Khomeini urges resistance
by the Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini urged Iranians yesterday to rejoice in their final break with the "world-devouring plunder" of America, and the Tehran government began mobilizing the people for a "holy war" of belt-tightening and possible reasoning to grapple with economic woes.

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr declared there was "no reason to worry" about the U.S. economic embargo against Iran, but added that Iranians would need an extra effort to resist the pressure.

In a message to the nation, Khomeini said President Carter's anti-Iran actions would have no effect on the status of the 30 U.S. Embassy hostages, in their 175th day of captivity in the hands of young Moslem radicals.

He said a decision on their fate still must await convening of the new Iranian Parliament, which may be months away.

When Carter announced the break in U.S.-Iranian diplomatic relations and the virtual trade ban Monday, he said "other actions" might be taken if the hostages were not released in the "original timeframe."

Carter attributed the increase to the inflationary economy coupled with what he called "a generous increase in University employee salaries." "The University has seen it has been understaffing its employees when compared to local rates," Conklin said.

Though Tom Bull, Director of Personnel, declined to use the word underpaid, he yesterday acknowledged, "Notre Dame was not among comparision to South Bend businesses.

When questioned if the University in in danger of losing its clerical and service employees, he replied, "We have had more turnover than we've liked." He further explained that University must remain competitive "wage-wise" in order to recruit employees.

Bull, however, explained that the University has been economizing all year in an effort to remove financial burden from students' shoulders. "We cut maid service from five days a week down to two," he said.

Though the Campaign for Notre Dame has generated $160 million thus far, Conklin cited the rising inflation as a "losing battle." He said the University continually attempts to increase its endowment fund since interest can be gained from it.
Carter seeks actions on claims made against Iran

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) - The United States is hoping the World Court will issue a ruling against Iran that could - in theory - put the 50 American hostages in line for some cash. The court is debating a U.S. claim that the Iranian government must pay damages for the Iranian militants' seizure of the American Embassy in Tehran and the holding of hostages there since Nov. 4. The international panel of 15 judges is expected to rule on the U.S. claim in a few weeks.

U.S. buys additional grain to defray cost of embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Agriculture Department said yesterday it has bought an additional 45.9 million bushels of wheat, the second and largest purchase so far to help boost farmers' prices by absorbing grain that had been intended for the Soviet Union. No prices or quantities bought in various states were announced. Officials said those details would be available later. Bergland says the purchases will continue until about four million metric tons - 156.6 million bushels - are removed from the market to ease impact of the partial embargo against the Soviet Union announced Jan. 4 by President Carter.

Inflation sparks lower credit sales

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rising credit costs and fear of inflation's future are causing some Americans to cut back on their spending or to use cash instead of credit cards, one leading financial analyst predicted yesterday. Paul Volcker, vice president for credit at Chase Manhattan, said that monthly payments receivables on charge accounts jumped 25 percent in March. David Bonbright, general manager for Master Charge, said that the bank has been seeing a similar trend.

The renewal of the liquor license of Corby's Tavern is being postponed pending the outcome of an Indianapolis hearing regarding Corby's alleged violations in connection with the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors, according to Jim Myers, manager of Corby's.

The Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC) postponed the decision on the renewal until April 16. "The State ABC hearing in Indianapolis took place Monday, and the results of that hearing cannot be disclosed until the local ABC decides on the renewal," Myers said.

Myers feels that Corby's will not lose their liquor license. "The violations brought against us in the trial were minor," Myers said. "They were not serious enough to warrant losing our license in that sense." Myers added that he feels Corby's has not broken the law. "We card people at the door," he said. "I look for fakes, but some minors have very good fakes and get in. It's the minors with the fakes that are breaking the law." Myers also added that it would be difficult to enforce policies at Corby's that would be stricter than the ones they now have. "We already require picture," Myers said. "When a minor with a fake gets in, there's a risk to the jobs of everyone here. I don't hesitate to fire a person to leave if I'm suspicious of their identification." Myers believes that the mayor is to blame for the situation. "I've never receiv­ ed any complaints from neigh­ bors," Myers said. "I feel that if they had a complaint they would come to me first instead of going directly to the police."

served as President of St. Viator High School in Chicago, and held the position of Vice President of the Archdiocese of Chicago School Board.

In his new post, Ryan will be the dean of the largest of DePaul University's nine academic colleges. The Commerce College has 6,282 students.

