, stating, "there are several major faults in the document." He pointed out the "vague structure of the office of Judicial Coordinator" and the "Lack of an Impeachment Clause for Student Body President and Vice-President" as two of his objections. He also questioned a lack of administrative input, stating, "I called Bro. Just Fazendy (vice-president for Student Affairs) and he had not received any information about it."

Tom Byrne, a member of the HPC Constitution Committee, responded by saying, "Bro. Just was given a copy and we invited his comments." He also noted that the role of Judicial Coordinator was outlined more specifically in the proposal than the current Constitution. He agreed that there is no impeachment clause in the proposal, adding "no one really asked for one before. I didn't see the need for one, myself."

The Constitution devoted a large part of the meeting to discussion, concentrating on specific problems in their roles as Hall Presidents. The HPC plans to devote a part of future meetings to discuss practical problems, such as the role of Hall Vice-Presidents and section leaders.

The "pugnacious" the proposed Student Government Convention, stating, "there are several major faults in the document." He pointed out the "vague structure of the office of Judicial Coordinator" and the "Lack of an Impeachment Clause for Student Body President and Vice-President" as two of his objections. He also questioned a lack of administrative input, stating, "I called Bro. Just Fazendy (vice-president for Student Affairs) and he had not received any information about it."

Tom Byrne, a member of the HPC Constitution Committee, responded by saying, "Bro. Just was given a copy and we invited his comments." He also noted that the role of Judicial Coordinator was outlined more specifically in the proposal than the current Constitution. He agreed that there is no impeachment clause in the proposal, adding "no one really asked for one before. I didn't see the need for one, myself."

"I called Bro. Just Fazendy (vice-president for Student Affairs) and he had not received any information about it."

Tom Byrne, a member of the HPC Constitution Committee, responded by saying, "Bro. Just was given a copy and we invited his comments." He also noted that the role of Judicial Coordinator was outlined more specifically in the proposal than the current Constitution. He agreed that there is no impeachment clause in the proposal, adding "no one really asked for one before. I didn't see the need for one, myself."

The Constitution devoted a large part of the meeting to discussion, concentrating on specific problems in their roles as Hall Presidents. The HPC plans to devote a part of future meetings to discuss practical problems, such as the role of Hall Vice-Presidents and section leaders.

"I called Bro. Just Fazendy (vice-president for Student Affairs) and he had not received any information about it."

Tom Byrne, a member of the HPC Constitution Committee, responded by saying, "Bro. Just was given a copy and we invited his comments." He also noted that the role of Judicial Coordinator was outlined more specifically in the proposal than the current Constitution. He agreed that there is no impeachment clause in the proposal, adding "no one really asked for one before. I didn't see the need for one, myself."

The Constitution devoted a large part of the meeting to discussion, concentrating on specific problems in their roles as Hall Presidents. The HPC plans to devote a part of future meetings to discuss practical problems, such as the role of Hall Vice-Presidents and section leaders.

"I called Bro. Just Fazendy (vice-president for Student Affairs) and he had not received any information about it."

Tom Byrne, a member of the HPC Constitution Committee, responded by saying, "Bro. Just was given a copy and we invited his comments." He also noted that the role of Judicial Coordinator was outlined more specifically in the proposal than the current Constitution. He agreed that there is no impeachment clause in the proposal, adding "no one really asked for one before. I didn't see the need for one, myself."

The Constitution devoted a large part of the meeting to discussion, concentrating on specific problems in their roles as Hall Presidents. The HPC plans to devote a part of future meetings to discuss practical problems, such as the role of Hall Vice-Presidents and section leaders.
The Observer

Night Editor: Frank Kebe (his first)

Asst. Night Editor: Joe Bauer

Features Layout: Tony Pace

Sports Layout: Paul (I told you they couldn't) Stevenson

The Men's Men (Can Women?)
Mark Ruz, Beth Rizzo, Rich Clarizio, Mary McNulty

Early Morning Typist: Me (also my first) 0:00

Day Editors: Ethel Borst, Megan

Contact: Joan Jefercou

Ad Layout: an unknown person

Photographer: Kevin Walsh

The Observer is published Monday through Friday during the academic year and during vacation periods. The Observer is the student newspaper of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's Colleges. Opinions expressed in this paper are those of the individuals concerned. All rights reserved.

