Ex-WSND-FM disc-jockeys to discuss charges

by Ray McGreal

Former WSND-FM disc-jockeys Ted Twadzik and Sean Coughlin will meet with WSNF station management to discuss charges brought against them by WSNF station management.

According to Tony Wesley, director of FM programming at WSNF, the station management has filed a report with Roemer which states that the two students were consuming alcohol at the station, and using vulgar sexual references over the air, early Saturday morning.

Drinking at the station is in violation of station, Federal Communications Commission (FCC), and University regulations, and loudness on the air is forbidden by FCC and station policy.

The report to Roemer was filed as a supplement to a report made by Notre Dame Security. Security aides in removing the two disc-jockeys and a group of friends from the broadcasting booth of the station around 3 a.m. Saturday.

In addition to the report to Roemer, a report has also been made to the FCC, informing them of the violations. The action was a protective measure called for by law.

The report will probably have no effect on the status of WSND's broadcasting license, Wesley said, but it will almost certainly result in Twadzik and Coughlin losing their individual licenses.

Other penalties for the disc-jockeys, including fines and imprisonment upon conviction, are possible, but not probable, he added.

Fr. Edmund Joyce, executive vice-president of the University and legal holder of the station's license, will also receive a copy of the FCC report.

Both Twadzik and Coughlin both said last night that they regard the charge of drinking as a matter to be discussed with Roemer before they make any statement concerning their actions. But both disputed the allegations that they made vulgar references over the air.

Coughlin asserts that statements such as those made by a person in the booth who said his girlfriend gave him "a phone," were not intended to have sexual references.

Twadzik, who has worked for the station for three years, remarked, "I have been doing "Nocturnal Night Flights" longer than anyone else on the staff, and I know better than he (Wesley) what I can and cannot say on the air. That program was entirely legal."

He also noted that no one other than Wesley called to complain about the "flagrant obscenities.""

Both disc-jockeys also wanted to point out that, opposed to a claim attributed to John Foster, production manager of the station, they did not attempt to construct a picnic on the roof of the station after having their show shut off. They merely went to the roof to collect their belongings which were there, and they promptly prepared to leave.

Both students wanted to stress that they had no desire to do anything "rudey or perverted."

Commenting on today's meeting with the two students, Roemer stressed that the students had "every right to come in and tell their side, and he felt no prejudice concerning the incident, or the possible results of the meeting.

In clarifying the stand of the WSNF management, Wesley stated that the two had been fired, but that the station management "wasn't out for any further retribution.

But we are under legal obligation to report the incident to the FCC, and under obligation as managers to report it to the administration."

Both sides refuse concessions as Mideast summit continues

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) - Despite a "Gigantic effort," President Carter has been unable to gain major concessions from Israel at the Mideast summit.

NASA astronaut speaks on future of space exploration

by John L. Schott

Sloss Reporter

National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) exploration has certainly proved that "man is the most intelligent computer that can be built with unskilled labor," according to Don L. Lind, NASA astronaut, who spoke last night in the Library Auditorium.

Lind's talk, entitled "Space Shuttle and Beyond," was sponsored by the Student Union Academic Commission as the third segment of a two-day symposium on the direction of U.S. space exploration.

Lind has not traveled in space yet. He was a backup crew member for the Skylab 3 and 4 missions and also acted as a member of the Skylab rescue crew. He is a member of the Astronaut Office's Missions Specialist Group and is scheduled to fly on the Space Shuttle.

About 75 people watched Lind's slide presentation which spanned the history of space exploration from Mercury through Gemini and Apollo to Skylab and the future. Lind explained that the Mercury and Gemini programs were used to develop the necessary technology to carry out the Apollo missions.

According to Lind, the Apollo program was specifically designed to study the moon. During each of the moon landings, a science station was erected on the moon's surface to carry out scientific experiments which studied the moon's composition, inner core and other geographic data.

After Apollo there was much leftover equipment, so NASA pieced these "scraps" together to build Skylab, Lind stated. In 1973, Skylab was launched and used to conduct 93 experiments dealing with medical science, the sun and earth resources.

Lind said that, according to medical data obtained from Skylab, "the Land designed our bodies very well."

Postal strike fades

WASHINGTON — Big-city union leaders backed down from earlier threats to strike in an illegal mail strike this week as a labor mediator moved yesterday to settle the deadlocked postal contract dispute on his own. Sources said the chances of a strike appear to be fading because union leaders are reluctant to jeopardize their careers and risk going to jail.

15 states hold primaries

NEW YORK — Govs. Hugh Carey of New York and Ella Grasso of Connecticut overcame challenges from their lieutenant governors yesterday and won renomination on the year's busiest primary day. The 15 primaries held yesterday represented a quarter of the nation's population.

Speedway bombings end

INDIANAPOLIS — Still wary after a week's pause in a series of mysterious bombings, the Speedway area of Indianapolis is slowly relaxing again. School attendance has returned to normal, and evening athletic activities have resumed. Police, however, are still working ten-hour shifts, checking any reports of suspicious packages. The sudden halt in bombings after eight explosions in six days is just as baffling as the attacks were to begin with.

ND security ‘steals’ bikes to protect student owners

by Sue Westecher
Staff Reporter

Notre Dame Security has been confiscating unlocked bicycles to prevent them from being stolen. "We steal them before someone else does," Arthur N. Pears, director of Security, stated, adding, "All reported stolen bicycles are checked against those we have on hand. The owners are notified immediately." He said that if students would lock their bicycles then Security would have no reason to take them.

