To counter bookstore deficiencies
Roche releases proposal for record store

by Pat Magann
Editor's Note: This is the second in a two-part series examining a proposal for a Student Union record store.

To counter what he called inadequate space at the Bookstore's main department, Student Union Director Bill Roche recently released an eight-page proposal recommending the establishment of a full-time Student Union record store on campus.

Roche said the proposed SU record store would eventually "offer students a better selection of popular albums, quicker service, and lower prices than are presently being offered by the Bookstore's record section," and said that at the rate at which the SU record store would branch out, it would have a very low overhead and, consequently, a low mark-up.

Roche said that in addition to lower prices, the SU record store would provide a wider and more up-to-date selection of records. An SU survey, estimated the Bookstore's total rock album inventory investment at $9,000. But the SU record store would have an inventory of $14,000. Roche said, and after the second year, an inventory of $22,000. He explained that this rate of growth would be possible because the entire profit would be reinvested toward increasing the stock.

Roche added, "Our goal is for a $25,000 inventory which should be realized in the first semester of the third year, after which the profits would be used to benefit the University community."

"Even a $10,000 inventory could meet the students' needs if it were organized properly," he said. Explaining what he considered improper organization, Roche said that he noted an overabundance at the Bookstore's Kiss albums, a group which he believed few ND students listen to.

On the other hand, he cited a scarcity of Bruce Springsteen and Neil Young albums. Roche said that the SU store will be sensitive to student preferences and would also co-ordinate its stock with upcoming concerts.

Critiquing the slovenliness with which the Bookstore obtains new releases, Roche claimed that the SU record store would obtain new releases immediately and thus have no middle man to deal with.

The proposal also claimed that the SU store would provide an "excellent educational experience" for the students, involved with its management.

"It specifically cited practical experience such as day-to-day management, including personnel, sales, and inventory control. Roche described the experience as "a unique opportunity that does not exist in the traditional classroom setting."

Student body Vice President Mike Ronan said, "I think the SU would be beneficial to the students. It would create more jobs and give students valuable experience in management. Also the SU would be used more, and most of all, the service would be better--students would be able to buy albums at really reasonable prices without going to town."

The proposal cited possible future services, including turntable clinics, sale of sound equipment, record cleaning and preserving devices, and service of stereo equipment.

In order to establish the SU record store, the proposal calls for a renovation of room 7C in LaFortune at a cost of $2,491

The renovation would include the construction of a dividing wall, four 8foot by 4foot record racks, a counter for a cash register, and the addition of an electrical outlet on the west wall. The proposal also suggests the addition of a new recording section.

Carter prepares to open next round of peace talks

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter yesterday urged an arriving Egyptian delegation to "stay until we get this settled" as he prepared to open the next round of Middle East peace talks.

"I will be available any time I'm needed," Carter told the two leaders of the Egyptian delegation, Defense Minister Kamel Hassan Ali and Acting Foreign Minister Boutros Boutros Ghali as they called on him at the White House. The Israeli delegation, led by Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, arrived here Tuesday.

The goal of the upcoming talks is to draw three lines in the sands of the Sinai, a task which is all that remains in the way of a treaty that would end 30 years of warfare between Egypt and Israel.

Carter plans to formally welcome the foreign and defense ministers of both countries today in a brief ceremonial opening session of the continuing negotiations that were begun at the Camp David summit. After the White House ceremony the talks are scheduled to move across the street to Blair House, the government's guest residence, where Secretary of State Cyrus Vance plans to represent the United States. A United Nations flag will fly over the building while the talks continue.

American optimism about the outcome of the talks is grounded in the belief that the difficult issues between the two countries were resolved at Camp David and in the absence of the Soviet factor.

The issues remaining involve largely drawing lines on a map of the Sinai, the desert territory which Israel captured from Egypt in 1967, and has now agreed to return. One line, to be drawn roughly 30 miles east of the Suez Canal, will mark the closest point that Egyptian troops are to be allowed to approach the Israeli border.

Another, ranging from 12-25 miles west of the Israeli border, will delineate a demilitarized zone open only to United Nations troops and civilian police.

