The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said an New York City ambassador in Tehran would try to convince the students to get out of the compound. He said an ambassador also was reportedly trying to talk the invaders into leaving.

The spokesman said he was unsure of the identities of the Nine invaders.

The State Department said last night that the Iranian government had "given assurances that our people are being held safe and well."

Just hours after the embassy invasion, several demonstrators chained themselves inside the Statet of Liberty in New York Harbor to protest the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's return to New York, where he is hospitalized. The demonstrators spent most of this morning in the 10-hour authorities cut the chains and took them into custody.

The Tehran stock exchange had not yet closed when the students' demands were heard.

The Moslem clergyman-yesterday ordered the United States for allowing the deposed shah into the country and 30 unauthorized weapons other than tear gas.

In the last 33 years, the Department of Defense is now soliciting more than 35 Americans and seven or eight Iranians.

The Navy put up a better fight than on this day,-smart coverage, than on this day, and press censorship throughout Bolivia as some unconfirmed reports said the hostages were blindfolded and handcuffed, but the Foreign Ministry spokesman denied this, saying the embassy takeover was a "very sacrilegious" act.

They are dealing with them very nicely.

Asking whether the students were armed, he said only that he heard no report that they were.

The spokesman, who was contacted by telephone from Tehran, said the students would not be identified unless they proved their identities.

Indiana students follow Khomeini's advice

Irish students at Indiana Universities are studying more and playing less since the ousting of Mohammad Raza Shah Pahlavi, officials say. Demonstrations against the government were on Indiana campuses this fall, and the only public display of dissatisfaction with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's strict pronouncements are occasional letters to campus newspapers. Iranian students say they are more concerned with getting good grades.

Hearings on MX missile begin

CEDAR CITY, Utah (AP) - A house subcommittee opens hearings today on the Carter administration's proposal to build the controversial $33 billion MX mobile missile system in Utah and Nevada.

In the meantime, Utah Gov. Scott Matheson says when he suggested his state to President Carter as a site, he had no idea of the enormous potential impact from the project.

To assess that impact on both states, the House subcommittee will hear testimony from Air Force Secretary Hans Mark, Matheson, Rep. Dan Marriott, R-Utah, and a string of government and private witnesses.

Matheson sent, a telegram to President Carter last spring urging him to consider Utah as a site for deployment of the MX system, which would involve 200 missiles each deployed on its own 'race track' - spread across 26,000 square miles of Great Basin desert.

"What has happened since that time is that the enormity of the impact of the MX has begun to settle down on us," Mathe­son said yesterday. "No one I have talked to - no one - had envisioned the scope of the socio-economic impacts."

The MX was approved for development by the Congress in June and the Air Force already has asked for $37 million to build roads and facilities at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., for test firing over the Pacific Ocean in early 1983.

Defense officials say they will ask Congress next year for $112 million for buildings and road construction for the Utah and Nevada sites.

The electronic games mania is running strong throughout the campus, and every electronic beep uttered by the machines is music to the ears of the organizations lucky enough to have game rooms.

Tom Neiman, Director of Marketing for the Pinball Division of the Bally Co., the largest manufacturer of pinball machines, reports that 1978 was a record year with sales of $90 million, and he sees 1979 as another good year for the industry.

"Pinball is basically a recession proof industry," he stated. "It was first created during the Depression, and the manufacturers of the first machines were businessmen who had lost their fortunes in the initial part of the Depression."

From a survey of the campus, it would appear that Neiman's predictions for his industry hold true for the grassroots level as well as the manufacturers. The stream of players at LaFortune's is constant throughout the day, and even the relatively high cost of today's electronic games does not seem to deter the players. Addicts rush to LaFortune and other game rooms to play the balls both to play the more traditional pinball games as well as the extremely popular electronic games, such as Ball's "Clue" classic, "Space Invaders."

And while many of the games remain the same, the prices have skyrocketed. Some of the newer machines, such as Ball's latest effort, "Paragon," pay for innovations such as computer sound and extra-large size with costs of $25 cents for a three-ball game, as opposed to the older machine's 25 cents for two-five ball games. The extra added attractions are obviously paying off for Bally with greater sales and the operators with larger cash flows. It is difficult to determine, however, how much of the charge of the game rooms are in reality out of revealing their profits.

