Four dorms renovated

by Jacline McCormick

Renovations were made this past summer in four dorms to provide a partial solution for social space problems on campus. Lounges and kitchens were constructed in Howard and Fisher Halls, while new rooms were built at study lounges in both Holy Cross and Carol Hall.

The dorm with the least social space available for students was Howard. A conference room, study lounge, and a first-floor lounge with a kitchen were constructed to solve this problem. Rooms with a total of eight beds were removed to provide area for these changes.

Construction in fisher is at present incomplete. Fr. Frederick Brenner, rector of Fisher, explanated that work was started during the summer, but was suddenly halted and has not resumed. A new TV lounge and kitchen, as well as carpeting in the hall’s game room, are planned for Fisher.

The structural shell and wiring are the only progress which has been made in Fisher’s kitchen and students cannot use either the kitchen or the lounge. Brenner said, “I hope the work is completed very soon—we didn’t ask for a lot.”

Security changes result from recent SIA report

by Diane Wilson

Changes initiated in the Notre Dame Security Department this summer were suggested in a report issued last spring by Security Audit, Inc. (SIA), Dean of Students
James Roemer said Wednesday.
Most visibly affected were the security force, women’s security and general security on campus.

The individual changes cover a wide spectrum of concerns, including increased security patrols after dark, women’s self-defense classes and the strict enforcement of a $50 fine for drinking alcohol in the stadium.

One suggestion in the report was to use graduate and law students to man the Main Gate, so that Notre Dame can present a good impression to visitors while preserving security. Roemer and James Gibbons, director of special protection for Notre Dame, were invited to the Security Department meeting to discuss the prototypes for the job. Five persons were hired and Roemer said he hopes to have them in place shortly.

Roemer explained that he chose college students because of their familiarity with situations at the frost gate. They need to be helpful, he said, but must also be to say no to students who want to go out after dark.

The lines of communication between other area law enforce-m ent agencies and the Security department were cleared this summer. Roemer stated.

Joseph Romero and Russell Little, serving life sentences for the murder of Oakland school superintendent Marcus Foster.

“we can never minimize the price the state is extracting.”
Mr. Harris said, her voice breaking.

“but neither prison nor passage of time can erase the fact that the SLA’s actions were a vast, irreversible advance in the cause of strength in both of us. The SLA kidnapping can never be erased.”

Counseling, career centers foster growth of many different kinds. They are intimately connected," McGinn said.

"We've got a fight the fire until we let them. We didn't hold them back," he said.

"We're upsets," said Carl Greely as he manned a picket line just a few blocks from the fire. "I hope it proves they still need us." McGinn, was that "the questions involved if making life plans, choosing, decisions and the personalization of departments, according to Saint Mary's has combined its Career Development and counseling centers and two new staff members have been appointed to direct the combined center. Patricia McGinn, a 1960 graduate of Saint Mary's, is the new director of the combined center. At present, she is working part-time at the center and will begin full-time Oct. 1.

A former Holy Cross nun, she has been involved in a family counseling center in Chicago for the past few years. Previously, she taught in several high schools and holds a master's degree in philosophy from Notre Dame and a master's degree in counseling from Federal City College in Washington, D.C.

Daniel Powell, a former social worker, will be one of the department's assistant directors. He holds a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

The other assistant director is Betty Titchell, former acting director of the Career Development Center. She was also McCandless Hall director last year.

The rationale behind the reorganization of departments, according to McGinn, was that "the questions of who are 18" and "what I going to be" are not separate. They are intimately connected.”

NEW LAWN ENACTED MICHIGAN DRINKING AGE RISES by John McGarr

Michigan Governor William G. Milliken recently signed a bill which raises the state's minimum drinking age from 18 to 19. The measure, Senate Bill 31, will take effect Dec. 3.

The bill was a compromise between the plans of the Senate and House of Representatives in Michigan.

The House had endorsed a bill retaining the 18-year-old age for drinking on the premises, where alcohol was sold, but raising the age to 20 for any alcoholic beverages that would be taken off the premises. The Senate compromise basically followed the plan of the Senate, which advocated the one-year raise.

In 1971, following the ratification of the 26th amendment to the U.S. Constitution granting 18-year-olds the right to vote, the Michigan Legislature passed the Age of Majority Act, which among other things, lowered the minimum drinking age in the state to 18. Following the passage of that legislation, however, many opponents of the new standard began a drive to restore the drinking age to its original status, pointing in an increase in alcohol-related traffic accidents among young drivers in the state.