Apply now:

European jobs

European American Student Service (EASS) is now accepting applications for summer employment in Europe.

For several years, EASS has been the United American student for summer employment in Europe. The purpose of the organization is to place students in the countries and job which best meet their needs and also to bring them into contact with the peoples of Europe.

For further information and applications write: American European Student Service, Wele 133, Box 70, FL4943 Mauren, Liechtenstein.

BONJOURNE [AP] - Paradise beckons, but only if you're visiting. If you want to stay, be prepared to find Hawaii's beaches empty and water welcome mat out from under you. "If you think Paradise is good every person who may wish to live here. It is that simple," says Gov. George Ariyoshi.

Ariyoshi himself, one of the monuments of the island, occasionally stops upon legislators to take drastic steps during the legislative session and residents of the other 49 states from settling up homes in Hawaii. And a recent newspaper poll indicates that Hawaii has much legal power to limit immigration. "If we appear to have a strong base of public sympathy," a recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 70 percent of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroached island reviewed for friendly visitors.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.

Turer's power expanded

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a bulky executive order designed to streamline foreign intelligence intelligence and state all but to put that practice on covert activities, that drew fire from congressional investigators. A recent newspaper poll indicates that more than 80 percent of the population believes something must be done to cut the number of newcomers.

The argument is that Hawaii today is a far different place than it was at the turn of the century, when boatloads of immigrants came to an encroaching island groupArrow - than for forced road blocks.

Today's unemployment and taxes are high, and the economy unstable.
Campus could become U.S. historic district

by Ann Gales
Senior Staff Reporter

A large section of the Notre Dame campus is now an historic district if officials in Washington, D.C., act on an application submitted to the Department of Interior. If this happens, the University has already approved the application.

Included in the proposed district are buildings in the area of the Administration Building, adjoining territory where the Administration Building itself is located, and parcels of land where the first buildings were constructed and a large section of the South Quad. The application was prepared by Assistant Archivist Wendy Clauson, with the help of Norman Burchtael.

Burchtael speaks on education

(continued from page 1)

To relax enough so that they can do what they really want to do, Burchtael continued, "because you are not doing anything with it. If you are studying something with it, then you are trading in an educational experience and you should come in postgraduate work or in a degree program..." "Pursue your heart's desire," Burchtael said then, "but at the point of graduation you will have reached a point of maturity which is a much more reliable time to even look at career choices. Do not let the people who make their living by using their wits,... Burchtael concluded... "are the people who know how to educate. It really doesn't matter what kind of people the world is led by, as long as they are stimulating to you.'"

Tutors, readers, volunteers needed

A wide variety of volunteer activities are now open to Notre Dame and St. Mary's students. Anyone interested in tutoring, reading to an elderly person, reading to a child or as activities coordinator, should contact the Tutors, Readers, Volunteers Service Office at 7308 for more information.

Satellite falls over Canada, radioactive materials feared

YELLOWKNIFE, Canada (AP) -- A nuclear-powered Soviet spy satellite that exploded over a remote region of the Canadian Arctic on Wednesday is feared to have released radioactive materials that could pose a threat to the province of Saskatchewan.

The satellite, carrying 100 pounds of highly radioactive enriched uranium 235, had burned up in the atmosphere. "If there is think there is any cause for hysteria," he said at an Ottawa news conference.

"It's been confirmed that the Prime Minister Pfizer Elliott Trudeau was defending the government's handling of the incident in Parliament. He said he had been informed about a week ago that the Cosmos 554 satellite was tumbling from orbit, but that the precise location of its fall was not known even an hour beforehand and that therefore could not be "sensitive enough" of the Canadian capital.

Desmond told reporters that residents of the Northwest Territories, were not unduly concerned because it could not "cause unnecessary hysteria." The chances that Yellowknife would be impacted were "very small, less than being struck by... lightning," he said. Other Canadian and U.S. officials indicated the location could not be predicted until early yesterday. American officials said the satellite entered the atmosphere at 4:55 a.m. EDT, time-6:55 a.m. EST and within a few minutes President Jimmy Carter and Prime Minister Trudeau were discussing the situation by tele-

Carter's national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, who made the first announcement of the space satellite's crash, had been interviewing with Soviet and American officials had intensive consultations with the satellite for the five years..."