The profits have to be fairly substantial on all levels. The games industry is run on four different levels. The manufacturer sells machines to wholesalers, who in turn sell it to an operator, who places them in various game rooms. For allowing the operator to use their space, the game rooms "usually get a 40 or 50 per cent cut from the net," according to Tom Neiman. "It is an excellent deal for them, because all they have to furnish is the electric-up. Also, we wouldn't have to do anything to the land that would detract from the beauty of the campus," an Assembly member remarked.

These suggestions will be brought before the Administration for consideration and approval. "I will talk to Administration about possible sites but you must remember that this type of measure has been discussed for the past three years. Action has been really slow," said Pia Trigiani, student body president.

The game was originated in Japan by the Tako company and quickly became what Neivan calls a "cultural phenomenon." More than 300,000 units of the game have been sold, and it has triggered a shortage of the 100-yen coins used to play it.

"Stores and restaurants have been closed, cleared out, and filled with nothing but 'Invaders' machines," Neivan said. "There is even a hit single about a man who wanders from place to place playing 'Space Invaders.'"

The American production rights were purchased by Midway, and it has proven nearly as popular in America. Players who are hooked can spend enormous amounts of money when they go on 'Invaders' binges and try to better records as well as their own personal bests.

Players have developed an elaborate system for enhancing their scores. UFO-like mother ships hover over the top of the screen at the exact intervals, and players carefully count their shots so as to maximize their bonus points when they shoot.

There has even been a division into two separate groups of thought on the play. One group studiously counts and calculates to maximize their point values, while the other dictates this and calls for a pure playing of the game without these artificial devices. 'I don't like the system (as it is known in 'Invaders' circles) says Jack Ryan, who first started playing in a movie theatre where he worked. 'I use it in the beginning of the game, but then I just finish up by playing it straight.'

Others use the system to role up huge point totals. The machine only registers scores of up to 9,999 but this total is frequently exceeded, at which point the machine starts at zero again. Many break 10,000 before their first laser base is shot.

This rather bizarre world has another curious point. It is virtually entirely male. Whether that reflects on the appeal of the game, or the sense of the female population is debatable. After all is said and done, it is difficult to pin down exactly why "Space Invaders" has such tremendous popularity. It apparently satisfies some inner desire which is inexpressable other than by saying "It's fun."

For approximately seventy-five students, the year's language class serves a much greater purpose than fulfilling requirements. During the year, the Notre Dame/St. Mary's students begin French class. The class, French for Angers, is about living in France. Each spring, the French students presently contemplating living in Angers France next year. The prospects of living and studying in France represent a major decision and an ongoing debate for the students. The debate encompasses many different aspects of life, some born out of the mind. As in all debates, the Angers decision reveals two major angles— to live in France next year or remain in the U.S. Although the aspects may appear relatively straightforward, little details continue to complicate the debate. By examining present preparations, the opportunities offered next year, and future prospects, the students attempt to solve the puzzle.

Undoubtedly for most of the students, primarily freshmen and a few sophomores, the daily French class is more interesting and challenging than all previous French classes. The new level challenges the students to grasp concepts and ideas instead of blindly struggling through grammar and vocabulary. The increased proficiency in speaking, reading, writing and listening to the French language adds tremendously to class enjoyment. For many students, the French language course is not just a course to meet a requirement, but is an opportunity to experience the French culture and it has important to Mr. Kern's overall preparation, next year's opportunities and future plans. For the present, the "Competence and Contemplation" decision will be made only after careful consideration of the year's on the French, pictureque villages, French families, travel, cuisine and adventure stretches the students' imaginations beyond belief. Cosmetically, it places the student wonders if leaving the security of present lifestyles for a year abroad will be worthwhile. And yet, the thought of meeting new people, making new friends, traveling, studying and living in Angers France thrills the student. One is not likely to have another opportunity to be a foreign student, an experience of a lifetime. Thus the pros and cons, in effect, each prospective opportunity.

The student must also consider the future. Whether living in Angers coincides with career and lifestyle plans. Whether the year abroad will be advantageous for job opportunities and career aspirations. However, the opposite viewpoint reminds the student that life must be experienced and that advantage may be the ultimate goal. For the present, the debate will continue and the students will apply time and effort to learning.