As it stands presently, Bill 31 will expire Dec. 31, 1981. According to state Sen. Charles O. Zoller of Niles, MI, this clause was written into the law to provide for a "trial period" for the new drinking age. "We'll see what the positive effects are if, any," Zoller explained. He added that if the results were positive, the legislature in 1981 would either renew the law as it stands now or change it, "possibly raising it (the drinking age) to 21."
Christian | Jack Blanch, newly appointed director of fire safety at Notre Dame, was voted the nation's No. 1 team in 1977.

"Everywhere I went I heard: "Notre Dame, Notre Dame,"" says Mauro, a defensive end for Alabama, which puts its No. 1 Associated Press pre-season ranking on the line Saturday night in Birmingham in a nationally televised ABC-TV, 9 p.m. EDT clash with 10th-ranked Nebraska.

"I took a lot of kidding back in South Bend about finishing No. 2," Mauro recalled with an embarrassed grin. "A lot of people told me that's what I got for going away to school and if I had gone to Notre Dame I would have played on the national champions."

But Notre Dame was the last place on Mauro's mind when he graduated from South Bend's Marian High School, where he rewrote the record book as a tight end on three Indiana state championship teams.

"Notre Dame recruited me to go there, but I handled it the way I wanted to go away to school," Mauro said. "My family doesn't really like Notre Dame and they told me it was too close to home."

"I visited here and I liked it. I liked the friendly atmosphere and the closeness of the football team, but I mainly came here because of Coach Bear Bryant being what he is."

The other Indianaan on the Alabama team is Rich Wingo, a senior defensive back from Elkhart, about 26 miles from South Bend.

"I went to about every Notre Dame game you could go to," Wingo recalled. "I even told my high school coach I was going to Notre Dame, but he told me I was too far away, but I told my coach I'd like to visit there. I visited in February and saw what a beautiful place it was. I went down Sorority Row and saw all the girls wearing the preppy uniforms, and I thought of all the snow back in Indiana."

Alabama player calls S.B. home

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) - At a freshman, John Mauro was a member of the Alabama football team that finished second in the nation last year.

"Robustly, when it came time for summer vacation, Mauro headed home to a place called South Bend, Ind., which just happens to be the home of a fairly well-known football school. And Notre 1st, a beautiful state, of course, was voted the nation's No. 1 team in 1977."

Striking teachers released from jail

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) - Seven of the eight jailed Marion teachers strike leaders were released under police guard yesterday for renewed negotiations, but all 355 strikers were ordered to appear in court next week to show why they, too, should not be jailed for striking.

Grand Circuit Judge A. Morris Hall said the seven leaders, who were released when teachers refused to resume bargaining, could not be excorted back to jail when the talks break up.

As sheriff's deputies marched the group to the county courthouse, a neutral site where talks resumed, yesterday for renewed negotiations, the teachers said the six union leaders and representatives of the state and national teacher organizations were jailed Wednesday for refusing to obey a back-to-work order. About 30 pupils, one carrying a sign that read "Free My Algebra Teacher," joined a small rally at the jail yesterday, and an estimated 700 parents and students demonstrated on the picket line for the second day despite a back-to-work order issued by Hendricks Circuit Judge Richard Green.

Elsewhere, about half the 700 teachers in Indianapolis' suburban Washington Township took a personal day leave day, rather than attend a preparation session. About 300 personal leave requests were delivered to the superintendent's office at 8 a.m.

Marion, where the school board was offering a 6 percent raise and the teachers were asking 12 percent, remained the most volatile situation.

At the Grant County Jail, where teachers held an all-night vigil in support of their leaders, about 30 high school and junior high school students held their own rally. Kim Bower, a senior Marion High School who carried the sign supporting her algebra teacher, was asked what she would have done if she had been the judge when the school board sought contempt citations to stop the strike.

"I would have made them sit down and negotiate a contract right in the courtroom," she replied.

School officials said 333 of 500 teachers were off the job. They said 57 percent of the students scheduled for class—elementary pupils, seventh-graders and high school sophomores—attended, although the teachers said their informal figure showed 90 percent of the school with more than half the students.

Mindy Wesley, a Marion senior who marched at the jail, was one who wasn't in class, and she declared, "I'm so upset I'm not going to school until they have a contract."

Both Marion and Richmond teachers worked without contracts last year.

At Richmond, where the two sides are just 1 percent apart in salary negotiations, the teachers said the issue was more than money. They were demanding additional preparation time, time for elementary teachers, a shorter school year and a 16-pupil limit on class size.

Hogan announces Engineering appointments

Three administrative appointments in the College of Engineering have been announced by Dr. Joseph C. Hogan, Dean.