O'Meara has advised the College of Business Administration Council to elect a committee to receive and consider nominations for the deanship.

In a departure from past procedures, O'Meara noted, the committee will be set up before this summer to expedite the naming of a new dean. He emphasized that the process of selecting Ryan's replacement will be a lengthy one, and will involve the use of national advertising to attract applicants.

Although O'Meara could indicate no strict timetable for the naming of the new dean, he indicated that a good possibility exists that Ryan's replacement could be named "just prior to semester break in December or just shortly after break next January.'

Anyone who's planning on getting some place in this world after graduation is thinking about the American Express Card. After all, it's the most respected Card for travel and entertainment any aspiring college grad can carry. With it you can pay for trips, car rentals, shopping sprees. What you wear. The food you eat. Even where you sleep. It's about all you'll need to work your way up the corporate ladder or vacation down the Nile.

And we've even made the American Express Card easier to get. If you're about to graduate and have a $10,000 job lined up (or a promise of one), now's the time to apply for the American Express Card. And turn a doodle into reality.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We are sailing in a sea of difficulties. We have been in this sea for some time, but the shore is far away."

In that way, Cuban President Fidel Castro candidly acknowledged last December that his revolution had fallen on hard times.

At the time, there were reports of increased street crime, worker absenteeism and black market activities. In addition, pamphlets and posters denouncing the regime began to appear in Havana. There also has been a dramatic rise in the number of Cuban "boat people" arriving in the United States.

But nothing has quite so dramatized popular dissatisfaction for the regime as has the appearance of thousands of Cubans on the grounds of the Peruvian embassy in recent days, seeking political asylum. The inundation of the embassy was touched off a week ago when a Cuban policeman was killed in a cross-fire while six Cubans seeking asylum were trying to crash their bus onto the embassy grounds. The refugees came in droves a few days later when the government withdrew its security guards from the embassy and announced that those seeking asylum would be allowed to leave.

In truth, U.S. officials say, economic difficulties have spread throughout the Caribbean over the past few years. And, as Castro tirelessly points out, Cuba, despite its difficulties, is well ahead of the rest of the Caribbean in health care and education.

On the other hand, no Caribbean country has received foreign assistance on the scale that Cuba has been receiving from the Soviet Union, currently about $8 million a day. But Soviet aid has not offset a number of problems affecting the Cuban economy. In a speech to the Cuban National Assembly last winter, Castro noted that much of the country's tobacco crop has been wiped out by disease. In addition, "plant rot" is threatening Cuba's vital sugar harvest. The U.S. economic embargo also is a frequently blamed for Cuban economic troubles.

Cuban officials admit, however, that the two factors are not entirely to blame for Cuba's economic plight. Castro's brother, Raul, in an unusual frank speech last fall, also criticized Cuba's workers for "lack of discipline and control, irresponsibility, negligence and cronyism."
Candidates look to Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Ronald Reagan, John Anderson, Jimmy Carter and Edward Kennedy will be household words in Indiana by the time the May 6 presidential primary rolls around. And in the case of Carter, his representatives, will all visit the state later this month in their quest for primary election votes.

Former California Gov. Reagan and Illinois Congressman Anderson face each other in the GOP primary, while President Carter and Sen. Kennedy are competing in the Democratic contest.

Former CIA Director George Bush will be on the Republican list, but has decided against anchoring an active Indiana campaign.

At stake in the presidential primary are 54 Republican delegates and 80 Democratic delegates, numbers that place Indiana close to the middle of the number of delegates that can be won.

States like California, Texas and New York provide greater rewards to primary winners, but states like New Hampshire or Wisconsin provide fewer delegates.

The rules differ in each party contest on the way delegates will be apportioned among primary winners.

In the Democratic primary, any candidate winning more than 20 percent of the vote in all but two to the state's 6 congressional districts will get delegates. In the 6th District, the percentage is 25 percent, while a 17 percent win will pick up a delegate in the 1st District.

In the Republican primary, the winner in each congressional district gets all the delegates from that district and at-large delegates will be apportioned according to the statewide vote.

The Democrats will apportion their at-large delegates according to the way congressional district winners are apportioned. For example, a candidate winning 40 percent of the delegates on a congressional district basis also will get 40 percent of the statewide delegates.

That means the Republican primary could be a winner-take-all contest. A candidate who wins a majority of the vote in each congressional district, while both candidates had already agreed they would hold a debate to select the deadlock.