Brezinski said U.S. satellite trackers detected problems in Cosmos 554 in late December and confirmed it might fall in Earth. In an exchange of messages through Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Do- viyonski, Brezinski said, the U.S. satellite detected there would be no danger of a nuclear explosion when the satellite plunged into the atmosphere.

Heinz Kakiushi of the Institute for Space Research in Bochum, Germany, said the amount of uranium indicated the satellite was "not a very small satellite." He said it is the only type of satellite that requires so much energy because it must have a nuclear power source. "Soviet "nuclear satellites" with two to four pounds of uranium are less dangerous, but still an unnecessary risk because a small amount of energy can be produced from sufficient material.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency reported the Cosmos 554 had been designed to self-destruct in the event of such a threat. "It has ceased to exist," the agency said.

Valid ID's please!

ND Gridders and Coaches drink FREE

Wednesday, January 25, 1978

the observer

Corby's

National Championship Party

Wed. 1/26 2:30 AM

Schnapps

50* shot

3 drafts for $1

Valid ID's please!
Some stolen ID's recovered

by Tom Haller

Some of last semester's blue student ID cards, reported stolen last week from the ACC at registration by an eyewitness, have been recovered. They were taken by a boy playing in the Irish Youth Hockey League, according to Dave Bartet, Pro Shop Manager of the ACC. The boy's mother returned the ID's to ACC Security after reading about them in the Banquet Server.

The unidentified youth who claimed to have found the ID's in the trash, was with three friends at the time. It is unknown if they have the ID's at this time or if they were returned. It was said the boy had "a stack of computer cards," were returned and that they were to be sent to the Satter's office.

The witness who originally reported seeing the cards stolen did not see any of these children. He said he saw "four college students" taking the ID's, but that they did not seem to be looking for anything in particular, such as that of a student over 21. He also said that he has seen a number of the blue ID's "floating around the hall" recently.

Other students have observed that many people did not even turn in their ID's at registration. "I know two people who didn't turn in their ID's," said sophomore Alan Himbaugh.

Richard J. Sullivan, University registrar, said he expected to receive the recovered ID's in "a day or two," and would destroy them. All the other ID's collected at registration have already been destroyed, he explained, so there is no way to tell how many were stolen.

Sullivan was not concerned however, "I can't get excited about it," he said. He noted that the old ID's were invalid anyway and will not be honored on campus. He also said that security has been notified that the blue ID's are invalid, and assumed that they would notify all the bars in the area.

Director of Security Arthur Pearse, however, said that notification of all the bars would be impossible, but that the South Bend police would be notified shortly of the change.

Pearse commented that he was worried about the stolen ID's "only to the fact that some of our students could fall victim to false representation by non-students using the ID's to commit fraud. It is for that reason that the policemen will be notified, as they are every time the ID's are changed. Of the bars, only the Library has been turning down ID's," he explained.

Students who want to tutor this semester with the Neighborhood Study Help Program (NSHP) can sign up this week at the dining hall.

The NSHP is the campus volunteer service through which ND-SMC students tutor South Bend grade school children. Tutoring center captains will be at the South Dining Hall with sign-up sheets tomorrow from 5:30-6 p.m., and at St. Mary's Dining Hall on Thursday from 4:30-6 p.m.

Tutors usually spend one hour each week with a grade school student to work on reading and math problems. Transportation for tutors is provided through Volunteer Services. Anyone with questions may call Maggie Brittain (41-4362) or Rick VanBeaver (283-6372).
the observer

Windom's Thuerber

William Windom captured his audience last night at Washington Hall in his presentation of "Thuerber." Windom enthused a near-capacity, expectant crowd to an appreciative standing ovation at the final of the well-performed "Thuerber" features selections in two acts from the reports, stories, and fables of James Thurber.