Locke rbie Square
houses Indiana rich

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Many years ago, Lockerbie Square was the home of Hoosier Poet Laureate James Whitcomb Riley. Then it was one of a number of decaying inner city neighborhoods.

Having gone full circle, Lockerbie Square has gained a reputation as a haven for the rich. The residents, who bought their homes at bargain basement prices and restored them to glorious Victorian mansions, say that label isn't fair.

People who wanted to save money as well as the architecture of the city began buying the inner city homes en masse.

Many of the members of the Lockerbie Square People's Club say they couldn't afford their homes at today's prices. The housing market, along with mortgage rates, has put the once-affordable homes out of reach for most prospective buyers.

Indianapolis' Old Northside, another revitalized neighborhood, is in a similar state. "No one's going to make a seal on an Old Northside house today," says Marion Redstone, president of the Old Northside neighborhood association.

"I'd be priced out of the market if I tried to buy my home today," says Robert Beauchamp, who founded the neighborhood group.

Five years ago, I bought two houses for $25,000 and today those houses would go for $100,000 in the same condition I bought them," he said. "I've seen one landlord up the asking price on a piece of property from $12,500 to $42,000 over the past four years. If these prices existed when the movement started, half the people here now wouldn't have bought.

Class drops
Students reschedule classes

by Kelli Flint
Staff Reporter

Last Friday, Nov. 2, was the final day for dropping classes. According to Assistant Registrar David Kil, over 8,000 schedule changes were made this semester. "We don't keep track of volume, but overall the number of classes dropped has remained stable over the years," Kil said. "The schedule changes include: classes added, dropped, taken pass-fail, or audited, and changes of college."

"A student is not required to give a reason for dropping a class, and the reason is usually not volunteered," Kil said. "Students usually share their reasons for dropping a class with peers or an advisor."

As stated in the "du Lac" student guide, a class may be dropped at the student's discretion through the first seven class days without the approval of the dean. After this time, they must report to the department offering the course for an add-drop slip. "These slips are not available in the Registrar's office," Kil said. "Many students come to our office for add-drop slips, but we are not allowed to distribute them. They can only be obtained through the department offering the course."

After the slip is completed, the signature of the department chairmen and the approval of the dean of the student's college are required.

"If a section change is all that is desired, the approval of the dean will probably not be required, and the student should go to the department chairmen," Kil said.

According to Kil, the course most frequently added at Notre Dame in recent years has been Astronomy. "In 1972, over 500 students signed up for this course," he said. "When it was raised from the 100 to 200 level, its popularity declined, but it is still a popular selection."

Rex Rakow returns to N D: assumes security position

In addition, Rakow will be responsible for the planning and administration of a training program that will enable the 75 members of the security force to better serve the community.

"This will be done through a program designed to upgrade the present system," Glenn L. Terry, director of ND security, commented. According to the Mandatory Law Enforcement Training Act, an officer must have 400 hours of basic state training before being given the power of arrest. Without this training, an officer can not exercise this power.

"Because only a few ND security officers have the power to arrest," commented Terry, "now that we have a campus training program will be quite beneficial."

Prior to Rakow's three years at Albion, he was a police training specialist for the Southern Illinois Criminal Justice Training Program in Carbondale, Illinois, and a policeman for the Richmond, Indiana Police Department. After earning a bachelor of science degree in police administration at Indiana University, he was a supervisor in the University's Police Cadet Officers Training Program. Responses to Rakow's new appointment have been positive ones.

"I think it's great," Terry's secretary Evelyn De-Boke commented. "We need someone on campus to supervise the evening events. "We're lucky to find a person of Rex's talent," Terry added.

Rakow, who was one of three finalists for the position of security director earlier this fall, is looking forward to his new job. "There simply is a credible institution with very impressive people," he said.

"I'm excited about coming to campus, and looking forward to meeting all of you."

Suspects sought in anti-Klan rally ambush

Already in jail were a dozen men charged with first-degree murder following Saturday's assault on an anti-Klan rally in Greensboro. Examples of such events were concerts and power. But police said some suspects were avowed members of the Klan, local KKK leaders said they were members of other right-wing organizations. Two KKK sources and a Nazi leader said some of the suspects were Nazis, but that could not be confirmed.