Dr. Jerry J. Marley, associate professor of civil engineering, has been named assistant dean, succeeding Dr. Ettore A. Peretti. Robert L. Amico, professor of architecture in the College of Fine and Applied Arts, University of Illinois, has been named chairman of the Department of Architecture, and Dr. Albino A. Szewczyk, professor of aerospace and mechanical engineering, is the new chairman of the Department of Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering.

Marley was an assistant soils engineer with the Iowa State Highway Commission for five years and from 1970-72, he was a lieutenant junior grade in the U.S. Navy Civil Engineering Corps. Recently, he has directed programs in the College aimed at recruiting greater numbers of women and minority students to enter the engineering profession.

Marley will be concerned primarily with the undergraduate program and student affairs in the College. A specialist in soil and foundation engineering, Marley joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1969 after teaching for two years at Iowa State University, where he earned his master's and doctoral degrees. He did his undergraduate work at Notre Dame.

Amico will succeed Ambrose M. Richardson, who came to Notre Dame as the department chairman in 1972 and will return to full-time teaching in the University’s Rome Program in Architecture. A member of the American Institute of Architects, Amico has been a faculty member at Urbana-Champaign since 1966 except for one year (1971-72) spent at the Chicago Circle Campus. He was chairman of the Architectural Design Area from 1974-76.

Szewczyk joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1962. He succeeds Dr. K.T. Yang, chairman of aerospace and mechanical engineering for the past 10 years, who will return to full-time teaching and research after spending the summer in Washington with the National Science Foundation’s Division of Engineering.

Szewczyk’s specialty is fluid dynamics. He is coauthor of a book, Developments in Mechanics, published by the Notre Dame Press in 1971, and he has contributed articles to several professional journals.

An organizational meeting of the Notre Dame Chess Club will be held in the S. S. Fortune on Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. On the agenda will be the election of officers, adoption of a constitution, and discussion of future activities. Chess events this September include a chess match between Notre Dame and the Indianaapolis Chess Club, in Pers in Sept. 9; a simultaneous chess exhibition in the Scottsdale Mall on Sept. 15, the Rated Quadrangular Tournament on Sept. 16 at Scottsdale; the Michigan Speed Chess Tournament on Sept. 17 at Scottsdale; and a speed chess challenge with the South Bend Public Library on Sept. 27.

Soviet military plane crashes

OSLO, Norway [AP] - A Soviet military plane believed used for early warning and surveillance purposes crashed on the Norwegian Arctic island of Hopen, killing at least three persons, Norwegian officials said yesterday.

A Norwegian radio broadcast said the Foreign Ministry informed the Soviet Embassy here of the accident, which occurred Monday, and the Soviets said they were not aware a plane was missing.

The bodies of three persons were spotted near the crash site on Hopen, 300 miles north of mainland Norway's northern tip. No survivors were found. The Soviet Union has been invited to send an observer with the team investigating the crash.

Hans Olav Destgaard, a Justice Ministry spokesman, said military flights over Norwegian territory, except for emergencies, are illegal unless approved in advance.

Per Bjørne Lundgard, an army spokesman, said the plane was most likely a four-engine Tu-126 used for early warning and surveillance. These planes, 188 feet long with a 167-foot wing span, usually carry six to 10 crewmen.

The wrecked plane was spotted Wednesday by members of a four-man gian team that reports daily on weather conditions in Arctic areas.

Station Chief Nik Nikolaijen, at Hopen 13 months, told a Norwegian radio he had never seen any other planes flying over Hopen, but said the team occasionally heard high-altitude flights. Nikolaijen said the plane was clearly marked and wreckage was scattered in the crash area about three miles from the radio station.

The Tu-126 is not an attack plane, the Soviets said, adding the example set by Fr. Pat Peyton, who in the mid-1940's, encouraged devotion to the rosary and named the popular adage "The family that prays together stays together."

Rosary services began here on September 1, 1978, in devotion to Mary and in hope for restoration of world peace; they continue on a daily basis until the arrival of the cafeteria-style dinner, when interest waned and the practice was discontinued.

It was easier to get the boys down to the grotto to pray when they all finished eating dinner at the same time," Fr. O'Connor remarked. However, five or six years ago one decided to re-establish the tradition on a weekend basis.

Then, last October, in an effort to boost attendance, Br. John Levelle suggested that services be reinstated on a daily basis as well. An average of thirty people gather at the grotto with Fr. O'Connor now, although the number in attendance might drop slightly when the weather is bad, but the number who come in by choice, because of the obvious religious benefit that comes from the practice, is almost insignificant. Every last Monday, two or three only a couple of prayers were cancelled because the snow made it impossible to conduct the meeting physically impossible.

