SMC Board to consider library plan next week

by Pam Degnan
Senior Staff Reporter

The final architectural drawings for a new library will be considered by the Saint Mary's Board of Regents next week. Architect Evans Woolen yesterday projected the construction of the building will cost the college an estimated $3 million dollars. The Administration, in attempting to raise a large portion of the money, is undertaking an overall fund-raising campaign.

According to Woolen's design, the library will be situated in the Science Building and across from the dining hall. The building would be constructed in yellow brick with a slate roof. Woolen's plans attempt to preserve the traditional gothic architecture of the older campus buildings.

Woolen, who designed the library at Marson College in Indianapolis and is now engaged in designing at St. Germain's Monastery in southern Indiana, was chosen by the Saint Mary's Library Committee to submit his drawings.

The new building, according to the schematic drawings, will occupy 70,000 square feet as compared to the 18,000 square feet of the old library.

Once completed, St. Bernice Avenue will be arranged to expand the audio-visual department and move the archives from Regina Hall to the new building.

Professor Kevin MacDonnell, chairman of the Philosophy Department and a member of the Library Committee, feels that Woolen's designs are performing a service in keeping with the atmosphere of Saint Mary's.

"I am enthusiastic about the project because I think the new library will succeed in fulfilling the needs of the students," said MacDonnell.

Hammel, Roche defend ticket policies

Senior Staff Reporter

Student Union Director Tom Hammel distributed and explained his organization's concern ticket policies at yesterday's meeting of Commissioners last night in the Student Union Office. Hammel also defended the Union's policy of giving free tickets to Union workers.

Hammel noted that complimentary tickets were needed by the ACC are purchased by the Union. "We are paying for each event and then distributed. The Union may settle a minimum of 10 tickets for no more than 12 pairs of preferential tickets. These may be purchased by Student Union workers.

Treasurer Greg Sebasky then raised the delicate question of whether the workers really deserve this compensation. "This is not a compensation for the work we do. It is taken and try to get some of these tickets to Union workers." Hammel then challenged student workers to submit his drawings. "Most of the seats are great seats. A person has a right to sit in some of these positions and try to get some of these tickets to Union workers." Hammel then challenged student workers to submit his drawings. Noting the beneficial effects of the student Union, Hammel defended the Union's policy of giving free tickets to Union workers. "The work we do is taken into consideration," he commented. Governor will not give troubled Chrysler cash

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Gov. Otis R. Bowen said yesterday he has no plans to unite the state's purse strings for the financially troubled Chrysler Corp., but has encouraged the automaker to bid on contracts to supply the state vehicles. Bowen told reporters that he and three other governors met with top Chrysler officials during the Midwestern Governor's Conference in Missouri this week, but received no specific requests for aid.

Fur flies over Carter’s rabbit run-in Bunny rabbits are soft and cuddly creatures. They wouldn’t hurt anyone. Or would they? The fur is flying over President Carter’s reported run-in with a rabbit. A longtime rabbit breeder says he’s never heard of a bunny attacking, but adds, “Once in a while you do get a mean one.”

Heart surgeon says joggers are masochists

PARLOP: Dr. Christian Barnard, the South African heart transplant pioneer, says that hard-core joggers are motivated not by concern for their health, but by masochism. Writing in a recent edition of the Rand Daily Mail, Barnard says that runners’ apparent goal is to “be far away in some pain-filled form of masochism(jogging) and that bought for a simple fee.”

Judge okays canine search

HAMILTON - Ind. (AP) - School administrators may use trained dogs to sniff out drugs in schools, a federal judge ruled yesterday. However, U.S. District Judge Allen Sharp said a female student’s constitutional rights against illegal search and seizure were violated when she was forced to strip after, a dog indicated she might have marijuana in her possession. More evidence than a dog’s alert would be needed to justify a nude search, he said.

Sharp’s ruling came in a suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union seeking $100,000 in damages for five unidentified highland students after dogs were used to locate drugs in a junior and a senior high school March 23. Sharp refused to reward any damages.