The third, drawn roughly down the middle of the Sinai region, will mark the point to which Israel must withdraw its troops on an interim basis with nine months of the signing of a final agreement. Full Israeli withdrawal must take place between two and three years after the signing of the treaty.

The Camp David summit produced solutions to many problems that American officials felt were much more difficult, such as Israel's willingness to remove its settlements from the territory.

But there are external problems which could arise, American officials said yesterday, beginning with the still simmering disputes over the second portion of the Camp David agreements, which covered the West Bank and Gaza Strip issues.

In theory, the two agreements could proceed on separate tracks. There is nothing in their language which links progress on one to progress on another.

But, as Carter told his news conference Tuesday, in the minds of him, Begin, and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the two agreements are linked, and there will likely be some discussion of the West Bank and Gaza issues during the talks.

Wednesday morning. the victim was walking in front of Sacred Heart Church when a man put a hand over her mouth and wrestled her to the ground.

The man fled, managed to struggle free and run into the church, while the attacker fled.

Although the attack took place on Oct. 4, it was not reported until Tuesday. The only description of the man is that he is between 6 feet and 6 feet 2 inches tall.

According to Richard Conklin, Director of Information Services, such incidents are not common but do occur during stormy weather, when people tend to go out at night. Conklin also said that it is believed that the two incidents last week are unrelated.

In order to establish the SU record store, the proposal calls for a renovation of room 7C in LaFortune at a cost of $2,491.

The renovation would include the construction of a dividing wall, four 8-foot by 4-foot record racks, a counter for a cash register, and the addition of an electrical outlet on the west wall. The proposal also suggests the addition of a new recording section.

The proposal cited possible future services, including turntable clinics, sale of sound equipment, record cleaning and preserving devices, and service of stereo equipment.

Bill gets second chance

WASHINGTON (AP)-A compromise version of the $10.2 billion energy and water development bill President Carter vetoed last week, now missing some of the major features he opposed, began its way through Congress yesterday. "The president will approve this plan. He will not veto it," said the measure's chief sponsor, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr., D-La., as the bill, drafted in consultation with the White House, was taken up by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Print sale exceeds last year’s total

This year’s sale of Waskewich Gallery art reprints will easily exceed last year’s totals, according to sales manager John Paul Roberts.

"The response is amazing," Roberts said.

Over 300 students flipped through large books displaying 250 reprints of famous art works and at least 300 and $1 each for the prints yesterday, which was the third day of the week-long sale.

The sale, located on the first floor of the LaFortune Student Center, features works of about 150 painters, including Van Gogh, Picasso, Andrew Wyeth and other well-known artists.

Roberts said a number of Notre Dame students liked "the traditional conservative paintings, the landscapes and 'The Last Supper.'" Roberts, who runs the sale with co-worker Paul Reid, took in $3,800 for the prints on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday, and expects to gross at least $1,000 more yesterday.

"Last year we only made $3,200 here, by Thursday we’ll pass that," Roberts stated. He said that in larger cities, universities, three times the size of Notre Dame, he would gross $5,000 to $6,000 for Waskewich Galleries, but that this week he expected to make at least $4,000.

The New York-based galleries have expected this kind of success at Notre Dame, Roberts explained, because "80 percent of our customers at other universities are women." But males bought 60 percent of the prints this week, he said, and "the rate at which the prints were selling for a school with such a small enrollment is outstanding."

The Notre Dame students are aware of the value of these prints, according to Roberts. "They know most would sell for $10 to $15, for example at the Art Institute in Chicago." The Galleries charge $3 a print.

Roberts says the company takes the business to universities because students aretransients in dorms and want inexpensive art to decorate their rooms. They don’t expect to stay, so they don’t want to invest a lot in originals," he said. "They also don’t have a lot of money."

Waskewich Galleries is running the office of Student Activities a flat fee for selling their artwork at Notre Dame. The company is keeping all profits from the sale.

The response is amazing," Roberts said.

In United Way drive, Donations exceed last year

By Diane Carey

The Notre Dame student body contributed over $4,700 to the United Way's annual campaign to collect contributions for volunteer agencies. The amount of money collected this year exceeds last year's total of $500.