Pears commented that the bicycles located in the basement of Holy Cross Hall are those that were unclaimed at the end of the school year. "I would think that if a student’s bicycle was stolen he would think enough to report it," Pears said. He noted that having bicycles registered with Security makes it easier to find them in the event that they are stolen or unclaimed at the end of the school year. "There are also programs in every hall reminding students on how to protect their property. There are also programs in every hall reminding students to lock and mark their property. There are reminders for the owners to register their bicycles to protect their property.

Swim team organizes

Students who missed the swimming Team Organizational Meeting last week are urged to contact Coach Dennis J. Stark at 234-1720. The meeting was conducted its first meeting as a University-approved organization and is to "promote social activity in the Notre Dame Saint Mary’s community, organize human interest events and create an awareness of an endangered species." Tom Peflar, chairman of the board for the Paddlefish, related the history of the club to new members at the meeting. "It all began last summer," Peflar stated, "when I discovered the Paddlefish in Tank 89 at the Shedd Aquarium in Chicago." He stated that the club nominated a "Little Miss Paddlefish Contest." The gala-vote competition earned $130 which the club donated to the Bengal Mission Charities.

The club boasts a membership of 197 ND-SMC students. Michael Goron, executive vice-president, explained, "Purchasing an official Paddlefish T-shirt makes one a life-time member of the club and entitles the owner to attend all Paddlefish functions." The club hosted three happy hours last year which were judged "a great success" by Club President Bruce Flowers. The organization also sponsored a "Little Miss Paddlefish Contest." The penny-a-vote competition earned $130 which the club donated to the Bengal Mission Charities.

Plans for this year’s activities include a kick-off happy hour, a semi-formal, a blood drive, and a semi-formal. "Little Miss Paddlefish Contest" and a field trip to Chicago. Each year the College of Arts and Letters holds meetings to apprise Notre Dame students of major scholarship opportunities offered by national and international organizations. "The following is a schedule of meetings to be held early this autumn.

proper exercise, diet, and the "knowledge that he will return to earth," Lind noted.

Seven techniques were used to study solar physics in the Skylab program. Information from these observational telescopes revolutionized the knowledge of solar corona and solar flares. Hida added that over 218,000 miles of film was used to photograph the sun for every two weeks that the Skylab was in operation.

Some of the earth resource experiments carried out on the Skylab missions were designed by high school students. These studies investigated the effect of weightlessness on animals and studied the usefulness of searching for fuel deposits on earth from the vantage point of space, Lind explained.

He showed slides of the newly developed Space Shuttle which already has been taken for low-speed test flights and landing patterns. The reusable shuttle handles like a fighter plane, takes off like a rocket from an upright position and lands on a regular commercial runway, Lind said. It will be used to deploy satellites as well as carry cargo.

Lind's concluding slides depicted the projected Spacelab, a scientific lab which will operate in outer space for long time periods. The generation of solar energy is under consideration as a Spacelab project. According to Lind, the project is technologically feasible, but its implementation depends on whether Congress will allocate the funds to carry it out.

A question and answer session followed Lind's presentation.

Nicaraguan military attempt to overthrow Somoza's regime

OUTSIDE MASAYA, Nicaragua [AP] - Bloody street fighting raged through embattled Masaya yesterday as government troops fought for ground inch by inch against rebels trying to overthrow President Anastasio Somoza.

The bitter conflict threatened to involve Costa Rica to the south and Honduras in the north.

In San Jose, Costa Rica, the civil guard director said a Nicaraguan plane strafed a vehicle yesterday morning on a Costa Rican road two miles from the border town of Pana Blancas. Ramon Umana said he had no information about casualties, but the attack spread from Masaya.

Masaya is 15 miles southwest of the capital. Reports were sketchy, with telephone lines torn down and military checkpoints checking travel.

The latest round of violence against Somoza's authoritarian military government erupted three weeks ago when leftist Sandinista guerrillas stormed the national capital.

Many loyalist troops and officials have deserted Somoza, although the National Guard maintains a strong presence. The government said it has rained on the day of the attack, causing Notre Dame to announce that the University has faced an overtaxing of the budget.

John Miriam Jones, a assistant professor at the University of Notre Dame, said, "They are fighting all over the city. We have been told there are many dead and wounded."

Rebels led by militiamen of the left-wing Sandinista Liberation Front are also reportedly located in battle with government units in Esteli, 90 miles north of Managua, and in Leon, 45 miles northwest of the capital. Reports were sketchy, and the government has imposed a series of martial laws.

The Notre Dame soccer team was their second straight game of the season as they defeated Tri-State University 3-0.

The Irish victory extended the winning streak to eighteen games over the season.

The win extended the Irish winning streak to eighteen games over the past two seasons, which now ranks as the top winning streak in the nation.

Tri-State used a kick and run offense for the entire game, booting the ball high into the Irish goal and then trying to run under the ball in front of the Irish defender. But strong defensive play by fullbacks Jim Rice, Tony Luckett and Andy Prinze, and Jim Sabitus denied Tri-State any scoring opportunities.

Damned if he does... or Spectating

You had to feel sorry for Dan Devine. The Notre Dame head coach was damned if he did, and he was damned if he didn’t. On 4th down and the football season was still more than halfway finished, Devine faced a hard decision. Should he send in Joe Uns, inexperienced under fire, to attempt a second field goal? Or did he try to run the ball for six in front of Notre Dame’s mammoth offensive line?

If Devine opts for Uns, he is gutsy and lacks confidence in offense, supposedly the strength of his team. But if he goes for the touchdown, he is foolish for passing up a near certain points in a scoreless game.

It’s true, Devine was damned if he did, and he was damned if he didn’t. Devine was damned because the first half of the Montana looked more like a prep team quarterback than a Heisman Trophy candidate. And he didn’t. But most of all he was damned because his players didn’t.

Devine was damned if he did and damned if he didn’t.