The stage was simply set: a desk equipped with typewriter, water, glass and briefcase occupying the center of the stage, and a simple stool set to the front left of this. An unusually unpretentious costume, complete with red socks and green vest, allowed Windom to slide easily into his first character.

Just as quickly, however, he jumped out of site to request that no pictures be taken during the show. The quick transition from William Windom to the blind-sighted character narrating his past travel experiences, back to Windom, and once again to the character, provided the first glimpse of the talented performance that was to follow. Every action was deliberate, the pauses where he hinted at a smile that was all his own.

The magical Windom-Thurber combination continued to irrevocably explore the dilemmas of foreign travel, using a French guide for British travelers. Portraying an English speaking couple, Windom depicted the situations listed in the guide, although using the French translations.

Turning his head from side to side, Windom switched clearly from the deep concerned voice of the husband to the frightened whine of the wife. The guide and the husband's voice, the tale of a black bear which lived his humble life in quiet subjugation to man's recentricities. As the pet grew older, she tolerantly looked with seeming comprehension at the human beings around her, hiding her disdain. In the end, the animal apparently accepts her death with more understanding than intelligent men, leaving the audience to ponder man's sophistication.

Throughout the continued depth in the show's material, Windom subtly led from the left to the right of the stage, mimicking the fable's story, the ploy fittingly between for a quick sip of water. Now even more completely into his characters, Windom switched effortlessly from male to female; from man to animal. Although the show repeats the male, female, man-animal confrontations, the individual situations do not seem even vaguely repetitious or boring. There is always a new idea, a subtle thought, another ironic observation of man's peculiarities. With every situation, Windom's knowledge of Thurber is revealed. At times, there is confusion whether Windom is himself simply relating Thurber's works, whether he is playing Thurber as a narrator, or whether he is actually the character. Thurber's themes-delvino into more serious instances as the show nears its conclusion. Although the animal fables remain, even they are of a more thought-provoking nature. During a scientist's conversation with a lemming, he states that he does not understand why lemmings rush to the sea and drown themselves. The lemming curtly replies, "I will never understand -by man doesn't!"

The final selection in a most thoroughly enjoyable "Thuerber" depicts Walter Mitty as the character who constantly fantasizes about his life after work. As the voiceover last line, dreamed to be a triumphant act of heroism, the audience sensed what Thurber feels for his characters. This emotion is reinforced through the intensity of William Windom's performance.

Welcome To It. This series was based on the works of Thurber, and, after its conclusion, Windom put his first Thurber show together. Since then he has added other shows to his repertoire. He has a second Thurber show and two Ernie Pyle shows. This variety keeps Windom fresh year after year.

"Not only do I enjoy each show which I do, I also have the option to switch to other shows. I certainly won't get bored doing this. It's a real change for Windom.

In the six years which he has performed Thurber, the show has only rarely received a critical word. "The only criticism it has gotten." Windom states, "is that some would rather read Thurber than see me perform it on a stage. I am even with that criticism, about 95 percent of the reviewers have given me good reviews.

Despite his enamourment with the college scene, Windom never was receiving a degree. "I have about two years worth of credit at about seven different colleges which I attended while I was in the Army, but I haven't completed any educational program in the college, I say, with the acting bug which I was involved in a performance of Richard III. After I left the Army, I spent 15 years in New York, doing Broadway and off-Broadway shows, then I moved into a lot of other things. Now, I'm living in California with my wife and three daughters. We all had another child on the way.

"Despite the road work which I do, I'm home a lot of the time. I only spend about 25 percent of the year on the road.

Windom has a film Mean Dog Blues, with George Jessel, that was special celebrating 100 years of sound in which he plays the part of Thomas Edison on the horizon. In the meantime, he will be on the road playing for his favorite audience: college students.

by Rosemary Mills

by Tony Pace

the observer

Features

Wednesday, January 25, 1978

the observer

William Windom On the Road

He has been on Broadway, television and in the movies, so why is William Windom now in his sixth year of touring the college campuses with sketches of the work of James Thurber? Sure it is a way of making a livelihood, but an actor of Windom's talent considers more than that when he determines how he should ply his trade. Simply, Windom prefers a live audience to the silver screen or the boob tube and he especially enjoys performing for college audiences.