United Way student chairman Tom Soma and campaign advisor Brother Joe McTaggart attribute the success of this year's campaign largely to the door-to-door approach taken in the halls. McTaggart noted that the personal approach was implemented by last year's United Way chairperson J.P. Russell, and was enhanced this year by Soma.

"We said at the outset that United Way at Notre Dame would be a community effort and, by damn, it was," McTaggart said. "The thing that pleases me most is that the campaign is a student drive, it's student managed, and it elicits a 70 percent participation response." McTaggart explained that this year's goal was to collect a dollar from every student, although many students contributed more money. He noted that Walsh Hall had a 100% participation rate, and Coughlin Hall's was close to 100%.

McTaggart and Soma hope to improve next year's campaign by offering more information and encouragement to those doing the collecting.

"This year we met with the hall vice-presidents who co-ordinate the campaigns," Soma said. "But next year we want to meet with the people who are doing the collecting." McTaggart added that often the people who have the "tough job" of doing the door-to-door collecting have less information that those contributing.

McTaggart also emphasized that the educational aspect of the campaign was almost as important as collecting and distributing funds.

"This is the premier collection conducted in every metropolitan area throughout the country," McTaggart said, "and when students get into the business world they'll be asked to contribute again." He explained that although the campaign is nationwide, funds are collected and distributed locally.

"There are few organizations in town where student volunteers work who do not utilize the receipts of funds collected here," McTaggart said.

He pointed out that Notre Dame contributes to the Big Brothers and Big Sisters programs, Logan Center, and other volunteer agencies in South Bend.

J-Boards to distribute du Lac

Confusion over the distributing of this year's du Lac, the guide to student life at Notre Dame, has marked the inaugural year of a new system of distribution for the manual.

This year differs from previous years because only freshmen were given editions of the du Lac, according to Dean of Students James Roemer.

"There is no sense in printing 50,000 copies for sophomores, juniors and seniors if they just take them and throw them into the trash can," Roemer said. He explained that residence hall rectors and assistant rectors distributed copies of du Lac in freshmen during orientation.

Judicial Coordinator Jayne Rizzo said she was aware of the new system. "I have encouraged J-board personnel to distribute copies of du Lac," Rizzo said. She added, "But each year I have warned that "not even the freshmen have received du Lac.""

Everyone should have one, because without one, you can break the rules without knowing it," she said.

Sara Strattan was unaware of the new procedure of distribution. "If J-board chairmen were supposed to distribute du Lac, I wasn't notified," Strattan said. "They should be here at the beginning of the year," she added, but to her knowledge, "not even the freshmen have received du Lac.""

"Everyone should have one, because without one, you can break the rules without knowing it," she said.

St. Ed's Hall J-Board Chairman Mike McElhinney found "a lot here at the beginning of the year," he said. "There was a pile for freshmen and I assumed there were enough for everyone."

J-Board Chairmen John Eshbach and Kristin Quann of Brein-Phillips said they let upperclassmen pick up copies of du Lac individually.

"Copies of du Lac are still available in the offices of Student Government or from Roemer's office," Roemer said.

It was America's #1 bestseller. Now it's the year's most captivating movie adventure, but only tonight... only in South Bend can you see it ahead of the whole country.

The Office of Campus Ministry has announced the "revival of a venerable tradition" -- the festive celebration of Founder's Day.

"Founder's Day has been a big event around here," Father Toohey of Campus Ministry said. "It even used to be a free day. We want to recapture some of the spirit behind those celebrative remembrances of Fr. Corti, who founded Notre Dame in 1842."

To mark the occasion this year, Campus Ministry is sponsoring a special liturgy, to be celebrated in Sacred Heart Church at 5 p.m. Friday.

Fr. James Burchaell will be the homilist; and the Notre Dame Glee Club will provide special music. All members of the Notre Dame community are cordially invited.

Campbell lectures on Mideast

by Gregory Soloman

"Due to this being Yom Kippur, there might be some people about today who wouldn’t normally be," said John C. Campbell, addressing a crowd of over 100 at the Library Auditorium yesterday, "But we should keep in mind that this is 1973, even the highest of high holy days could not stop war in the Mideast."

Campbell, one of the world’s leading authorities on the Mideast, made his remarks to open the second part of his lecture series entitled "The Great Powers and the Middle East."