Believers continue to bring, bringing their hopes and their petitions along with their rosaries. They pray for peace on earth, and they carry on the Notre Dame tradition at the grotto fashioned after the one founded by Bernadette in Lourdes, France.

Bland outlines fire prevention at N.D.

By Ed Marus
Staff Reporter

Jact Bland, newly appointed director of fire safety, stated yesterday that he and his staff will go out to the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community distributing special "Fire on Campus" pamphlets.

Bland said that he intends to visit all buildings in addition to working with the rectors and the student body on fire prevention methods.

Bland stated that the buildings at ND are, in themselves, "relatively fire free." "It's when the students start improvising on their rooms, building bunks or missing electrical outlets in violation of the building codes, that the chances of fire accidents occur," Bland commented on a daily basis as well.

"We want the Notre Dame community to know what constitutes a fire hazard and know what to do once a fire occurs," Bland continued.

"Last year at Providence College, seven women were killed when a fire broke out in their dorm. The 'Fire on Campus' pamphlet could have saved their lives.

"In spite of the large fires that occurred over the last school year, Bland believes no major changes in fire prevention procedures, except stricter enforcement of the rules is necessary.

"Our track record is just as good or better than any other school I know. The ND Fire Department has been in existence for 40 years now," said Bland.

New rooms, social space added

To compensate for the loss of beds in Howard and Fisher, rooms were still built in Holy Cross and Carroll. In Holy Cross, rooms for an additional five beds were added in one of the study lounges and all freshmen doubles were converted to triples.

2600 Thermostats installed in dorms

by Andy Segovia

Approximately 2,600 new thermostats were installed in 17 dorms over the summer as part of a general dormitory heating rehabilitation program to alleviate overheating problems, according to Kenneth R. Kemph, Director of Utilities.

The prime reason for the project was to give the students better control of room comfort, and thereby energy costs, Kemph said.

"Initial trial installations in the basement of Pangborn Hall showed it was beneficial to allow students free access to the thermostats," Kemph stated.

According to Kemph, the students will be allowed to set the thermostats at the temperature they find most comfortable instead of having the thermostats locked on a certain temperature.

The thermostats are calibrated in degrees Celsius and have a range from 7°C to 25°C, explained William Ganser, technical director of Energy Conservation. "We suggest 20°C as a comfortable setting," he continued.

A daily signal from the central system will set the thermostats at the temperature they find most comfortable instead of having the thermostats locked on a certain temperature.

The thermostats were installed in 17 dorms and assessed its social space. Students in Howard are already using the new rooms there. Assistant rector Gerald Richardson said, "The lounge is designed as a place to talk and relax with others. We foresee it as an area which may be reserved by the students for special occasions."

PROMOTING RESPONSIBILITY

ROSEMARY MILLS

The administration is overreacting to the problems of alcoholism and alcohol abuse on campus by restricting the presence of alcohol rather than promoting responsible drinking.

As the flurry of initial campus activity slowly slows to its normal pace, many students will return to their familiar pastimes — going to the bars and drinking. Although movies, occasional plays and parties featuring Notre Dame’s version of “20 Questions” will be available for social diversion, there will always be students who prefer “going to the bars.”

Across the country, bars are the weekend meeting place for thousands of college students. Unfortunately, at many colleges, the bars are off limits for anyone under 21, and to enter a bar before reaching that age could have serious repercussions. Notre Dame, falling under Indiana law, is one such institution. However, because private consumption of alcohol is not regulated by state laws, the use of alcohol on campus is regulated by University rules and regulations.

A quitted girl feels ‘bitter’ toward police

BOULING GREEN Ky. (AP) - Marla Elaine Pitchford says she feels bitter toward the police and the court in which she was tried on a self-induced abortion charge, but not toward her former fiance who testified against her.

"Everyone has made him out to be the big, bad villain and I don’t think that’s right," Miss Pitchford said Thursday in an interview. "This has been hard on me and ni’s been hard on him, too."

She said the young man, Dwight Mundy, lost his job because of publicity surrounding her trial. Miss Pitchford, 22, was charged with performing an illegal abortion on herself with a knitting needle. According to court testimony, she had been turned away from a Louisville clinic because her pregnancy was too far advanced.

Testimony placed her stage of pregnancy at five or six months. Miss Pitchford was found innocent if they felt she had no control over her actions at the time of the abortion.

In the living room of her sister’s Bowling Green apartment yesterday, Miss Pitchford seemed relaxed but tired.