Windom explains his preference for a live audience in this way, "A live audience is like dancing with a girl; television and the movies are like dancing with a chair. It is that simple, live audiences are just more stimulating. Contact is important to me."

The reason that Windom enjoys college audiences more than other audiences is because they are more alive than other audiences. "If I were to rank the audiences I enjoy performing for colleges students would be at the top of the list along with GT's and other's actors. These groups respond, whether positively or negatively, more easily than other audiences do. In fact, people from the age 15 to about 25 usually make the best audiences for what I do."

Performing for a live audience, especially when you are the only performer as Windom is in his Thurber skits, can have its pitfalls. "Sure, I make some mistakes," says Windom, "but, if I ever get caught, all of my material is right there on the desk. Doing sketches such as Thurber, I can simply explain the situation to the audience and keep right in with the flow of the production. Besides, I would never try to come on an audience."

"Tonight for instance, when the flash went off from that camera, I was lost for a bit and I even forgot one sketch, which I later came back to. I explained it to the audience and, even though that particular sketch did not work that well, the performance proceeded smoothly.

Windom's affection for the works of James Thurber date back to his early days of schooling. "Like many people, I first read some of his work when I was in school and I have always enjoyed it. And, again like many people, I was a fan of Walter Mitty."

"I never met James Thurber, but I have met his wife and she told me about his life and his writings."

Windom's chance to do his one-man Thurber show came as a result of his work in the television series My World. And CAIRO*Egypt [AP]-Most Egyptians blame Israel rather than Anwar Sadat for the abrupt halt in peace negotiations and analysts say the lumping economy, rather than the Mideast crisis, continues to be the president's chief problem at home.

"I believe Sadat can rule Egypt as long as he wants. There is no organized opposition in Egypt and Egyptians tend to worship their leader," a leading leftist politician professor said yesterday.

"He would not be toppled by the handling of the negotiations with Israel but by the economy.

"As long as Sadat continues to receive the support of the Egyptian army, analysts say, and as long as the economy continues to make 'dramatic improvement,' in the words of World Bank President Robert McNamara, Sadat seems assured of maintaining a free negotiating hand."

The Egyptian public greeted with jubilation Sadat's Nov. 19-21 and his subsequent declaration of "No more war." Many saw it as a solution to Egypt's economic depression and hoped more money could be diverted from defense spending into social programs aimed at improving the standard of living.

"Sadat's cease-fire of living has been blamed for the bloody riots of January 1977 when nearly 1,000 people were killed or injured in violence that Sadat claimed was Soviet-inspired."

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive."

"A few days ago I thought peace was a step away," said Osman Khairullah, a Cairo optimist.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"As long as Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long as Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"As long as Sadat continues to receive the support of the Egyptian army, analysts say, and as long as the economy continues to make "dramatic improvement," in the words of World Bank President Robert McNamara, Sadat seems assured of maintaining a free negotiating hand."

"I believe Sadat can rule Egypt as long as he wants. There is no organized opposition in Egypt and Egyptians tend to worship their leader," a leading leftist politician professor said yesterday.

"He would not be toppled by the handling of the negotiations with Israel but by the economy.

"As long as Sadat continues to receive the support of the Egyptian army, analysts say, and as long as the economy continues to make "dramatic improvement," in the words of World Bank President Robert McNamara, Sadat seems assured of maintaining a free negotiating hand."

The Egyptian public greeted with jubilation Sadat's Nov. 19-21 and his subsequent declaration of "No more war." Many saw it as a solution to Egypt's economic depression and hoped more money could be diverted from defense spending into social programs aimed at improving the standard of living.

"Sadat's cease-fire of living has been blamed for the bloody riots of January 1977 when nearly 1,000 people were killed or injured in violence that Sadat claimed was Soviet-inspired."

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.

"Sadat's abrupt move last week recalling his foreign minister from the Egyptian-Israeli, political talks in Jerusalem was met with disappointment by the Egyptian man in the street. But the Egyptian public directed its anger outward towards Israel and agreed with Sadat's statements accusing Israel of undermining his peace drive.

"As long a Sadat keeps the people fed, the only danger is from the army, but who really knows how they feel?" a political analyst said.