The Democrats will be holding a debate on the way delegates will be chosen in the primary. In the Republican primary, the winner in each congressional district will get all the delegates from that district and at-large delegates will be apportioned according to the statewide vote.

The ruling Revolutionary Council met in an extraordinary session yesterday with provincial governors to discuss steps that should be taken as a result of Carter's new standards.

Council spokesman Hassan Habibi said they were considering a "holy war" that might mean rationing of consumer goods, putting on wages and clamping down on hoarders and others causing shortages in domestically produced goods.

The U.S. sanctions are not expected to have a significant impact on the Iranian economy, since trade between the two countries had already been dwindled to negligible levels. The embassy takeover had no effect.

Dear Editor:

Reagan accused for his stand on the abortion issue abroad in light of the ex-Soviet leader's blantly hypocrirical speech at the sanctuary of human life. Admittedly, Mr. Reagan has now planted himself firmly on the side of the pro-life forces. But does this symbolize a complete change of heart or a new-found commitment to foreign policy on the part of the United States.

The student body has continually been dealt a blow in situations affecting the pursuit of higher education beginning with the abolishment of section parties and now the refusal of students to attend a policy. The six dissenting votes on the policy were all cast either by the Administration or an arm of the Administration (a rector, three recceors, and a professor). The action's consistency was justified by "the presence of alcohol abuse on campus" and "the University's attempt to solve this problem." This is an ideological and intellectual response by the Administration in an effort to absolve itself of any additional responsibility to students outside the ranks of academics and is another example of the Administration's aloofness to student life. The mere consumption of alcohol coupled with a weighted alcohol survey hardly constitutes a problem.

It is at this point that the key issue relates to a simple matter of alleviating higher costs in addition to increasing order at parties, it becomes a matter of principle: Continual rejection of sound, feasible requests by students only serves to heighten hostilities towards the Administration's dogmatic reign and causes students to lose faith in the Administration's motives.

 LOS ANGELES - There is a lot of scandal going on in college athletic programs these days. The Pacific Athletic Conference, composed of the major West Coast schools, is under fire because evidence is building up that certain athletes were given credit and also athletes took tests for college players who, for one reason or another, were unable to study for them.

I believe the schools are taking a bad rap. Every college coach I've talked to has assured me that each student on his team has a faculty adviser, who counsels the athlete on his education and makes sure he keeps up his grades. I was even permitted to attend a session with an All-American running back and his adviser at Unibaked State of Southern California.

The adviser said, "Lightning, I've been studying your transcripts and you're doing very well." "I should hope so. I ran over 1,000 yards last season in the 440s." "I just received your grade for your debating class. You got a B minus." "A B minus! Who the heck took that course for the CLC?" "A guy named Mark Kovey. He was supposed to do better but apparently he's having trouble and has developed a stutter." "I don't know why I shouldn't take a B minus because my brother do has personal problems."

Administration continues to stifle students

Dear Editor:

All too often, the students of Notre Dame are refused the opportunity to demonstrate the responsibility and maturity that is maintained to be an integral part of our "successful" education. The recent CLC decision on the keg policy is indicative of our intellectual pursuit to express our adulthood and I wish to discuss a few matters concerning this point.

An Tostal Mud Volleyball to begin tomorrow

by Bridget Berry
Staff Reporter

The preliminary rounds of the An Tostal Mud Volleyball Tournament will start tomorrow, Chairman Kate Hammer announced yesterday.

Draws will be posted today outside the Student Union office in LaFortune. Hammer added. She urged all participants to check to find out when they are scheduled to play.

Eight games will be played each afternoon between Grace Hall and Juniper Road, they are scheduled to play.

Hammer said that last year's prize-winning team was awarded with two cases of beer while the second place team was consolled with one case.

Although the committee requested the first prize allotment for the increase in entusiastic, Hammer said that budget restrictions call for the increase improbable.

"I am pleased by the expansion of this year's program," Hammer said. "The Tournament Committee had originally expected to form about 128 teams of six to eight players each, but expanded to accommodate the 160 teams that registered."

Hammer attributes much of the increase in enthusiasm to changes in the sign-up procedure.

This year, Mud Volleyball teams and Bookstore Basketball teams registered concurrently.

Boycott continues

by the Associated Press

Repubicus Ronald Reagan and George Bush, who have been taking turns second-guessing President Carter's Iranian policy, parted company yesterday on the president's call for a U.S. boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow. Bush accused Reagan of taking a "wishy-washy position" on the issue.