The lecture series, sponsored by the Institute for International Studies, ends today when Campbell will discuss the late ‘60s and the subsequent events that led to the six-day War. Yesterday, however, Campbell discussed the early ‘60s and the events that led to the six-day War.

The presentation focused on "Nasser and Dayan," marking a switch from his previous talk, which viewed the Mideast from the United States and Soviet Union perspective. "Although both the United States and Soviet Union were involved in the Mideast politically," explained Campbell, "that didn’t necessarily mean they were involved in the same way.

"Neither of the countries had a clear strategy or dynamic person associated with that strategy,"

"The United States had some compatriots in Cairo and Istanbul, but it was the Soviet Army that saw the Mideast as central to its strategy," said Campbell.

Israel Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan was seen as being "different," in that he represented, better than the others, the second generation of leaders, according to Campbell.

"He was unlike David Gurion, Israel’s first premier," Campbell said. "He was somewhat a maverick, and individual operator, and not well liked by other political personalities," commented Campbell.

"Campbell then concluded the second part of his presentation by giving his analysis of the events leading to the 1967 six-day War that occurred when United Nations forces withdrew from the area at the demand of Nasser, Egyptian premier. The Suez Canal was reoccupied by Egyptian forces, and an Egyptian "blockage" of the Gulf of Aqaba hindered Israeli shipping.

"The Soviet Union had something to do with the origins of the way, but they didn’t want it," remarked Campbell. "Nobody wanted it."

"It was Campbell’s feeling that both Egypt and the Soviet Union were trying to show political strength," and that neither country expected their actions to be translated into military force.

"Nasser made a move that I feel he thought was basically political," stressed Campbell, "not as a prelude to war."

Campbell will conclude his lecture series today at 6 p.m. and will hold a question and answer period, also in the Library Auditorium, at 8 p.m. tonight.

Claims FBI responsible
Lane speaks on Dr. King

by Ed Moran
Staff Reporter

Mark Lane, an attorney working for the release of James Earl Ray, stated that the FBI is responsible for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King. He also claimed to have "spectacular evidence" that Ray was framed by the FBI and that "in a month" he will prove it.

Lane spoke last night before a crowd of about 80 persons in Washington Hall. The talk, entitled "The Assassination of Martin Luther King," was sponsored by the Student Academic Commission.

According to Lane, the FBI "went to tremendous lengths" to conceal the real killers and led Ray all over North America until he arrived at his final destination in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

Lane claims that the FBI broke Ray out of jail in Missouri for the purpose of blaming him for King's death. "J. Edgar Hoover thought the Civil Rights Movement was subversive," said Lane, "and he wanted King kept on 24-hour surveillance until just before he was shot.

Then, "mysteriously...the surveillance was lifted." At the same time, the officers in the six patrol cars in the area of the Lorraine Hotel (the place where King was staying) "had to go to the bathroom."

Lane stated that the police and the FBI agents were pulled out of the area in order to allow the real killers to escape.

The only eyewitness to the real killer, claims Lane, is Grace Walden, the owner of the boarding house where the bullets were fired from. She described the killer as "about five feet four inches" and in his 50s or 60s. At that time, Ray was in his 30s and close to six feet tall.

"The FBI tried to get her (Walden) to say that she saw Ray come out of the bathroom where the shot was fired," said Lane. "Walden wouldn't, however, even though there was a $100,000 reward for information leading to the capture of King's killer."

As a result, Lane said, the FBI had her committed to an insane asylum, after obtaining a psychologist's diagnosis that she was suicidal. Walden remained in that hospital for 10 years until Lance succeeded in helping her escape to Los Angeles, where she now lives with Lane and his family.

"Walden described Hoover as a monst...who has violated every law set up by Congress to regulate the FBI." He said that the naming of the main FBI buildings in Washington "was an insult to very decent person in America."

Lane stated that the confession which is attributed to Ray "was the result of eight months in a tiny jail cell with constant 24-hour observation and bright lights shining on him. This was brainwashing," said Lane, "who says there aren't political prisoners in America?"

The FBI and the Student Academic Commission are sponsoring a film series on the subject of the King assassination. The first in the series was "The Assassination of Martin Luther King," which is attributed to Ray "was the result of eight months in a tiny jail cell with constant 24-hour observation and bright lights shining on him. This was brainwashing," said Lane, "who says there aren't political prisoners in America?"