The ACLU contended there was no probable cause for the several weeks of reports of wide spread drug use. The suit also said that locking students in classrooms during the searches constituted illegal detention.

“The dog acted merely as an aide to the school administrator in detecting the scent of marijuana,” Sharp ruled. “The atmosphere within the Highland junior and senior high schools was one of frustration...brought about by their officials inability to control or arrest the drug use problem.

In a public, setting school officials clothed with the responsibilities of caring for the health and welfare of the entire student population may rely on such general information to justify the use of the canines to detect narcotics.”

In the Highland searches, lasting about 2 1/2 hours, dogs were taken room-to-room and walked up and down the aisles sniffing for marijuana. No one was arrested after the Highland searches, but three students were expelled, two other suspended, and 12 others withdrawn from school.

Police charge IRA member in murder

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) Irish authorities charged an alleged IRA timebomb expert and another man with murder in the slaying of Britain's Earl Mountbatten, killed when his boat blew up in Donegal Bay.

Police said they also rounded up an unspecified number of merchants for questioning in an overnight swoop through County Donegal.

Francis McGirl, a 24-year-old farmer, and Thomas McMahon, 31, an upholsterer - both alleged members of the illegal Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing - stood before a judge for just 4½ minutes in Dublin's special no-jury court for terrorist cases.

The charges accused them of on Aug. 27, in Donegal Bay in Mullaghmore, County Sligo, murdering Lord Louis Mountbatten, 79-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, during his annual holiday at Mullaghmore.

Monday was the bloodiest day in the 10 years of underground warfare by the IRA, fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland. Later that day, 18 British soldiers were killed in two bomb explosions in Northern Ireland for which the Irish guerrillas were blamed.

Two members of Mountbatten's family and a local teen-age boat hand were also killed in last Monday's boat explosion for which the IRA claimed responsibility.

McGir1 and McMahon, who were not charged in the other deaths, were ordered held until Oct. 2 for a hearing.

Security sources said they regarded McMahon as an acknowledged expert on time-bomb mechanisms. McGirl's uncle, John Joe McGir1, was once one of the top six men in the Provisionals' chief policy-making council.

McGir1 and McMahon were picked up by police at an antiterrorist checkpoint along a road in northwestern Ireland several hours before the bomb blast splintered Mountbatten's boat. If they were involved, it apparently means either that others took part in the killings or the bomb - an estimated 30 pounds of explosives - was triggered by a timing device or by contact.

Police have theorized the explosives might have been planted in a locker on the boat or in one of the lobster pots checked regularly by Lord Mountbatten, 79-year-old cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, during his annual holiday at Mullaghmore.

Ship loses control; rams butane barge

GOOD HOPE, La. (AP) - A Peruvian ship coming down the Mississippi River veered out of control yesterday and rammed a huge butane tank barge, setting off a huge fireball. Officials said four crewmen died, three persons were missing and 20 were hospitalized.

The barge, torn from the Good Hope Refinery loading dock by the impact of the 514-foot Inca Tupuc Yupanqui, drifted downstream, billowing flame. At the loading dock, the tug Captain Norman bumed.

Last night, the fire-blackened ship was still too hot for rescue teams to search it for the missing men.

"They just got the fire out, and I doubt that anyone will be going down in there tonight," said Alan Bark, a Coast Guard duty officer.

About 300 people living in riverside subdivisions three miles downstream were ordered evacuated when the barge drifted against the riverbank, burning like a runaway blowtorch. They were taken to shelters.

Accounting for survivors at the chaotic scene took hours.

"A total of 48 people were involved - 43 on the ship, 1 on the barge, 3 on the dock, 1 on the tug, said Coast Guard Lt. Tom Pearson.

"Of that 48, we have accounted for 39, with 11 of them still in the hospital. The other 26 were treated and released, or were not badly injured."