Campaigning in Pennsylvania, Bush told the World Affairs Council, "I find it outrageous that this nation has not rallied behind our president. I'm appalled that my principal opponent for the Republican presidential nomination has taken a wishy-washy position on this issue."

Reagan, appearing before THE American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington, said that while he supports the idea of boycotting the Moscow Olympics, he feels American athletes should be free to decide for themselves whether to participate.

Carter has repeatedly endorsed U.S. athletes to back his boycott, but has stopped short of threatening any reprisals against those who fail to do so.

While Bush and Reagan renewed the dialogue on the Olympics, supporters of Rep. John Anderson were reporting growing support for an independent presidential bid by the veteran Illinois congressman.

And in Pittsburgh, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy renewed his assault on Carter's treatment of the steel industry.

In voicing support for Carter's Olympic stand, Bush said, "Today, I am urging the president not only to stand firm but to take additional action that will ensure the finality of his decision and put an end to the public debate over the participation of our athletes."

In late January, Carter called for a U.S. boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympics to be held in Moscow this July in reprisal for the Soviet military thrust into Afghanistan.

MECHA shows films

Notre Dame's First (chicano) Film Festival, sponsored by the Centro American Graduate Students and MECHA, will be held Wednesday through Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Library Auditorium. The public is invited to attend and there is no charge for admission.

An initial screening on Chicano farmworkers in the Midwest and the efforts of the predominantly Chicano Farm Labor Organizing Committee (FLOC) to organize these workers in a union will be shown Thursday. This film, made in December 1979 by a TV news station in Toledo, Ohio, describes the struggles of the first farmworker union to arise in the Midwest and provides multi-dimensional coverage of the issues surrounding the FLOC organization.

The FLOC documentary will be followed by The Unwanted, a film by Jose Luis Rios, that examines the economic and sociological implications of undocumented Mexican workers. Thursday night has been designated as a fundraiser for FLOC. Donations are encouraged.

Holding...! "Get a grip on the pig," said the ad manager, "nobody got hurt downtown, did they?"

Some of the cage talk did center around the free agent mess with some not-so-nice comments coming from players. "I smink of this free agent stuff," harped One Pirate. "Look at Reggie Jackson. He doesn't even hit over .300 and he's getting bucks. That's just a million dollar mouth."

Nowadays everybody wants to be in a commercial. Prior to the game with the Phillies catchers Ott and Nicosia were clawing around like Attila, hurling cage when Ott snuffled, "Mmm... somebody smells good.

The duo zeroed in on Observer photographer Lisa Gassorek and the undeniable scent of Sweet Honesty. "Must be your after shave," smarted Gasiorek.

The slugger wasn't to be outdone by his buddies, so the life of the party, Andy Pape, whipped back, "Ain't nobody got hurt downtown, did they?"

Dave Parker or Willie Stargell a major league team now, because it looks to be a very difficult camp. If just one more tyke offered Parker or Willie Stargell a $10,000 deal, I would have to come to grips with the idea.

No amount of crowding around or hard work can give this story a happy ending. The Pirates, along with the other 25 major league teams, want that covered 1980 World Championship title, but before October, an awful lot of give-and-take needs to take place in negotiations.

I couldn't come up with a clever moral like Aesop, but I can certainly relate to the story. Theodus, owner of the Florida Everglades, has the bad luck of being the only team in the National League that has never faced the Boston Red Sox, the one team that has never been in the World Series.

I'VE BEEN TEACHING HERE FOR NINE YEARS.

ABOUT TWO YEARS AGO I MET THIS ATTRACTIVE AND WISE WOMAN. WE DATE OCCASIONALLY FOR A WHILE.

LATELY IT'S BECOME SERIOUS. WE FALL IN LOVE AND I COME TO HER AND ASK PERMISSION TO MARRY HER.

A few of the current members of the team agree with the coach and with Digger. "I think the change is good because it shows progress," said junior guard Maggie Tally, who next year should become the first four year member of the team agree with their satisfaction to be gotten out of this program, and I'm glad to see it making the transition now," stated Matvey, who hails from Notre Dame. "We're going to be big time now, and get all the publicity and prestige that goes with it, and I'm just really excited to be a part of all that."

One of the areas which will be effected by the change im immediately is that of scheduling. If the team is going to compete on a Division I level, it must play an air of Division II schools. This past season, a total of four such schools were on the schedule, including Michigan, South Dakota, St. John's, and Austin College. The closest Petro's team to these schools was the Blue Jays of Austin College.