The panel will then be available for general questioning by the audience. The first seminar of the series was considered a success and brought about an awareness of some of the problems faced by the developing nations of Africa. This second seminar hopes to follow this trend.

Doctor discusses student illnesses

Robby Moore
Staff Reporter

Despite the number of students who seem to be missing classes and tests due to illness, there is no flu epidemic on campus, according to Dr. S. Bernard Vagner, associate university physician of the Notre Dame Student Health Center.

Vagner said that the 2000 clinic visits were made during September, whereas an additional 3000 will probably be counted during October. The number of clinic visits in not unusual for this or any other season during the school year.

What is significant is the kind of ailments currently plaguing the students. Vagner said that the major- ity of cases treated have been upper respiratory colds.

Vagner stated that this type of affliction is characteristic of places such as Notre Dame where a large number of people are living close to each other.

Vagner contends that inducing the body temperature to drop rapidly after strenuous exercise is bad for the athlete's health.

Students also find themselves susceptible to colds due to lack of sleep, a heavy academic work load, and an active weekend. These factors may work to lower body resistance to cold germs.

Other complaints investigated at the infirmary since the beginning of the year include common sore throats and gastro-intestinal infections (nausea and vomiting).

The more serious problems include:

- Two roommates who had an isolated case of chicken pox
- Athletes with sports-related injuries, and
- "Accidents," such as one student who stepped on a piece of glass while walking barefoot.

Vagner notes that there has been no run onromo or strep throat; the only recurring complaint has been the common cold. Vagner stresses that "the Student Health Center is a service which exists for the students' benefit. Its primary purpose is to keep the student functioning as a student."

He is concerned about the students who come in and say, "I wouldn't have come, but..." and wants them and others to know that it is important that they come in and take care of themselves when they are ill. It is only in this way that epidemics are avoided.

Students should also know that they must come in and have a record of treatment before they can obtain a medical excuse for missing classwork.

"The infirmary cannot manufacture excuses for students after the fact," Vagner explains.

Some students come in and ask for a written excuse after they have missed an exam, when they should report illness before an exam.

"We can only state that we treated a student for a certain illness, but we can't guarantee that he missed an exam because he stayed in bed with a cold if we have no record of treatment for him." Vagner states.

Roche proposes record store

$5,000 is called for in order to obtain the initial stock for the store. The total cost would be approximately $7,500.

According to Beau Mason, Student Government treasurer, the SG Board of Commissioners created a Strategic Reserve Fund of $15,000 which would either be re-allocated next semester, or go for emergency expenses.

Mason explained that the first priority for this fund will be the establishment of a SU record store. However, Mason added that the status of such a store is uncertain at present.

Competition with Bookstore is main problem

Roche singled out competition with the ND Bookstore as the main problem blocking the store. He said thought there was a rule in du Lac which prohibits the duplication of sales of the merchandise of the Bookstore. However, in the 1978-79 edition of du Lac, the University policy on merchandising only calls for approval from the director of student activities for student merchandising activities.

By law states, "Residence halls and campus organizations which would like to engage in other types of merchandising (merchandising other than concert stands on days of home football games) must present their requests for such merchandising to the Student Activities Office...the request is then taken to the Student Activities Director for final approval." John Reid, director of Student Activities, who has the authority to make the final decision, said he chose to pass the decision on to Mr. John L. Van Wolvlear, vice president for Student Affairs.

Explaining that he was too far out of touch with the music scene today and that he did not feel qualified to decide the issue, Van Wolvlear said he asked Roche to discuss the proposal with Jack Schneider, who is chairman of the Student Affairs Subcommitteee of the Board of Trustees.

Roche hopes to speak with Schneider about the issue sometime during the Trustees meeting this weekend. The proposal is not formally listed on the agenda.

Although du Lac does not specifically state that duplicating sales of the Bookstore is prohibited, University officials disagrees such competition.

Both Reid and Bro. Kieran Ryan, assistant vice president of Business Affairs, seriously questioned such competition on the grounds that the revenue from the Bookstore goes into the University general fund.