She said that after the verdict - and after the reporters, tape recorders and television lights disappeared - "I just tried to rest, tried to sleep. I was exhausted."

Miss Pitchford said it’s too soon to judge the impact of the trial, but she said her attorney plans to try an effort to review abortion laws across the country.

Focus of the review would be to make sure that the laws are written so that women cannot be brought to trial for giving themselves abortions, Miss Pitchford said.

"It was wrong that this happened," she said. "I feel a little bitter toward the police and the court."

Miss Pitchford said she looks forward to the time when the publicity diminishes.

"I think that in two months, they’ll forget my face and forget my name and maybe just remember the case."

Past and prospective members of the Pre-Law society are invited to attend the first organizational meeting on Monday at 7 p.m. in the Library Auditorium.

The meeting will feature a panel comprised of a representative from the College of Business Administration, Dean David Link of the Notre Dame Law School, and Robert Waddick, assistant dean of Arts and Letters. Emphasis will be placed on seniors and their questions regarding law schools and professions.

Another meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. in the Library Auditorium. At this meeting, Waddick will address the concerns of freshmen, sophomores and juniors.

2 students, 3 professors die

Two Notre Dame students and three faculty members passed away during the summer.

Bruce Plunkett, a pre-med junior from Maryland, died in a Metrolin­er train accident on July 23. Plunkett is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Plunkett and three brothers.

Joseph R. Cerven, a junior in the college of engineering, was killed in an auto accident in Cass County, Michigan last May 14. Cerven is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Cerven.

The director of the Office of International Student Affairs, Fr. Daniel J. O’Neill, died on June 6 at the age of 59, following surgery for bone cancer. O’Neill taught theology and medical ethics an addition to being Director of the Old College Seminary Program.

James E. Ward, 48, passed away on July 15 after an extended illness. Ward, who had taught at the University since 1959, was an associate professor of history. Fr. Joseph H. Fiedler, 76, died on July 29 after a lengthy illness. Fr. Fiedler was a faculty member at the Notre Dame Seminary for forty years.

Energy compromise?

Carter seeks support of bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter reached out to governors and businessmen yesterday seeking support for a compromise bill to phase out federal price controls on new natural gas by 1985.

Carter met in the morning with 11 governors, most of whom agreed with him that the bill satisfies few people but is nevertheless the best one Congress is likely to produce.

The president, who cut short a western vacation to lobby for the gas bill and the rest of his expanded energy program, then invited the governors to stay for lunch.

The entire world is looking to see if we have the national will to adopt an energy blueprint, Carter told the governors.

Later, the president was scheduled to speak to some 100 executives of small and medium sized users of natural gas.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press survey found 18 senators supporting the measure and an other 14 leaning that way for 32 potential votes. Thirty-five senators said they were against 32 leaning against the proposal and another 33 said they were undecided.

Phil Spector, the White House aide in charge of the afternoon session, said the group included representatives of utilities, manufacturers, retailers, farm groups and others, all invited from lists of interested constituents supplied by members of the Senate.

The gas bill is scheduled for Senate debate Sept. 11. A filibuster is threatened, and the administration, while exuding confidence about the eventual outcome, concedes it cannot now count enough Senate votes for passage.

Carter asked the governors to press their senators and congressmen for enactment of the bill. He said the natural gas compromise is "not perfect." But the president argued that its rejection by Congress would devastate the dollar.

Gary Johnson, Fred Dean and Leroy Jones join him up front. They finish with eight or so wins.

Linebackers Don Goode, Woodrow Lowe and Bob Horn are among the stars, filling the void left by the Seahawks defense. The secondary needed some help so the Hawks drafted Keith Simpson of Memphis State University. Unfortunately, that draft pick was recently felled by a knee injury. Don Dalek, another deep back, was also injured, further adding to the already most trouble area for the Seattle franchise.

Once again, the Seahawks should score a lot of points but will also give up more than their share of looks. For Seattle to win six games, their running backs are Sherman Smith and Don Tostman. Smith, a power back, should be around the NFL for a long time. Former Notre Dame star Al Hunter is also available in the Seahawk backfield. The top Seahawk receiver is Steve Largent. The Seahawk offensive line is in the right combination of expansion draft acquisitions and young players. It can improve as they gain experience.

The best part of the Seattle defense is linebacking. Sammy Green, Chuck Fairbanks, Gene Willis and Tony Beason, starting his second, are the two best tacklers. Another former Notre Dame star, Nick Harris, is the best player on the Seattle defensive line. The secondary needed some help so the Hawks drafted Keith Simpson of Memphis State University.