Harold Covington of Raleigh, state unit commander of the National Socialist Party of America, said that in late October, bar- men—Roland Wayne Wood of Winston-Salem—was the Forsyth County Unit leader of the Nazis and he recognized the names of some Klansmen among the others.

"I regret the fact that 12 good men are in prison facing murder charges," he added. "As for the Reds, they are the scum of the earth and I don't care about them."

They were identified as Nelson Johnson, reportedly one of the organizers of the rally who was charged with inciting violence, and Willena Cannon, one of the demonstrators, who was charged with interfering with an officer.

first half possession, Meyers helped put Navy in range to score a tying touchdown, carrying five times for 39 yards. The Midshipmen drew even with the Notre Dame 12, but a saving tackle by safety Tom Gibbons on a draw play to Meyers stopped Navy short, and a field goal attempt by Dave Guin was wide.

"Is that their tailback's name?" remarked Irish line backer Bob Crabie when asked about Meyers. "That kid ran hard. He was an excellent back, and it took two or three guys to bring him down.

"If that was their fourth string guy, I sure don't want to see their top three." Although Meyers provided the spark for the sagging Navy defense, it was his turnover that helped seal the game for the Irish. Sweeping around right end, Meyers was met by defensive end John Hankerd, and his subsequent fumble was recovered by Gibbons at the Navy 30-yard line. From there, Ferguson carried the ball six straight times, including the three-yard touchdown play that clinched the win.

Protesters hide in crown

New York (AP) - Seven demonstrators, protesting the deposed shah of Iran's presence in the United States, chained themselves in the Statue of Liberty's crown for 3 1/2 hours yesterday before authorities cut the chains and took them into custody.

The seven, who refused to identify themselves to police, were being charged by National Park Service police on Liberty Island with criminal trespassing and disorderly conduct.

According to Ellen Britton, acting superintendent of the national park in New York harbor, the demonstrators did not resist arrest. Ms. Britton had said about 30 persons were involved in the demonstration, but she said later there were only seven.

The island was closed to the public throughout the demonstration, and Britton said the island and statue would remain closed for the rest of the day. Bahram Nnhidian, a spokesman for the Persian Speaking Group of the Moslem Students Association of the United States and Canada, said the demonstrators in the Statute of Liberty's crown were "protesting the shah's presence in New York."

The Shah came to New York from Mexico last month for a gall bladder operation. He remains in New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center for treatment of lymphoma, a cancer of the lymph glands.

The government of the Ayatollah Khomeini has demanded that the shah be deported to Iran to face charges, and yesterday a group of Iranian students took over the American embassy in Tehran and said they would not surrender the building until the shah was returned home.

John Schmidt insured the Irish sweated with a power play goal at 16:59 which resulted from a bend minor to Hendrickson when he knew the puck on the ice.

North Dame's opponent on this Saturday and Sunday is Michigan, who swept Minnesota to remain tied with the Irish for the best record in the WCHA at 4-0. It should be quite a battle if the Irish can stay healthy.

Vagas shines again
Navy defense shines in Irish win

by Mark Perry
Sports Editor

Navy defense shined in the 39th meeting with Notre Dame, as the Midshipmen could have retired had they scored the final Irish goal. The Fighting Irish did their part to help the celebration by defeating Navy, 1-0. But after the game the ball was donated to the defense of the Midshipmen.

"Navy has a fine defensive team," remarked Notre Dame coach Dan Devine. "Every year the Irish have the top-ranked defensive teams in the nation, and this team is surely a good defensive unit."

"Navy probably had more quality depth than any team we've played this year, including Southern Cal. The Irish have been able to recruit players who are just as big and physical as the players we recruit."

"They had a lot of guys hurt, but they were in the back four," added offensive tackle Tim Foley. "Navy is a well-coached team, and their linemen are well-coordinated and they use good pass rushing techniques. They don't have tremendous size, but they use their linebacks very well to compensate."

Vagas, and if I had rested him it would have been a mistake." "Winning always feels good, but I'll be sure to tomorrow," confided Ferguson. "This shouldn't have been a big factor. Whatever it takes to win the game I want to do it. I can't sit on the bench and just say I'm hurt. You just got to go yourself. "It hurts, then go out there and do your job."