Western diplomats say the Egyptian army, one of the few organized groups with national and political clout, so far has lent full support to Sadat's peace initiative despite the uncertain status of negotiations.
The Notre Dame wrestling team found little time to relax and enjoy the Christmas holidays like most other students. Two home dual meets, one away match, and the Midlands Tournament gave the Irish little opportunity for rest and their only break was a late Christmas gift of four victories while losing only two to boost their record to 7-3. They found a bit of coal in their stocking, however, when injuries beset two starters and probably sidelined one for the remainder of the season.

Pat Landfried was the unfortunate Irish grapple who suffered a broken ankle against Illinois State which put him out of commission. The 150 lb. senior from Green ville, Pa., appears very unlikely to return for any action this season and will miss the opportunity to regain the National Catholic title he won his freshman year.

Sophomore Dave DiSabato, who won the National Catholic last season, was the other Blue and Gold wrestler to suffer an injury.

Jan 23 bowl victory took place on campus.

The 126 pounder received a cut above the eye during practice which required stitches. To com plicate matters, the native of Columbus, Ohio reopened the wound in practice and had to have it stitched up again. He is doubtful to make this weekend's trip to the Midwest.

The Midlands Tournament was the first step for the Irish over the christmas vacation and four wrestlers shortened their break and came back to Du. Lac to compete in the tourney which was held at Northwestern University Dec. 29-30. Mike Padden, Pat McKi llen, John Tonner, and Vincen Zavattani represented Notre Dame. Padden was the only Irish wrestler to win any matches and Notre Dame Head Coach Ray Sepeta was very pleased with his performance.

"The Midlands Tournament was a very difficult one because it is open to any amateur wrestler and as a result some Olympians competed. This made the competition very tough," noted Sepeta, who is in his third season as the Irish helm. "Mike did very well in winning two matches."

"We did very well against DePaul and Franklin," commented Sepeta. "The team dominated DePaul 41-6 and beat Franklin 29-12 with the squad's performance."

The Irish lost only one match to DePaul, the other endgame pin by John Tonnerr. George Godney (118) and Dave DiSabato (175) both recorded victories by falls.

Against Franklin, the Blue and Gold managed to win three pins while losing only tow bouts. DiSabato, Mike Padden (167), and Pat Landfried all won by falls.

Middle Tennessee, Southern Illinois, and Illinois State traveled to South Bend Jan. 14 and the Irish managed only one victory. Notre Dame defeated Middle Tennessee 21-14 while bowing to Illinois State 37-11 and Southern Illinois 27-12. An Irish victory over Marquette Jan. 17 was followed by two victories over Washburn and Millikin Jan. 21. The latter match was held at Millikin and Notre Dame defeated the host school 36-3 while beating Washbass 32-12.

Geoffrey DiSabato, Pat Dedeer (177), Mike Wila, who has replaced Landfried at 150, and Pat McKilen all came away with two victories for the day. Godney, DiSabato, and McKilen gained one of their wins by fall.

"I have been pleased with the way the team has been doing. We are a strong dual meet club and it has shown in our matches," commented Sepeta.

The Irish will have their work cut out for them this weekend as they travel to Drake for a match on Saturday and then to Nebraska on Sunday for a meet with the Cornhuskers, Minnesota, and Missouri. Sepeta reiterates the club is a bit weak.

"We will be missing some people and consequently will be weaker than I'd like in some spots. We won't forfeit anything though," said Sepeta, who is the advisor in the Freshman Year plans.

To add to Notre Dame's problems with injuries will be the tough competition they face.

"Minnesota and Missouri are ranked in the top 15 and are very tough schools. We will have our work cut out for us," noted Pat Irish Assistant Coach Jerry Ross.

And then of course there is Bob Golic. The star linebacker for the Irish football team and is not yet ready to return to the team. He was wrestling at this time and the team had lost his back even earlier. The junior from Cleveland, Ohio, will be ready however for the National Catholic Tournament, which will be held at Notre Dame Feb. 5.

"After this weekend we will prepare heavily for the National Catholic tourney," said Sepeta. "We're very pleased and proud to be the host and I just hope we can get good support from the Notre Dame community for it."