All four schools have been scheduled again for next year, as well as Miami University of Ohio. Other names being shown around as additions to next year's schedule are Mary Collins of Indiana University, South Dakota, and South Carolina. This past season, Petro's team played against these four schools and won their first game since April 1 when we played against each other. We've had a tendency to play better teams that we have won. If we play well, even when we lose.

Men, women rowers win

Both the men’s and women’s varsity rowing clubs were victorious over the University of Tennessee on April 6 in a match held in Nashville, Tenn. The men’s novice team, coached by Paul Devitt, suffered a loss to the University of Jacksonville on April 3. The rowing club will open its home season Saturday with an 11:30 a.m. meet with teams from Grand Valley State College and the University of Michigan. The teams will begin the 2000 meters race at the Mishawaka Marina on the St. Joseph’s River.

Tracksters lose at Middle Tennessee

The men’s outdoor track team finished a disappointing last place in a field of five at Middle Tennessee State over the weekend. Joe Plane, head coach of the Irish, was encouraged at the meet with performances by Kenny in the 1500 meters (3:51.8) and Mark Novak in the 5000 meters (14:32). The team travels to Arkansas State on April 12 for a dual meet.

Netters return from 6-1 tour

The Irish tennis team spent a productive break touring Mexico, competing against various clubs. Petro remains in race for head coach position

Change. At a university as top-flight as Notre Dame, that word isn't heard too often. Coaches have a tendency to stay around to inhabit the double-digit numbers of years because administrators and professors don't come and go so frequently. That being said, petro was a part of this campus for eight years...the spring session will cease to operate on the Division III level, and will next year become Division II. This will entitle the University to hand our under-12 students-in-a-college-members of the women's team. The second reason for these will be left up to the discretion of the coach. And speaking of the coach, Sharon Petro's future as head coach of the women's basketball team which certainly has more than a few people by surprise.

Just to recap something you've probably heard many times already, the program will cease to operate on the Division III level, and will next year become Division II. This will entitle the University to hand out scholarships to her under-12 students who may be members of the women's team. The second reason for these changes, which may still be left up to the discretion of the coach. And speaking of the coach, Sharon Petro's future as head coach of the women's basketball team is certainly one of those being considered.

The man put in charge of overhauling the athletic department until such a time as a head coach is named is John Crow, the current football coach of the men's team and chairman of the basketball department.

According to Phelps, the change promises to be a beneficial one.

"I think that it (the women competing on a division one level) will be a great opportunity for the University," said Phelps before break. "This is going to force us to a position where the women's team will eventually be able to compete on the same success level as the men already did. I think it's an excellent move.

"Now of course, it's difficult to predict the immediate effect of the change in terms of what it will do to the team's record next year," he continued.

Petro, who just completed her third year as head coach of the women's team, did not expect such a drastic change, but rather thought the Irish may suffer from the change should be a good one.

The philosophy of the program is great," Petro stated earlier. "I think that ideally, this is the year taken.

Weather delays drills

Notre Dame's annual spring football program last week was put on hold twice in the hopes of better weather, were set back another day Tuesday when the second session was washed out. The players instead worked out indoors, several representatives of NFL teams, including coach Chuck Noll of the World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates, were there to lend a hand to some of the Notre Dame squad...former Notre Dame All-America center Dave Huffman, now employed by the National Football League, was in town to check up on the progress of his "little" brother Tim at 6'9 and 250 pounds. Tim goes by the nickname "Tiny," and should merit considerable All-America mention next fall. Old-time defensive guard...Dave is attending graduate school at the University of Michigan during the off-season.

Baseball's villain strikes again

Incredibly (brainstormed by Miller, I'm sure) opted for a combination of the two: a walkout for Memorial Day Weekend, the opening date for ticket sales. The players.APIAS

"We're not telling anyone our secrets," said Ed Ott, catcher for the World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

The unexpected strike-play-strike theory of the players surprised everybody, because it was business-as-usual in camp until the walkout. The Pirates, baseball's closest knit, hurts the most (the pocket) by striking. The big question mark was: Where are the Pittsburgh Pirates? Head Coach Chuck Noll, baseball's closest knit, "family," abused, encouraged, and entertained for the last two years. Pirates, baseball's closest knit, another one in their short spring work out.