It seemed like the Irish would have ample opportunity to rest Ferguson after their early play, as they marched to a touchdown on their very first possession. Quarterback Randy Loss capped the 73-yard drive by plunging over from a yard out.

And when Bob Crable blocked an attempted punt by Navy's Lex Lauterle, it seemed like the Irish might be heading for a rout. But Navy's defense took over, and held the Irish scoreless until the fourth quarter. In the meantime, the Middies found spark for their offense.

ND cagers play charity game

Notre Dame basketball fans will get their first opportunity to see the 1979-80 Irish in the annual charity game slated for Sunday, November 11, at 7 p.m. in the Athletic and Convocation Center. Tickets are priced at $1 for adults and 50 cents for Notre Dame and St. Mary's students with an ID. Proceeds will benefit the Neighborhood House and the Special Olympics.

Fighting Irish coach Digger Phelps has announced lineups for the game. The tentative starting five, wearing green, will feature a front line of forwards Kevin Collard, Jackie Trakucka and Tracy Jackson at forwards and Orlando Woolridge at the center. Senior co-captains John Brinn and Bill Haukelid will play the backcourt for the green team. Phelps figures to go with

by Brian Beglane
Sports Writer

DULUTH, Minn. - If a poll of the players were taken, the Notre Dame hockey team's favorite road trip would have to be Minnesota-Duluth.

Not because of the weather - the series at U.S. International in San Diego in late December will be the landslide favorite in that respect. But in terms of winning, you can't beat Duluth.

Er, that is, the Irish cat.

Notre Dame broke into the league win column with an 8-4 and 6-4 Western Collegiate Hockey Association sweep of the Bulldogs Friday and Saturday.

The sweep gave the Irish a 2-2 WCHA record (3-2 overall) and propelled them into a six-way tie for third place. Duluth is swamping the WCHA cellar with an 0-4 record.

The Irish have won their last six games in Duluth and the last time they lost here was way back on November 24, 1974, in Notre Dame's career record versus the Bulldogs in Duluth is 9-4-1, and that includes three losses and a tie from the first four meetings.

"Yeah, I guess we're really getting to like playing in Duluth," smiled Irish coach Lefty Smith. "We played much better this week than we did in the opener against Denver. We moved the puck much better and got improved forechecking from our forwards. Practically every aspect of our play was improved."

"We're naturally pleased with two wins, yet we also feel we did not play to our full potential. That is a result of all the injuries we had and the penalties we received. But I'm really pleased with the way we handled all the adversity."

Notre Dame spent so much time in the penalty box both nights the guy opening the door could have retired if he charged admission. The Irish were called for a grand total of 61 penalty minutes for the weekend (16 for Friday, 13 for 26 Saturday) while the Bulldogs received 35 minutes for both nights.

Duluth wound up scoring three power play goals in 23 attempts while Notre Dame had three goals with the advantage in nine opportunities.

"Dave Laurban's goaltending kept us honest in the early going Friday," said Smith. "After the first period, our defensemen started to improve. Kevin Humphreys and Bill Ruthenstein paced the Irish Friday with two goals each. Dave Pooling, Tom Michalek and Jeff Perry all contributed a goal and two assists. But the strong goal tending of Laurban allowed Notre Dame to build a 6-1 lead into the third period. The sophomore netminder made 17 saves in the first period and surrendered only one goal."

With 13:54 remaining in the game, however, Laurban was hurt "hurting a save and was forced to miss the rest of the game. Bob McNamara replaced him and one minute later the Irish defensemen allowed the first goal of the afternoon. Gregg Moore followed by Mitch Corbin's power play goal gave the Irish a 2-0 lead, and seven seconds apart to close the gap to 6-1 with 10:53 to play. McNamara held strong, however, and totaled eight saves, two of them from point blank range in the final minutes."

Ruthenstein's second score at 10:48 doused the fire created by the three Bulldog goals.

"The first period of Notre Dame Notre Dame had the time to score six goals. The Irish appeared to have leased the penalty box as an extra bench. But the Irish went to work against such a tough defense." Ferguson went into the game with a sore shoulder, but the close score left Devine with little opportunity to rest his running stopper.

"I don't know if it's good for Vagas to rest," Devine commented. "Most 1-formation backfields seem to play better late in the game. I'm proud of