Coast Guardsmen wearing fire coats and equipped with search packs were assigned to search the ship for fear that some men might be trapped inside, shielded by fireproof bulkheads but unable to get out until rescuers pry open the hatchways.

Three of six butane tanks on the barge, each about the size of a railroad tankcar, were ripped from the barge and thrown into the river.

Police officer pleads guilty

MILWAUKEE (AP) - For the family of Daniel Bell, the news was welcome, even though it came 21 years later.

"You hear that Danny, my boy?" the truth. Twenty-one years later, they know truth," Lawrence Bell shouted when informed that a former police officer had pleaded guilty to charges of perjury and homicide by reckless conduct in the 1958 shooting death of Bell's 22-year-old brother, Daniel.

The former officer, Thomas F. Grady Jr., 49, now of Pine, Colorado, was quoted in a complaint as having told his policeman partner at the time of the shooting that he would lie about the circumstances because "it was just a goddamnigger kid anyway." The guilty plea both cleared the name of Daniel Belland and said no other officer who went along with a doctored report are now dead.

The case was secretly reopened last year, officials said, after Grady's former partner came forward with the information that Bell was shot while fleeing from a traffic investigation and that Grady planted a jackknife in the dead victim's hand.

District attorney E. Michael McCann said two superiors who knew the truth and who persuaded partner Louis G. Krause to go along with a doctored report are now dead.

McCann did not identify them, and said no other officer who may have known the truth is any longer with the department.

A complaint said Krause, now 48, disclosed that Bell was running with his back to Grady when shot.

Krause "has thought about the matter, and it has haunted him and deeply troubled him for many, many years," the complaint said.

It said he told his superiors the truth, at the time of the shooting, but that, "they convinced him to change his story to match what Grady had told them."

Grady flew to Milwaukee from Colorado with an attorney. He pleaded guilty to homicide by reckless conduct and to perjury.

Judge Ted E. Wedemeyer Jr. scheduled sentencing for Oct. 30.

Grady, who declined to talk to reporters, was freed on $10,000 personal bond.

Grady and Krause left the force a few months after the Bell incident. Krause was dismissed after being involved in a tavern scuffle while off-duty. Authorities said that Grady had told them.

LETTERS TO A LONELY GOD

A Joy Until Sunrise

Rev. Robert Griffin

At night, in Manhattan this summer, you would walk up to 59th Street, along Seventh Avenue, and you would try to remember the Marx Brothers, the flower boys in the movie, and the Bowery Boys in opposite homelike houses. You would sit down on the embankment in front of Penn Station, smoke a cigarette, and watch the crowds. You notice how barren and dirty the Sidewalks of New York are there is a homogeneous category called, simply, sanity. You connect your need for gentleness and acceptance, like a call-girl who knows you can only take about $10, and the Sevarts Avenue, only St. Vincent’s is comfortable to see; because a year ago, at St. Vincent’s, they saved your life.

The sidewalks are crowded with shadows until you reach 31st street, and the buildings in the darkness have the bleakest of all loneliness, that is when the moon is bright, because you have to think of things you can put your arms around if you want Notre Dame to seem more real than the kingdoms visited in sleep.

Healingly writes: "If you are lucky enough to have grown up with a young man, then wherever you go for the rest of your life, it stays with you; for Paris is a movable feast."

Notre Dame, you decide, is also a movable feast and is a city one could easily add to the ones who allow you to be there.

If you are lucky enough to have grown up with a young man, then wherever you go for the rest of your life, it stays with you; for Paris is a movable feast.

"Me and my shadow, strolling down the street, feeling blue."

If you are lucky enough to have grown up with a young man, then wherever you go for the rest of your life, it stays with you; for Paris is a movable feast.

"Me and my shadow, strolling down the street, feeling blue."

Rabbi teaches concepts in Judaism

by Mary Fran Callahan

Rabbi Pincus Peli, a professor from Ben-Gurion University in Israel, is currently teaching courses in Judaism for the Notre Dame Theology Department. Professor Peli is the first rabbi to be invited to occupy such a position.