Concerning this issue, Roche commented if the Bookstore's profit from record sales was dedicated to the University, as soon as its stock is built up the SU store's profit could be channeled into the University general fund.

Roche also said that the SU record store would not destroy the livelihood of off-campus record stores.

A recent study estimated that ND students normally comprise 20 to 30 percent in some cases, 50 percent of the customers of off-campus record shops.

ND soccer regains stride with win

by Ray O'Brien
Sports Editor

The Fighting Irish soccer team broke a two-game slump Tuesday as they blasted Manchester College 6-0, upping their record to a lofty 11-1-1 on the season.

Toni Nazman opened the scoring for Notre Dame in the game finding the net from close range as the Irish came out applying full pressure on Manchester's goalie.

Minutes later Kevin Finnegan made the score 2-0 as he booted home his team-leading nineteenth goal of the season. The sophomore scoring ace has tallied goals in eleven of his team's 13 home games this season.

However, the offensive star this day was ND co-captain Terry Finnegan who displayed some fancy footwork enabling him to find an open net on two occasions.

Finnegan, who has had the hot foot of late helping the Irish survive some rough times, upped his season tally to 13. The leading scorer has displayed the season tally to 13. The leading scorer has displayed.

"I just got off to a slow start," explains the senior forward. "I didn't feel good during the season but I've felt a lot better lately. We made the score 2-0 as he booted during the first quarter and it seems to be working out for us."

NBA East Preview
Phillys reigns

The National Basketball Association's season opens tomorrow, evening with a full schedule of games. The summer has been a hectic one, two franchises have changed hands, with one of them being the Bullets.

Three have had numerous personnel changes. Because of rapid player turnover, it is rare that the same team rules for two consecutive years. Here's a preview of the Eastern conference of the NBA.

Atlantic

Philadelphia 76ers--the talent is there—it always has been—but some changes have been made. Bobby Jones is now wearing a Sixer uniform. He should be a perfect complement to Julius Erving. If loaded with the Dr. J., the Sixers could be close to winning a league title. Erving and former Sixer George McGinnis never blended together.

The center is Caesar Jones—that is until man-child Darryl Dawkins proves that he is ready to assume the job. Dawkins chooses to attend college, he would now be in his senior year. He still has plenty of time to mature. Strong center Harvey Culpings should be tradeable.

The Sixers would have loved to see Phil Ford in their backcourt, but they couldn't pry him away from the Pistons for Larry James. He's got the height and speed to fit the Sixers' system. Despite the absence of their star, the Sixers remain a strong team.

New York Knicks--Bob McAdoo, who is good for 25 points a game. The Knicks still have a scoring machine Bob McAdoo, who is good for 25 points a game. The coaching staff has not been able to motivate him. Dave Cowens has a new contract and he should be happy. But Big Red can't do it all by himself. Jo Jo White is still around, but he's faded in the last few years. Don Chaney never should have left the ABA. Earl Tatum has the talent to start in the backcourt.

The Knicks should challenge the Bullets for the second spot in the division. The problem this year was not the players, it was the coaching. Coach Johnson will be the coach from number one to number two. The Knicks have 12 or 14 girls that show up consistently.

The start of the Xavier game has been set for 8 p.m. on Cartier Field immediately following the football pep rally.

Women's volleyball splits doubleheader

Notre Dame's women's volleyball team split their matches Thursday night, beating home team Purdue-Calumet 7-5, 5-7, 15-3, and losing to St. Joseph's College 15-7, 15-2. The team, now in its second year as a club sport, holds a record of 3-8, an improvement over last year's 1-8 slate.

Co-captain Beth Larocha commented on this year's team, "We're playing a lot more organized this year. We have been doing our fundam entals. Says coach Gorowski, "I'm really proud of the team that will keep us from looking past our next opponent."

The starting lineup that will keep us from looking past our next opponent was set for 8 p.m. on Cartier Field.

The Bullets should finish second in the Atlantic conference and they should round into form by playoff time.

New York Knicks--Willis Reed got the big man he wanted—Marvin Webster but he may be a bit thin in the backcourt.

Weber should be a dominating force for the Knicks. He can rebound, block shots, and score points. If he develops more confidence in his outside shot, he will be a complete center.