The rabbi is offering two courses this semester, Prayer & Judaism and Religious Language. The courses will focus on Judaism rather than contrast it with Christianity. Professor Peli anticipated no problems in terms of interest for his course offerings. "In order to understand Christianity, one must go back to its source—the Jewish roots. My courses will provide knowledge as well as sensitivity, so that a student of any religious preference stands to benefit."

On the first day of classes, Professor Peli did not have enough chairs to accommodate all the students registered for his course.

In addition to broadening the students' minds, the rabbi is confident that Notre Dame will enrich his own mind. "I came here because I felt it would be a great opportunity to learn as well as to teach," he said.

The professor received his education at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and has been chairman of the Hebrew Literature Department for the last three of his ten years at Ben-Gurion University.

Carter urges Blacks, Jews to unite

by Michael Molinelli

The shouting erupted as Carter was interrupted by chants and shouts for protest... The shouting erupted as Carter was asked what plans he had to help poor families meet the rising energy costs.

"It's a free country," the president, in shirtsleeves, said as two members of a group calling itself the "Revelutionary Communist Party" were ejected from the high school gymnasium. There was no indication that the protestors were connected with the man who asked the question.

During the protest, a young woman and man, apparently part of the Revolutionary Communist Party, interrupted the session by standing up and shouting chants. They stood up in the audience of about 2,000...

unfurled a banner, and shouted, "Stop the ties." Uniformed police escorted the protestors from the auditorium but apparently took them into custody when the shouting continued.

A White House spokesman said he did not know immediately whether the man and woman had been placed under arrest. There was no indication that the president was in any danger. Carter was greeted with excessive applause when he asked the audience's help in getting Congress to approve his proposed "windfall profits" oil tax.

In the Atlanta address, Carter had said, "differing political views, when and if they do exist, must not become the occasion for deep and damaging divisions between groups of citizens in our society."

Additionally, the board also decided last night that budget hearings will be held Septem­ber 27th and 30th. Sebasky stated that they would have $132,000 to allocate this year.

In the past the largest bene­factors have been Student Union, Student Government and the HPC. Any club or organization which is interested in receiving funds is asked to submit a detailed budget.

An individual could even apply for money if he had a worthwhile idea which may benefit the student body in some way," Roche said. All of the money comes from the $17 student activity fee paid at the beginning of the year. For this reason the board is trying to get away from awarding so much money to service organi­zations.

Roche said that he would also like to redirect the financial requests of these groups to the Mardi Gras charity chest.

A lengthy discussion then followed concerning the allocations of funds. While some members suggested the Stu­dent Government closely control the use of the funds, Roche said he was against such gov­ernment "meddling."

The board is made up of the Student Body President, Stu­dent Body vice-president, the judicial coordinator, Hall Presi­dents Council chairperson, two HPC representatives, Student Body treasurer, Student Union director and the Off-Campus commissioner. The board will meet again on Thursday the 11th in the Grace penthouse.

All meetings are open to the public.

Box Q Notre Dame, IN 46556

TAMPA, FLA. (AP) - President Carter called on the na­tional's Blacks and Jews to put aside their differences yesterday and urged all Americans not to let "diversity...degrade...air into division." Carter has himself confronted later by a small, noisy group of protest­ers.

"In a time of trial we must not permit the legitimate contest of special interest against special interest, and finally each against all others." Carter told an audience at Emory University in Atlanta.

Later, in an appearance at a town meeting here, Carter was interrupted by chants and indications that the protestors had said, " differing political views, when and if they do exist, must not become the occasion for deep and damaging divisions between groups of citizens in our society."

Irish kicking game will enjoy Male, Unis two-footed attack

Last spring I put my head on the chopping block and picked the Chicago Bears to finish fourth in their division. A neighbor put my obituary on his door. The Bears are still alive, and I'm counting my blessings.

So here we go again. Please, no threatening phone calls.

The Colts will have some big problems if quarterback Bob Griese can't play because of a broken ankle.
